CIO Calls Strike of 53,000 Coal Miners in Five States

IRISH VOW TO AVOID WAR; SEE U. S. IN IT SOON

Gossip Reveals Vast Work on Bases.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—While it seems apparent that the majority of the Irish are convinced that America shortly will be in the war, this conviction so far has not shaken Ireland's determination to keep out.

Even the news, common property with every one here, regarding the construction by Americans of bases in Ulster [Northern Ireland] which, rightly or wrongly, it is assumed are intended for use by Americans, has in no way changed the official attitude that any attempt by force from whatever source to seize bases in Ireland will be regarded and countered as an act of aggression.

De Valera's Speech Quoted.

"This goes for America, too," The Tribune correspondent was told by a man who has opposed Prime Minister De Valera's domestic policy for years. And when official confirmation of this was sought, THE TRIBUNE was referred to De Valera's speech at Mullingar on Oct. 5, in which he said:

"Numerically small, we are placed geographically in a position obviously tempting to both sets of combatants. Under God, nothing but constant vigilance and unflinching determination can save us. In our situation there can be no maneuvering, not subtlety, no finessing. We chose and have pursued a policy of making it unmistakably clear that we do not wish to be involved in the war; that we are not prepared to tolerate any violation of our territory, and will resist any aggression to the last atom of our strength.

Will Face Attack United.

"If we are attacked we shall be in a position to face the ordeal as a united people. Whoever attacks us will by that fact have proclaimed himself the aggressor, no matter what his pretenses may be, and to have proved himself our enemy."

While Ireland is reaffirming her neutrality policy, few doubt that the United States will come into the war shortly. There are no placards here warning the people against careless talk.

Many Americans building bases in Ulster have visited relatives in Ireland. Conversation everywhere is free and unguarded. What is going on in Ulster is described here in homes, bars, cafés, restaurants, and clubs. Both Italy and Germany have legations here, so this cannot be news to them. THE TRIBUNE cannot vouch for the truth of this gossip, but here it is as it is told around town:

Contracts have been let in Ireland by Americans under the lend-lease act not only for the construction of naval and air bases, but for thousands of hutments which are designed to house American soldiers. These must be completed by Dec. 4.

Bases to Supply Convoys.

"The marines are coming," an Irishman told the Tribune correspondent.

Ever since work began on the bases it has been assumed here that America intends to occupy them, as in Greenland and Iceland. Such an intention, if true, would only corroborate Lord Halifax's recent description of America's foreign policy as the defense formula that the attack often is the most valuable defense, quoted to explain America's objectives in Northern Ireland.

The Ulster bases, one hears, would supply convoys and the Atlantic ferry service, airplane patrols, and even serve as the jumping off ground for air armada attacks on the continent, if it comes to that.

Comment on Roosevelt.

That it is soon coming to that is frankly stated in the Irish Times, known for its pro-British leanings. Commenting on "America's next move," it remarks:

"President Roosevelt no sooner gains one point than he makes for another.

"He wants congress to permit United States vessels to enter belligerent ports—which is to say, of course, the ports of Great Britain and her allies," the editorial continues.

"Congress will offer strong oppo-

NAZIS WIN VITAL DONETZ CITIES; PUSH ON MOSCOW

Possession of nearly all of the Ukraine and the most important industrial centers of the Donetz basin was claimed by the Germans today following announcement of the capture of Kharkov and nearby Belgorod, vital munitions and railroad cities.

Few details on the fighting around Moscow were made public, but a broadcast from Vichy, France, which was quoted in London, said the Germans had reached points within 20 miles of the Reds' capital.

Russia reported its armies heavily engaged west and southwest of Moscow, in the Orel sector, 200 miles to the south, and in the Makeevka and Taganrog areas of the Donetz basin. New offensives by the Nazis also were said to be under way toward the Crimea and Rostov on the Don river, gateway to the Caucasus.

SENATE GROUP VOTES TO LIFT WAR ZONE BAN

Favors Ships Going Anywhere, 12-11.

'Authorized' Danger

ROME, Oct. 25 (AP).—The official Stefani agency said today that approval by the United States senate foreign relations committee of a bill to lift the ban on United States ships in belligerent waters meant that "the senate committee has authorized American ships to place themselves under the bombs of the axis."

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—By a vote of 12 to 11 the senate foreign relations committee today decided to recommend removal from the neutrality act of the restrictions upon sending American ships thru combat zones into the ports of belligerent nations.

Sen. R. F. Wagner.

The administration achieved this victory, generally conceded to be the last legislative step to be taken before an actual declaration of war, thru the use of the proxy vote of Sen. Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], who has been unable to attend to his duties in Washington for a year.

The senate will begin debate on the bill Monday. This discussion, destined to be historic, may last weeks. Eventual senate approval is claimed by Democratic leaders, but the measure then reverts to the house, which on Oct. 17 voted, 259 to 138, to lift only the ban on the arming of merchant ships.

Seen as War Declaration.

Noninterventionists, led by Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], characterized the committee's bill as "a declaration of war." Another member of the committee, Sen. Henrik Shipstead [R., Minn.], declared:

"Our ships will now be going thru enemy waters filled with mines and lurking submarines if this policy is approved. It all confirms the apprehension I have felt regarding the President's foreign policy ever since his quarantine speech delivered in Chicago in October, 1937.

"It was an entirely unfair action. No witnesses had been called and no discussion whatsoever had taken place during our four day hearing concerning the sending of ships to belligerent ports.

"It is the last of many steps to take us into war under the slogan 'All steps short of war.'"

White Switches Vote.

In voting to broaden the house bill so that only minor sections remain in the neutrality law, 12 Democratic members of the committee sided with the administration. Six Republicans, four Democrats, and one Progressive voted against the proposal. On voting to submit the bill as amended, Sen. Wallace H. White [R., Me.]

4 ARE DROWNED IN SINKING OF FISHING VESSEL

Cleveland, O., Oct. 25 (AP).—Coast guard headquarters here late today reported four persons lost their lives in Lake Erie when a 40 foot fishing vessel sank near Kingsville, Ont.

The coast guard said Kingsville authorities listed the victims as Thomas Ebbett, 40; a man identified only by the last name of Obley, 48; Obley's 29 year old son, all of Kingsville, and an unidentified woman whose body was recovered a half mile east of Kingsville.

The boat was reported overdue after leaving Peelee Island Thursday night. An amphibian plane from the Traverse City, Mich., coast guard station began a search for it and reported finding the wheelhouse which had been carried away from the boat. Search was continued for the bodies of the three men.

Authorities expressed belief that the boat either had sprung a leak or had capsized. The boat was owned by Richard McLean of Kingsville, not aboard.

Mrs. Roosevelt Suggests Suburbanites Raise Pigs

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Rural and suburban dwellers should start vegetable gardens and raise pigs and chickens, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told 1,500 persons today at a forum sponsored by the Foreign Policy association. Such a move, she explained, would take them out of the consumer market and leave more food to be shipped to England.

British Censor Reads Brazil Mail for U. S.

Permitting British censorship of American commercial correspondence with South American firms is like giving business away, Maurice B. Pendleton, editor and manager of the magazine Wood Products, said yesterday after receiving a letter which had been opened in transit.

The letter was from Parquet Paulista Ltda., in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and asked Pendleton where certain American machinery could be bought. It had been slit open and resealed with a sticker reading "Opened by Examiner 8033."

Tip Valuable to British.

"It is not difficult to perceive the value which the information in the letter would have for rival British companies whose slogan is 'Business as usual'," said Pendleton.

"Here we have our government lending millions upon millions of dollars to South American countries to cultivate good will, and on the other hand supinely giving the British access to our trade. It is not only giving our business away, but paying to give our business away."

An employé in the foreign mail section of the Chicago postoffice confirmed Pendleton's charge that business men's complaints about British censorship are increasing.

In Force Long Time.

"British censorship of South American air mail and some boat mail has been going on for a long time now," he said.

"We can't tell the British what to do on their land—which Trinidad is, altho we have a naval base there. But it's not right. We get plenty of complaints from business men, but what can we do about it?"

A spokesman for Pan-American Airways said the Trinidad censorship staff has been increased recently so that mail rarely is delayed. Most mail on a plane arriving for the overnight stop leaves on the same plane the next morning, he said. All planes stop on the British island.

Opened in Bermuda, Too.

Early in the war there was a hubbub over British censorship of American correspondence with Europe in Bermuda, where both planes and boats halt to let the censors have a whack at the mail.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull nearly two years ago.

"This government readily admits the right of the British government to censor private mails originating in or destined to the United Kingdom or private mails which normally pass thru the United Kingdom for transmission to their final destination."

FIVE PICKETS MARCH AROUND AND AROUND LOOKING FOR A WAR

Four men who claim to have been members of the Abraham Lincoln brigade, which fought with the communist troops in the Spanish Civil war, and a plumpish lady who said she's never been in Spain, appeared yesterday, banners and all, in front of 122 South Michigan avenue.

There, for two hours, the quintet marched up and down the sidewalk. Few of the spectators understood why the pickets chose this location and one or two asked Sid Simonsen, the leading picket and secretary of the Chicago post of the brigade.

Simonsen jerked his head toward the building. "Local office of the America First committee," he announced. "We're picketing them."

"Last time you fellows picketed," chided a passer-by, "you were picketing Aid to the Allies meetings."

He pointed to a banner reading "Strike Hitler Now—Repeal the Neutrality Act."

"That's a far cry from what the communists were yelling a couple of months ago," the passer-by said.

Simonsen grinned. "Well, when conditions change, we change," he said.

Simonsen then named the other men—Joe Nolan, Isadore Tivien, and Milton Cohen. "Don't ask the lady's name. Better ask her."

But the lady marcher refused to give it.

Pretty soon the pickets got tired of walking around in a circle and they lifted the signs from their shoulders and went home.

Closed Shop Demanded in Steel Mill Pits

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 25 (AP).—Leaders of CIO United Mine Workers locals were notified by their district officials today that work in coal mines owned by seven of the nation's leading steel corporations and knowns as "captive mines," would cease at midnight tonight.

"The mines will go down at the appointed hour unless the operators are willing to sign a union shop agreement," said P. T. Fagan of Pittsburgh, president of UMW district 5.

The national defense mediation board estimated at 53,000 the number of miners subject to the strike call in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois, and Alabama.

Board Clings to Hope.

The board, which after several weeks of negotiations announced in Washington it could effect "no meeting of minds" on the UMW's demand for a union shop still displayed hope, however, that some agreement could be reached.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, however, at Washington, D. C., declined further extension of negotiations and said in a letter to President Roosevelt that the 40 days of negotiations before the mediation board had proved a "fantastic procedure." "The attitude of the board toward this problem has been casual and lackadaisical to the point of indifference," Lewis wrote.

Lewis described the board's report to Mr. Roosevelt of failure to attain an agreement as "devoid of conclusions as to merit, evasive as to the responsibilities of the board," which he said "dumps its own sorry mess into the already overburdened lap of the chief executive."

The President had suggested that Lewis and Myron C. Taylor, former chairman of the United States Steel corporation, start direct negotiations between themselves if necessary. Lewis said he understood Taylor had declined the suggestion on the ground he felt he could represent his own company, but not the entire industry.

Mines Affected by Order.

The miners struck for seven days last month, returning to work under a 30 day truce to let the mediation board attempt a settlement. The truce expired Oct. 19.

Mines affected would be those operated by United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Weirton, Wheeling, and Crucible Steel corporations, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, which produce more than 80 per cent of the steel used in the arms program.

The National Association of Manufacturers commented in New York that "if the mines are closed steel production must halt and if steel production is cut off the whole defense program must collapse."

The sole issue of the dispute is the union shop, which would require all employés, if not already members of the UMW, to join the union within 30 days after starting work. Fagan said industries would be "better off with this provision than now, as it would eliminate dues picketing and interruptions of employment."

Steel Companies Silent.

The steel companies, declining to comment in the dispute, were represented as objecting to the provision because it might lead to the same system in their steel mills.

The United States Steel corporation turned its Kearny, N. J., shipyards over to the navy department rather than grant a union maintenance plan under which the company would have to discharge workers who failed to pay union dues.

Spokesmen said the corporations regard the union shop as tending to create a labor monopoly and reduce discipline and efficiency by making union officers appear to be more powerful than company foremen.

1,700 Notified in Illinois.

Danville, Ill., Oct. 25 (AP).—Approximately 1,700 United Mine Workers here were notified today by Ray Edmundson, their state president, to cease production at the United States Coal and Coke company's Westville mine at midnight tonight.

Edmundson said local 5509, the affected union, would offer the company the usual force of maintenance men to keep the mine in condition but that no coal would be produced until further notice.

Police Fire on Indian Mob in Religious Riot

DACCA, India, Oct. 25 (AP).—One person was killed and two were injured when police fired on a mob which attacked them today in an area where a clash between Hindus and Moslems occurred Thursday.

RECORDS SHOW PAYOFFS FROM COUNTY TOWNS

'Small Fry' Bow to Gambling Bosses.

That there is a dictatorship controling all of Cook county's gambling and that it is vested in the Guzik - Nitti - Humphreys - Vogel syndicate is proved by the balance sheets covering their operations in the month of July, this year. These balance sheets are in the possession of THE TRIBUNE.

There are small gangs and there are individuals outside the Guzik régime operating slot machines, handbooks, punch boards, and dice games. But every individual and every gang pays 25 per cent of the profits to the big Guzik - Nitti - Humphreys - Vogel syndicate for the permission to conduct illegal operations and be protected from the law.

County Well Organized.

The records of the syndicate make it clear that the dictators have organized the county carefully, and along the lines of big business, with centralized control and modern business methods.

THE TRIBUNE began the publication yesterday of the secret papers of the Guzik gang. The papers consist of six ledger sheets, five yellow and one white, prepared by a master bookkeeper and intended for the scrutiny only of the Big Four. They give the details of the syndicate's $3,785,592 annual income and of its graft payments of $300,000 a year.

Collectors Work Told.

Yesterday's instalment of the Guzik gang's financial dealings, backed by the records of the gang leaders, explained sheet No. 1, entitled the "Collectors." These men are syndicate employés who collect the 60 per cent paid the syndicate by individual operators of slot machines—tavern keepers, cafes, golf clubs, etc. In July the 12 collectors brought in $99,235.

Today's instalment of Guzik's secret papers deals with sheet No. 2. It is headed by the gang's bookkeeper, "Operators, Etc., Ins." (The Ins refers to income in contrast to "kick outs," the heading on another sheet which refers to graft.)

Twenty-One Entries.

There are 21 entries on sheet No. 2, written in the flowing handwriting of the chief bookkeeper. They follow:

CHICAGO COUNTS BENEFITS FROM EXTRA DAYLIGHT

28 Hours Are Gained in October Alone.

The 28 extra hours of daylight which Chicago and the surrounding area enjoyed this year were hailed yesterday as benefits to health, recreation, and sports by leaders in these fields. Several representatives of labor and of gardeners and farmers also were enthusiastic over the effect of the daylight time extension.

The last of the 28 hours came yesterday afternoon and clocks were turned back to central standard time at 2 a. m. today. The city and Chicagoland had 182 hours of added daylight time this year—from the last Sunday in April—nearly one-fifth more than in past years, when there were 154 hours.

List of Benefits.

Here are some of the boons of the extra 28 hours:

1. School children had more time in the open, which kept them healthier and more alert for study.

2. Park playgrounds, tennis courts, golf links, and boating facilities were enjoyed by more persons.

3. High school and college athletes—particularly football players—had an extra hour for practice and could finish their games before dark.

4. Many workers—including those in arms industries—who would normally return home in twilight or dusk did so in daylight.

5. Farmers in the Chicagoland area utilized the 28 hours for an added 2½ full working days, which in some instances meant the saving of crops.

Praised by School Head.

Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, was one of those who praised the added hours during October.

"They were of inestimable value to school children," he said. "The children had more time to play in the afternoon. This play supplemented their school work and raised their classroom aptitude."

Dr. Francis A. Dulak, secretary of the city board of health, also said the extra daylight time had a beneficial effect on children.

V. K. Brown, superintendent of recreation for the park district, told of the increase in use of park facilities.

Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers association of America, said that more people in the Chicago area played twilight golf these last four weeks than ever before.

"Despite the rainy spell," Walsh said, "the extension of daylight time thru this month is a definite boon to all of us. I'm convinced October daylight time should be made a permanent fixture."

The Chicago District Golf association also is in favor of October daylight time, Joseph G. Davis, secretary, said. He told of additional tournaments as compared to previous years when September closed the schedule.

Helps Football Team.

Gerald R. Batten, manager of the Lincoln Park Gun club, reported that the extra hours brought out more shooters and greatly aided the sport.

Lynn Waldorf, coach of the Northwestern university football team, and virtually every high school coach in Chicago extoled the advantages of the added daylight hours.

"Because of late classes," Waldorf said, "practice at Northwestern starts at 4:30 p. m. Daylight saving time enabled us to finish all our workouts before dark and our Saturday games were over before semidarkness. In November most of our practice will be under floodlights and some of our regular games will finish in dusk even if we move up the starting time."

Among the high school coaches who echoed these sentiments were Bill Heiland of Austin, Charles Palmer of Fenger, Louis Jorndt of Amundsen, G. L. Harvey of Tilden Tech, A. L. Cronin of Leo, and Tony Lawless of Fenwick.

Dark 33 Minutes After Sunset.

Sunset on Sept. 28—the first day of the added daylight period—was 5:37 p. m. central standard time—6:37 daylight time, and yesterday sunset was 4:54 central time—5:54 daylight time.

Darkness during October falls 33 minutes after sunset—last night this was 6:27 daylight time. From this it was evident that workers leaving their jobs late in the afternoon during October still could be home before darkness.

Among the union leaders who told of advantages their members enjoyed because of the daylight time extension were Math Martin, business representative and secretary of the architectural workers' union; Richard Rochester, director of the window trimmers' department of the upholsterers' union, and Richard D. Foss, secretary treasurer of the bowling alley employés' union.

"The architectural men can do a lot more work with the added hour in the afternoon," Martin said. "Most of their work is on the outside and frequently they can't put in a full day without that extra hour."

Boon to Farmers.

Rochester said most of his members were grateful for the playtime they had after work. Foss said the bowling alley employés work from noon to midnight and appreciate the added afternoon hours of daylight on their off days.

The rainy fall held up harvesting, plowing and threshing for many farmers and they were glad of the extra hours of daylight to make up time, a spokesman said.

"Those hours frequently were the difference between crops being lost or saved," this spokesman added. "In southern Illinois, where most communities did not have October daylight time, soy beans and cowpeas have been rotting."

Traffic Accidents.

City traffic records disclosed that in the hours from 4 to 7 p. m. in the first three weeks of October there were 298 injuries in automobile accidents and 10 deaths—a total of 308 casualties, as compared to 332 injuries and seven deaths—a total of 339 casualties in the same period last year under standard time.

From 4 to 7 a. m. the first three weeks this month there were 77 injuries and three deaths—a total of 80 casualties— as against 42 injuries and one death—a total of 43 casualties—in the same time in 1940.

"It must be realized that there are many more cars in use this year as compared to last year," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

In 1940 he noted 612,389 motor vehicles were registered with the city while for the first nine months of 1941, the registration is already 644,520—an increase of 32,131.

Ald. John J. Duffy [19th] and John J. Grealis [44th], who sponsored the ordinance last May by which Chicagoans were given 28 more hours of daylight, said they were gratified at the response. They repeated their plans for a referendum at the primary election next April at which voters will have the opportunity to make permanent the October daylight time extension.

An Hour of Daylight Gone

Chicago's extra hour of daylight ended early today when clocks were turned back an hour at 2 a. m. Here Marion Smith, 2505 North Hamlin avenue, and Raymond Pietryga, 2520 Hamlin, express their regret that the daylight time extension has ended for this fall. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

'INADEQUATE' RADIO TIME IS PROTESTED BY AMERICA FIRST

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—The America First committee said tonight it had addressed telegrams to the three major broadcasting companies protesting that they had refused adequate coast to coast radio time for an anti-war meeting Thursday in Madison Square Garden. Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], Charles A. Lindbergh, and John Cudahy, former ambassador to Belgium, are scheduled as speakers.

"Since Lindbergh's Fort Wayne speech in which he forecast an effort to keep him from addressing the people," the telegram said, "speakers have been attacking him almost daily on the air and up to now no effort has been made to counteract such attacks."

The broadcasting companies were asked to "coöperate in securing adequate radio time on proper coast to coast networks" for the speakers.

In reply, the Columbia network pointed out that two of Lindbergh's speeches have been carried by CBS. "We know of no reason," the statement said, "why Lindbergh should have a nation-wide network every time he speaks."

Officials of the National Broadcasting company were not available for comment.

A spokesman for the Mutual Broadcasting system said the telegram had not been received, but pointed out that MBS carried a speech by Cudahy from Boston tonight.

CANADIAN PLANE CRASHES IN N.Y. STORM; 3 KILLED

Pilot Loses Way in First Snow of Season.

Tupper Lake, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP).—Three royal Canadian air force flyers were killed today when their twin engined bomber crashed in a bog at the foot of Big Tupper lake, in the Adirondack mountains.

The flyers were identified as Douglas Roy Gill of Ladysmith, B. C., A. Nowosad of Vonda, Saskatchewan, and T. D. Shellshern.

The plane circled over this village for more than half an hour at a height of 100 to 150 feet, attempting to land. The pilot apparently had lost his bearings in a blinding snowstorm, the season's first.

The bomber, believed to be on a training flight, did not burn, indicating the pilot realized he was about to crash and cut the engine.

Two Killed in Northland.

PRINCE RUBERT, B. C., Oct. 25 [Canadian Press].—Police today reported that Livingston Wernecke of Berkeley, Cal., and Pilot Charles Groptis of San Francisco were killed when their plane crashed in Millbank sound, en route from Hyder, Alaska, to Alert Bay, B. C.

Pilot Bud Bodding of Seattle and Harry Sherman of Portland, Ore., also missing since Tuesday en route from Alert Bay to Ketchikan, Alaska, were forced down there, too, but were reported safe.

The planes were found by Victor Bond, skipper of a police boat.

Sight United States Wreckage.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 25 (AP).—Over the towering Sierra Nevada mountains, army bombers roared today, hunting for four of the five speedy P-40 pursuit ships which vanished in a fog late Friday.

The fifth, wrecked and burned, was sighted from the air on Gray's peak, in the Sierra National forest north of Fresno, by Claude Williams, a civilian flyer.

A ground party reached the wreckage two hours later and reported its occupant burned beyond recognition. The ship's serial number was burned off.

One of the other four was believed down in the vicinity of Tehachapi, 30 miles north. Army and civilian searching parties were waiting in the little mountain community for some trace of the pilot, Lieut. J. H. Pease, seen parachuting from his craft after the motor failed.

The missing ships were among 19 in a flight from March field, near Riverside, to McClellan field, near Sacramento. The commander, Maj. C. E. Hughes, reported they became separated in fog over the mountains.

Laborers in Joliet Vote Boost in Work Charges

The Hod Carriers and Common Laborers union of Joliet voted yesterday to charge employers more for three types of work. The increases, which will be effective Jan. 1, will not apply to projects already contracted for at the old rate. Common laborers will ask $1.02¼ instead of 90 cents an hour, plasterers' helpers, $1.27¼ instead of $1.15, and jack hammer operators, $1.12¼ instead of $1.

SHIP TRANSFER URGED TO KEEP U. S. AT PEACE

Let British Man Craft, Roosevelt Told.

Congressman Karl E. Mundt [R., S. D.] called upon President Roosevelt last night to make repeal of the neutrality act unnecessary by transferring available merchant ships to Great Britain to be sailed by British crews under the Union Jack.

Mundt spoke at Shotwell hall, 1442 East 55th street, before a rally of south side chapters of the America First committee.

"The issue is clear," he said. "President Roosevelt can extend immediate aid to Great Britain without jeopardizing our peace by repealing provisions of the neutrality act to permit arming our merchantmen. He can do this, or he can defer and delay several more weeks trying to drive repeal thru congress.

Urges Letter to Roosevelt.

"Such repeal is bound to do more to involve us in a shooting war than to extricate Britain from her difficulties. All who do not want to see their country engage in the colossal tragedy of sending an expeditionary force to die on foreign soil should write to the President, and the congressmen.

"The neutrality act thus far has kept us out of war by preventing government protection sought by profiteers for ships entering the war ports."

Mundt insisted neutrality act repeal is not necessary to aid Britain, to strengthen American defenses, nor is it consistent with the American policy.

British Have the Men.

"The British have the men to man these ships. There is no necessity for leading this nation to war by sending American sailors into war ports. If it is involvement in this war which is planned, let the President submit a declaration to the people and to congress.

"Unless we intend to send eight million American boys overseas now is the time to stop taking steps toward war."

Rep. Mundt will address an anti-war rally at 8 o'clock tonight in New Trier Township High school, Winnetka. The meeting is sponsored by six North Shore chapters of the America First committee, Highland Park, Glencoe, Winnetka, Evanston, Wilmette, and Kenilworth.

MORE GANGLAND SECRETS BARED; PAYOFFS LISTED

County Town Gamblers Know Who's Boss.

county's gambling racket by the little gangs and individuals who have been allotted territories in and around the county towns in Cook county and outside the city limits.

Payments on Account.

Most of the payments represent 25 per cent of what that individual or gang—in reality subcontractors for the big syndicate—realized as profit in July from the operation of slot machines, hand books, dice, or punch boards.

Two of the items, the last two entries of the sheet, are payments on account from the subcontractors for gambling paraphernalia which the big syndicate had turned over to the smaller fry. Most of the gambling equipment used in Cook county is purchased thru the Guzik syndicate. The small operators do not have good credit; the big syndicate does.

The items opposite the names of towns represent gambling houses, bookmaking establishments and taverns operating slot machines in the town or adjacent areas. They are under the control of a duly deputized representative of the Guzik gang. In some towns there are only a few wide open gambling places. These localities did not pay much into the Guzik treasury. The Franklin Park syndicate deputy, for example, paid in only $284 in the month. But the slot machines were whirling and the bookmakers were busy filling their sheets in the Morton Grove territory—witness the payment of $6,344. Multiply this 25 per cent pay-off by four and you will have the gross profit which gambling netted Morton Grove enterpreneurs in 30 days—$25,376.

The population of Morton Grove is 2,010; so the per capita cost of gambling there was $12 for a month.

Rate Special Privileges.

Examination of this "Operators" sheet also reveals payments to the Guzik dictatorship in the month of July by three individuals, McErlane, Lipschulz, and Wallace. These were operators who for some gangland reason or other rated special privileges, for which, of course, they paid.

Vincent McErlane is a brother of the late Frank McErlane, one of the toughest gangsters of the bootleg era. Frank by some quirk of fortune died a natural death. For 10 years Vince, who was twice convicted in 1926 for carrying a pistol, has conducted a lively slot machine business on the southern edge of the county. He is reputed to have backing in the county building.

Headquarters Near Cemetery.

McErlane has headquarters near the Holy Sepulchre cemetery. Clearing, Evergreen Park and the Willow Springs' neighborhood are his bailiwick. It is said that he owns his own slot machines. But he paid to Guzik et al just the same. The sheet says he paid $700 in July.

Lipschultz, who is believed to be Louis Lipschultz, is a brother-in-law of the syndicate chief, Jack Guzik. Lipschultz was convicted in 1936 for failure to file an income tax return. He was fined $500 by Judge Charles E. Woodward. He now is a tavern owner in a west suburban town and controls a small slot machine territory. His July payment to the syndicate was only $150. Its meagerness may be accounted for by the Guzik relationship.

It's Extra Income.

While the Guzik gang was collecting nearly $100,000 thru its agents from the taverns in the county where the gang's slot machines were swallowing nickels, dimes and quarters, it was receiving this added $27,010 from the little gangsters like Lipschultz and the little groups of law violating tavern owners in Glenview, Melrose Park, Harvey or Brookfield just for the rights or license to continue in illegal business.

To understand the willingness of the little gangs and the little associations of tavern keepers to pay 25 per cent of their gambling profits to Messrs. Guzik, Nitti, Humphreys, and Vogel, a knowledge of gambling history in the county is helpful.

Unorganized 15 Years Ago.

Fifteen years ago the slot machine business was unorganized. Individuals bought the machines and set them up in roadside drinking places. For protection they paid petty sums to village and town police. The operators made profits of a sort. Gangsters saw the advantage of organization and started small chains of slot machine operators.

Among these organizers in the early days were Oliver Ellis in Chicago Heights, Big Jim Hackett in Blue Island, and Mike de Pike Heitler in the Burr Oak inn on 119th street. The original territories were roughly outlined to correspond to the districts of deputy sheriffs.

The notorious Genna brothers, alcohol peddlers who were almost wiped out later in the prohibition wars, set up a fief in Chicago. Slot machines were never numerous in the city, but handbooks were. In few instances today do the county and city organizations overlap. Gambling in the city is under cover; in the county outside of Chicago it is open, except for brief periods when the word is passed along to shut down because "the heat is on."

Big Syndicate Is Developed.

Out of the turmoil of the old days evolved the present setup, consisting of: [1] the big syndicate, taking toll of any one—individual tavern owner or small gang leader—who desires to operate gambling devices in the rural sections, and completely dominating handbook operations on the northwest side of the city; [2] a south side gang operating south of Cermak road and with concessions in Hawthorne and as far south as Blue Island, and [3] the Chicago Heights gang.

The big syndicate keeps for its own many of the western suburbs and the territory north of Elmwood Park.

Leo Mongoven, the old time Caponeite, is a power on the south side of Chicago. He has a long police record. So has Marty Guilfoyle, the handbook man on the northwest side of the city.

Tomorrow's instalment of "gangland's secrets" will detail the profit, loss, and split of the Guzik's syndicate gambling houses in the county. The "take" from each form of gambling—blackjack, dice, horse racing, and roulette—will be shown, as will the high ratio of profits to expense.

The article on Tuesday will detail the merchandise and slot machine purchases of the gang. There will also be a detailed analysis of total income and how it is split up. On Wednesday the long sheet showing the payments for protection will be printed. Some individual graft takers collected sums in four figures.

The notation "ins" at the top of the sheet indicates money turned in. BARRETT VOWS AID IN CLEANUP OF GANG'S RULE

'Shocked' by Expose in The Tribune.

Attorney General George F. Barrett, "shocked" at the revelation of the income of the Guzik-Nitti-Humphreys-Vogel gambling syndicate published in yesterday's TRIBUNE, last night pledged the full support of his office in efforts to drive the syndicate from the community.

The attorney general congratulated THE TRIBUNE for bringing it to public attention.

"I shall be glad to coöperate with Cook county officials in smashing any such empire," Barrett said. "There is no place in the county for such an empire or underworld dictatorship.

Full and Complete Support.

"Gambling syndiates have no place in Illinois. I give my assurance to the people that the office of the attorney general will give its full and complete support to all efforts to drive such elements from our community."

Bertram J. Cahn, president of the Chicago Crime commission, called the revelations "astounding" and "damnable," and said that State's Attorney Courtney should indict all persons involved.

"State's Attorney Courtney can indict the officers who permitted the laws to be violated and the slot machine racketeers, too," Cahn said. "All are guilty of conspiracy. The proof seems to be there.

Courtney Is Out of Town.

"Courtney has been been looking for proof. Now it is at hand. The Chicago Crime commission is not only 100 per cent in favor of using this information to break forever the grip of the gangsters on the county—it is 1,000 per cent in favor of such a program."

Courtney and Wilbert F. Crowley, his first assistant, attended football games out of the city yesterday and were not available for comment. Gov. Dwight Green also was away.

Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, who said he didn't know there were any slot machines in his territory last July, expressed amazement when asked what he planned to do. He said he had recently appointed a new police chief for the county highway force and whatever should be done would be done.

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, showed immediate interest.

Sees New Tax Investigation.

"The government will want to know more about the gambling syndicate's books," he said. "We were of the opinion that Jack Guzik, Frank Nitti, and Murray Humphreys [all of whom were imprisoned for evading taxes on their prohibition incomes] have been making payments on their incomes because of their previous convictions. The present revelations might justify a new federal grand jury investigation."

Village officials in the county showed amazement that the July slot machine revenue alone reached more than $125,000. They made varying comments on the same themes—either there were no machines in their territory or if there were they didn't know who, if any one, was getting money from their operation.

FOE OF ROBBERS ONLY SCARES'EM OFF THIS TIME

Last May a holdup man stepped into the car of Oscar Schmidt, 24 years old, and ordered him to keep driving. Schmidt swerved the car at two policemen, they yelled for him to stop and the robber was captured.

Last night, Schmidt was cool when two men, one of them sporting a shotgun, walked into his father's jewelry store at 2408 North Cicero avenue.

When he refused to lie down on the floor, one of the robbers struck him on the head. Schmidt bellowed, hard and long. The startled robbers ran out the door empty handed.

Schmidt, who lives at 5049 Parker avenue, had only one complaint—"We didn't catch these guys."

COL. M'CORMICK TELLS STORY OF JOHN PAUL JONES

Hails Tradition Which He Bequeathed to Navy.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, last night told the stirring story of John Paul Jones, founder of the American navy, in an address over W-G-N and the Mutual network. The address, a part of the Theater of the Air program, was in anticipation of Navy day, which the nation will observe tomorrow.

John Paul Jones, Col. McCormick said, created and bequeathed to the American navy a priceless tradition of courage and intelligence.

Col. McCormick asserted that "given the ships, given an adequate air arm to protect our shores, we may yet, thank God, rely on the spirit of John Paul Jones to defend the republic."

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The text of Col. McCormick's address follows:

"Monday is Navy day. In connection with its observance we shall hear much of our American navy. We shall learn something of the blueprints, at least, of our two ocean building program. Yet a navy is more than ships on the ways or on the ocean. It is the spirit and training and resolution and pride in service of the men who follow the sea.

"Men go down to the sea in ships. Their traditions and their patriotism go with them. Since the traditions of the American navy are linked forever with the story of its founder, tonight I will tell you of John Paul Jones.

Fifth Child, Youngest Son.

"John Paul, the fifth child and youngest son of a Scotch gardener and fisherman, was born near the fishing hamlet of Arbigland on the shore of Solway firth. The date was July 6, 1747. The Pauls were a humble family. But they cherished a self-respecting independence. And on his mother's side, at least, young John Paul might lay claim to the Highland heritage of a bold heart and a ready hand.

"I wish I had time to tell you the story of John Paul's early career at sea. He seemed born to leadership. His life was an amazing adventure. But I must pass over it, as I must pass over the story of his rise in the American trade.

"It will be sufficient to note that when he reached his 27th year, John Paul had spent 15 years at sea and 10 of those years in command, from the mate of a brig to the captain of an Indiaman. He had mastered French. He was proficient in Spanish. He was conversant with naval history and tactics.

A Man of the World.

"Unlike many of his cruder contemporaries, he was a polished conversationalist and a man of the world. His many American voyages had brought him into fruitful contact with the élite of colonial people. The Livingstons of New York, the Morrises of Philadelphia, the Lees of tidewater Virginia, and the Pinckneys and Rutledges of Charleston knew him and his accomplishments. There was probably no regular naval officer in the British service and certainly none in the colonies who approached him in promise or personality.

"And then, in 1773, a Virginia brother, William, died. John Paul had been named heir to the estate, on condition that he, like his brother, would assume the name of Jones, the name of a kinsman. As John Paul Jones, the young captain settled down to a planter's life on the Rappahannock.

"But it was not a time to settle down. Capt. Jones heard Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry at Williamsburg. He permitted no doubt as to his sympathies. In 1774 he challenged a British officer at Norfolk for a slur against colonial manliness and morals. The officer did not choose to meet Jones with pistols at 10 paces. News of the battle of Lexington reached him in New York. He immediately offered his services to the Continental congress.

"On July 1, 1775, congress called John Paul Jones for advice on naval affairs.

Lays Foundation of Navy.

"In two letters, one on personnel in September and one on materiel in October, the young captain laid the foundation of the American navy.

"The letter on personnel was, and is, a masterpiece in its statement of the principles of sea command. His standards for the qualifications of an American naval officer set up an ideal which remains the highest and soundest in the world.

"His advice on ships and their armament formed the policy which America was to pursue for amazing successes against the world's greatest sea power. The immortal Yankee frigates of the War of the Revolution and the War of 1812, were forecast in brilliant outline by John Paul Jones.

"'It is by no means enough that an officer of the navy should be a capable mariner,' wrote Capt. Jones. 'He must be that, of course, but also a great deal more. He should be a gentleman of liberal education, refined manners, punctilious courtesy, and the nicest sense of personal honor. . . . He should be versed in Spanish and French . . . familiar with the principles of international law . . . conversant with the usages of diplomacy.'

Most Delicate of Obligations.

"'Aboard ship, in dealing with his subordinate officers, every commander should keep constantly before him the great truth that to be well obeyed he must be perfectly esteemed. Behind the officers, and the foundation of all, is the crew. . . . The crew should be as one man impressed that the captain, like the sovereign, can do no wrong. This is the most delicate of all the commanding officer's obligations. No rule can be set for meeting it. It must be a question of tact and perception of human nature on the spot and to suit the occasion. If an officer fails in this he cannot make up for such failure by severity or cruelty. Use force and apply restraint or punishment as he may, he will always have a sullen crew and an unhappy ship.'

"In founding the new navy, Jones concludes: 'We are here at the planting of the tree, and maybe some of us must, in the course of destiny, water its feeble and struggling roots with our blood. If so, let it be so! We cannot help it. We must do the best we can with what we have at hand!'

Daring Raids Against English.

"I cannot in my time tonight recount John Paul Jones' brilliant services aboard the Providence and the Alfred and the Ranger, little vessels that wrote the first glorious pages of American naval history. I can only mention Jones' daring raids into English harbors. But I must retell the most heroic of all our sagas of the sea, the story of the greatest sea fight in the world—the battle between the Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis.

"It was on Thursday, Sept. 23, 1779, at about 7 o'clock in the evening that the British frigate Serapis, Capt. Richard Pearson commanding, sheered out of convoy to meet a strange French appearing frigate off Flamborough Head, on the northeast coast of England. The strange frigate was the Bon Homme Richard, named for Benjamin Franklin, flying the American colors and commanded by John Paul Jones. The sea was smooth, the sky clear, the moon full. The Serapis was a new 44 gun craft, the Bon Homme Richard a refitted Indiaman, slow, cranky and ancient.

Mixed Crew Aboard.

"The Serapis was fully manned and her crew ably trained. The Bon Homme Richard carried a mixed company of French, Americans, and some American Indians as topmen, some of them able seamen, some of them utterly inexperienced. The Serapis was the better sailer. Her superiority in weight of broadside was as 3 to 2. Her ship's muster numbered 317 effectives. The Richard mustered 323 seamen and marines, but she carried 211 British prisoners in her hold, a formidable menace should the battle go against the Americans.

"The British captain hailed the strange craft as his vessel edged closer to her in the twilight. There was no answer. Pearson took his night glass from his eye and remarked to the ship's surgeon, Dr. Bannatyne: 'The stranger is probably Paul Jones. If so, there is work ahead.' The Serapis hailed again. The answer was a full broadside at a scant 600 feet. The time was 7:15.

Little Room for Maneuvering.

"There was little wind for maneuvering. The battle roared at once into a close and murderous cannonade. At the very first discharge, three of the American heavy guns blew up, killing their crews and wrecking the deck above them. The British gunners plied the ancient Richard with a heavy, well aimed fire. Their cannon tore her sides to matchwood. In a shifting wind and a slatting of sail, the ships drifted together bow to stern and stern to bow, where Jones with his own hands helped grapple them together.

"The American topmen swarmed into the rigging, clearing the Serapis' tops and cutting down the men on the deck below in a hail of musketry. But on their sheltered gun deck, the British cannoneers stood to their guns and blew in Richard's planking from stem to stern. Her big guns were silenced. She was afire in four places. The ship's carpenter reported she was sinking fast.

An Historic Answer.

"The Richard's gunner dashed to the poop to haul down the American flag. 'Quarter!' he bellowed. 'Quarter, quarter!' Capt. Jones knocked the fellow down a hatchway with a pistol butt. Aboard the Serapis, Capt. Pearson heard the outcry.

"'Have you struck?' he shouted.

"'No,' roared Jones, 'I've just begun to fight!'

"The rest is history. I cannot better close my story of our most heroic sea action than to quote John Paul Jones' description of the scuttling of the Bon Homme Richard.

"'No one was now left aboard the Richard but our dead. To them I gave the good old ship for their coffin, and in her they found a sublime sepulchre. She rolled heavily in the long swell, her gun deck awash to the port sills, settled slowly by the head, and sank peacefully in about 40 fathoms. The ensign gaff, shot away in action . . . had been put in place after the firing ceased, and our torn and tattered flag was left flying when we abandoned her.

"'As she plunged head down at the last, the very last vestige of the Bon Homme Richard was the defiant waving of her unconquered and unstricken flag. I bequeathed to my immortal dead the flag they had so desperately defended for their winding sheet.'

Glorious Fighting Tradition.

"Thus runs the story of the founder of the American navy and the father of our most glorious fighting tradition. I was in Paris with my father in 1905 when our government reclaimed the body of John Paul Jones. He now rests at Annapolis. His ideals of an officer and a gentleman still dominate the naval academy.

"Given the ships, given an adequate air arm to protect our shores, we may yet, thank God, rely on the spirit of John Paul Jones to defend the republic."

URGES ALL YEAR ACTIVITY FOR WELFARE GROUP

The Illinois Conference on Social Welfare will become a full time organization under the name Illinois Welfare association, if recommendations to be presented at the annual meeting of the conference in Springfield, Nov. 10 to 13, are adopted.

Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington, president of the conference who yesterday announced plans for the new organization, said it would maintain an all-year program in research, education and social welfare action, instead of holding only one yearly meeting. Under the new program, district organizations would be set up with autonomous powers. Regional headquarters already are planned for Chicago, Carlinville, Bloomington and Champaign.

"We will not relinquish the annual conferences," said Mrs. Bohrer, "Instead, we will expect them to be more representative of the state and to result in real action and achievement. We will have more discussion of legislation and therefore our legislative committee will be a more powerful influence in improving government service."

REDS REPORT BIG BATTLES RAGE ON PATH TO MOSCOW

Tell of Heavy Fighting for Donetz and Crimea.

MOSCOW, Oct. 26 [Sunday]—(AP).—Continued heavy fighting west and southwest of Moscow and in the Makeevka and Taganrog areas of the Donetz basin was reported early today by the soviet information bureau.

New battles also were reported to have erupted in the Novgorod sector, south of besieged Leningrad.

Makeevka is a coal mining town 10 miles east of the manufacturing center of Stalino. Near Taganrog, German occupied port on the sea of Azov 80 miles southeast of Makeevka, Russian forces were seeking to block the thrust of Germans, Rumanians, Italians, and Hungarians toward Rostov and the Caucasus beyond.

Down 35 Nazi Planes.

The communique also reported battles in the Mozhaisk and Maloyaroslavets areas, west and southwest of Moscow, and said that 35 German planes were destroyed Friday to 16 soviet losses.

A supplementary official announcement said tremendous battles were being fought in the Orel sector, 210 miles south of Moscow, with Russian air and tank units coöperating in heavy counteratttacks against the German offensive. One tank formation, it was said, wiped out two German infantry regiments, destroyed 133 tanks, 14 guns, 35 anti-tank guns, many trench mortars and motorcycles, and 15 tractors.

Night marauding guerrillas around the axis occupied Black sea port of Odessa were reported ceaselessly carrying on attacks against the invaders. In one such foray boatloads of guerrillas stole along the shore of a river and fired three big warehouses and blew up a newly restored bridge.

Three New Nazi Drives.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Oct. 25 (AP).—German armies reinforced by troops from the Leningrad front are hurling mass assaults against soviet forces in revitalized offensives at the western approaches to Moscow, into the Crimea, and toward Rostov on the road to the Caucasus, Russian frontline dispatches said tonight.

A supreme test, Moscow's defenders admitted, was rapidly developing in the 23 day old Nazi offensive in which the Russians say Adolf Hitler has lost 300,000 men.

Six successive attacks by the German 129th motorized division upon the soviet left flank in the Mozhaisk sector, 57 miles west of the capital, were declared repulsed in three days. Here a howling wind shrouded the fallen with drifted snow.

Thwart River Crossing.

Dispatches to Pravda, communist party organ, said several small towns around Mozhaisk were engulfed in the new German onrush, but that the Germans failed to gain on the main road to the soviet capital.

In the Maloyaroslavets sector, 65 miles southwest of Moscow, the Germans were reported thwarted in attempts to cross the Oka river.

A second mighty Nazi offensive is under way in the Crimea, where, Russian accounts said, the first was beaten off with 5,000 German and Rumanian dead. Despite these losses, it was admitted the Germans had made new gains at the approaches of the isthmus.

[There was no soviet confirmation of a German announcement of the capture of Kharkov, the biggest industrial center of the Ukraine, 150 miles northwest of Stalino.]

GERMANY DUE FOR ARMY DICTATOR, BENES PREDICTS

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—Eduard Benes, president of the Czecho-Slovak government in exile, today predicted a drastic change in the German régime and declared "Germany may outlast this winter but she is scarcely capable of waging war thru the following winter."

In a broadcast to his countrymen, Benes asserted that Field Marshal Goering, Propaganda Minister Goebbels and Robert Ley, labor front leader, had lost their influence with Hitler. He foresaw a military dictatorship in Germany.

British Girls, 16, Face Call to Care for Workers' Babies

CARLISLE, Scotland, Oct. 25 (AP).—Britain intends to call on girls of 16 and grandmothers and great-aunts to care for babies and young children while their mothers are at work in war factories, Florence Horsbrugh, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of health, told a conference of women's institutes today.

KHARKOV, A RUSSIAN PITTSBURGH, HAS BIG PLANE, TANK PLANTS

Kharkov—a Russian Pittsburgh—became a key city of soviet war material production because of the heavy industries concentrated there at the rail outlet of the coal and metal producing Donetz basin. It has produced powerful tanks and fighting planes for the Red forces.

Six rail lines radiating from the city, roughly the size of Baltimore or St. Louis, linked its factories with Moscow, the western battlefront, the port of Rostov on the Don, and the oil port of Baku. Thus the city in the land of the little Russians and Don Cossacks, once Moscow's outpost against the Tartars, was a vital link in Moscow's defense plan.

Smelting, engine building, and the manufacture of air and agricultural equipment were the city's principal industries, along with the manufacture of chemical by-products of coal. Kharkov became the center of the Donetz state coal trust and the southern machinery and metallurgical trusts.

The city was founded in 1654 as a free Ukraine fort. It is 260 miles east of Kiev, 200 miles north of the sea of Azov, and about 400 miles south of Moscow.

KHARKOV, HEART OF DONETZ AREA, FALLS TO NAZIS

Belgorod, Nearby Railroad Center, Also Taken.

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP).—The Germans tonight claimed possession of nearly all the Ukraine and the most important nerve centers of the industrial Donetz basin with announcement of the capture of Kharkov and Belgorod.

The high command had nothing whatever to say of operations around Moscow, but some military commentators spoke of an approaching zero hour for the soviet capital.

It was the disposition of all responsible military quarters, however, to distract attention from Moscow for at least some hours and focus it on the southern front.

Like American City.

Announcing capture of Kharkov, in the heart of the Donetz basin, the high command said "one of the most important armament and economic centers in the soviet union" had been in German hands since Friday.

With its 840,000 population, 12 story buildings, and bustling industries, Kharkov was said here to have the appearance of an American city. Situated 400 miles south of Moscow and 220 miles northwest of Rostov, Kharkov is the Ukraine's second city.

Of immediate interest to the Germans was the present condition of its huge locomotive works, its turbine and electric machine industries, and a huge tractor plant which lately had been running tanks off its assembly line.

Belgorod—Rail Center.

Almost as important from a strategic viewpoint, said military commentators, was the capture of Belgorod, 47 miles northeast of Kharkov and 265 miles east of Kiev.

This railroad center was described as the transportation crossroads of the Donetz basin and its occupation a severe handicap to the supplying of the Russian front from industries still in Russian hands in this region.

The struggle around Moscow admittedly meant death for thousands on both sides, but German sources gave few details beyond yesterday's announcement that in some places the Germans were encountering street barricades within 35 miles of the capital.

[A Vichy broadcast quoted in London said the Germans had reached points within 20 miles of Moscow.]

Finns Take Strategic Road.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 25 (AP).—A dispatch from the front said today that Finnish forces pushing north along the shore of Lake Onega made a junction with the Finnish army in the north by smashing the last Russian resistance. The drive, which was thru difficult terrain from Aanislinna [Petrozavodsk], thus resulted in Finnish occupation of the 125 mile strategic road from Saamajarvi, it was reported.

COST OF LIVING BONUS PAYMENTS ORDERED IN ALL CANADIAN PLANTS

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 25 (AP).—Labor Minister Norman McLarty announced a new order in council today extending to all Canadian industry the compulsory payment of bonuses to employés to cover increases in the cost of living. The bonuses are to be adjusted every three months. The order also prohibits wage increases except when approved by a national war labor board.

The bonus principle applies to industrial employers of more than 50 employés and building trades employers of more than 10 employés. The rate is 25 cents per week for each 1 per cent rise in the cost of living index to be paid all adult male employés and to all other employés who earn more than $25 a week. For male employés under 21 and other employés earning less than $25 a week the bonus rate is 1 per cent of the weekly wage.

British Plane Crashes; 6 Crewmen Seized in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland, Oct. 25 (AP).—A British plane with a crew of six crashed today near Quilty, county Clare, the government announced. None of the crew was injured. All were interned.

RUSSIA RECALLS IRANIAN FORCE TO CAUCASUS FRONT

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran [Persia], Oct. 25.—A large part of the Russian army of occupation is being moved out of Iran to reinforce garrisons in the Caucasus in preparation for a Nazi thrust toward the rich oil region of Baku.

Only token forces are being left in Kazvin and Zenjan, according to a military spokesman here. Troops which recently left Teheran are expected to go to Tabriz, 80 miles south of the Russian border, to replace units which returned to Russia.

[The Ankara radio, heard in New York yesterday, said "it is understood that the British and Russians have decided for a joint command for the Caucasus front which may be opened up as a defense line."]

Guns Given Back to Police.

The Iran police, who were disarmed by the Reds at the beginning of the occupation, are now being reequipped with antiquated rifles and other old arms. It is said that this is being done to see whether the Reds will seize this equipment. If they do not the outmoded weapons will be replaced by usable ones from the army supplies.

Brig. Sir Godfrey Rhodes, British director of the transport of supplies thru Iran to Russia, told THE TRIBUNE correspondent that the British are going ahead with preparations for this purpose despite the announcement from Washington, D. C., that American shipments are going to Russia via Archangel. He pointed out that Iran can be used as a channel for supplies from Australia, the Dutch Indies, and India.

Rhodes said some improvement in local transportation should be noticeable by the end of next month, but said it would be the end of April before the goal of 10,000 tons daily is reached.

See Little Aid to Russia.

Many neutral military observers take a pessimistic view of Russia's chances of ever receiving any large supplies thru Iran. They point out that no ships have reached Bandar Shahpur, the Persian gulf terminus of the Trans-Iranian railway.

The Vichy French legation, as a result of British pressure on the Iranian government, is expected to leave Teheran Nov. 3.

NIKOLAEV, ONCE BUSTLING PORT, NOW DESOLATED

Visitor Finds Factories Heaps of Junk.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA, Oct. 23 [Delayed.]—Nikolaev, until about two months ago the most flourishing industrial city on the Black sea, today is a city wrecked by war. [Russia admitted the fall of Nikolaev on Aug. 18.]

It limps along with a maimed civil life. Of the 176,000 inhabitants it had in 1939, about 100,000 are now here, according to the estimates of the occupying German authorities. Of is many and varied industries—all of which stopped completely when the Russian army evacuated the city—the most indispensable ones [what the Germans call the "bread" factories] have been put to work in a kind of way. One small soap factory is working. The local brewery may start up next week, and so may the gas works.

Sixty Per Cent Destroyed.

A few dingy street cars clang along the main thorofares. That shows that some electricity finally is being supplied for light and transport. It is a recent acquisition and precarious—from an old power plant with antiquated machinery run by a German engineer and Ukrainian workmen.

There is water, too; this town is not doing so badly as others in the Ukraine. It is smashed pretty badly, however. At least 60 per cent of its buildings are completely destroyed. Block after block are just so many shells, the insides pulverized and burned out.

The Bug river shipyard shows what happened to Nikolaev. It must be over 90 per cent destroyed, a witness of how thoroly the Russians did their wrecking before they retreated. Thru the empty windows of its workshops I saw blackened walls and heaps of scattered machine parts where explosions and fire did their worst. It is just so much scrap metal.

Four Warships in Yards.

Not everything was destroyed. German guides showed with pride two small electric power stations and one small shop for plate cutting which the Russians had not touched.

Then there are the four warships under construction which the Germans found when they entered Nikolaev. They really exist. Two are submarines—a small one about 250 tons and a larger one with four torpedo tubes of about 500 tons. They are both so much scrap iron. The Russians burned the stocks under them and the heat on so much wood twisted them effectively.

A bigger prize was the 8,000 ton light cruiser which had slumped down the ways, the stocks having been burned under it, also. Again, just scrap iron.

Battleship's Hull Intact.

The great prize was the battleship, which German guides say is a 35,000 tonner. The Russians apparently did nothing to it—except take away the plans. Its hull is practically completed, but the two topmost decks are missing.

Another prize found intact by the Germans at this shipyard were two brand new 6 inch coast defense guns.

More Russian destruction included the ferry which linked Nikolaev to its suburb of Babarowka, on the other side of the Bug river. German army engineers have replaced it with a pontoon bridge 900 meters long. Over it Rumanian refugees are streaming to be with the Rumanian army on the western bank in territory now designated by the Germans as "a region of Rumanian interests."

Only One Restaurant Open.

Nikolaev is a desolate place. No hotels are open and there is only one small restaurant. You can walk for blocks and not find a single shop open nor goods of any kind for sale. Ragged idlers stand near the door of the employment agency hoping—or probably not hoping—for a problematical chance to work. Peasants from the country dawdle along the streets in the springless Slavic farmers' carts, but there is nothing in the carts but straw and maybe a few cabbages or a hatful of potatoes.

The collective system of business having been driven off, nothing so far has been able to take its place. There are no goods in the city.

The people of Nikolaev are living on their rations of 200 grams [a little less than half a pound] of bread a day and are bartering their remaining rags and sticks of furniture for any scraps of goods which come into the city.

DATA GATHERED IN CHUTE LEAP IS UNDER STUDY

Scientific data registered on instruments strapped to Arthur H. Starnes during his 5⅓ mile free fall from an air liner Friday will be computed within a few days, Dr. Andrew C. Ivy said yesterday. Dr. Ivy, professor of physiology and pharmacology at Northwestern university, collaborated in preparations for the feat.

Such findings as the maximum and minimum rates of descent, and Starnes' heart reactions during the parachute jump are being worked out, Dr. Ivy said. Starnes is 43 years old and lives in Calumet City.

His fall of 29,300 feet before he opened his two parachutes over Rubinkam airport is believed to be a world record. He carried more than 100 pounds of instruments, including a pneumograph, barometer, stop watch, and motion picture camera. It is hoped that the information gained will be valuable to the military air services.

Chiang's Russian Military Adviser Ends His Life

SHANGHAI, Oct. 25 (AP).—French and Japanese gendarmes said Gen. I. C. Mrochovsky shot himself fatally today as they entered the home of the Russian former military adviser to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to question him about an alleged illegal radio station. Mrochovsky was said recently to have been stripped of his rank by Chiang.

GEN. L. H. BRERETON ON WAY TO HEAD U. S. AIR FORCES IN MANILA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25 (AP).—The war department disclosed today that Maj. Gen. Louis H. Brereton of the air corps was en route to Manila to take command of American air forces there.

Gen. Brereton, who is 51 years old, is among the youngest officers of his rank, and was a World war flyer. He was transferred to Manila from command of the bombardment wing at Savannah, Ga. The war department said he was flying to Manila as a commercial air line passenger.

In the Philippines he will be under Lieut. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, recently made commander of army forces in the far east. Philippine aerial defenses have been reënforced substantially in recent weeks. Munitions shipments have been given "No. 1 priority," congress was told by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

U. S. Army Attache in Red Capital Is Ordered Home

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Oct. 25 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Ivan D. Yeaton, military attaché of the United States embassy, was recalled to Washington today for consultation. Maj. Joseph A. Michela, assistant military attaché, was placed in acting charge of the office here.

2 DUTCH YOUTHS REACH BRITAIN IN HOMEMADE BOAT

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—Two Dutch youths who patiently assembled their tiny sailboat piece by piece at night for three months under the rifles of German sentries on the Dutch coast have reached England, the official Dutch news agency said today.

The cross-channel voyage required 64 hours, during the last of which the youths had to row in a calm.

German patrol planes sometimes flew as low as 20 feet above the small craft but failed to spot the two youths, they said.

BRITISH CABINET TAKES WAR ISSUE FIGHT TO PUBLIC

Eden and Admiralty Chief Defend Aid to Reds.

Anthony Eden.

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—Mounting dissatisfaction with the failure of the Churchill government to establish a diversion front in the west and with other efforts to assist Britain's embattled ally—Russia—brought concerted pleas for public confidence from two high cabinet spokesmen today.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, took the government's case directly to the public in addresses at two cities.

Calls War "Long Term Business."

Eden, who is said to have more friends and fewer enemies than any-one else in the government, defended at a Manchester mass meeting the policy of prosecuting the war as a "long term business" without attempting "any sudden, brilliant improvisation."

He said he could not say when Britain would strike or even "that we will strike," and added:

"The government, indeed, has but one purpose, which is yours and Stalin's, too—how best to accomplish Hitler's defeat. We will not be deterred from that task for one instant, even for the luxury of answering our critics."

"Navy Already Helping Russia."

Alexander disclosed to an audience at Kettering that Britain had sent "some naval equipment" to Russia but would not say what.

"With our defenses in the Mediterranean, the battle of the Atlantic, and maintaining of commonwealth communications, we still have to find ships to escort Russian convoys," Alexander said.

The best lobby opinion in parliament was that no cabinet changes were imminent, but that Churchill is sounding opinion and might make changes if opinion continues strongly against his present group.

SHIP LOSSES TOP 2,000, OR 2½ A DAY SINCE WAR BEGAN

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—With 19 ships sunk since last Saturday, the number of vessels lost in the war has passed the 2,000 mark, the Associated Press revealed today.

Verified records show 31 nations have lost 2,004 merchant and naval vessels—an average of about two and a half ships a day—aggregating 7,548,-894 tons. The human toll is 18,108 lives lost, 9,318 persons missing.

Submarines, planes and warships accounted for 1,075 ships, mines for 252, and other or unknown causes for 677.

Britain has lost 875, Norway 225, and Greece 155. Germany has lost 145 and Italy 105 ships. Sweden, hardest hit neutral, lost 118.

Eleven United States owned ships have gone down. Four flew the American flag, the others Panama's. Fifteen Panama registry ships have been sunk.

DRIVER KILLED ON "HAZARD HILL."

NAPLES CALLED MOST SMASHED UP ITALIAN CITY

British Planes Hammer Port with 2-Ton Bombs.

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—RAF raiders gave the Italian port of Naples one of its heaviest poundings of the war last night during British aerial assaults upon axis targets from the Norwegian coast to the North African desert, informed London quarters reported.

These informants said Naples, the former tourist haven, was Italy's most smashed up city after this fourth straight night of hammering with two ton bombs—larger than anything the Germans have yet loosed upon London.

Naples is an important port for sending troops and supplies to Libya. British sources said repeated attacks there supported reports that troops were concentrated there now for movement across the Mediterranean. The Naples raids were said here to have been made from Malta.

In addition, the middle east command said the RAF Thursday night attacked Italy's chief Libyan port, Tripoli, the Cirenaican ports of Bengazi and Bardia, a railway and factories at Ragusa, and Licata, Sicily. Two freighters were also bombed and machine gunned in the central Mediterranean. The British acknowledged the loss of one plane in all this raiding.

Italian Planes Sink Ship.

ROME, Oct. 25 (AP).—The high command announced today that Italian torpedo launching planes had sunk a 10,000 ton freighter and damaged another of 7,000 tons in the Mediterranean west of Malta.

British air raids on Naples, and Ragusa and Licata in Sicily, were acknowledged. The Naples raid was the fourth in 10 days. Nine persons were killed and 15 injured at Licata and several were injured at Ragusa and Naples.

Hit 50 Per Cent of Axis Ships.

ABOARD THE FLAGSHIP OF THE MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, Oct. 25 (AP).—Britain is destroying or damaging up to 50 per cent of all enemy convoys attempting to carry fresh supplies from Italy to the axis armies in Libya, the commander in chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, Adm. Sir Andrew Cunningham, declared today in his first press conference since the battle of Matapan seven months ago. He said British and allied submarines and aircraft were sinking 20 to 30 per cent of the ships and that another 20 per cent were damaged.

"In view of these extraordinarily heavy losses, it is a wonder to me that the Italian merchant sailor still goes to sea," Adm. Cunningham observed. "September was a particularly hard month for enemy convoys. Many included German ships which were in Mediterranean ports before the start of the war."

MUSSOLINI OUSTS 19 LABOR CHIEFS; RETAINS ONLY 3

ROME, Oct. 25 (AP).—Premier Mussolini cleaned house in his elaborate Fascist guilds organization today, dropping or shifting 19 of the 22 high ranking henchmen who direct all phases of Italian economic life.

Only the heads of the hotels, theaters, and glass guilds—all of secondary importance in wartime—went unchanged.

[All Italian industry and production is regulated thru employer-labor-Fascist party organizations known as corporations, or guilds. These draft all mass labor contracts. Strikes are forbidden. It is thru the guilds that Mussolini has sought to regiment the nation's production to make it self-sufficient.]

Altho reasons for the changes were not announced, observers thought Il Duce acted to improve the efficiency of his economic machine and to remove causes for grumbling by the people.

New Army Tank Too Heavy for Bridges; Goes by Rail

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25 (AP).—The Army and Navy Journal said today that because the army's first heavy tank weighed too much for highway bridges, the 60 ton vehicle would be moved on a railway flatcar to the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground for tests. The tank was completed recently by the Baldwin Locomotive works and passed initial tests at the Eddystone, Pa., plant.

JAP DIET MEETS NOV. 15 TO DECIDE ON U. S. PROBLEM

TOKIO, Oct. 25 (AP).—The Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the foreign office, said tonight that United States-Japanese relations probably would be the chief concern of an extraordinary session of the diet called for Nov. 15.

The newspaper said foreign observers believed the discussion would center on whether to continue negotiations with the United States.

Domei said a "critical moment in Japan's foreign diplomacy" had arrived. The news agency added that the parliamentary session probably would also deal with Japan's relations with Germany and Russia.

The Japanese press fired back at an assertion by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, that a collision with Japan is inevitable unless she abandons her "plans of expansion."

An editorial in Hochi said "Knox is trying to bluff Japan" and added that Japan would not be swerved from her policies.

Chugai said "Knox's speech is his usual blunder of attempting to threaten Japan. We have to be very careful with the United States attitude, as threatening and appeasing arguments go on side by side in order to work out a clever plot."

FOUR SHIPS SUNK BY PLANES NEAR BRITAIN—NAZIS

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP).—The German air force sank 19,000 tons of British and allied shipping last night in operations around England, informed Germans reported today. Two vessels were listed as sunk from a convoy off the east coast and two other ships were said to have been sunk in the North sea off Scotland. Other night operations included the bombing of Great Yarmouth, Germans said.

British Blast Rhineland.

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—The German Rhineland, docks in the Nazi occupied French port of Brest, and axis shipping off Norway were royal air force targets last night, the air ministry announced today.

German raiders dropped a small number of bombs in the outskirts of a northwestern England city tonight.

Thankful Britons to Give U. S. Shakespeare Folio

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—The foreign office announced today a valuable Shakespeare folio owned by Maj. and Mrs. E. W. B. Gill of Oxford would be given the United States in "appreciation of American friendship aid." WOMEN BORN IN 1913 ORDERED TO REGISTER FOR BRITISH WAR JOBS

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—Women born in 1913 were summoned to register for war work today as the government pressed its program to enroll all those up to the age of 31 before the end of the year.

The Auxiliary Territorial Service, the women's branch of the army, wants to increase its personnel by 14,000 immediately, and informed sources estimated that 500,000 more women would be needed for the munitions industry before summer.

A total of 2,151,280 women have been registered thus far.

MICHIGAN UNIT BLASTS LEGION STAND ON WAR

Sturgis, Mich., Oct. 25 [Special].—A resolution condemning the interventionist resolution adopted last month at the national convention of the American Legion in Milwaukee, Wis., was passed unanimously this week by Newman-Wenzel post, No. 73, of the American Legion. The post demanded that the resolution be rescinded and called for a vote of the Legion rank and file to determine Legion policy. The resolution was adopted after members of the post listened to talks by Harrison Hutchins of Saugatuck, commander of the 4th district, and Arthur Clark of South Haven, a convention delegate.

ATTLEE IN U. S.; SAYS BRITAIN HAS LABOR SHORTAGE

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Clement Attlee, lord privy seal in the British cabinet, said today on arrival by Clipper from London that there was a definite shortage of labor in Britain and suggested that both the United States and England should try "to utilize to the fullest extent, both our human and material resources."

Here to attend the international labor office conference which opens at Columbia university Monday, he said he hoped to see President Roosevelt, speak with leaders in political and industrial fields, and visit Canada.

Federal Judge William Clark of Princeton, N. J., another passenger on the Clipper, declared that "My investigation at the Liverpool docks, airfields, etc., gives me the impression that Americans have an exaggerated opinion of the amount so far delivered under lease-lend.

AID OF USO YIELDS; TO OPPOSE FINANCING OF CLUB FOR WOMEN

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 25 [Special].—Frank D. Finlay, representative of the United Service organization, announced today that he would recommend the abandonment of plans to establish a New Albany recreation center for women employed in nearby rearmament plants.

Finlay came here from Washington, D. C., to inquire into protests of Floyd county residents against this diversion of USO funds collected on the promise they would be used to provide recreational facilities for the armed forces.

His decision followed a conference with county USO officials and heads of local civic organizations who voted 19 to 1 to suspend the plans to entertain civilian workers with USO money.

Hostage Killings Branded Nazi Atrocities.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt today branded German execution of French hostages in retaliation for sniping at Nazi soldiers as atrocities calculated to break the spirit of European peoples thru terrorism.

The condemnation of the German reprisals was contained in a Presidential statement made public as Mr. Roosevelt asserted the real aim of the American foreign policy is "destruction of the Hitler menace." The statement was made in a message to a forum of the American Foreign Policy association, a prowar group in New York, which was released a few minutes before Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, made public the denunciation of Nazi tactics in France.

Churchill O. K.'s F. D. R. Talk.

In London, Prime Minister Winston Churchill issued a companion statement, condemning the "butcheries in France" and asserting that "retribution for these crimes must henceforth take its place among the major purposes of the war." Churchill said the British government associated itself "fully with the sentiments of horror and condemnation expressed by the President of the United States."

"These cold blooded executions of innocent people will only recoil upon the savages who order and execute them," Churchill said. "The atrocities are but a foretaste of what Hitler would inflict upon the British and American peoples if only he could get the power."

In his communication to the forum, Mr. Roosevelt said the American people threaten no one but will not tolerate threats from others and are determined that "Hitler's threat to everything for which we stand must be struck down" despite those who would "try to lull us into a false sense of security by saying we are not threatened."

Attacks on Civilians Charged.

"Every school child knows what our foreign policy is," the President wrote. "It is to defend the honor, the freedom, the rights, the interests, and the well-being of the American people. No nation is more deeply dedicated to the ways of peace. No nation is fundamentally stronger to resist aggression."

The denunciation of German retaliations for the shooting of German soldiers by French civilians was the second White House condemnation of Nazi tactics.

During the fall of Belgium and France, the President charged the Germans with machine-gunning the fleeing civilian population. The Nazis replied that their targets were not the fleeing civilians but troops.

The British have held that reports of German atrocities in Belgium were one of the major reasons for the entry of the United States into the World war.

In his war recollections, "With My Own Eyes," Col. Frederick Palmer quotes Alfred Balfour, British cabinet minister, as telling him in "one of his moments of delightful candor: 'Fortunate it was for us . . . that we had the outrages in Belgium.'"

President Roosevelt's statement on German retaliatory executions follows:

"The practice of executing scores of innocent hostages in reprisal for isolated attacks on Germans in countries temporarily under the Nazi heel revolts a world already inured to suffering and brutality. Civilized peoples long ago adopted the basic principle that no man should be punished for the deed of another. Unable to apprehend the persons involved in these attacks the Nazis characteristically slaughter 50 or 100 innocent persons. Those who would 'collaborate' with Hitler or try to appease him cannot ignore this ghastly warning.

"The Nazis might have learned from the last war the impossibility of breaking men's spirit by terrorism. Instead they develop their 'lebensraum' and 'new order' by depths of frightfulness which even they have never approached before. These are the acts of desperate men who know in their hearts that they cannot win. Frightfulness can never bring peace to Europe. It only sows the seeds of hatred which will one day bring fearful retribution."

PETAIN ORDERS IRON RULE TO END KILLING OF NAZIS

Pledges Action to Stop German Reprisals.

VICHY, France, Oct. 25 (AP).—The Petain government adopted iron fisted measures of its own to suppress attacks on German occupation forces today and announced it was pressing Nazi authorities to stop the execution of innocent hostages in reprisal.

A new law passed by the cabinet provides for drastic punishment of eye witnesses, accomplices, and other Frenchmen having information about anti-Nazi acts of terrorism who fail to tell the authorities what they know.

Fate of 100 Still in Doubt.

As the cabinet acted, the fate of 100 hostages at Nantes and Bordeaux hung in the balance. They were threatened with execution by firing squads if the French people fail to apprehend and turn over to German custody the assassins of Lieut. Col. Paul Friedrich Hotz, Nazi commandant at Nantes, and a German military councilor at Bordeaux.

Already 100 French hostages have been executed for the two assassinations, bringing to 188 the number of announced French deaths at the hands of Nazi firing squads.

Nazis Bury Slain Officer.

With Nantes still cordoned off by German troops, descriptions of Lieut. Col. Hotz's funeral there yesterday said wreaths from Marshal Petain and Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army, lay side by side on the casket.

French mobile guards joined with German troops in according military honors. The body was borne on a gun carriage past silent onlookers to the burial place.

It was the first time since the assassination last Monday that more than two Frenchmen were allowed on the streets of Nantes together.

De Gaulle Orders Protest "Strike."

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—The "Free French" leader, Gen. Charles De Gaulle, broadcast an appeal tonight that all of France stage a five minute standstill demonstration next Friday as a protest against the German shooting of "French martyrs." He asked that the five minute pause in all activity be made at 4 p. m. [9 a. m., Chicago time].

"This immense national strike will show the enemy and the traitors who serve him by what a gigantic menace they are surrounded," he said.

Report Three More Shootings.

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—A British radio broadcast heard here said three more Frenchmen were shot today by order of Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, German commander in occupied France, for possession of arms and ammunition.

Six Czech Killings Claimed.

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP).—A DNB [official German news agency] dispatch tonight said the military court at Brunn [Brno] in former Czecho-Slovakia sentenced six persons to death on a charge that they prepared to commit treason. The sentence was executed immediately.

ROOSEVELT SAID

In a fireside chat on Oct. 12, 1937, President Roosevelt said:

"Meanwhile, remember that from 1913 to 1921 I was fairly close to world events, and in that period, while I learned much of what to do, I also learned much of what not to do.

"The common sense, the intelligence of America agree with my statement that 'America hates war. America hopes for peace. Therefore, America actively engages in the search for peace.'"

Campus Drinker Slipping, Temperance Women Told

Miss Wiggins is secretary of the Loyal Temperance legion, which includes as members boys and girls 6 to 14 years old.

ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER MEETS HITLER AT FRONT

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP).—Adolf Hitler conferred with Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, for two hours today at the German front headquarters in a meeting officially described as occurring "in the spirit of proven comradeship-in-arms." No official statement of the purpose of the conference was made. Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, also participated.

This was Count Ciano's first visit to the German eastern front. It was announced he planned to spend several days in Germany. It was assumed he would not only visit various front sectors but also would devote considerable time to discussing with Ribbentrop the axis new European order and common problems of occupation, especially in the Balkans.

It was noted in Berlin that Ciano's visit followed closely Ribbentrop's reception of the French emissary, Fernand de Brinon.

SENATE GROUP VOTES TO LIFT WAR ZONE BAN

Approves Ships Sailing Anywhere, 12-11.

switched his vote from nay to aye, making the result 13 to 10.

Democratic senators voting for the broadened measure were Chairman Tom Connally of Texas; Walter F. George of Georgia; Wagner of New York; Elbert D. Thomas of Utah; James E. Murray of Montana; Claude Pepper of Florida; Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island; Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky; Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania; Carter Glass of Virginia; Josh Lee of Oklahoma, and James M. Tunnell of Delaware.

The four Democrats in opposition were Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana; Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina; Guy M. Gillette of Iowa; and Bennett Clark of Missouri. The six Republicans were Hiram Johnson of California; Arthur Capper of Kansas; Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan; White of Maine; Shipstead and Nye. The Progressive was Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

President Hesitates.

The decision to emasculate the neutrality law was made by Connally and Barkley after two days of secret conferences during which the White House was frequently consulted. The probable attitude of the house caused the senate leaders and the President to hesitate but they finally received assurances from Democratic leaders in the other body that enough votes could be mustered to put over repeal of sections 2 and 3 which forbid this nation's ships from travel thru combat zones and to war ports.

"When the house passed repeal of section 6 [which made it unlawful for American vessels to be armed], I was willing for the senate to confine its action to that section," Connally declared. "But I realized that we would only have to bring up repeal of sections 2 and 3 immediately thereafter. In view of recent events, we have concluded it would be more advisable to meet the entire issue at one time.

"The Logical Course."

"The whole subject of the neutrality law is in the minds of the American people," chimed in Barkley, "and in the minds of congress. It seems to me that we must deal with the subject as a whole and the logical course is to act upon all of these provisions which restrict the United States in dealing with its defense problems."

Barkley, the senate majority leader, said he did not think there would be "undue delay" in reaching a vote on the bill. He expressed the hope that a week of debate would satisfy the senate.

"This committee action," said Sen. Nye, "ought to startle America to a realization of what things are being done which the people themselves so overwhelmingly oppose. The people must be given time to catch their breath after this blow below the belt and they must have time clearly to express themselves before the senate and house take final action on this 'go to war' program."

George Explains Switch.

Sen. George, a consistent supporter of the neutrality act in the past, was asked to explain his vote for repeal of the last restrictions of importance in the bill.

"It seemed wise and desirable," he said, "to bring the issue squarely before the public. We who have supported the neutrality act in the past as tending to diminish the possibility of involving us in war now feel that the act does not meet the realities of the present situation."

Enactment of the measure would remove from the neutrality act all provisions except those granting the government control over munitions exports, forbidding Americans to travel on belligerent vessels except under certain circumstances, preventing foreign governments from soliciting money in the United States and prohibiting foreign ships from flying the American flag.

Eliminated would be the present combat zones which extend around the European coast from Bilbao, Spain, to Onega, Russia. The zones also prevent merchant ships from traveling in the Mediterranean or to ports on the eastern tip of Canada.

The ceremony took place at 4:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Frank Granger Logan, in Lake Shore drive. The Rev. Preston Bradley read the ceremony, which was followed by a reception. The bride is the daughter of Stuart Logan, and Mr. Felton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jule Felton of Montezuma, Ga. Mr. Felton and his bride will live in Lake Shore drive.

CONDUCTOR DIES, ANOTHER SHOT IN STUDENT MELEES

One street car conductor died suddenly and another was shot in the right thumb yesterday as the aftermath of a football game in Soldiers' field between Du Sable and Phillips High schools.

Joseph Hirzsiefen, 55 years old, 5470 Woodlawn avenue, was the conductor fatally stricken. Fred Dimaline, 50, of 7749 Eberhart avenue, was wounded. Both were working on special Indiana avenue street cars carrying Du Sable pupils—all colored—from the game.

Dimaline was in the first car. At 49th street and Indiana avenue a dozen colored youths rushed him, trying to take his money changer. He resisted, saved the changer, but was shot.

Meanwhile, Hirzsiefen was having trouble with his passengers on the car following. Du Sable had lost and the youths were noisy. At 49th and Indiana he was found dead on the back platform, a victim, police believe, of a heart attack superinduced by excitement.

IRELAND VOWS TO AVOID WAR, BUT SEES U. S. IN SOON

Gossip Bares Vast Work on American Bases.

sition to this proposal, as to all of his proposals for weakening the neutrality act, but it can be expected that it is to be incorporated in a formal measure before many weeks elapse and the measure will pass."

Irish People Contented.

After reviewing how Britain obtains munitions from the United States without payment, how the United States allows British warships to enter United States ports for repairs and other purposes, how American warships are coöperating with the British in the Atlantic patrol, the establishment of United States bases in Greenland and Iceland, and the arming of United States merchant ships, the editorial concludes:

"The odds are very strong that if President Roosevelt has his way in regard to this last shred of the neutrality act, the United States will be at war very shortly afterward."

One does not have to be in Ireland long before one realizes that the country has become a comparatively happy land because it has not allowed its people to fear what may happen tomorrow should the country be plunged into war.

The people eat better, have more food, and sleep more soundly than the neighbors across St. George's channel [separating Ireland from England] and across the northern frontier. They have an abundance of beef, mutton, pork, ham, bacon, eggs, butter, cream, sugar, and other commodities.

Escape Horrors of War.

They suffer few horrors of sudden death from bombing, altho they have not been entirely immune. They are spared most of the agonies of war separations and of worries for the safety of friends and relatives in the fighting services.

They experience few of the complete upsets of domestic and economic life entailed by forced enlistments of men and women in the fighting, home guard, and Air Raid Precautions services and war factories. However, one-fourth of all the available man power in Ireland between 18 and 65 years is in the defense forces.

Ireland is not entirely unscathed by the war. She is not lolling in luxury. There is a definite shortage of fuel, which is really serious, and of gasoline, matches, cigarets, coffee, and tea. But all this is trivial in comparison with the multiple sufferings of people at war.

After a two nour airplane ride to be set down in a country where the customs officers and passport inspectors speed every one thru the formalities with little or no examination seems almost a miracle. When one comes to Dublin and sees the shops filled with goods and customers—eggs, butter, meats of all kinds, cosmetics, clothes, and even silk stockings sold without restrictions—that, too, seems odd.

Streets Ablaze with Light.

It is hard to believe one's eyes at night as the streets, movies, and theaters blaze with lights to guide the milling crowds.

Oddly enough, Americans, rather than Britishers, have attempted to change this state of affairs, THE TRIBUNE learns. When Col. William [Wild Bill] Donovan was in London to confer with Irish leaders he kept asking, "When is Ireland coming into the war?" until finally he was silenced by the question:

"When are you coming into the war?"

An American observer here some time ago kept asking the question so much until he was told by an official that it was a simple mathematical equation:

"If America, 3,000 miles away from the war zone, with a population of 140,000,000, and a war potential of 1,000 can stay out of the war, how long can Ireland, with a population of 3,000,000, 40 miles from the war zone, and with a war potential of .001 keep out of the war?"

The answer: "Two million years."

Peculiarly enough, despite its refusal to go to war, Ireland seems definitely pro-British. The Tribune correspondent met few who do not want the British to win. Yet, when talking to several members of the dail [parliament], one member of the group dissented, saying:

"I have been in all the counties and seen the country people, and many say that they do not care who does the job so long as Britain is beaten."

But THE TRIBUNE correspondent was assured that this was more of a wisecrack than a fact.

BRITISH WOMEN WITH GUNS TAKE POT SHOTS AT FOE IN MOCK WAR

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP).—A small band of armed British women today "invaded" the guildhall of the town of Kingston in Surrey and took pot shots at "the enemy" from the roof of the building.

They were members of an unofficial women's home guard of Kingston taking part in maneuvers under direction of Harry Perry, a musketry instructor. Perry said many women want to enroll so that they "will be useful with a rifle in case of invasion."

"This country needs to be more warlike," he said, "and the women must, too."

U. S. NAVY SEIZES BIG STEEL PLANT FOR ITS OWN USE

34½ Acre Mill Acquired by Court Order.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 25 [Special].—The navy department today seized the plant, land, and equipment of the old Federal Alloy Steel corporation at nearby Eddystone for the production of steel forgings and other rearmament parts.

Judge H. E. Kalodner.

Federal Judge Harry E. Kalodner signed an order under which the government acquired the idle plant by the right of eminent domain. It was the first time an entire plant has been taken over for rearmament in this manner.

The government posted a $600,000 check with the court which, it claimed, represented a fair price for the property. This amount was $400,000 less than the last quoted price attributed to the three bondholders who now own the investment.

The corporation went out of business about 18 years ago and the property subsequently was transferred to the bondholders at auction for about $450,000. None of the bondholders could be reached for comment relative to the new action.

Acting on a petition of James Forrestall, assistant secretary of the navy, Judge Kalodner gave the government title to the plant and immediate possession. Nov. 17 was set as the deadline for a challenge to the propriety of the navy's action.

C. James Todaro, special assistant attorney general, said the arrangement for a challenge was merely a formal requirement and asserted the government expected no difficulty in this connection.

The plant occupies 34½ acres on the Delaware river front adjacent to the Baldwin Locomotive works.

DRIVER KILLED IN CRASH.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 25 [Special].—Russell Davis, 35 years old, of Loami, was killed last night when his automobile plunged over an embankment after a collision on route 66 south of Bloomington.

DAD - bring the whole family!

A great new car with a grand old name is HERE TODAY!

THE NEW 1942
HUDSON SUPER-SIX
Built to Serve Better . . . Last Longer . . . Cost Less to Run

THIS announcement, Dad, is addressed particularly to you because you certainly remember the original Hudson Super-Six. Like most youngsters a quarter-century ago, you probably dreamed of owning a Super-Six of your own some day. But, whether or not that dream came true, there are special reasons why we think you'll be interested in this 25th Anniversary Model, and why you'll want to bring the whole family to see it.

Like its famous namesake, this latest Hudson Super-Six arrives during a period of war economy, of defense priorities and limited production. Like it, too, this Super-Six of 1942 is designed to meet the unusual needs of such a period—built to serve better, last longer and cost less to run.

Mother, son or daughter may not remember those earlier years. They may not realize how important it can be during the next few years to have a car with the extra soundness and extra goodness that all the years of Super-Six development have built into this 25th Anniversary Model.

But they can still fall in love with its brilliant new beauty, thrill to the smooth dash of its performance, relax in its Airfoam-cushioned comfort and welcome the unequalled safety of its Patented Double-Safe Brakes. And, like you, we think they'll be most agreeably surprised at its low price!

The number of these and other 1942 Hudsons will be strictly limited by the requirements of defense production, in which Hudson is extensively engaged.

But, in quality, they will strictly maintain the high standards established during 32 years of engineering leadership.

So, Dad, come and bring the family! You will all be welcome, and we think a ride will be an eye opener to you all. Can you make it today?

35 PASTORS ASK ROOSEVELT: SEEK END TO CONFLICT

Signers Represent Nine Denominations.

Thirty-five ministers and several other persons prominent in religious circles yesterday called upon President Roosevelt and congress to issue a call for the end of fighting "preparatory to the holding of a world conference to find a way out of the world's misery."

Altho the appeal was not made in the name of any organization, many of the signers are members of the Ministers' No War committee, an interdenominational group.

The signers, representing nine different denominations in 14 cities, including one each in Indiana, Ohio, and Wisconsin, said that they did not presume to speak for their respective churches, most of which are in the Chicago area.

The plea, made in an open letter, asserted that this country already is engaged "in what is virtually an undeclared war" and said that "administrative action . . . is undermining constitutional government in this nation."

Trend Toward Totalitarianism.

The letter said that "in spite of what we believe to be the President's sincere desire of peace," the country is being led toward war by administrative steps taken without the knowledge and consent of congress. It added that unless the trend toward totalitarianism, evident thruout the world, is resisted in this country "government of the people, by the people, and for the people may perish from the earth."

It then urged congress to claim its "constitutional right to decide the issue of peace or war," and continued: "We are opposed to any change in the neutrality act and to any modification of the selective service act such as would permit of the creation of an American expeditionary force."

See Universal Devastation.

The letter concluded with the statement that a wholly satisfactory peace thru negotiation is not possible at this time, but, as total war would end in universal devastation, even a "partial peace" would offer hope for some solution of the world's problems. The names of those who signed the letter follow:

Charles F. Boss Jr., executive secretary, general conference commission on world peace of the Methodist church, Chicago.

BIG GUNS SPEAK AS NAVY STATION 'FALLS' IN FIGHT

5,000 Watch as Annual 'Day' Gets Under Way.

Thundering artillery and the crash of rifle fire opened Chicagoland's observance of Navy day yesterday at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Two hundred men of the seaman's guard, commanded by Lieut. James Beaman, staged a realistic sham battle in which an attacking party stormed and took the administration building of the station.

Capt. William McCall.

More than 5,000 spectators watched the attackers advance thru a smoke screen behind booming field guns while formations of planes of the naval reserve air base roared overhead.

W-G-N's mobile unit was on the scene and the sounds and a description of the battle were recorded. These will be broadcast tomorrow at 3 p. m. The Navy department has arranged thru the State Board of Education to have classes halted in every public school where there is a radio receiver, according to Lieut. Holman Faust. Other Navy day programs will be presented in the schools also.

Earlier in the day Rear Admiral John Downes, commander of the 9th naval district and commandant of Great Lakes, witnessed graduation exercises of 650 students of the navy's preliminary training course. The men will go on furlough, then will be assigned to active duty. Adm. Downes shook hands with the five honor graduates.

In an address to the young sailors, the admiral warned that strenuous times are ahead.

Chicago Is Headquarters.

In the reviewing stand with Adm. Downes was Capt. William U. McCall of the royal navy, commander of the Dido, which saw service at Crete. He will attend other events of the three day celebration as guest of Adm. Downes.

This year for the first time in the 19 year history of the observance of Navy day, Chicago is the headquarters. The day is sponsored each year by the Navy League of the United States, of which Commodore Sheldon Clark of Chicago is the newly elected president.

Chicago's celebration will be particularly colorful when 2,500 midshipmen from Abbott hall, sailors, marines, Legionnaires, and Veterans of Foreign Wars parade this afternoon on Michigan boulevard, to the martial music of 25 bands. The parade will start from Ontario street at 2:30 o'clock and disband at Wabash avenue and 11th street. Following the parade 100 young men, recruited by the American Legion, will be sworn into the navy by Lieut. David N. Goldenson at the Congress street plaza.

Squadron Will be Inducted.

The United States Naval Reserve aviation base at Glenview, Ill., will also be the scene of a colorful observance this afternoon. The program will be in honor of the two naval aviation squadrons composed of Chicago men recruited by the Chicago World War Naval Flyers committee.

The occasion will mark the completion of the basic training of members of the Chicago's Own squadron and the induction, as a unit, of the Chicago Blackhawk Squadron. The program will include formation flying by naval pilots, a solo flight by a cadet flyer, cadets' manual of arms drill, and a formal inspection of the cadet corps by Commander Richard K. Gaines, commandant of the Glenview base.

Both squadrons will be guests at the Navy league dinner tomorrow night at the Palmer House at the climax to the Chicago celebration. Adm. Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, will be the principal speaker. Commodore Clark's address will be broadcast to Navy day dinners in Washington and other cities. President Roosevelt's speech will be heard at the banquet at 9 o'clock. It will be broadcast from Washington over all networks.

At the dinner will be Rear Adm. Downes, Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins, commanding general of the 6th corps area, Mayor Kelly, Rear Adm. Edward A. Evers, and Adlai Stevenson, special assistant to the secretary of the navy.

At Flanagan, Ill., the distinguished service cross will be awarded posthumously to John R. Litchfield, who was killed while succoring wounded in France on Sept. 15, 1918.

G. O. P. LEADERS CALLED TO MAP 1942 CAMPAIGN

Martin Is Confident After Tour of 12 States.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25 [Special].—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National committee, today called G. O. P. state chairmen and vice chairmen to meet here on Jan. 12 to map plans for the 1942 congressional campaign.

Martin, minority house leader, said a meeting of the national committee will be held some time after the Jan. 12 gathering. He issued the call so far in advance, he said, so those who plan to attend may arrange for room reservations in Washington's crowded hotels.

Move to Avoid Crowding.

Martin explained that the meeting of state leaders will be the first of several gatherings next year to formulate plans for the congressional and senatorial campaign.

The conference, he said, will be devoted primarily to details of organization and a discussion of steps that should be taken to bring the state and national organizations into closer harmony.

"Recently I have traveled 8,000 miles and talked with active party workers in 12 states," he said. "That trip convinced me that the Republican party can win the 1942 campaign if we bring our organization to a high state of efficiency."

Knox Offers Support.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Republican member of a Democratic cabinet, was reliably reported to have pledged his active support in the 1942 campaign to Republican backers of the administration's foreign policies. His attitude was said to have been revealed to four Republican senators at a recent dinner on the secretary's yacht. In attendance were Senators H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Wallace M. White of Maine, Joseph Ball of Minnesota, and Chan Gurney of South Dakota.

The four senators have supported the administration on foregn policy moves and the terms of all except Gurney expire in 1943. However, they were reported to have told Knox they did not desire formal administration backing as they wished to remain free to criticize domestic policies sponsored by the President.

Help the Kidneys remove excess acid which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

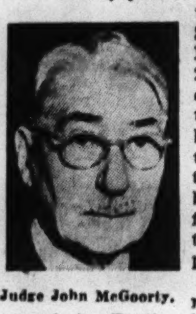
Judicial Candidates

(This is another of a series of sketches of the nominees for the Cook county judicial election of Nov. 4. They are being published in the order in which the candidates' names appear on the ballot.)

BY PERCY WOOD.

DEMOCRAT.

Judge John P. McGoorty is the only Cook county jurist who has served in the Circuit and Superior courts. Now 75 and with 27 years of judicial experience, the judge has been given nineteenth place on the Democratic ballot for a fourth six year term on the Superior bench.



Judge John McGoorty.

Born in Conneaut, O., and reared in Berlin, Wis., Judge McGoorty received his early education in the latter town, and was graduated from the Chicago College of Law in 1892. Between 1897 and 1909 he served four terms in the Illinois house of representatives, being chosen Democratic floor leader his second term. In 1908 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor and failed of nomination.

In 1911 Judge McGoorty was elected to the Circuit bench and won reelection in 1915. He resigned in 1920 to reënter private practice, ran for the Superior court in 1923, and was elected and repeatedly has been reelected since then.

While on the Circuit bench Judge McGoorty was assigned to the Appellate court. He was chief justice of the Criminal court in 1930.

REPUBLICAN.

Attorney George Walter Johnson, president of the 48th ward Republican organization and a native Chicagoan, was assigned nineteenth place on the Republican Superior court ballot. He is 50 years old, is of Swedish descent, and speaks three foreign languages.

George W. Johnson.

Johnson was left an orphan early in life and worked his way thru school, starting with a newspaper route. He obtained two degrees from Northwestern university, one in law. He was admitted to the bar in 1915.

Two years later, when the United States entered the war, Johnson was enlisted as a private and rose to ordnance sergeant. He later attended an officers' training camp and finished the war as a second lieutenant. He still hold a commission in the army reserved. For a year after the war, Johnson worked in Washington as secretary of the house committee on war expenditures.

The candidate is active in the Messiah Lutheran church. He has been a trustee and treasurer for many years. He practices law with Daniel Anderson, former assistant United States attorney.

$500,000 INCREASE IN POLICE FUND BUDGET FOR 1942

One item in the city budget for 1942 will be raised $500,000 in accordance with a state law passed at the last session of the legislature. The tax rate for the police pension fund will be increased from 1.3 mills per $100 assessed valuation to 1.6 milcs, Patrick Dwyer, executive secretary of the fund, said yesterday.

The increase was approved by the Civic federation, unofficial watchdog of the city budget, Dwyer said. The increase was necessary because the old rate of 1.3 was based upon an assessed valuation of $2,274,558,142. In 1940 the assessed valuation fell to $1,995,827,539, the secretary explained.

The fund, which this year is paying annuities to 4,162 beneficiaries, derives revenue from tax collections, contributions from policemen in accordance with an actuarial scale, interest on investments and the sale of securities. The average policeman contributes 5¼ per cent of his salary to the fund and the city 4¾ per cent, Dwyer said.

In 1940 revenue from tax collections was $2,153,362; contributions from policemen, $841,123, and interest on securities, $514,187.

In 1931, when the fund received $2,120,421 from tax collections and $752,892 from policemen's contributions, it paid $2,467,546 to beneficiaries. Last year the fund paid $3,459,079 to beneficiaries.

Dwyer said he does not expect the increase in the police fund tax rate will affect other fund rates. He said most of the other pension funds have higher rates in proportion to the number of employés and beneficiaries involved.

GREEN'S JUDICIAL SLATE ASSAILED BY DEMOCRATS

Plead Coalition's Cause Before Women.

State Sen. Harold G. Ward, Democratic nominee for the Superior court bench and Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, yesterday denounced Gov. Green as a dictator and termed his sponsorship of a Republican judiciary ticket an attempt to create a political machine similar to that of the Len Small administration.

The senator, only candidate on the Democratic coalition ticket not a sitting judge, spoke before 1,500 women of the Federation of Illinois Women's Democratic Clubs at a luncheon in the Chicago Towers club. Several other coalition candidates spoke, among them Superior Judge James F. Fardy, chairman of the judiciary election committee, and Superior Judge William H. McSurely, a Republican who heads the Democratic ticket. Others were presented to the audience by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey.

One Issue, Says Ward.

"There is only one issue in the coming judiciary election on Nov. 4 and that is whether the people of Cook county wish to have justice administered by an able and fearless judiciary or whether they are going to have a Republican machine built on the wreckage of the Len Small administration," said Sen. Ward.

"Instead of remaining in Springfield where he belongs, the governor has been here for some time dictating to the people of this county whom they should elect to the Superior court. He has issued orders to defeat every sitting judge except one, whom he appointed to fill a vacancy.

"Should we have confidence in this self-appointed dictator? During his election campaign he told the public that he would remove the sales tax on food. Has he? No! Instead, what happened? We find ourselves burdened with a cigaret tax, the first in the state; double taxes on beer, wines, and liquor, and on oil tax notwithstanding the additional revenue flowing in."

Assails Appropriations.

Sen. Ward recalled that Gov. Green had promised to reduce the cost of administration and he added, the appropriations for the last year exceed those of any other administration. He upbraided the governor for negligence concerning the Illinois Training School for Boys near St. Charles and for the appointment of an Indiana man to manage the school.

"The bench never has been controled by the bosses," Judge Fardy said. "There never has been the slighest scandal in that regard. The sitting judges, both Democratic and Republican have all been honorable men."

Judge McSurely explained that the coalition ticket does not deprive citizens of their constitutional right to vote. "The only mandate in the constitution states that the elections should be free and equal," he said.

Other Superior court candidates and sitting judges presented to the audience were Michael L. McKinley, John M. O'Connor, Peter H. Schwaba, John J. Lupe, Joseph A. Graber, Charles A. Williams, Oscar Hebel, Francis B. Allegretti, Oscar F. Nelson, E. I. Frankhauser, William J. Lindsay, Walter L. Stanton, Rudolph F. Desort, John P. McGoorty, Ulysses S. Schwartz, and John C. Lewe.

Judge Edward S. Scheffler, candidate for chief justice of the Municipal court, and Judge Samuel Heller, candidate for associate judge of the Municipal court, also were presented.

'MILLIONS? US? SAY IT SLOWER!' WIFE ENTREATS

Sudden Riches Bowl Over Two Negro Families.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 25 [Special]. —Two Negro brothers and their wives were recovering slowly today from the shock of learning they are millionaires. An Indian woman who will share the fortune with them accepted the news with stoical calm.

The negro brothers are Willie and Floyd Mayweather, packing plant employés here, and the Indian woman is Mrs. Ozora Alexander Lee of Claremore, Okla. A court ruling yesterday in Sapulpa, Okla., awarded the three a $7,413,286 oil fortune—in cash —and 160 acres of oil land which once had been allotted to a half-sister of Mrs. Lee. The three also will share 15 oil wells and shops and machinery which produced the wealth.

Willie's Struck Speechless.

The ruling, which was the climax of a 10 year lawsuit, ordered the Sinclair and Minnehoma oil companies to pay the three the cash sum for royalties and interest on oil and gas produced from the land since 1915. Attorneys estimated the total value of the estate at between 10 and 15 million dollars. Mrs. Lee will receive half of the estate and each brother will receive one-fourth. She said, however, she did not "feel any different." raise cattle."

Willie Mayweather was struck speechless when he received news of his sudden wealth. Then he began grinning and finally the words came.

"Ah guess," he said slowly, "ah'd like to buy a ranch in Kansas and raise cattle. Ah want to hold on to mah money."

His brother, Floyd, wanted a chicken ranch. Then he was struck with a thought he hadn't worried about as a day laborer. His brow wrinkling, he observed: "Co'se Uncle Sam'll get most of it. He'll build himself a lot of tanks with our taxes, all right."

Willie's wife learned the news from a reporter at her home.

The Wife's Dizzy.

"Ah'm dizzy," she wailed. "Scuse me."

The door slammed, but a minute later reopened slowly as the colored woman clutched it with shaking hands. She explained: "Ah fainted. Everything got black. Now tell it to me again. And slower."

She knew what she'd do with the money, tho. She would have a house with plumbing, and the house would be on a paved street.

But it was a different story around the corner where Floyd's estranged wife, Estella, received the news.

"But where do Ah come in?" she asked. "Ah'm divorcing Floyd.

"But there's the alimony business. Ah's asking $7 a week alimony, but man, you'se a fool if you think Ah ain't gonna hurry right down first thing in the morning and do a little manipulatin' with that figure."

6 GIVE UP $1,170 CASH, GEMS, FURS TO BANDIT TRIO

Gloved bandits made their appearance in Chicago yesterday and are being sought by police. They evidently wore the gloves to prevent leaving fingerprints at the scenes of their crimes. Within an hour the bandits—two gunmen and an automobile driver—committed two sizable holdups.

Their first victims were Mrs. Esther Martin, and her son, George, 30 years old, an electrical engineer. They were held up when they drove into the garage in the rear of their home at 4215 North Mozart street. The Martins lost a diamond ring valued at $500; a $25 watch, and $12 in cash.

Next victims were members of a theater party, held up in front of 3720 Leland avenue. They were Miss Harriet Ruskin, 16, of the Leland avenue address; Miss Evelyn Glick, 18, of 3733 Leland avenue; Haskell Lowenstein, 21, of 633 Addison street, and Emil Lauter, 20, of 540 Briar place. The girls are high school students. Altogether the party lost $670 in cash, jewelry, and furs.

CHILD MISSING ALL NIGHT FOUND ASLEEP IN BRUSH

Williamsport, Pa., Oct. 25 (AP).—Chubby 19 month old Joseph Prato was found at noon today after wandering for 24 hours thru underbrush near his home at the foot of Bald Eagle mountain. He did not appear to be seriously affected by his overnight roving in 40 degree weather.

Joseph's brother, Pete, one of the hundreds of searchers, came upon the husky youngster asleep about two miles from his home.

Police Chief William L. Mix said the boy, clad only in a sunsuit and sweater, apparently wandered up a path to the top of the mountain and was half way down on the other side when found. Joseph had discarded his pants, shoes, and socks during his meanderings.

WOMEN'S SHOW PUTS ACCENT ON ROLE IN DEFENSE

Leader Urges Aid for Small Business Man.

The homemakers' conference and exposition opened yesterday in Hotel Sherman, under the auspices of 12 organized groups, representing 400,000 women. Mayor Kelly, speaking at a leaders' luncheon, endorsed the conference, which will continue thru Thursday.

Mrs. Henry W. Hartough, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organization, who is general chairman, explained "we are really getting over to the housewives, especially the unorganized ones, that they have a part in national defense. Homemaking is the largest and oldest business in the world and one of the most important.

Calls for Coöperation.

"We must build up coöperation between the housewife and the small business man in her community. Recently we were told that the small business man must go, but if he cannot carry on, that of itself will break down the nation."

Speakers at the 2:30 p. m. session today will be Rabbi Louis Binstock of Temple Sholom, the Rev. Ralph A. Gallagher of Loyola university, and Dr. Ralph Wakefield, past president of the Chicago Church federation. The Camp Fire girls will present a ceremonial.

Foods Will Be Studied.

Foods and nutrition will be considered tomorrow; a round table discussion with business will be Tuesday; common problems in urban and rural homes Wednesday, and a summary program Thursday.

The ideal homemaker, whose qualifications will be judged on the basis of 10 golden rules approved by Judge John Lupe, Judge Joseph Sabath, Mrs. Margaret Johnson, president of the Cook County Women of the Moose; Mrs. Charles M. Sewell, administrative director of the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Mrs. Willoughby Floyd of the Cook County American Legion auxiliary, will be presented Wednesday.

Entrants' letters will be accepted until tonight and the judges' committee will select the winner tomorrow.

WITHOUT WARNING.

Berlin has reported that a British submarine operating off Norway last week sank a Norwegian mail steamer, the Vesteraalen. According to the German account, the ship was used exclusively for civilian service and was plainly marked as a nonbelligerent, but the vessel was torpedoed without warning and some 60 Norwegians were drowned.

The Germans have exploited the incident as evidence that the use of frightfulness in submarine warfare is not a German monopoly. The sinking of French ships in the Mediterranean might be cited to the same effect.

There is another point which ought not to be lost to sight. No doubt if the British could safely do so, they would patrol the Norwegian coast with surface craft. Submarines are slower and for this and other reasons far less effective instruments for maintaining a blockade. The British are sending submarines rather than cruisers and destroyers to Norwegian waters because surface ships cannot be risked where German planes hold mastery of the air.

Numerous more or less plausible explanations have been offered to account for the unwillingness of the British staff to risk an expeditionary force on the continent. Enough evidence is at hand to leave little doubt that the principal reason is recognition in Britain of the power of the German air arm near its bases. To invade the continent the British must transport men and equipment across the channel in surface ships. Once landed, such an army would require a steady stream of supplies also moving in surface ships. While crossing and while in port, all of these vessels would be targets for airplane bombs. The British have learned from their experience off Norway and Crete that not even naval vessels equipped with the most modern of anti-aircraft weapons can withstand the bombers. Our repair yards are filled with British warships which were knocked out by attack from the air.

With the British unable to cross the English channel at a time when most of the German army is in far-off Russia, what chance would there be for an American army to survive the crossing of the ocean and the channel as well, which the war mongers are demanding?

The answer is none; and the same answer must be given to the other question, What chance has the German army to cross the ocean and attack us?

MORE POLITICS THAN JUSTICE.

Two downstate utility companies were indicted in the federal District court at Springfield, along with some of their officers, on charges that they illegally spent $77,000 to influence state and local elections in Illinois. When the case came to trial the other day the two companies were fined $5,000 each, sums which they can afford to regard as no more than a reasonable sales tax on their purchase of political influence.

The cases against the officers were dropped. The action was taken on the recommendation of Howard Doyle, United States district attorney, who said the decision against bringing the individual defendants to trial was made after conferences with his superiors in the department of justice and with the Securities and Exchange commission.

Political scientists may find amusing debate on the question of how a corporation can be guilty of a criminal act while the living persons who act for this legal personality escape trial. Of more general interest, however, is the fact that by avoidance of a trial and presentation of evidence the recipients of the graft escape exposure. It is known unofficially and from the indictment that the men who were put on the utility pay roll included mayors of 14 Illinois cities or towns, candidates for the legislature, and holders of other political positions. Both Democrats and Republicans were represented.

The virtual abandonment of the prosecution by the department of justice was nothing less than a whitewash, and a whitewash of men holding positions of public trust. The transaction has a very bad smell.

OVERHEAD.

A joint congressional economy committee this week will begin considering measures to reduce domestic expenditures 25 per cent. This, if it can be effected, would save 2 billion dollars during the fiscal year. Reduction of nondefense expenditures is imperative and the committee's proposal should obtain universal approval. But congress should not stop there. It should make a strenuous effort to introduce economy into what is going on under the magic name of "defense."

The Office of Production Management reports that spending under the lease-lend program and for the American armed forces amounted to 1 billion 347 million dollars during September. Of this 238 millions, or 17.6 per cent, represented overhead—pay, subsistence, travel, and administrative expenses.

This is outrageous. Any business man who tried to keep his plant running with that kind of overhead would go bankrupt. Government, however, is supposed to be above the petty concerns of profit and loss. The only effect that its frivolous disregard of cost accounting can have, after all, is to carry the nation along the road to bankruptcy a little faster. As the public is aware, the receivers, their attorneys, and their bottle washers manage to eat and struggle along and make a pretty good thing of the disasters of others. And you can guess pretty well who is going to be in the saddle when the nation is thrown into 77-B. The crowd that's there already.

WE ARE RAPIDLY BEING HITLERIZED.

The following is from an article in Harper's magazine: "What has happened to the business man? . . . He has to obey thousands of instructions, decrees, laws, and regulations covering—and interfering with—all his business activities. He is still the proprietor of a business intent on making a profit. At the end of every year he still makes out a balance sheet in an effort to compute that profit. But he is no longer an independent operator: [1] No longer may he run his business the way he wants to, [2] no day passes in which he does not have to petition numerous state commissars, control commissions, or other organizations, [3] to find out how much raw material he may have, [4] how he must operate his factory, [5] at what price he may sell his product and to whom, [6] whether or not he may build an addition to his plant, [7] and how he may invest his surplus funds, if any."

Any American business man reading these extracts from the article will recognize them as giving an accurate description of how business is done in the United States today. But the article did not appear in this month's issue of Harper's. It was in the issue of March, 1939. The author, Gunther Reimann, was discussing the methods of doing business in Germany. It was a description of commerce in Germany under Hitler.

That the Roosevelt administration is actually Nazi-fying this country will appear at once by comparing the numbers below with the corresponding numbers which we have inserted above:

[1] The American business man can no longer conduct his business as he wants to. [2] No day passes in which he does not have to petition OPM, OPA, NLRB, the Wages and Hours administration, and numerous other agencies of the government. [3] The priorities board at Washington rigidly regulates the amount of materials he may have. [4] He is told by the department of labor how he must operate his factory. [5] He is told by Leon Henderson, the price administrator, how much he may sell his product for. [6] It was announced yesterday that he may not make any additions to his factory without permission of SPAB. [7] The secretary of the treasury has announced that he will request legislation denying any firm a profit over 6 per cent of the capital invested. This would limit the profit of a $50,000 company to $3,000 a year.

Mr. Reimann in his article made this statement: "What is really happening to German business is a gradual fusion between private enterprise and state burocracy. Nor is there anything accidental about this process. It is an essential element in national socialist economic practice."

And it must be assumed likewise, that what is happening here is not accidental, but a continuation and intensification of what has been called the Roosevelt revolution or the New Deal.

The end result in Germany was the gradual elimination of the small business man, and the concentration of business in the hands of a small number of huge concerns which could be readily controled by the government. The harsh treatment of little business and the concentration of defense orders among a small number of large concerns suggest there is an identical Nazi motive here. Then there is the statement which appeared in OPM release No. 571: "It is one of the profound ironies of our defense effort that its total effect may be to obliterate the smaller business enterprises from the scene."

Doing business in the United States now is like doing business in Germany. Mr. Reimann said that "the long term tendency in Germany is all toward more complete state control of business, and the struggle of the conservative industrial and financial interests for a return to freer enterprise becomes more and more feeble." That is exactly what Mr. Roosevelt has been trying to promote in the United States ever since he took office.

On the pretense that it is necessary to defeat Nazlism elsewhere in the world this country is moving rapidly toward Nazlism. Will it wake up before it is too late?

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The people of Chicago have reason to be grateful to the aldermen who voted the extension of daylight saving thru October. The added hour of sunlight at the end of the day's work was a boon which will be appreciated the more now that it no longer car be enjoyed.

There were dire predictions that the extension of daylight time would infuriate farmers, upset the markets and exchanges, and generally disrupt the business life of this and other communities. These forecasts proved groundless, of course. In fact, few were inconvenienced and the great majority were benefited.

The experiment was conducted in circumstances which were anything but favorable. October, usually the finest month of the year, was, in 1941, a month of almost unprecedented rains. We have had this October more than 4¼ inches of rain in excess of the month's average. The dividend which ordinarily can be expected of daylight time in October was reduced this year by cloudy skies, but was nevertheless a substantial one.

Naturally some people complained, as some people always do about any change. They said they didn't like to get up in the dark, and they didn't like to send their children to school in the dark. Yesterday, on Saturday, Oct. 25, the sun appeared above Lake Michigan at 7:14 a. m., daylight saving time, and there was no need for artificial light at 7 o'clock. For all those who climb out of bed at 7 o'clock and after, the change can have caused no inconvenience. If any children walked to school in the dark, the blame must be placed upon rain clouds and not upon daylight saving, for school begins at 9 o'clock; few children must leave home as early as 8, and on the last day of daylight time, the sun at 8 o'clock had already been up for three-quarters of an hour.

Daylight saving in October was a success. It seems probable that the enjoyment and benefit derived from it in the fall will lead to demands for an earlier start of daylight time in the spring.

People seem to have lost the old feeling for the value of money. Asked by the inquiring reporter, "What would you do if you were handed a million dollars?" no one replied, "Count it."—The Detroit News.

THE PARTY LINE IN RUSSIA AND IN THE UNITED STATES

[From the New York Daily News.]

Here is a front page editorial from the New York Daily Worker for Oct. 16, 1941, the Daily Worker being the outstanding communist newspaper in the United States. Title of the editorial: "Moscow Is in Danger." Its text:

"Moscow is in danger—These are the words which flashed from the embattled heroic soviet capital yesterday.

"It is another way of saying that New York is in danger—that London is in danger. The best of civilization which took mankind centuries to build is being fought for around the approaches to Moscow and on the entire eastern front. Never was the peril to our own America as grave as now.

"Why is Moscow in danger? It is not because the Red army has not startled the world with the brilliance and heroism of its fighting. It is not because the soviet people are not willingly giving of their life's blood and sacrificing their most precious achievements for victory. It is not because they do not have the unshakable determination to fight to the last man, woman, and child for the defeat of the Nazi beasts.

"Against Moscow Hitler has hurled all the resources of conquered Europe—the industries of France and Germany, the munitions works of Czecho-Slovakia, the loot of all the occupied territories. Hitler knows that the Red army is the most powerful present defense to London and New York. There are no 'ifs,' 'ands,' or 'buts' to his panzer attacks—he has launched an all out war for world domination.

"But the anti-Hitler front in Britain and America has not thrown all its resources into the battle to defeat Hitler. There are still delays, hesitations, and half hearted measures which prevent America and Britain from going truly all out. These weaknesses are playing into Hitler's hands and exposing our country to untold danger.

"This is America's war—the war of the American people for their national existence. Hitler has already forced America into the war—by his submarine warfare, his subversive attacks in Latin America, his rattlesnake sinkings of American owned vessels which the people have decreed shall deliver aid to the soviet union and Britain.

"The arrogant Nazi murderers have left no alternative to this sovereign nation except, in order to preserve its life, to put everything it has into the war to wipe out Hitlerism. Not only is this a matter of practical necessity, but the knowledge that the country had dispensed with all half hearted measures against Hitler would shake the Nazi bluster more than anything else. For its own security America should assume full military responsibility with the soviet union and Britain in the struggle against German Fascism.

"In the face of this immediate danger to our country the duties of our government are clear and unmistakable.

"First, let it join hands with Britain to open new fronts against Hitler. The establishment of a western front is the demand of the American people as well as the British.

"Secondly, repeal the unreal neutrality act which binds our defense while Hitler has a free rein to roam the seas against America's national interest. Arm American merchant vessels. Provide naval convoys all the way across the Atlantic and Pacific to insure that aid reaches the soviet union and Britain. Put into instant operation the President's 'shoot first' order to blast the Nazi rattlesnakes out of the sea. Extend full lend-lease aid to the soviet union.

"Thirdly, let America and Britain guarantee the far eastern borders of the soviet union against attack by the Japanese aggressors. Let Japan know that if it makes one move upon soviet territory it will have to answer to America's armed might. This will relieve the soviet far eastern forces which are protecting America and allow them to be hurled against the common enemy in the west.

"Fourthly, win the battle of production in America by an uninterrupted stream of supplies to the soviet union. We must outproduce Hitler's industrial loot. We can do it by turning the decisions of the recent soviet-British-American conference in Moscow into full reality.

"Fifthly, stop the sabotage of America's defense efforts by Hitler's agents who operate under diplomatic immunity. Expel the ambassadors of the Nazi murderers of hostages, along with the representatives of the Nazi puppet governments. With America's shores in peril the country cannot tolerate the activities of Hitler's agents in its midst.

"The people of America—and above all, the trade unions—should speak out and insist upon resolute action against Hitler by our country. William Green expressed the sentiments of every working man and woman in America when he urged 'more drastic action' against Hitler. Certainly, more drastic action is necessary at this moment.

"Let every union, people's organization, and community organize mass actions to support the foreign policy of our national government. The people should sternly protest the activities of the America First appeasers who work to divide national unity against Hitler and who endanger the life of the nation.

"Pass resolutions, send telegrams to the President giving full backing to his foreign policy, and urging that America throw its total power beside the soviet union and Britain to outfight Hitler. Write to your congressmen and senators for all out action against Hitler.

"In its own defense our country is committed to the destruction of Hitler and Hitlerism. It is the united will of the American people that all our strength be thrown into this task. Let the American people make themselves heard to this end. Let American labor express itself forcefully, in the interest of the people, for an all out fight against Hitlerism."

Its Party Line in This Country.

In the above reprint of a significant New York Daily Worker editorial you have seen what the communist party line on United States foreign policy now is. It is that the United States and Great Britain must underwrite the boundaries of soviet Russia as they existed before this war began, as against both Germany and Japan, and must open a western front in Europe to draw off some of Hitler's soldiers from Russia.

To Americans the domestic part of the party line is even more important. This part has not changed since Nov. 7, 1917, date of the bolshevik coup d'état that turned Russia Red. For the United States the communists propose:

That all private property be confiscated and turned over to the goverment. That the present owners of such property—landlords and merchants and manufacturers large and small, holders of life insurance policies, owners of any other kinds of property—be liquidated, a Red euphemism for killed or exiled. That the teaching of religion be stopped, church property largely confiscated, and most of the clergy liquidated.

That the farmers, whether holding their lands in fee simple or farming them as tenants, be stripped of all private title to such lands and made to work for the government on large, mechanized collective farms. That the labor unions be taken over by the government, with their members forbidden to strike, and allowed to change jobs only on government permits.

That the entire country be run by the membership of the communist party, which in turn will be run by one man. The one man might be Earl Browder, or he might be somebody else, now little known, appointed by Moscow.

HOMESICKNESS—A NATURAL REACTION.

HOMESICKNESS may present a real problem. There are times when the longing for familiar surroundings becomes well nigh paralyzing. David, the Psalmist, tells of the sorrows of the exiles in Babylon when he relates that—"We wept when we remembered Zion." There are unbreakable ties which bind us to the scenes of childhood and a world of loyalty is associated with the word "home."

For centuries physicians have recognized that this form of unquenchable yearning may influence health profoundly. To the condition has been assigned the word "nostalgia," which means the "pain of returning." Among the symptoms are included melancholia, loss of sleep, absence of appetite, weakness, smothering sensations, and stupor. At one time it was thought to represent an actual disease of the brain. At any rate, intense repining for that which has been left behind may be so strong as to change the normal behavior of the body, with actual illness in prospect.

Unless the patient can snap out of the mental depression, which is a part of the picture, digestive disorders, diarrhea, palpitation, glandular disturbances—even fever and delirium—may ensue. The ailment represents the acme of grief. One may describe it as characterized by empty feelings in the stomach. Sometimes the victim can scarcely trust himself to speak as the voice may tremble and "choke up."

I well recall sitting on a court martial during the World war before the American forces departed for France. A number of fine young soldiers had been arrested and charged with desertion. They had simply walked out of camp and several of them had found their way back to their paternal homesteads—several hundred miles distant. There was nothing vicious about these lads. As one explained—"Well, I felt so bad I just had to go." Fortunately, enough sound sense prevailed among the personnel to render an understanding verdict with a correspondingly mild sentence.

Occasionally the malady may be so overpowering that crime will be committed. There are a number of instances on record in which, in order to reach a more conductive environment, a victim has gone to great lengths. There seems to be a close relationship between nostalgia and running away from home, particularly among boys of 15 to 18 years of age. In fact, it is apparently the same urge. There are households [few let us hope] from which escape—even with intense suffering in prospect—is to be preferred.

Now, every one is not susceptible. It is more likely to strike the one who is nervous, sensitive, timid, and who dislikes to travel with the crowd. Many are of the type from which geniuses come—those who think "long thoughts," and whose imaginations have surrounded family hearthstones with devotion and idealism. With all such, an abrupt break in normal relationships pulls strongly on the emotions.

Recovery, of course, lies in fulfilling the desire or in furnishing a substitute. In the case of soldiers engaged in active combat the ailment never appears. There is too much doing. Every commanding officer knows the importance of entertainment, good fellowship, and periodic leaves of absence—if circumstances permit. Mental diversion must be strong enough to enable the individual to forget his feeling of unhappiness. The remedies are work, games, and comradeship.

Congenial companions can do more than all other factors, altho encouraging letters from the "folks" will help.

LEAFLET CATALOG.

J. R. writes: I understand you have leaflets on various disorders. What topics are covered?

REPLY.

The titles are too numerous to tabulate here. We have a mimeographed list, which can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A REGULATING DEVICE.

L. W. writes: What is the ileocecal valve?

REPLY.

This structure is located at the junction of the ileum [small intestine] and the cecum [beginning of the large bowel]. A valve at this point prevents backflow from the colon into the ileum.

BRIBES IN THE REVOLUTION.

Riverside, Ill., Oct. 21.—William Shinnick's excellent article in the Graphic Section of THE TRIBUNE yesterday, from Carl Van Doren's "Secret History of the American Revolution," presents some startling facts which should be of interest to all students and teachers of American history.

Since the historical facts are founded on previously unpublished documents in the William L. Clements library of the University of Michigan, their authenticity may be considered as reliable.

Altho Benedict Arnold may have been the arch fiend, it is evident that our government was honeycombed with villainy. Great Britain's guineas of blood found their way into the pockets of more than one member of the general assembly; of officials of the treasury, officers of the army, governors, and other crooked politicians.

Benjamin Franklin and many other stalwart Americans were skilfully approached; but even tho they failed, Franklin's fellow commissioner in Paris, Silas Deane, was a sellout. William Franklin [son of Ben] and many others received large sums in the form of pensions. Knighthood and other titles were promised to several persons who were in a position to be of value to the crown.

The fact that Great Britain could, and did bribe our people is one of the blackest pages in our history. If it happened once, it might happen again. The American press has on several occasions reported the lavish use of British money to buy up the officials in certain of the Mediterranean areas. This should be a warning signal to us.

If England could find it profitable to squander money on our colonials at a time when she had no outside financial aid, how much more could she pay today for the billions of dollars in foods, equipment, and war munitions which are being given to her free, shipped protected by our people, all of which are paid for by our people? A. F. B.

A SIBERIAN CORRIDOR?

Chicago, Oct. 20.—What consideration have the allies [and America] given to the consequences of a Russian-Nazi armistice? It appears logical that Japan will occupy a portion [if not all] of Siberia, and that Hitler will reserve to Germany a corridor thru Siberia to the Pacific.

And that corridor will make it possible for Hitler to attack Alaska.

I believe that America should think it over and not worry so much about the Atlantic ocean.

Will some one with military skill and knowledge please take the trouble to disprove my theory?

GOOD NEIGHBOR MUSIC.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—With all the efforts being made to cement relations with Latin America it seems to me one of the modest and yet forceful methods is with music such as that which is being played on the radio every Thursday by Xavier Cugat. His type of music makes Americans like Latin American melodies and I think the people south of us like it also. MUSIC LOVER.

NOT REALLY A WORLD SERIES.

Bloomington, Ind., Route 3, Oct. 20.—Why should the question of Lord Halifax, "What is a world series?" be a blundering one, as you intimate in the Sunday issue of your paper?

The expression "world series" is a misnomer since the event is national, not international, in scope. The Yankees and the Dodgers, important as they may be here, dwindle to insignificance beyond our borders, even in sport loving England. ERNEST J. LÉVÊQUE.

TOO MUCH "UNION NOW."

Sturgis, Mich., Oct. 21.—I have just written to the "Book of the Month" club as follows:

"As a member of your club I recently received your latest book dividend, 'Union Now,' and 'Union Now with Britain.' I am returning both books to you. I have not so much as lifted the cover of either book. I believe in the fundamental principles of The United States of America. As such, I would be ashamed to have the above volumes in my home."

JAMES SPENCER SULLIVAN.

PERSONALITY: HOW TO GET IT.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—It is possible to know all the tricks of the stage and yet fail to make any impression because personality is the most important ingredient in stage success. Personality is something that attracts you and grips you. There are no unlikable big stars on the stage. We are not talking about the movies, please.

Stage aspirants need to get a personality as much as they need training. And the only way to get the personality that the stage rewards is always to be human. CARL PETERSON.

HAS SOME ONE LIED?

Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 20.—Your headline Saturday reads: "Britain to U. S.: 'Fight Japan.' Promises to Aid America if It Declares War." And we have been under the delusion that America was "aiding" Britain. Or what is our "all out aid"? Reminds one of that old song of other days, "Somebody Lied to Me."

H. E. WALTERS.

HE FINDS US PROVINCIAL.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 22.—I think it was very small of you to devote a picture on the very front page of your paper advocating that the public donate to the Community funds of Chicago, Peoria, Kansas City, Kokomo, or Paducah.

Your selfishness is evident when you realize, as well as every one else, how much this money is needed across the way, and I would appreciate it, if you would inform me if Moscow, London, Liverpool, or Sheffield don't have Community funds, which we could contribute to.

The old saying it is better to give than receive still holds true, and when you look back on the eternal gratitude we received for both our cash and our men and boys during the last war. Ah for democracy, how can you waste such space in your great newspaper when you could be furthering the opium traffic in India and religion in Russia? R. E. S.

IT'S UP TO THE PARENTS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—In your paper Sunday is an article with illustration, re "insurance" of merchants against soaping of their show windows on Halloween.

To me this seems a vicious scheme, similar in principle to protection money paid to racketeers in unions. The minds of young people are receptive and to let them think they can force business to pay tribute is a serious thing. Note the case of Browne and Bioff.

If parents cannot or will not control their children and train them to be law abiding, punish the parents. Lack of parental training and control is at the root of all juvenile mischief and crime.

FOR LINDBERGH DEFENSE.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Let's defend Lindbergh. A few of our dollars for his cause in addition to our contribution for national defense is a worthy cause.

Why not start a fund to advertise in all key points to tell the President and interventionists that we believe in Lindbergh and love him for his courage.

I will gladly be the first contributor.

ESTATE ASSETS.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would you please advise me on the following case, as I live in Indiana and the settlement of estates is somewhat different than in Illinois.

My grandfather resided in Illinois before he passed away some time ago.

1. His estate was an apartment building, insurance, and house furnishings. His family consists of a second wife with her children from a former husband and a granddaughter, the child of his daughter, and another granddaughter, the child of his son.

2. Now this second wife and her children [from the first marriage] are selling the apartment house and are keeping everything for themselves and leaving the two grandchildren without anything. Can't they get something, that share that would have been the old man's son's share and his daughter's share?

3. Would it be all right to have a lawyer from Indiana file my claim if there was anything I could do? Where would I go to do this?

4. I believe the property was a joint deed and [5] this second wife thinks this makes all the property hers and the grandchildren have no right to claim their parents' share. Is this right?

M. B.

1. We assume that you mean that these assets are in Illinois.

2. The purchaser would not be satisfied with the title unless additional facts were involved. It seems probable that the title was in joint tenancy. Your first step would be to investigate the facts.

3. If you are already in touch with a lawyer we suggest that you go over your facts in a personal interview with him.

4. If the deed expressly provides for "joint tenancy" as distinguished from "tenancy in common," then on death of one of the tenants the title will go to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first [33 C. J. 908, 915]. The half that thus passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax.

If title is already in one of the parties, the creation of the joint tenancy involves an intermediate conveyance to a third party, who will then reconvey to the intended joint tenants, using a joint tenancy form obtainable from a stationer. Make sure that the third party is not subject to judgment liens.

As to personal property, the Illinois statute says that the "will or other instrument in writing" must express "an intention [presumably that of the previous owner] to create a joint tenancy . . . with the right of survivorship." The mere fact that money is deposited to the account of "A and B," or that A and B have joint access to a safety box containing bearer bonds would not be enough. 3 C. J. 908, 915; 19 C. J. 473.

5. She is right.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOTICE TO VACATE.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a family is given notice to vacate from a building they are renting:

1. What steps can be taken to collect back rent this family owes?

2. Can there be a garnishment against their wages?

3. If they are not out of the building in the given time must an eviction order be gotten from the court?

4. May a notary public who is also the real estate agent for the owner of the building sit in judgment on said case?

5. What is the longest possible time said family can keep possession of the building?

6. Said building is located in Du Page county. Does same law apply to all counties in Illinois? R. I.

1. The ordinary course is to place such a claim in the hands of an attorney for collection. The landlord's chances depend largely on the tenant's assets or income.

2. Yes, after judgment has been obtained against the tenant assuming that the tenant's wages exceed the $20 per week exemption allowed to the head of a family.

3. Yes, in the sense that the landlord is not entitled to put them out by physical force except by court proceedings.

4. No

READY MADE TAX TABLES OFFERED BY U. S. TREASURY

Show Monthly Savings to Provide Funds.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—The burden of next year's taxes on the American public was brought home tonight with release by the treasury of "ready made" tax tables showing how much must be saved monthly in order to meet 1941 income taxes, which have been increased three and four fold in some instances.

Billed as "A Service to Taxpayers," Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau said he had the tables prepared to show taxpayers in various salary brackets up to $25,000 how much they must pay in taxes for 1941 and the monthly saving this requires.

Boosts Sale of Notes.

The pamphlet, which will be distributed liberally by the treasury, also is intended as a boost for sale of its tax savings notes, which are on sale now and bear interest, both the principal and interest being redeemable in payment of income taxes next year.

To make it a little easier on the taxpayer, the treasury said, "A taxpayer may ascertain with a minimum of effort the portion of his monthly income he must set aside regularly to meet next year's tax payments."

Samples of Tables.

Following are samples of the tables from the treasury pamphlet entitled "Know Your Taxes," showing how much you have to pay in individual income taxes on salary and wage incomes in various brackets and the monthly savings required to meet them. Net income represents income after allowable tax deductions, but before the exemptions of $750 for single persons, $1,500 for married persons, and $400 for each dependent. The figures are computed to the nearest dollar in most instances.

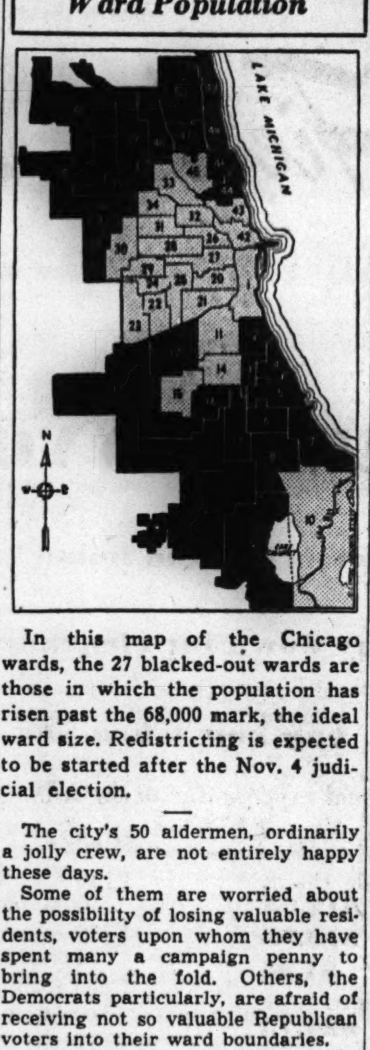
Since the first income tax payment under the new law will come due in less than five months, the monthly saving plan is adaptable only to those who plan to take advantage of the portion of the law which permits payment in four equal quarterly payments on March 15, June 15, Sept. 15, and Dec. 15.

Writings of Andre Maurois Are Banned by Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP).—A ban on all writings of Andre Maurois, prominent French author, was announced today in the official gazette. His books had been popular in Germany.

[Maurois, whose real name is Emile Hertzog, introduced the English style novel to the French, visited in England and the United States, and wrote mostly about English and American characters.]

Ward Population



In this map of the Chicago wards, the 27 blacked-out wards are those in which the population has risen past the 68,000 mark, the ideal ward size. Redistricting is expected to be started after the Nov. 4 judicial election.

The city's 50 aldermen, ordinarily a jolly crew, are not entirely happy these days.

Some of them are worried about the possibility of losing valuable residents, voters upon whom they have spent many a campaign penny to bring into the fold. Others, the Democrats particularly, are afraid of receiving not so valuable Republican voters into their ward boundaries.

All the aldermen look with fear at the possible enforcement of a state law which says that every 10 years the 50 wards shall be redistricted in accordance with the federal census. The law also says that the work shall be completed by Dec. 1.

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the committee on redistricting, announced recently he expects the work will start after the Nov. 4 judicial election and said it "may be completed by Dec. 1."

Bowler explained that with the 1940 census total at 3,396,808 for the city, the average ward should be 68,000. Twenty-seven wards are above the 68,000 population figure and must be reduced, he said.

The biggest problem faced by the aldermen in the reduction of large wards is in the south side where all wards, except the first, have grown since 1930.

DONORS HAPPY TO HELP SAVE THE AUDITORIUM

Send Quarters, Dollars from Nearby States.

Not only Chicagoans, but residents of Illinois towns, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio are contributing from 25 cents to $500 to "Help Save the Auditorium," campaign directors revealed yesterday.

"Many contributors write that it would be unthinkable to allow the Auditorium to remain closed and that they know of no better gift to make than one that will help enable us to ring up the curtain again," said Robert Hall McCormick, president of the Auditorium Music Foundation.

The foundation is a nonprofit organization, chartered by the state, to rescue the Auditorium properties from financial difficulties. This involves raising $400,000 to install equipment for heat and power, no longer available from the Congress hotel; to settle indebtedness, rehabilitate and redecorate, and establish new working capital.

Volunteers Do Work.

Solicitation for funds and most of the clerical work in campaign headquarters, 332 South Michigan avenue, is being done by volunteers.

One man came in, laid down a dollar and said, "This is the first money I have been able to call my own in a year and a half. I have had too much enjoyment in the Auditorium to want to keep even this dollar for myself."

A luncheon group is "feeding the kitty" at every meeting to amass a sizeable contribution. A homemaker who sent $2 wrote that she wished it were $2,000, while another contributor promised to add to her donation later and said she would consider it a privilege.

$5 from Hobart, Ind.

A woman in Hobart, Ind., who sent $5, wrote "It is not much, but if every one who loves the Auditorium would subscribe an equal amount, I know the building would be saved."

G. J. Brotje of Hot Springs, Ark., writing to Mr. McCormick, said: "As a resident of Chicago for more than 30 years, there is no building that means so much to me as the Auditorium. Within its walls I heard the voice of that great preacher, Frank W. Gunsaulus, and saw my first opera. Last winter, while attending my final opera performance before leaving the city, I was the last person to leave the orchestra floor and left with a sad heart."

Many Club Supporters.

Among the groups actively supporting the campaign are William McKinley lodge, No. 876, F. & A. M., the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Chicago Mendelssohn club, the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, Columbia Damen club, Women's Civic council of the Chicago area, American-Italian Musicians' club, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, Chicago Woman's club, Crawford Business Men's league, Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, and the Svithiod Singing club.

THE steady growth of the preference for Lain & Son, which is now 30 to 1, 30 times the average is not so astounding when you consider the reasons for Lain's leadership. No business ever grew which did not give the public extra values for its money. The Lain & Son policy ... to give you extra services which can not be duplicated. One of these unduplicated services is the Imperial Quartet and organist, another is the beautiful, carefully planned Lain & Son Chapels. Into every one of their services there goes that care and consideration which has made Lain & Son funerals outstanding.

When you consider the many reasons for Lain & Son prestige and preference, and know that their prices are usually lower, you will understand Chicago's overwhelming acceptance of Lain services.

28 FACE FEDERAL TRIAL TOMORROW IN SEDITION PLOT

3 of Accused Are Women; 20 in Terroristic Union.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 25 [Special].—The first sedition trial in this area since World war days will open here Monday when 25 men and three women are arraigned in Federal court on charges of plotting and advocating the overthrow of the United States government by force and violence.

All of the defendants are alleged to be officers, leaders or active members of the Socialist Workers party, which has units in Chicago, New York, Omaha, and the Twin Cities.

A score of the indicted men are leaders or members of the General Drivers' union, an organization that has engaged in some of the nation's most sanguinary strikes in recent years. They are accused of using the labor movement to screen their subversive activities.

One Commits Sucide.

Included in this group are the Dunne brothers—Myles and Vincent—bosses of the Minneapolis Drivers' union for more than a decade, during which time the union resorted to all sorts of terrorism. A third brother, Grant, another labor kingpin during this time, committed suicide recently while under the sedition indictment.

The mass trial, to be held before Judge Matthew M. Joyce, will be the first important test of the Smith act of 1940. A ten year prison sentence and a fine of $10,000 may be imposed under the broad provisions of the act, which define as a federal offense advising, knowingly advocating or teaching the propriety of overthrowing the government by violence.

The group also is accused under the 1881 sedition laws forbidding forcible opposition to lawful authorities. The maximum penalty under this law is a prison term of six years and a fine of $5,000.

Charge Army Interference.

The government will seek to prove during the trial that the Socialist Workers party has interfered with the national rearmament program by urging draftees to submit willingly to induction, but thereafter to do everything possible to disrupt and hinder efficient functioning of the army.

The plot, according to prosecutors, includes attempts to influence members of the regular army and navy to flout discipline, to camplain about food and living conditions, and to seek to impair loyalty to the country.

The defendants also are accused of attempting to gain control of state militias, of encouraging workers to arm themselves, and of forming "union defense guards" which ostensibly are trained to protect trade unions, but which allegedly are designed to overthrow the government.

The federal indictment further accuses the party members of gathering explosives, firearms, ammunition, weapons, and military equipment.

Followers of Trotzky Line.

The purpose of the plot, according to the government, was to bring an end to what the party members considered an imperialistic and capitalistic Washington government organized to subject workers to various deprivations and to deny them the right to own, control and manage all property and industry in the United States.

After the plotted revolution had taken place, Socialist party workers planned to be in key positions in all industries, as well as in the unions, and to set up a communist program as was taught by Leon Trotzky, the government charges.

Several of the defendants made pilgrimages to Mexico City to visit Trotzky while the late communist was in exile there. These included Carl Skoglund, recently deposed as an official of the Drivers' union for failing to become an American citizen, as the union constitution provided. He is in jail facing deportation as an alien.

NAME PUBLISHER IN U. S. TAX LIEN FOR $32,291.42

The Internal Revenue bureau filed an income tax lien yesterday against Richard H. Jacobson, owner and publisher of Standard Opinion, a Democratic political newspaper, charging that he owes $32,291.42 in taxes and penalties. Jacobson also owns and publishes the Evanston News-Index.

The tax lien alleges that Jacobson owes taxes of $29,085.89 for the years 1936, 1937, 1938, and 1940, and penalties of $3,205.53. The tax lien ties up all his assets.

Jacobson lives at 3400 Lake Shore drive. It was said at his office, at 105 West Madison street, that he is out of town.

Couple in Custody

Fitchburg, Mass., Oct. 25 [Special].—Two month old Kenneth A. McLean Jr., abducted yesterday from his carriage while his mother was shopping, was found unharmed today in the park camp of Mr. and Mrs. Bedard Wolsiewick, who were charged with the kidnaping and held under $20,000 bail for hearing Monday.

Mrs. Bedard Wolsiewick.

The infant was found in bed with Mrs. Wolsiewick, 38 years old, who claimed that the child was hers and insisted he had been born yesterday. Chief of Police Thomas Godley who found the baby after a neighbor reported seeing him in the camp, said Mrs. Wolsiewick was "obsessed with a mother fixation." The woman is the mother of 2 year old twins, now with grandparents.

Wolsiewick, a machinist's helper, who claimed he was a medical school graduate, also insisted that the baby was theirs.

The suspect is Jerome Javurek, 43, of 3531 North Normandy avenue, a salesman. He was arrested on information furnished police by Otto F. Meyers, of THE TRIBUNE editorial staff, who noted his license number.

Strikes Side of Train.

Mrs. Anna Green, 60, of South Chicago Heights, was killed when the automobile in which she was riding struck a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at County Line road in the suburb. The driver of the car, who remained unconscious several hours after the crash, was William King, 99 West 158th place, Harvey. Police said the car apparently struck the train several hundred feet behind the locomotive, as the train crew was unaware of the accident.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 760 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 526 were killed in Chicago where 20,930 were injured in the same period.

STATE ACCEPTS NEW SHERIDAN BOYS' SCHOOL

Incorrigibles May Go to Branch in 40 Days.

Members of the legislature commission which built the Sheridan security branch of the Illinois State Training School for Boys turned it over to the department of public welfare yesterday at a meeting in the Sheridan Community house. Sen. Thomas P. Gunning [R., Princeton], reëlected chairman, said he hoped it would be possible to send incorrigible boys from the St. Charles branch to Sheridan within 30 or 40 days.

Altho technically the administration of the new institution is now out of the hands of the commission, by the terms of an agreement proposed by Rodney H. Brandon, director of welfare, the commission will be consulted on every step planned there and the commission, in turn, will consult the department on the forthcoming expansion of Sheridan.

Meeting Reported Friendly.

Gunning and Brandon have had words within the last few weeks over the responsibility for completing Sheridan, but the meeting yesterday was described as the essence of amity.

The building, which will house 60 incorrigibles, is completed and kitchen and laundry facilities have been installed, and, pending the delivery of permanent furnishings, which have been ordered, it was decided to have cots made in one of the prisons to expedite occupancy.

Brandon and Gunning were named as a committee to seek priorities for steel and machinery needed to equip industrial shops at the school, since it was the intention that it be an industrial rather than an agricultural institution.

New Building Planned.

Tentative plans were submitted by the office of C. Herrick Hammond, state architect, for expanding the plant with a new building to house additional boys, a small hospital, additional heating and shop facilities, and more furniture. This will be done with a $250,000 appropriation authorized by the legislature.

Meanwhile Russell W. Ballard of Indiana Harbor, who will become managing officer of both branches of the training school on Nov. 1, returned to his home in Indiana. He said that he intended to make his first visit to St. Charles some time this week.

Ballard has done school work and is director of the Lake county, Indiana department of public welfare. He was appointed to head St. Charles and Sheridan by Gov. Green two weeks ago.

DIES IN BRAWL; POLICE RECOVER $6,000 IN GEMS

A fatal brawl in a cabin at Janesville, Wis., led to the recovery yesterday of $6,000 in jewelry stolen in a Chicago burglary Sept. 11.

The brawl occurred Tuesday night between Edward Murray, a janitor, and Ione Patterson, also known as Ione Carolan and Mrs. Frances Murray. Both were arrested by Janesville police, who found the jewelry in their possession. While being held for Chicago authorities, Murray died of a skull fracture supposedly received in the fight.

Policewoman Lillian Madden of the Woodlawn station, who went to Janesville to investigate the case, said the jewelry was stolen from the home of Mrs. Peter Lordos, 6939 Chappel avenue, where the Patterson woman formerly worked as maid.

LIFE IN AMERICA LIKE DREAM, SAYS EHRLICH'S WIDOW

Tells of Scientist's Work in Germany.

New York, Oct. 25 [Special].—Take it from a little, white haired woman who has come from wartorn Europe: "It's good to be in America!"

Mrs. Paul Ehrlich.

Mrs. Paul Ehrlich, 78 year old widow of the German scientist and Nobel prize winner who discovered salvarsan, specific against syphilis, has been here only a little more than two months. She has been staying in a quiet country retreat 40 miles outside New York and finds it "almost like a dream."

"It really is awful to be in Europe," she explained. "I cannot be thankful enough to be away from war. In Europe you cannot do things any more like you can here. You feel the distress of war much more. People are anxious. Here they live.

Finds People Friendly.

"I am delighted with America. People are so friendly. They have done so much for me." Referring to the two daughters, five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren she soon will visit, Mrs. Ehrlich continued: "Americans are interested in such things. They are much more personal than in Europe—interested more in human feelings."

Mrs. Ehrlich avoided discussion of politics, explaining "there are relatives over there." She preferred to talk about her husband and said that "if he were alive and young he would want to come to America."

Success After 400 Years.

Dr. Ehrlich died in 1915, only four years after his discovery of salvarsan. He had persisted in research work for five years before he met with success, thus ending a 400 year search by scientists for a specific against syphilis.

Early in 1939 Mrs. Ehrlich left Germany and resided in Geneva, Switzerland until departing for this country. She arrived last Aug. 9 on a Portuguese liner from Lisbon. Soon she will visit her daughters, Mrs. Edmond Landreau of Boston and Mrs. Ernst Schwerin of San Francisco.

RELIEF WORKERS URGED TO GIVE TO COMMUNITY FUND

Government aid to public welfare agencies does not eliminate the need for the broad work of privately supported charities and welfare agencies, Russell L. Peters, executive secretary of the Illinois Public Aid commission, asserted yesterday in urging relief workers to make contributions to the 1941 Community fund campaign.

The welfare agencies unit of the campaign already has raised $8,868 of a quota of $25,000, Peters said.

The 1941 goal of $3,583,000 is to be allocated as needed to the city's 185 major private charities and welfare agencies, none of which duplicate government aid, it was emphasized.

Corn Husker Wins Crown in Kane County Third Time

George Schupbach, 25 years old, of Elgin township, is Kane county's first three time winner corn husking champion. Schupbach led a field of 10 contestants yesterday, husking 36.12 bushels of corn in 80 minutes. The contest was waged on the Bruce Bower farm near Kaneville. Schupbach first won the county title in 1938, and repeated in 1939.

OUR LADY OF GRACE CHURCH IS BLESSED WITH UNUSUAL RITES

The official order for the consecration of a Catholic church was used yesterday morning for the first time in nearly a generation in Chicago when Our Lady of Grace church, 2456 North Ridgeway avenue, was set aside perpetually from all profane uses by Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch.

The service, beginning at the outside walls of the empty edifice and proceeding to the consecration of an altar, replete with reverence, pomp, and pageantry, continued from 7:30 to 10:50 o'clock.

Many dignitaries, including Archbishop Alexander Vachon of Ottawa, Canada, traveled far for the rites on the invitation of the pastor, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Victor Primeau.

Beginning at an early hour this morning, masses will be offered for communion by visiting bishops. Archbishop Vachon will celebrate the first pontifical high mass at 11 o'clock with Archbishop Stritch the preacher. Bishop Edward Hoban of Rockford will celebrate the 7 o'clock mass. At 8 o'clock, Bishop Francis P. Keough of Providence, R. I., will be the celebrant. Bishop Francis Magner of Marquette, Mich., will offer the 9 o'clock mass and Bishop William R. Griffin of La Crosse, Wis., will be the 10 o'clock celebrant.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 25.—A courageous band of young men from the University of Michigan today ran afoul of the power house that masquerades as the Minnesota football team, and the result was inevitable. The burly, belligerent Gophers won, 7 to 0, for their eighth straight victory over their long standing rivals from Ann Arbor.

The game, played on a crisp, sunshiny afternoon under conditions in sharp contrast with last year's battle in Minneapolis mud, drew 85,753 spectators, the largest crowd that ever has seen a contest between Western conference teams. The result gave Minnesota the lead in the Big Nine race.

Gophers Boast Smoother Attack.

Michigan, which went into the game with a record of successive victories over Michigan State, Iowa, Pittsburgh, and Northwestern, had the fight, but there comes a time in the life of every football team when sheer fight isn't enough. Minnesota, too, had courage in abundance, and in addition had greater precision in the execution of its plays.

Minnesota made its touchdown in the second quarter, following a forty-three yard forward pass from Bruce Smith, one of the finest of all around backs of the season, to Herman Frickey, a sophomore. That play placed the ball on Michigan's 5 yard line. Smith, attempting to find a hole at Michigan's right tackle, injured his leg on the next down and was removed from the game. Frickey picked up two yards thru his right guard, then hit the same spot for a touchdown. Bill Garnaas, sophomore quarter back, scored the extra point from placement.

Minnesota Wins in Line.

Back field stars glittered for both teams, but this was essentially a battle of two great lines tearing each other to pieces and frequently chopping up running plays in the process. The decision along the scrimmage strip, where Michigan's strength was supposed to lie, was definitely in Minnesota's favor. The Gophers throttled the Wolverines' attack whenever they had to turn on the pressure.

Michigan made 13 first downs to Minnesota's 11, but the boys from Minneapolis acquired more yardage. The total gains from scrimmage and passing were 259 yards for Minnesota and 190 for Michigan.

These figures summarized the cold give and take of the battle, but a technical account of plunges, forward passes, and penalties could not possibly do justice to the brilliant uphill struggle of one of the strongest teams Michigan has turned out in recent years. They cannot describe the hope that leaped wildly in Michigan breasts when their team twice was within a few yards of a touchdown.

It's a Triumph for Smith.

Minnesota's triumph, which lifted the team into the leadership of the Big Nine conference, was a group achievement, but a report of the contest would be incomplete without a bow to 193 pound Bruce Smith. It was Smith who gave his hula hips to Michigan tacklers for sixty-three yards in 17 trips with the ball. It was Smith whose beautifully timed forward pass to Frickey put the Gophers in position for their touchdown. It was Smith's accurately placed punts that kept Michigan back of the 50 yard line most of the first half. When he was forced to leave the game from injury Minnesota's attack lacked its old fire, altho Bud Higgins, and Frickey, an unusually talented pair of sophomores, were

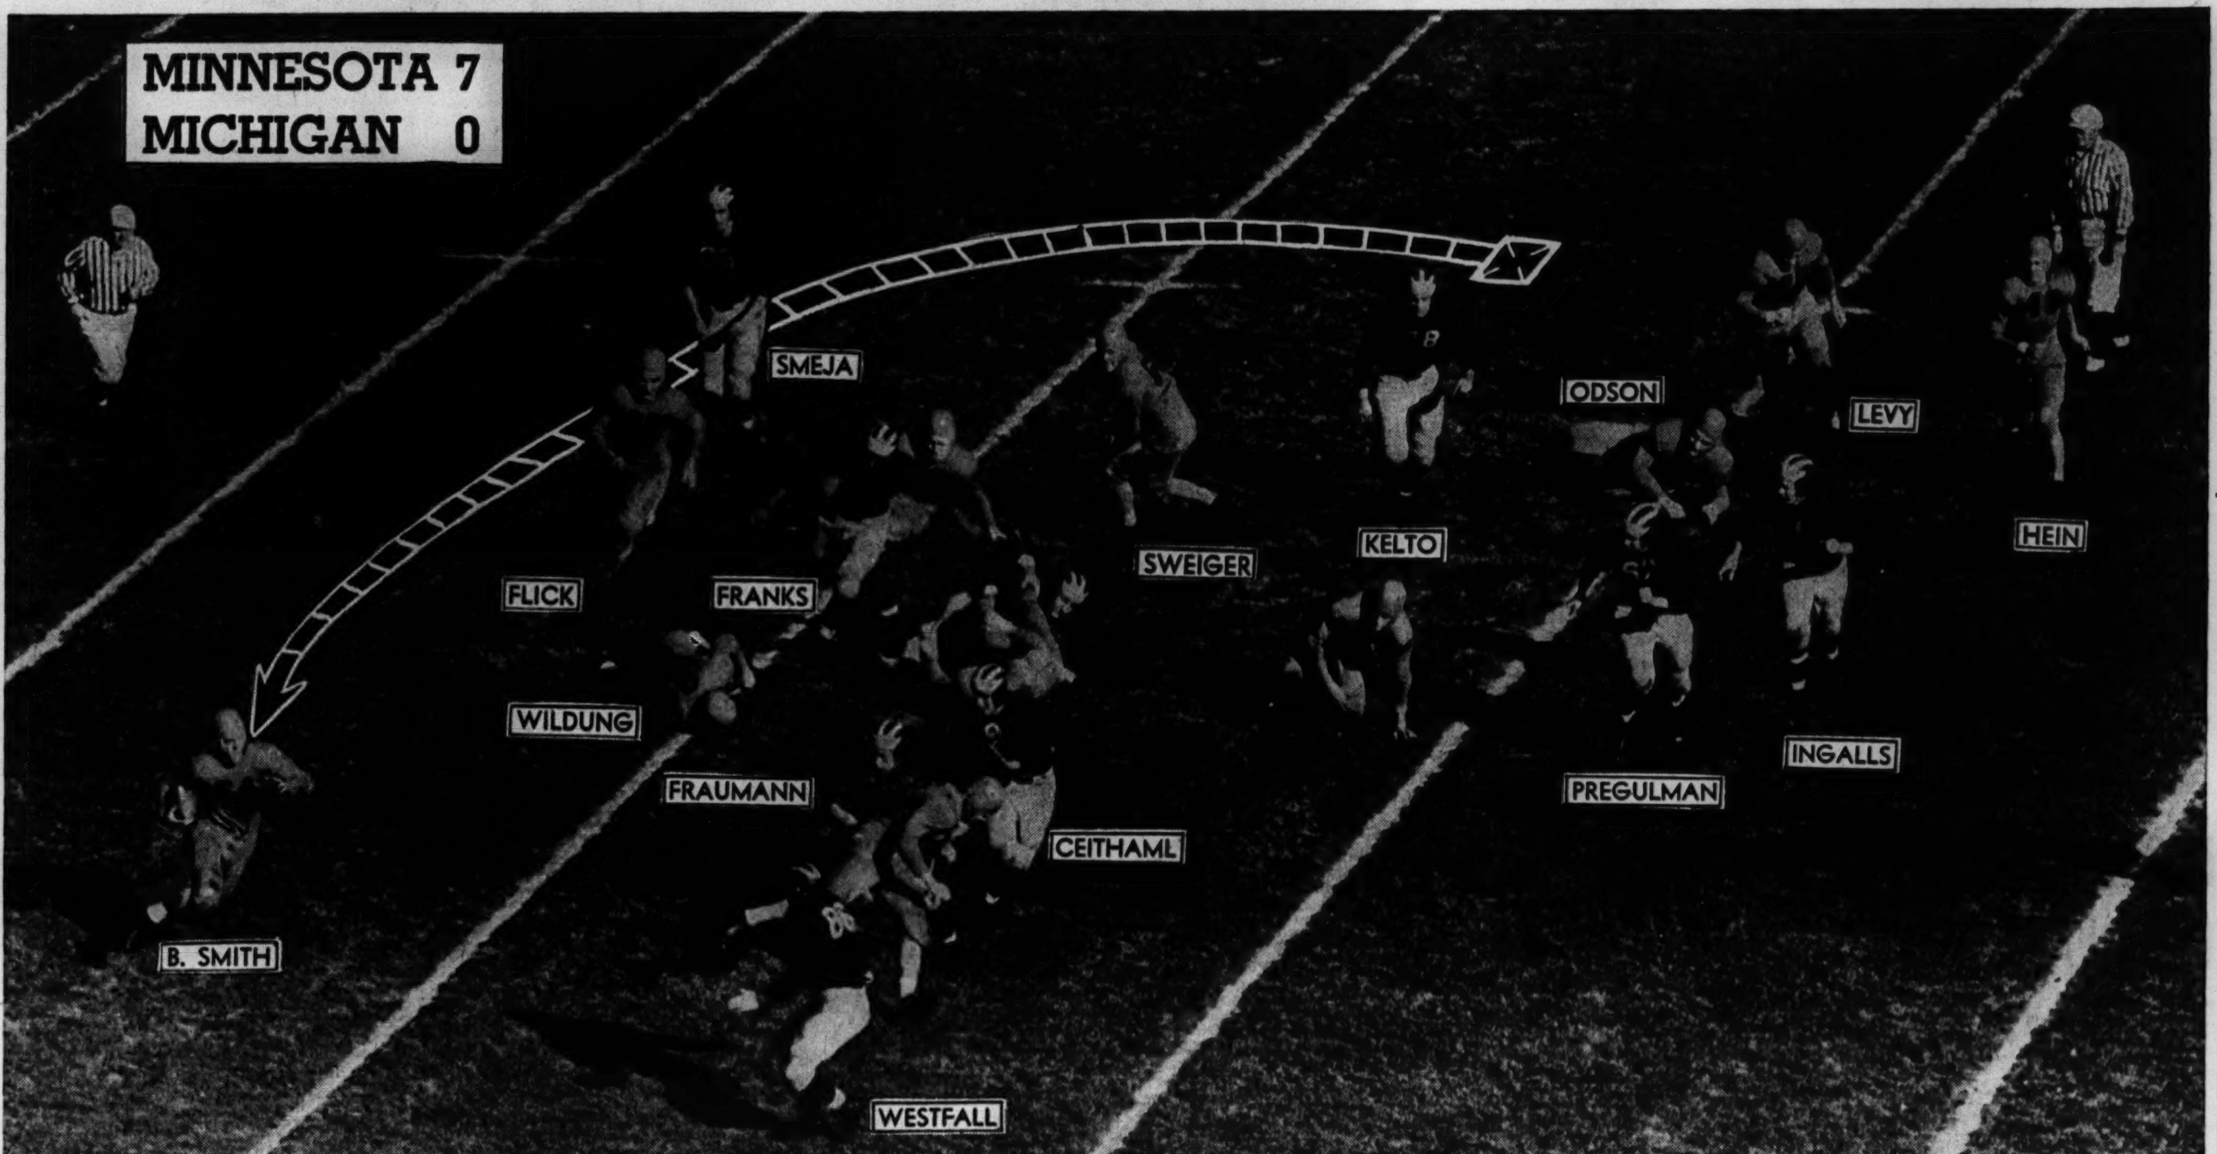
GOPHER SMITH AND WOLVERINE WESTFALL MEET FOR A SHOWDOWN



Bruce Smith, star half back for Minnesota, envisioned a long run when this picture was snapped in the second quarter of yesterday's football game before 85,753 in Ann Arbor, Mich. He had swept wide in attempting to get around Michigan's left wing. But there was that fellow No. 86 of Michigan, who is none other than Bob Westfall, stocky full back. Westfall had moved up from the secondary. He maneuvered Smith into his reach and yielded only a two yard gain to the Gophers. Minnesota, however, soon scored to gain a 7 to 0 victory. DUEL OF SOPHOMORE TITANS GOES TO BADGERS; INDIANA CENTER HURT

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—A shifty, tricky, speedy Billy Hillenbrand, wearing the somber black of Indiana, ran wild and pitched passes all over historic Camp Randall this afternoon, but his heroic feats failed to baffle the revived Wisconsin eleven. The Badgers had their own Pat [Hit 'Em] Harder, as well as some others, and they charged along to victory in a dizzy battle. The difference at the finish, 27 to 25, was in errant kicks after touchdown by Gene White.

The 33,000 homecomers went slightly delirious when the Badgers, picking up where they left off against Iowa, spun Indiana around for 14 points. But the Hoosiers hadn't started. With a fierce second period surge in which Hillenbrand dashed eighty-eight yards they picked up 12 points. In the next quarter another surge sent them ahead, 19 to 14. The Badgers came roaring back to take a 20 to 19 lead before the period closed. Then they came thru with a final period touchdown that nullified a subsequent score by the aerial minded invaders.

Tavener of Indiana Hurt.

Jack Tavener, Indiana's starting center who was injured in the second quarter, is suffering from a fractured facial bone and a possible skull fracture, it was reported tonight. He is under close observation in Wisconsin General hospital, but attending physicians do not believe his condition is serious. Tavener is a sophomore from Granville, O.

The crafty Hillenbrand was a one man show in himself. He heaved a pass from midfield for the Hoosiers' first scoring offensive. A few minutes later he was off on the eighty-eight yard cruise to the second touchdown. He threw a pass that gave the Hoosiers their few moments as leaders in the third quarter. And in four plays starting with a pass from behind his own goal in the fourth period he pitched the Badgers back beyond their own goal line. He originated all of Indiana's passes—17 of them—and six were successful.

Harder Misses Field Goal.

Now for Sophomore Harder, the dynamite in a Badger team so hardy that six of the starters stuck for the whole game. In three successive plays Harder completed Wisconsin's first touchdown drive, a matter of 57 yards. He personally attended to the second touchdown and also kicked his second extra point. He allowed Tom Farris and Dave Schreiner to handle the third touchdown by passing, and had more leisure while Farris was passing to Ted Damos for the clinching touchdown. Harder was involved in 20 scrimmage plays, piling up 125 yards.

Much after the pattern of last week's Iowa battle the Badgers got a

ROGERS SUFFERS SPINE INJURY; OUT FOR SEASON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 25 (AP).—Joe Rogers, Michigan's senior right end, will be out the rest of the season as a result of an injury suffered in the first quarter of the Minnesota-Michigan game today.

Dr. George Hammond, team physician, said Rogers suffered three fractures of the transverse processes on the right side of the lumbar spine.

The news came as a severe blow to Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, as the Michigan team already was weak on capable ends.

Minnesota was also a loser from the standpoint of injuries.

Coach Bernie Bierman said the 7 to 0 margin was all he wanted, but he cast a worried eye over the injured Helge Pukema, right guard, and Capt. Bruce Smith and Herman Frickey, half backs.

Pukema was taken to the hospital with a possible kidney injury, and Smith and Frickey were helped off the field with injured knees. Full Back Bill Daley played 60 minutes with an injured toe, and Tackle Urban Odson battled more than half the game with a brace on one knee.

ILLINI GUARD HURT.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 25 [Special].—Joe Pawlowski of Aurora, Ill., junior right guard of the University of Illinois football team, suffered a neck injury here this afternoon during the team's loss to Notre Dame. Pawlowski was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where his condition tonight was described as "fairly good."

Purdue Beats Iowa in Last Period, 7 to 6

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 25.—Bully for old Purdue!

Seldom has this traditional chant of Purdue football teams struck the autumnal air more happily than this afternoon, as 22,000 homecomers shouted it in accolade to the Boilermakers and their rally for a 7 to 6 victory over Iowa on the sun washed turf of Ross-Ade stadium.

For twenty minutes, from the fifth minute of the third period until the tenth minute of the final quarter, it looked as tho a gloomy homecoming was going to be the order of the day. Five minutes after the start of the third session, Bill Parker, Hawkeye left end, broke thru to block an attempted punt by Bob Chester, Purdue sophomore back. Bill didn't have time to finish the job of recovering it, but he needn't have bothered. A large Negro by the name of James Walker, of whom you may have heard, was on the spot to scoop the ball up and run the remaining twenty yards for an Iowa touchdown. Jim Youel's try for the extra point was wide.

Sadness Turns to Joy.

All in all it was an unhappy setting for a homecoming. The statistics favored Purdue for the first half, but Left Tackle Walker and the Iowa backs, Bill Green, Bus Mertes and Tom Farmer, went to work and pushed the Boilermakers deep into their own territory for the entire third quarter following that touchdown. Those six points grew in value as the clock sped on, but mid-

IRISH RUN UP 28 POINTS IN LAST QUARTER TO ROUT ILLINOIS, 49-14

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 25.—Notre Dame, rather gentle with Illinois in history's four previous football meetings of the teams, poured it on the brave lads from Champaign, 49 to 14, before 45,000 here this afternoon.

The Irish aces, Angelo Bertelli, Steve Juzwik, and Dippy Evans, more than lived up to the billing of their glorifiers, but there were many other sterling performers, both among the ball carriers and throwers and the hard blocking linemen. Illinois, too, had stars in abundance. In fact, the Illini were on the Irish 30 yard line, and trailing only 21 to 14, late in the third quarter.

The Irish Go to Work.

After Don Griffin had scored first, 10 minutes after the opening kickoff, the Irish went to work in earnest and had the score tied on a touchdown by Juzwik 15 seconds before the first period ended.

The Irish made 14 points in the second quarter and in the third quarter the substitutes were given an outing. Illinois scored the only points, 7, in the third period. Then came the final quarter and the Irish 28 point riot accomplished by the first team and a sprinkling of alternates, two of whom, Dick Creevy and Tom Miller, ganged up for a forty-one yard pass and touchdown. One of the outstanding features of all this tabulating was that all points after the nine touchdowns were rung up, eight of them on kicks and another when Evans recovered a blocked try and ran for the point.

Griffin Starts It Off.

The first touchdown began to shape up when Griffin intercepted a pass on the Illini 41 and returned it sixteen yards. A pass, Liz Astroth to Jimmy Smith, was good for twelve yards, and another, Astroth to Griffin, was good for seven, and put the ball on Notre Dame's 23 yard line. A five yard penalty and two scrimmage plays had the ball on the 16 yard line, whence Astroth tossed to Griffin for the touchdown. Jim McCarthy added the point.

Evans' punt out of bounds on Illinois' 6 yard line really opened up things for the Irish tying effort late in the first period. For shortly afterward Jim Smith kicked out of bounds on the Illinois 34 yard line. Evans did some heavy advancing to the 12 yard line, then Juzwik took the ball, ran to his left, saw a lane to the goal line, and made a bee line at right angles to the payoff marker. Juzwik added the point.

Notre Dame went ahead with another Juzwik touchdown and point after four and a half minutes of the second period. Taking the ball well in their own territory, the Irish swept

Santa Clara Beaten, 16-6, by Oklahoma

Norman, Okla., Oct. 25 [Special].—An alert Oklahoma team dropped Santa Clara from the unbeaten ranks here this afternoon by capitalizing on three fumbles to beat the Broncs, 16 to 6, before 21,000.

Oklahoma scored midway thru the first quarter. Ken Casenega fumbled and End Lyle Smith of Oklahoma recovered on the Broncs' 31. Then Jack Jacobs, whose passes found the mark all afternoon, threw a strike to Orv Mathews in the end zone. Jack Kaberlein place-kicked the extra point.

Casenega Hurls One.

A seventeen yard gallop around left end by Frank Peterson gave the Broncs a first down on the Oklahoma 8 early in the second period. Casanega then hurled a touchdown pass to End Al Beals.

Jacobs opened the fourth quarter with a zooming punt that sailed far over Casanega's head, traveling seventy-six yards to the Santa Clara 6. Freitas fumbled on his 15, and Haberlein, the Oklahoma kicking specialist, came in and kicked a fourteen yard field goal.

Another Fatal Fumble.

The third fatal Santa Clara fumble found Oklahoma Full Back Campbell covering the ball on the Bronc 14. An offside gave Oklahoma five yards, and then Jacobs bucked it over in three tries, bulling thru center from the 2 with only 15 seconds left in the game. Haberlein missed the kick. Lineup:

Columbus, O., Oct. 25.—Northwestern's Wildcats, goaded by initial defeat seven days ago, clawed their way back into the Western conference football race this afternoon by soundly trouncing Ohio State, 14 to 7, in Ohio stadium. The defeat was the first for the Buckeyes in this campaign, and a capacity throng of 71,896 saw the downfall of the scarlet and gray. It was the second victory in three conference games for Northwestern.

Ohio State's loyal followers, already surprised at their team's successes, cheered lustily as the Buckeyes fought thru the first half on even terms with the invaders. But Ohio State faced a superior squad, one which used force opportunely to set up forward pass scoring plays.

There is no question of Northwestern's rushing strength as the comparison of 254 yards for the Wildcats to 106 yards for Ohio State indicates. From this springboard Northwestern twice took to the air for touchdowns. In the first quarter, Clarence Hasse grabbed Otto Graham's pass for a touchdown. The Buckeyes matched this in the same quarter. Then, in the early minutes of the third period, Bob Motl caught Graham's other touchdown pass for victory.

Passes Fool Buckeyes.

Northwestern's touchdown passes were elemental throws by Graham, who merely judged distance. Both were caught in the enemy's end zone and the same pair of Buckeye backs failed to break up both forwards. Indeed, in conception, the passes practically duplicated Purdue's pass that led to a touchdown last week over the Ohioans.

Dick Fisher, Ohio State safety man, and Harold Hecklinger, full back, stationed at defensive right half back, let Hasse romp beyond them to catch Graham's first down pass thrown from Ohio's 42 yard line in the first period. In the third quarter, Fisher and Hecklinger again failed to see Motl until too late as the Wildcat left end took Graham's second down pass from Ohio's 18 yard line.

Hecklinger possibly was mentally disturbed. The sophomore full back, normally rated third at his position, had been catapulted into the starting lineup by injuries to Jack Graf and Dick Burgett. On the second play before this, Hecklinger had fumbled while plunging into the line. Motl fell on the ball. The mishap paved the way for the winning score, and it can be no solace to Hecklinger, who had played excellently before this fumble, that Northwestern deserved to score sooner or later anyway.

N. U. Defense Strong.

Graf was missed in the Buckeye back field, not for his smashes into the Wildcat line, but for his smooth ball handling and better deception.

The Buckeyes, except for their touchdown surge in the first period, penetrated Wildcat territory only in the last minute of the first half following interception of Bill De Correvont's pass by Tom Kinkade, who eventually was downed on Northwestern's 38 yard line. Fisher passed to Bob Shaw for a first down on the Wildcat 9, but the sequence of four plays, disrupted by penalty for extra time out and hurried by the lack of time, failed.

Ohio State never reached midfield in the second half, gained only forty-eight yards by rushing, and had only

ARMY MARCHES TO 13-0 VICTORY OVER COLUMBIA

Remains Unbeaten Before Overflow Crowd.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP).—The infantry still is the army's backbone. The United States Military academy's new football deal marched entirely on the ground today to defeat Columbia, 13 to 0, and remain among the nation's unbeaten teams.

Before a sellout crowd of 28,000 fans, Army marched seventy-three yards to a touchdown in the first quarter and counted again on an intercepted pass in the final period.

The cadets, chalking up their fourth straight victory in Red Blaik's first season as coach, didn't gain a yard thru the air. They tried only eight passes, but these were just window dressing.

Lions' Only Threat Halted.

After the way Ralph Hill, Sante Fe [N. M.], sophomore; Hank Mazur and Johnny Hatch gave the Lion tackles and guards a thoro going over, particularly in three first half down field charges, attempts at sailing thru the air really weren't needed.

Army scored in the game's first series of plays. Columbia kicked off and Hank Mazur ran it back to the Army 27. From there it was a parade of Army tanks over the Columbia tackles. Ralph Hill picked up twelve, John Hatch got ten, Hill gained ten more. Hatch added seven. That's how it went all the way down field. Finally Hill bounced over for a touchdown from sixteen yards out. Gene Smith added the point.

Score in Last Two Minutes.

In the fourth quarter, after the one Columbia threat had petered out and the clock showed less than two minutes to go, the Army added its final six points. Columbia had taken a kick on its own 17. Governali was dropped all the way back to the 5 on an attempted pass. He faded back on the next play and pitched again, but Mazur intercepted and ran back twenty-seven yards for a touchdown.

The cadets cracked thru for 13 first downs to seven and gained 211 yards to 105, for Columbia. The way they paraded showed Notre Dame is in for anything but a soft touch next Saturday. Lineups:

HARVARD TIES NAVY, 0-0.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 25 [Special].—Navy's football craft steamed out of Harvard stadium tonight with its flag still nailed to the mast, but with gaping shellholes in its side, following a scoreless tie. Not only did Harvard stop the team which had been called one of the country's leaders, but twice they had threatened to come thru to victory themselves.

For three periods, 40,000 sat in the stadium and waited for the vaunted naval power to roar into explosive action. Then, in that final period, they saw the men from Annapolis turn to the air and still fail as a Harvard defense found the strength and skill left to stand off the final challenge.

True, it took Navy mistakes—fumbles on both occasions—to give the Crimson any real chance to threaten, but on the other hand there was no question that the Crimson had stopped the Navy attack that had moved so impressively until this afternoon.

Only once, late in the first period and early in the second, did the Navy attack roll with any real continuity. Then, with Bill Busik starting it when he raced thirty-two yards from scrimmage in the best run he was to turn in all day, the Midshipmen marched from their own 19 to Harvard's 15, when a forward pass into the end zone failed on last down. For the rest of the game, Navy's two teams seemed constantly on the verge of flashing into control, but they never did.

VANDERBILT RUNS UP 46-7 VICTORY OVER PRINCETON

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 25 [Special].—Princeton's first adventure into the southland ended disastrously today as Vanderbilt's star collection of backs romped up and down on Dudley field to a 46 to 7 victory before an audience of 16,000.

Known to be slow of foot and weak in tackling, the Tigers' deficiencies were made even more glaring by the collection of speedy backs that Vanderbilt fielded against them today.

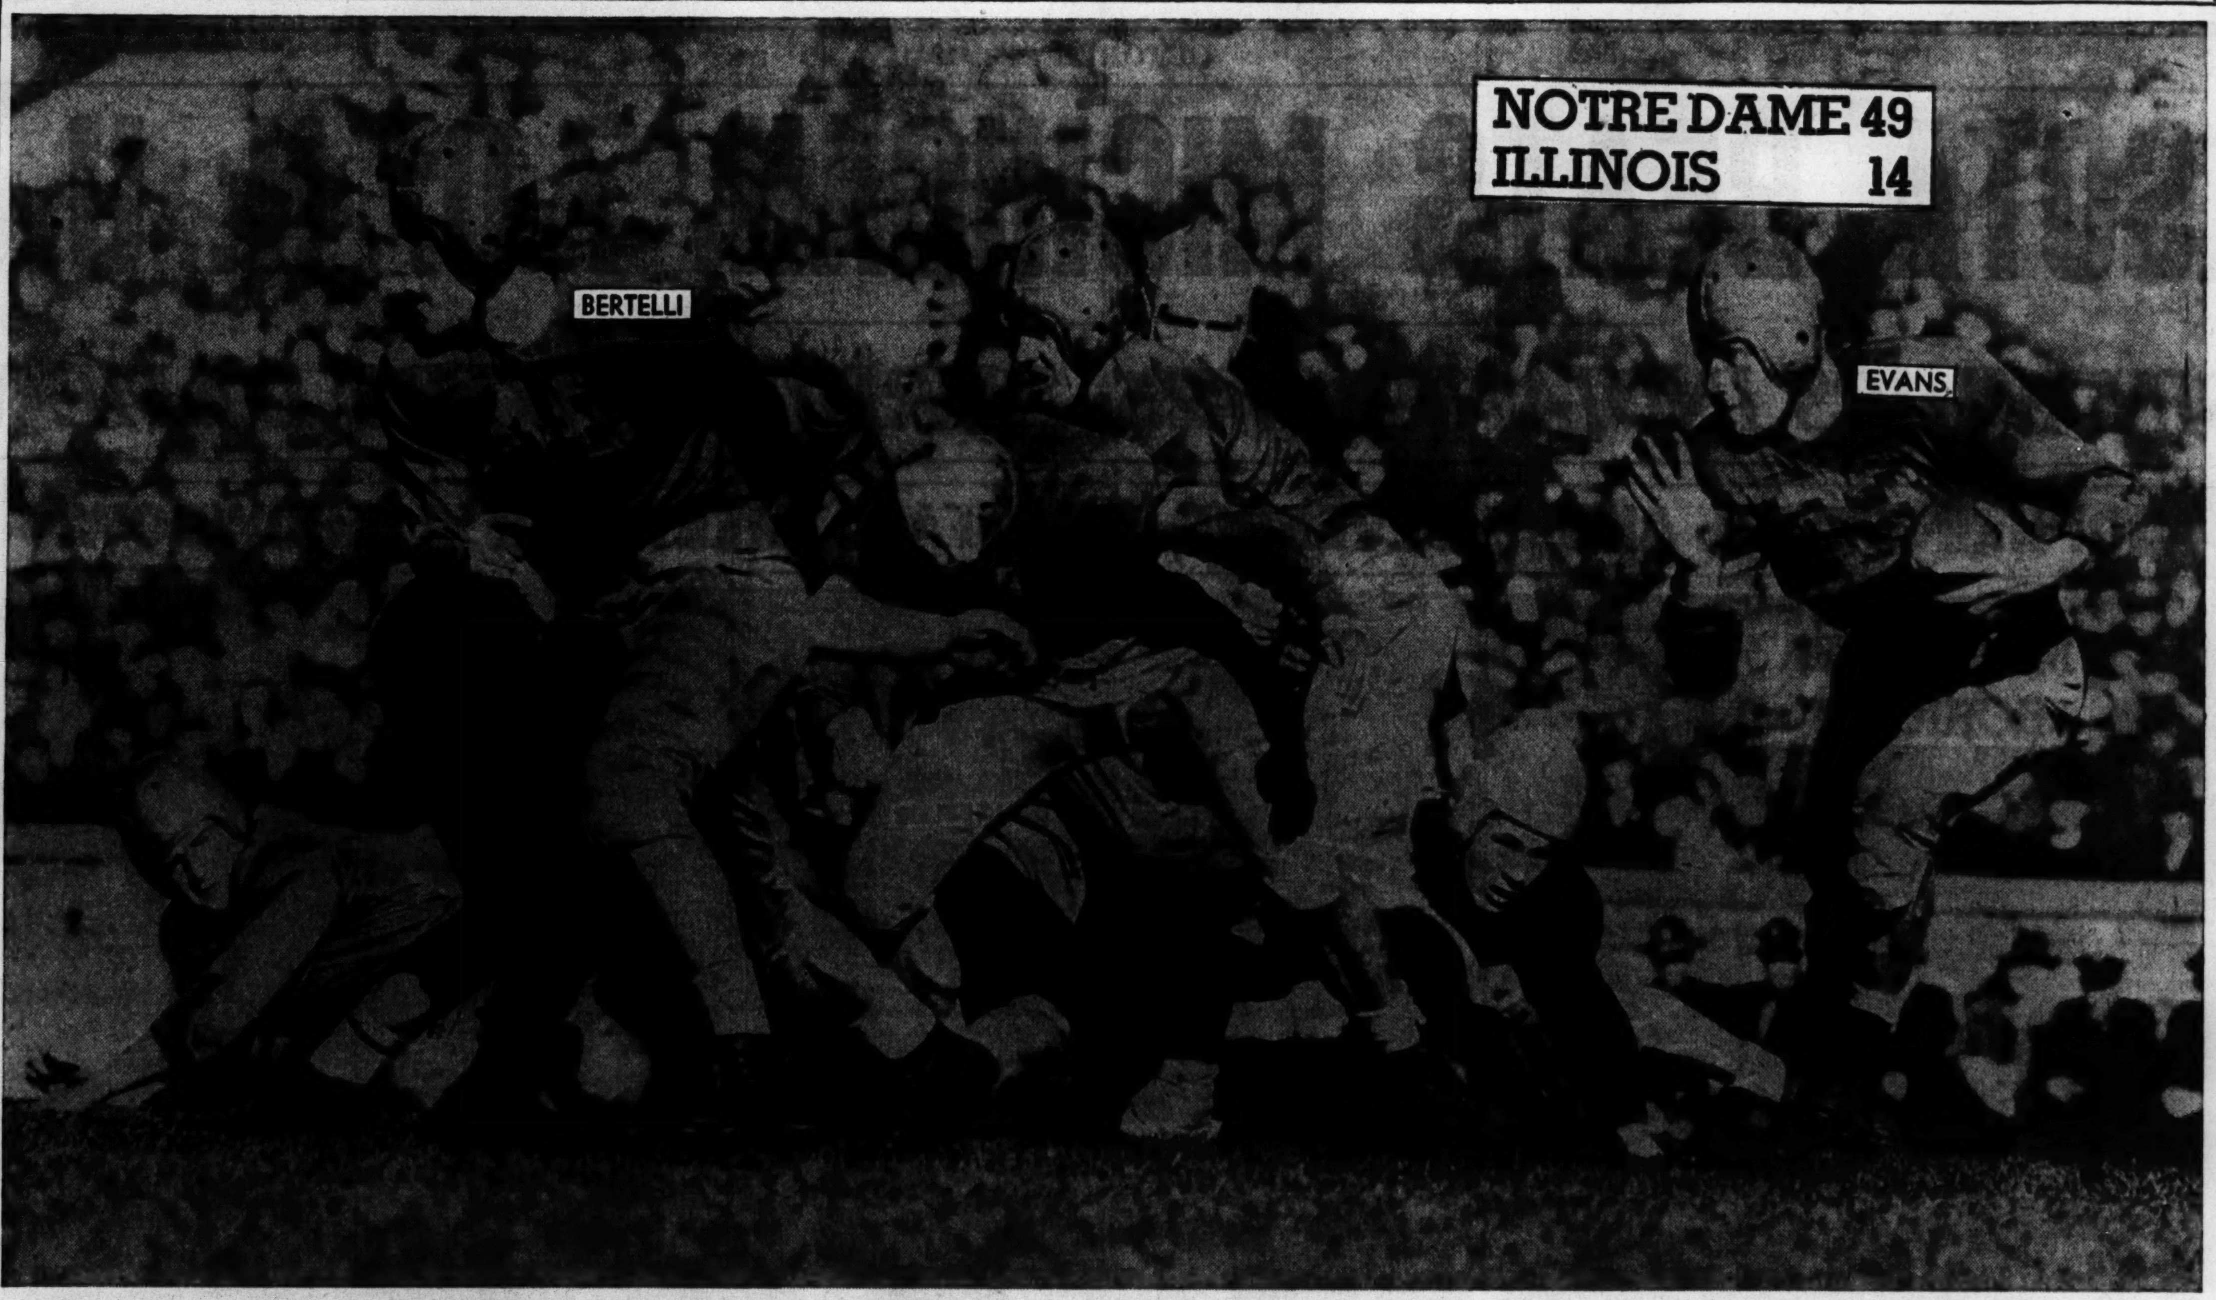
The second time the Commodores got their hands on the ball they raced and tore to a touchdown and from there on there was a constant procession of touchdowns, one in the first period and two in every other.

All that saved the Tigers from a shutout was a third period touchdown drive that went thirty-nine yards against Vanderbilt substitutes when Vanderbilt was leading, 32 to 0.

About the only other thrill the Princeton watchers got was a goal line stand reminiscent of the old days in the second period.

Three deep in back field material, the second and third stringers, seemingly on an equal footing with the regulars, Vanderbilt had a field day, running almost at will around the Princeton flanks and also outsprinting the Tiger defense to snatch passes out of the air and scamper for touchdowns.

A YARD IS HARD TO GET AT THIS STAGE OF IRISH-ILLINI BATTLE



Dippy Evans, Notre Dame full back, gains a hard fought yard in first quarter of game with Illinois yesterday at Notre Dame. Altho Illinois was first to score on a 20 yard pass, Liz Astroth to Don Griffin, the Irish soon turned on the power and rolled to a 21 to 7 lead at the half. Illinois reduced the margin to 21 to 14 in the third quarter, but Notre Dame came on with a last half attack that swamped the Illini and gave the Irish their fifth straight victory. Notre Dame's pass combination, Angelo Bertelli to Steve Juzwik, was an important factor in the triumph. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

LAKE FOREST'S POWER CRUSHES ALBION, 26 TO 7

Foresters Score Twice in Last Quarter.

Albion, Mich., Oct. 25 [Special].—Lake Forest college's eleven, using the "T" formation, overwhelmed Albion, 26 to 7, today. Half Back Floyd Gates paced the visitors with two touchdowns.

Albion's crippled squad held Lake Forest until almost half time, but a fifty-five yard march ended with Gates going over from the 1 yard line. Gates kicked the first of three extra points that he made.

In the third period Gates tossed a twenty-one yard pass to End Bill Bulow for a touchdown, but as the last period started Albion moved within striking distance when a thirty-two yard pass, Ray Wauthier to Bob Lynn, a La Grange, Ill., boy, scored. Paul Schneider place kicked the point.

Lake Forest scored twice in the last five minutes after forty yard marches, Full Back Chuck Becker and Gates plunging over. Lineup:

DARTMOUTH PUTS OVER LATE SCORE TO BEAT YALE, 7-0

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25 (AP).—The big Yale bowl echoed all afternoon to the mournful plea of "Hold 'em, Yale" today, but there is a limit to human endurance, and the stubborn Elis finally wilted enough to allow Dartmouth to punch over a fourth period touchdown for a 7 to 0 victory.

Yale, with the exception of one first quarter burst which carried it to the Dartmouth 20, was strictly a back-to-the-wall team today, winning its cheers from the 40,000 fans not by what it did but because of what it kept its opponent from doing.

Three times the Elis were driven back deep into their own territory by potent drives of the Indians. Three times they were equal to the occasion,

As the fourth quarter opened, Ray Wolfe, rugged Dartmouth back, took the offensive into his own hands. Carrying the ball time after time, once for twenty-two yards, he advanced his team to the Yale 29. Here again it appeared the Elis might summon up enough energy to halt the attack, but Ed Kast slipped around his left end to the 10, and from there on in Wolfe took over again, going over from the 2 yard line on his third drive. Kast place kicked the goal to end the day's scoring.

FORDHAM, 28; T. C. U., 14.

New York, Oct. 28 [Special].—A gathering of 39,500 today saw the Fordham Rams come up with another weird display of football in registering a dazzling 28 to 14 victory over Texas Christian university. It was the fourth straight victory of an unbeaten campaign for the Rams.

Fordham started out as tho the game would be a complete runaway. The Rams scored first when Alex Santilli blocked Frank Kring's attempted punt from his goal line and End Jim Lansing plucked the ball out of the air. George Cheverko then kicked the first of four extra points. Joe Andrejco, Fordham sophomore, accounted for the second tally with a spectacular forty-nine yard run for a touchdown.

Fordham Priest Dies.

Unknown to most of those in the stands there was tragedy in the run. It was so dazzling that the Rev. James Cahill, S. J., regent of the Fordham law school, was stricken with a heart attack and died in the stands.

T. C. U. broke into the scoring column in the third period when Stan Hall intercepted a pass and raced down the sidelines for a touchdown. Phil Roach kicked the extra point and it was 14 to 7. Texas Christian was now ablaze. Emery Nix started to pitch passes and carried his team seventy-seven yards to a touchdown.

Fordham came right back, however. A fifty-nine yard drive ended with Steve Filipowicz going over in a cross buck from the 4 yard line. Desperately, the southwesterners took to the air only to have Charlie Pierce intercept a Nix pass on the 20. Five plays later Fordham got its final tally on a pass from Filipowicz to Lansing.

down the field at a great clip. Bertelli ran for seven and tossed to Bob Dove for nine. Another pass, Bertelli to Matt Bolger, was good for nineteen yards and Juzwik made two yards to the Illini 30 yard line. Then Bertelli passed to Juzwik in the end zone for the touchdown and Steve added the point.

Mr. Bertelli Gets Going.

The third Irish touchdown was by Evans from the 1 foot line. A pass interception by Bob Maddock and some ground yardage by Evans and Juzwik formed the buildup for this one.

Smith plunged over from the 1 foot line for the Illini touchdown in the third period. Interference on a pass was a factor in setting up this one. Bob Wilson kicked the point.

A thirty-nine yard pass, Bertelli to Evans, produced the first of four Irish touchdowns in the final period. The next one was on Bertelli's fifteen yard pass to Bill Earley in the end zone. Wally Ziemba's forty-seven yard runback on a pass interception paved the way for Evans to go over from the 2 yard line. Then came the last-second forty-one yard touchdown pass, Creevy to Miller.

Juzwik's Quite a Catcher.

Notre Dame made 15 first downs to 9 for the Illini. The Irish made 128 yards net from rushing. The Illini, who were minus four yards in the first half, came out with a fine total of sixteen.

Notre Dame completed 13 of 25 passes attempted for a 233 yardage total. Bertelli was credited with 11 out of 21 for a total of 178 yards. Eight different players were on the receiving end of the 13 completed passes. Juzwik took 3 for sixty yards.

always dangerous when they had the ball.

But save some of your breath to cheer another. The game had a co-star on the other side of the line in Tom Kuzma of Michigan, who in his first year of college football gave evidence of winning a place among his alma mater's gridiron immortals. As if to convince the crowd that Smith, while a darling, was by no means a nonpareil, he duplicated nearly all of the Minnesota headliner's achievements.

Westfall, Ceithaml at Best.

Kuzma was given some sparkling coöperation by Capt. Bob Westfall, who was the hardest running back on the field and by George Ceithaml from Chicago's Public High School league whose blocking reminded Michigan adherents of Forest Evashevski.

Minnesota, which took the ball on the 35 yard line after Wistert's opening kick-off went out of bounds, immediately gave indications of its offensive power by putting together three first downs that moved the ball to Michigan's 32. The Wolverines checked the Gophers' running game at this point and Smith punted out of bounds on the 14.

Westfall and Kuzma collaborated in a march that carried almost to midfield. Kuzma put Minnesota deep in its territory for the first time with a punt that sailed out of bounds on Gophers' 8. The rest of the first quarter was largely a punting duel between Kuzma and Smith with honors about even.

Penalty Ends Threat.

Michigan advanced to the Gophers' 33 in the second quarter. Westfall moved it nine yards closer to the Minnesota goal, but the play was called back and a fifteen yard penalty inflicted on Michigan, which ended the scoring threat.

Smith, whose individual brilliance steadily was proving a decisive factor, got away a sixty-nine yard punt that rolled dead on Michigan's 12 late in the second period. After Kuzma fumbled and recovered for a six yard loss he punted from his end zone to Smith, who downed on the Wolverines' 48.

It was at this point that Smith faded deep behind remarkably strong protection on the part of his back field mates, and hurled a forty-three yard pass to Frickey. Three plays later, Frickey crossed the goal.

Fumble Ends Threat.

Bill Daley kicked off for Minnesota with less than two minutes of the second quarter remaining. Westfall ran it back forty-two yards to his 47. Westfall cracked the line for two and Kuzma passed to Paul White, for a thirty-one yard gain. White might have gone the route for a touchdown, if he had not slipped on the 20.

Kuzma's pass to Ceithaml was broken up, but thousands jumped to their feet when Kuzma, faking a reverse to White, lateraled to Westfall. The Michigan captain raced to the 5 yard line before he was brought down. Westfall ran into the whole Minnesota team at center and then disaster overtook the Maize and Blue. Kuzma, trying a reverse, fumbled and the ball was recovered by Minnesota's Bob Sweiger on the 11.

Neither team threatened the other's goal in the third quarter, but early in the final period Minnesota, after Higgins' long pass to Garnaas, tried a field goal from the 20 yard line. Garnaas attempted the kick, which was several yards wide of the right upright.

Again a Fumble.

Michigan's second scoring opportunity was set up when Mervin Pregulman, guard, recovered Higgins' fumble on Minnesota's 30. Kuzma flipped a short pass to Westfall who ran to the 20. Minnesota, as always when its goal was periled, met the situation swiftly and effectively. Kuzma's pass, intended for Thomas, was grounded on the goal line. Kuzma's toss to Ceithaml netted only a yard. Kuzma found Fraumann uncovered on his next pass, but the Michigan end dropped the ball on the 5 yard line. Kuzma's fourth pass was intercepted by Garnaas.

A few seconds before the end of the game Garnaas again saved the Gophers by intercepting a pass on the 10 yard line and running it back to the 30. Statistics:

UNBEATEN PREP TEAMS PLAY FOR CATHOLIC LEAD

Catholic League

GAMES TODAY.
St. George vs. Leo, Shewbridge field.
De La Salle vs. St. Philip, Stagg field.
St. Rita vs. Mount Carmel, St. Rita field.
St. Mel vs. St. Patrick, Key Branch stadium.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

The big, bad Bears?

George McAfee?

Sure, they're the tops in football this season, but there's a south side community which shouts that its team can accomplish a considerable amount of tricks with a football, too. That squad, Leo High school, led by the Catholic league's touchdown specialist, Henry [Babe] Baranowski, will display its artistry again this afternoon against St. George of Evanston before a crowd of 7,000 which will jam into every available inch of space in Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets.

This is the day Leo will know whether or not it will remain as a candidate to represent the league in Mayor Kelly's All-City game against the Public School league winner on Nov. 29. If St. George, undefeated in three games, is successfully passed, Coach A. L. [Whitey] Cronin will rest assured that there are no other important obstacles on the road to the south section championship. The Lions have a reason for the determination to appear in the All-City contest, having failed to score a victory in their four efforts against the Public School league champions since 1934.

Babe Is Some Boy.

Baranowski's accomplishments on the football field and basketball court have placed him as one of the greatest athletes in the history of the school. The pugnosed, stocky ball carrier not only is a talented open field runner, but also a brilliant kicker and passer. Baranowski this season has scored 10 touchdowns, six in league competition, and has kicked 10 extra points. He gave an exhibition of his passing ability last Sunday against St. Rita when he completed seven out of eight tosses.

Baranowski's kicking brought Leo the 1940 Catholic league championship, the Lions defeating De Paul academy, north zone title holder, 7 to 6. After the season, Babe turned in his football suit for a basketball uniform and his amazing shots against Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Ind., and the St. Francis Mission, S. D., Indian quintet gave the Lions the national Catholic championship at Loyola university last spring.

Speedy Evanston Backs.

St. George has a pair of speedy ball carriers who may match Baranowski. They are Don Edwards and Tom Power, sprinters from the Evanston school's track team. Their speed and the deception employed in the T formation adopted by Dr. Eddie Norton, St. George coach, has caused Coach Cronin no end of worry as his squad practiced during the week. Baranowski, a deadly tackler, was forced to miss two drills because of a slight injury he suffered last Wednesday.

The tall, husky linemen also are ready to play their important parts in the game. Two of the outstanding tackles in the league—St. George's Joe Iglori and Leo's Jim Gallagher—will oppose each other. Gallagher, who weighs 215 pounds, is a brother of Tom Gallagher, former Leo and University of Notre Dame tackle.

Fenwick of Oak Park, north section favorite, will seek victory No. 3 against De Paul in Hanson park, Central and Fullerton avenues. Three other games will be played, St. Mel meeting St. Patrick in Key Branch stadium, Roosevelt road and Central avenue; St. Rita facing Mount Carmel in St. Rita field, 63d street and Claremont avenue, and De La Salle opposing St. Philip in Stagg field.

Elmhurst Eleven Takes Homecoming Game, 27-7

Elmhurst celebrated its first homecoming football victory in 13 years yesterday with a 27 to 7 triumph over Concordia of River Forest. Jack Dagley counted twice for the winners with Hubert Thomas and Harry Horst each scoring once.

St. John's Eleven Beats Harrison Tech, 14 to 7

Delafield, Wis., Oct. 25 [Special].—St. John's Military academy defeated Harrison Tech of Chicago today, 14 to 7.

Crane Held to Scoreless Tie; Fenger, Tilden, Phillips Win

Crane Tech's march toward the west section football championship of the Public High School league was temporarily halted yesterday afternoon when it was held to a scoreless tie by Foreman in Hanson park. It was the second tie for the unbeaten West Siders, who now must defeat Kelvyn Park, their last opponent, to reach the semi-final playoffs.

Three other undefeated teams—Fenger, Tilden Tech, and Phillips—continued their winning streaks. Fenger rounted South Shore, 43 to 0, in Pullman Tech field for its sixth straight triumph in the south zone; Tilden won from Farragut, 27 to 13, in Key Branch stdium and Phillips trimuphed over Du Sable, 26 to 6, in Soldiers' field. The Tilden Tech and Phillips successes kept the elevens tied for the central division lead, each with five victories.

Coaches—Tom Stidham [Marquette, O.]. Stephen Sinko [Duquesne].

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 25 [Special].—A crowd of more than 20,000, largest in the history of the Marquette university stadium, was on hand tonight as Marquette's Golden Avalanche squared off against Duquesne university in an intersectional game. Field and weather conditions were ideal. Duquesne came here with a record of nine straight victories, and with only one defeat and one tie to mar a three year record.

Duquesne won, 31 to 14.

FIRST QUARTER.

Marquette received and Renzel punted out on his 44. Duquesne, on two runs by Binotto and Gonda, advanced to the Hilltoppers' 3 yard line, where Marquette held for four downs. McCahill, subbing for Richardson, punted out on his 36. On second down, Chadonic passed to Gonda for a touchdown, the right half taking it on the five and going over. Rokisky kicked the extra point. Score, Duquesne, 7; Marquette, 0.

Again Marquette was forced to punt after taking the kickoff, and Duquesne returned to the Hilltoppers' 35 yard line. Chadonic passed to Rokisky for another touchdown. Rokisky again converted. Score, Duquesne, 14; Marquette, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Marquette failed on this stab, but after Duquesne took over on its 30 yard line, Chadonic fumbled and the Hilltoppers recovered at that spot. Richardson passed to Carlson, who lateraled to MacEau for a first down on the 11 yard line. Richardson made eight yards on two runs, and then passed to Kuffel in the end zone for a touchdown. Dams converted. Score: Duquesne, 14; Marquette, 7.

Duquesne received and returned to its 24 yard line, and Frederick and Donelli collaborated for a first down on the 35 yard line. A penalty gave the Dukes first down on the 50 yard line, but neither team could gain consistently before the half ended. Score: Duquesne, 14; Marquette, 7.

THIRD QUARTER.

Ahwesh returned the kickoff fifteen yards to his 30 and Duquesne began to march. Runs by Ahwesh and Gonda and an offside penalty against Marquette made three successive first downs, the last to Marquette's 19 yard line. On first down, Ahwesh passed to Squires in the end zone for a touchdown. Rokisky converted. Score: Duquesne, 21; Marquette, 7.

Marquette received and a fourth down punt was blocked by Rokisky of Duquesne, who recovered the ball on the Hilltoppers' 36. Gonda made five on two tries, and Ahwesh circled left end for a first down on the 21. Gonda went around right end to the 9. Marquette held for three downs, but on fourth down Rokisky place kicked three points from the 14 yard line. Score: Duquesne, 24; Marquette, 7.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Duquesne punted on the second play of the quarter, and McCahill of Marquette fumbled with Cibulas, reserve tackle, recovering for the Dukes on the Hilltoppers' 40. Ahwesh ran for a first down on the 27 and after his team was penalized back to the 39, tried a pass, was rushed and tore thru a scattered Marquette defense for a touchdown. Rokisky again converted.

Score: Duquesne, 31; Marquette, 7.

With the ball in midfield, McCahill of Marquette passed to O'Hagan for a first down on the Duquesne 12. Two gainless runs and two incompleted passes ended the threat. The Dukes punted and, with Richardson's passes featuring, Marquette picked up four successive first downs to the enemy 17. Richardson ran for another first down on the 7, and on fourth down passed to Harrington in the end zone for a touchdown. Dams converted. Final score: Duquesne, 31; Marquette, 14.

DUSKY DUKE WINS AT SPORTSMAN'S; DOUBLRAB THIRD

De Kalb Fades, Finishes 6th in Autumn Handicap.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Dusky Duke, Doublrab, and Crossbow II. shared the fancy of the crowd which watched the Autumn handicap yesterday at Sportsman's Park. These three split the heaviest betting support-all at 7 to 2. Those who backed Dusky Duke turned out to be the luckiest, for this horse won by a margin of two and a half lengths over a 12 to 1 shot, Mordecai.

Doublrab's followers had to be content with third money, and those who fancied Crossbow II. were completely out of it. This horse, running well below his midsummer form, finished fourth in this six and a half furlong allowance event.

De Kalb Finishes Sixth.

De Kalb, established as one of Sportsman's Park's best five furlong horses, fulfilled expectations by getting out in front early and then tiring to wind up in sixth place. The fans didn't think he'd do much better so they held him at 6 to 1 odds.

Dusky Duke, which had won his only previous start at Sportsman's Park, had Warren Yarberry aboard. He tagged along in fourth place during the early running while Doublrab was forcing De Kalb's pace and Commencement was running third.

As they started down the back stretch for the second time Doublrab challenged De Kalb stoutly and the front runner began to tire. Dusky Duke moved past Commencement in third place and Mordecai began to improve his position gradually.

Dusky Duke Sweeps Past.

Doublrab enjoyed a brief tenure in the lead. Then Dusky Duke swept past him as they headed into the stretch and drew out nicely to win. Mordecai, showing a flash of his best form, came on to take second place with a length and a half to spare over Doublrab. The prices on the winner were $9.60, $5.80, and $3.20.

String Band, racing at odds of 8 to 1, beat a field of eight juvenile rivals in the five furlong Gary purse, secondary event on the program. He came home two lengths in advance of K. Rounder, while Anna-a-vish, the early pace setter, held on long enough to take third place in this five furlong dash. The winner returned $18, $9.80, and $6.60 across the board.

The mutuel handle of $433,893 was the highest of the meeting and one of the largest in the history of the track. For the second consecutive week Steve Brooks won the jockey award. He had eight winners, five seconds, and nine thirds. This brought his total for the meeting to 13 winners, 9 seconds, and 18 thirds. J. P. Keezek won the trainer award with three winners and one third.

Shanks to Face Maxin in First Chicago Bout

Oliver Shanks, native of Calgary, Alta., but now residing in Montreal, Que., will make his first Chicago appearance in a 10 round bout against Joe Maxin, Cleveland light heavyweight, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Shanks, who is 22 years old, was Canada's 175 pound boxing representative in the 1936 Olympic games.

Oliver has a difficult task on his hands in attempting to beat Maxin. Joe has won his last six starts, two of them against heavyweights. These big boys were 203 pound Bill Petersen, whom he defeated on Oct. 6, and Lee Oma, 201½, who fell a victim on Aug. 11.

George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., welterweight, will give Pete Spotti of Pittsburgh his first test in this city in an eight round semi-windup. In a six round event Ted Christie, seasoned New York junior lightweight, who scored a first round knockout over Joe Law last Monday, is paired with Bobby Root, newcomer from Cleveland. Four round encounters will bring together Johnny O'Brien, Calumet City middleweight, and George Feltes, Milwaukee sailor fighter, and Isadore Miner, south side welterweight, and Johnny Abbott, also of Cleveland.

Buddy Knox, Dayton, O., heavyweight, has been matched to meet Jimmy Boyle of Brooklyn in a 10 round headliner in Hammond Civic center Wednesday. Dutch Ulmer, Milwaukee heavyweight, will face Bill Petersen in an eight round secondary feature. A six round preliminary contest involves Anthony Jones, Chanute field middleweight, and George Mitchell, former Detroit sectional Golden Gloves winner. . . . The Illinois Athletic commission has released Gunnar Barlund's $2,955.50 purse, withheld by the board for an unsatisfactory bout with Billy Conn in Chicago Stadium last April 4. The money was impounded after Barlund's manager, Paul Damski, refused to permit his protége to continue in the eighth round against Conn despite the board's opinion that he should. The check was ordered paid the boxer in a decision handed down by Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit court on June 30, but was continued held pending an appeal filed by Attorney General George Barrett with the state Supreme court in Springfield. The court recently dismissed the appeal.

Stanford Tops Huskies, 13-7; Leads on Coast

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 25 (AP).—Frankie Albert led Stanford's Indians to a 13 to 7 victory over the University of Washington Huskies today to put Stanford out front in the Pacific coast conference race.

A sellout crowd of 43,000 saw Albert engineer Stanfords to two second period touchdowns. The Huskies could get but one back in the third period.

Albert, who thought nothing of punching five yards on fourth down in his own territory, set up the first Indian touchdown with a zigzagging forty-seven yard run to the Husky 7. Two plays later Full Back Walt Vucinish sliced thru for the score from the 3. Frankie's try at the point was blocked by Center Walt Harrison.

The winning touchdown came when Guard Chuck Taylor burst thru to recover Half Back Bob Barrett's fumble on the Washington 3 yard line a few minutes later. Half Back Willard Sheller just inched across for the touchdown three plays afterward, and this time Albert's kick was good.

Steele Gets Going.

A great individual display by Washington's slippery Half Back Ernie Steele kept the Huskies in contention in the third period. Two punt returns, one for twenty-five yards and another for thirty-four kept the Cardinals backed up. Finally Steele scooted around end for nineteen yards to the Indian 7, and four plays later again skirted end for the final yard. Sub Elmer Berg's kick for point was good.

Early in the fourth quarter Stanford crossed the Washington goal line twice, once on a dazzling fifty-eight yard punt return by Half Back Pete Kmetovic and again on a pass from Albert to end Fred Meyer for thirty-nine yards. But clipping penalty nullified Kmetovic's run, and an offside offset the Albert-Meyer pass.

But the Huskies couldn't do anything, finally losing the ball on downs on the Indian 35.

CALIFORNIA, 14; U. S. C., 0.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 25 (AP).—California's three times beaten Bears salvaged something from an already badly wrecked football season today with a 14 to 0 upset victory over the University of Southern California Trojans. Underdogs as they lined up before 40,000 fans, the Bears scored in the second and final periods, each time adding the extra tally.

California's first touchdown saw Ray Dunn, right end, intercept a Trojan pass when the visitors were driving goalward. He dodged a couple of tacklers and raced fifty-four yards before being dropped on the Southern California 11. Henry Zacarias, sub left half, plunged over from one foot out.

The second touchdown ended a sixty-five yard power drive.

OREGON STATE BEATEN.

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 25 (AP).—In six minutes of power football the up and down Washington State football team kicked the Rose Bowl hopes from under the Oregon State Beavers today, 7 to 0.

Washington State won the toss and kicked. The Beavers failed to gain and kicked to the W. S. C. 14. In an eighty-six yard drive the Cougars crossed the Oregon State goal line, and that was the ball game.

Pile Driving Bob Kennedy, W. S. C. full back, and Left Half Billy Sewell provided the spark for the long drive with Sewell tearing off runs of twenty-eight and fourteen yards and finally going around right end from the 4 yard mark for the tally.

U. C. L. A., 14; OREGON, 7.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 25 (AP).—Oregon university's Rose Bowl hopes faded today as the under rated University of California at Los Angeles eleven won, 14 to 7.

The twice defeated Uclans came from behind in the third period to score their two touchdowns.

Outplaying the Oregonians from start to finish, the Bruins duplicated a feat performed in 1939 when another Oregon Rose Bowl contender fell before the Uclans, 16 to 6.

Oregon recovered a fumble on its own 31 in the second quarter. Tommy Roblin made four yards and on a reverse from Curt Mecham sped down the side stripe thirty yards before stepping out of bounds on the Bruin 35. Then Mecham cut off to the left, and as Quarter Back Chris Iverson felled two Bruins with a spectacular block, dashed on thirty-five yards to score.

UCLA took the second half kickoff and stunned Oregon with a seventy yard march for a touchdown. Quarter Back Bob Waterfield teamed with Sophomore Burr Baldwin, substitute right end, for one seventeen yard pass and scored on another from the 21 yard line. A moment later the Bruins went into the lead when Ted Forbes took one of Mecham's punts and ran it back sixty-six yards before being hauled down on the 2 yard line. Three plays later Dean Strawn, another sophomore sub, dived over for the winning touchdown.

BOWLERS BREAK ENTRY MARK FOR ALL-STAR PLAY

Chicago Totals Pass 1940 St. Louis Record.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The list of bowlers entered in the All-Star eliminations and national match game championship tournament, booked at the Coliseum Dec. 7 thru 14, has grown well beyond the total of stars who took part in the 1940 eliminations in St. Louis. The St. Louis event produced Lowell Jackson of St. Louis as challenger for the match game individual title held by Ned Day, clearing the way for the match which will wind up with 40 games in the approaching show in the Coliseum.

Jerry Peck.

The All-Star tournament, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, has been so arranged as to make conditions equal for all participants and to give the bowling fan the tournament he's always wanted to see—the same type of show in bowling that the College All-Star game is in football and the Golden Gloves in amateur boxing.

Three of the prominent names among the most recent entrants in the show are those of Eddie Botten of Union City, N. J., Marty Cassio of Rahway, N. J., and Chicago's Jerry Peck.

Peck Average Above 200.

Peck, manager of the Windy City alleys—home of the nationally known Windy City Major league—has maintained an average of 200 or more for years in league play. At present he is carrying a 210.11 average in the Windy City league and 202.6 in the Randolph major. He has bowled two 300 games and has averaged 191.3 in 21 successive years of competition in the ABC.

Botten has competed in three previous eliminations for the challenge title and in each case has turned in a creditable performance. Probably his outstanding achievement was that in last fall's trials in St. Louis. There he reached the third of the four blocks bowled, being among the last 12 in the field of 40. In the 1934 eliminations he was eighth in the field of 20, averaging 196.20 for the 27 game assignment. In 1937 he was tenth in a field of 17, getting 4,674 for 24 games. He has averaged 199.11 in the last nine years in the ABC.

Cassio has made his reputation largely in the ABC, having dropped 14,613 pins in the last eight tournaments for a 202.95 average. Last spring he got 1,842 and the previous year, at Detroit, 1,943, good for sixth place in the all-events.

Frank Mataya Enters.

Other new entrants include Frank Mataya, a teammate of Nelson Burton with the St. Louis Budweisers. Mataya also bowled creditably in last fall's eliminations. Philadelphia has a contestant with the entry of Edgar Winchester. Others who have filed entries are Charles James Butera of Ardmore, Pa.; Richard Davidson of Middletown, O., and Robert Wild of San Francisco, Cal.

Entries for the tournament must be filed with Eddie Linsz, secretary of the bowling Proprietors' Association of America at 1901 East 13th street, Cleveland. The closing date is Nov. 7.

Nebraska Is Toppled, 6-0, by Missouri

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 25 (AP).—Nebraska battered hard at Missouri's forward wall today but saw its Big Six football reign crumble when the Tigers rushed over a touchdown in the last quarter for a 6 to 0 triumph. More than 29,000 cheered as these two power teams kept each other at bay for three periods by vicious line work.

It was the third time in nearly 50 years that the Cornhuskers failed to score against Missouri. The defeat also snapped a Nebraska winning streak of nine conference games which stretched back two years to another Missouri victory.

Reece Goes Over.

Sophomore Maurice [Red] Wade, Missouri substitute quarter back, intercepted a pass from Dale Bradley to start a sixty-four yard march to the touchdown threshold. Full Back Don Reece crashed over center for the score after a minute of the final period. End Bert Ekern's placement for the extra point was wide.

Nebraska seized the missed point as incentive for a hopeful aerial attack which nearly panned out a touchdown before the game ended.

Set back with a fifteen yard penalty after receiving a Missouri punt, Bradley started passing, connected first with Substitute Kenneth Simmons for twenty yards, again for ten. Another pair of passes cut thru the defense for twenty-five more, but the Huskers wound up their drive on the Tigers' 20. Lineups:

Bob Chester of Vincennes, Ind., sophomore half back for Purdue, is shown at the abrupt end of a six yard gain after cutting inside left tackle during the second period against Iowa yesterday in Lafayette, Ind. This was one of the minor thrills for Boilermakers' homecoming. The big one came when John Petty kicked the extra point after a fourth quarter touchdown which gave Purdue a 7 to 6 victory.

They Spill 'Em Aplenty in A. of C. League.

Scores in the recently organized Chicago Association of Commerce league compare well with those of older leagues. The reason? The circuit has the bowlers, of course. High man is Ray Hultquist of the Illinois Bell Telephone team, long one of the city's stars, who has hit 266, 245, 223—734. His average is 201. . . . Round No. 1 ends tomorrow night in the North End Traveling league, with the Gold Crown Beers holding a three game edge over the Chapin & Gores. In the individual standings Roy Thompsen is high with 209. Tomorrow's schedule:

Pepsi-Colas at Samuelson's Arcade, 7 p. m.; Stack & Ryan vs. Gold Crowns at Willow, 7 p. m.; De Luxe Recreation vs. Keeley Beers at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Budweisers vs. Schamberger Schlitz at North Town, 7 p. m. Chapin & Gore vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Cristo, 7:30.

The W. C. Danne Insurance team upset the Eden insurance five by winning three games in the Beverly Major. Joe Stoffle of the Dannes got a 630 series. Strachan Coals held their two game lead by winning a full set from the Wesley Smith Candies. Mike Kruzich and Harry Heermans of the Strachans rolled 662 and 634, respectively. B. & F. Men's shop came out of its slump with a three game triumph over Superior Motors. Ed Carlson of the Pepsi-Colas got a 657 series.

The Joseph L. Gills' lead was cut to one game in the Stevenson Major when they lost the opener to Pure Milk association and the Walter C. Edens swept a series with American Transportation. Paul Krumske of the De Young Fuels and Glen Gersch of the Edens tied for high series, 671. . . . The Windy City Major league will honor Joseph L. Gill, sponsor of the defending champions in that circuit, tomorrow night as part of a program to set aside one night for each sponsor. Gill has teams in four men's major and in women's leagues as well as in several less known circuits. Tomorrow's schedule in the league:

Joseph L. Gills vs. Old Style Lagers; Mineralites vs. John Tomans; Betinis Boosters vs. Bireley's Beverages; Sunnyfords vs. Nonebetter Ice Creams; Budweisers vs. American Transportations; Furman Funerals vs. Reichman Jewelers; Ace Fasteners vs. O'Keefe Coals; Vogel Bros. vs. Burlington Zephyrs.

Landlords Make Winning Effort in "400" League.

Jackson Beverages piled in a 1,068 opening game to lay the foundation for a 3,007 series, high in Pioneer Arcade Major. They won two from Johnson's Tap. Goldammer Kids, Apollo Social Club, and Schlitzes each won two. George Palubiak's 677, including a 275 game, was high solo. . . . Westbrook's Auditors hit the jackpot for a three game victory to go into the lead with the Minutemen—who dropped two to the Stewards—in the "400" league. The league's big match, however, involved the 15th place Landlords and seventh place Challengers, the Landlords winning the rolloff of a 1,005 tie, then hitting 1,022 to take the second game. They dropped the third. . . . Ambrosia, which has won four of its last six Sunday games, will test the leading Schlitzes in tonight's Classic league matches at Steinbrecher's, 2622 West Cermak road. Other matches:

Pabst Blue Ribbon vs. National Bowling Equipment; Koenig Brau vs. Blatz Beer; Washington Shirts vs. Monarch Beers.

Schneider Funerals, Wittenmeier Machinery, and Palm Grove Inn swept their series, while Holly Red Hots, Phil Smidts, Shedd Ice Creams, Bill Crowleys, and Strachan Coals each won two in the Ted Lyons Major. High solo scores:

Mike Kruzich, 683; Pete Roberts, 657; Bill Johnson, 248, 650; John Helterbrand, 631; Tony Unhoch, 246, 630; Tony Derrico, 257, 630.

Meister Braus Have Big Night; Hit 1,101.

Ed Schlichting crashed thru with 244 and 275 games and a 692 total to lead the Alley Recreations to a two game victory over the Zuelows in the Playdium Major. Alleys' 2,980 was high team series. Laner Ebonites and Playdium swept their series, while William Jewelers and 7th Street Hotel each won two games. . . . Meister Brau, Edelweiss, and Goranson's 20 Alleys did most of the shooting in the Greater Chicago Traveling league, each scoring triples. Meister Brau and Edelweiss pulled into a second place tie, a game behind the leading Playdium, which dropped two to the Glunz Liquors. Meister Brau's 1,101 game was high, while Lou Vicini of Edelweiss fired high solo total, 673.

The Wallace Coals clipped the Fritzi Scheffs in three games to climb within three games of the Scheffs' top spot in the Samuelson Major. Universal Musics won two from Budweiser and the Michelobs won a set from the Goldammer Kids. . . . Arthur Royds of Merchandise National bank, set a high for the rest of the league to shoot at when he rolled a 681 series in the Merchandise Mart Major Thursday. Elmer Martin's 257 game and 693 series was high in the league's 7 p. m. division and Lee Schwarz's 513 in the women's division. . . . Lincolnshire Country club's two bowling leagues have 170 members, a new high, many of them hopeful of one day qualifying for the All-Star tournament.

LANDIS APPROVES SERIES SPLITUPS BY REDS, INDIANS

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday announced approval of the splitups by the Cincinnati Reds, third place team in the National league, and the Cleveland Indians, which finished in a fourth-place tie with Detroit in the American league, of their world series shares.

ON WISCONSIN! BEATS INDIANA IN 27-25 THRILLER

break in the first few minutes of play. The difference was that Harder's toe failed in a bid for a field goal. Shortly after the kickoff Mark Hoskins punted, but the ball slipped thru the hands of Hillenbrand and Dick Loepfe snared it for the Badgers on the Hoosiers' 8 yard line. Harder plunged for three yards, Hoskins lost a yard, and when Harder attempted a reverse he was stopped with a short gain. So he dropped back to the 12 yard line, from where his kick missed the target.

After Harder's kick had failed Indiana tried a couple of running plays from its 20 yard line before Hillenbrand punted to Leonard Seelinger, who skipped up to Wisconsin's 43 yard line. The Badgers opened up immediately. Seelinger let go with the first pass of the game and Gene Lyons snared it for a first down on the Hoosiers' 44. Seelinger threw another, this one to Schreiner for a thirteen yard advance. Harder went into action with a charge over his right end, shook off Lou Sabin, and finally was downed by Bob White on the seven yard mark. Harder brought the touchdown closer by ripping into center for six yards and then completed the assault by plunging over the goal. He added to the Hoosiers' discomfiture by kicking the extra point.

Hillenbrand Starts Clicking.

On the first play in the second quarter Earl Doloway punted out of bounds on the Badgers' 34 yard line. Bob Baumann punted back and Hillenbrand made a spectacular run back, carrying the ball forty-eight yards to Wisconsin's 32. But the play was recalled and Indiana penalized fifteen yards because of clipping by Charles Jacoby. Doloway punted, Seelinger returning the ball to the enemy 40 yard line.

Seelinger followed with four yards off right tackle and then Harder resumed his charge. He broke thru the line and was headed for a touchdown until Doloway got him on the 14 yard line. Then Farris fumbled, but recovered and turned it into an 8 yard gain. Harder shot thru center to the 4 yard line. He tried to repeat but Al Bragalone and Charles Steele collared him. Undaunted by this setback, Harder made another attempt, going over head first and then kicking the point to give the Badgers their 14 to 0 margin.

Indiana Scores—Twice!

There was less than three minutes of the second quarter remaining when a Badger punt rolled dead on Indiana's 35 yard line. R. White squirmed thru right tackle and settled himself in midfield. A long pitch by Hillenbrand slipped thru the hands of Ken Smith. Hillenbrand passed again, and Jacoby grabbed it out of the air. There was nobody even close to interfere with his eighteen yard prance across the Wisconsin goal. G. White's kick for the extra point was low.

The clock on the wall showed 59 seconds of the period remained when Baumann launched a high punt which came down into the arms of Hillenbrand on his 12 yard line. Helpers assembled quickly as the Indiana sophomore swung leisurely to his left. Once the screen was formed and under way he followed until the path was clear and then raced unmolested to a touchdown. Hillenbrand elected to pass for the extra point but Jacoby missed, leaving the Badgers ahead, 14 to 12.

Lead Goes Back and Forth.

The Hoosiers went to work early in the third quarter. They ran and smashed from their own 44, where they received a Badger punt, to the latter's 18 yard line. Two running plays set them back four yards after which Hillenbrand passed to Ken Smith in the end zone. G. White booted the extra point and the Hoosiers were out in front, 19 to 14. A minute later, Farris heaved a long pass to Schreiner, who skipped away from Hillenbrand in a sixteen yard run to the Indiana goal. Harder's kick missed, but Badgers were leading 20 to 19.

The Badgers beat down a shower of Hoosier passes toward the end of the third period and took up the final quarter in possession of the ball on their 37. Frank Riewer carried a lateral up to Indiana's 49 and then heaved a pass to Hoskins for a first down on the 35. Hoskins was jarred in the play and was withdrawn in favor of Ted Damos. The latter promptly picked up two yards at tackle and then caught a pass from Farris, running 24 yards for a touchdown.

Indiana's fourth touchdown was a lightning like stroke. Poised in his own end zone as if to punt, Hillenbrand sent a long pass to Jacoby, who ran to his 44 yard line. Hillenbrand passed to Saban on the Badgers' 30. Failing in an attempted run, Hillenbrand dropped back to pass. Two Badgers had him pocketed but he twisted free and finally heaved to Saban, who with one step, was across the Wisconsin goal. Statistics:

Purdue's 4th Quarter Rally Gains Victory Over Iowa, 7-6

way thru the final quarter the Boilermakers decided not to disappoint the home folks and blasted over fifty-one yards in a touchdown drive. It culminated with John Andretich, sophomore from Chicago's Mount Carmel High school, going over for the score. John Petty, for whom Andretich is an understudy at full back, then entered the game to make the placement that brought victory.

Chester was a leading factor in this parade, skipping thru the Hawkeyes for ten yards after he couldn't locate a pass receiver and then, after having been spilled for a seven yard loss, pitching a pass to Right End Bill Combs that brought the ball to the 5 yard line. Francis Meakim, a high school colleague of Andretich, joined with John in the drive with one end sweep of fourteen yards. And the Iowans will long remember Bob Johnson, Gary sophomore, who played his fourth consecutive 60 minute game as Purdue's center.

They Yield No Passes.

The statistics tell the story of the game. The Boilermakers made 15 first downs against the Hawkeyes' 3 and outgained them in rushing with a total of 208 yards against ninety-two. Interesting also is that Purdue retained its No. 1 rating on pass defense as compiled in a weekly national survey. Iowa tried six thrusts thru the air and none was completed.

The first half was waged almost entirely between the 15 yard stripes, the contest soon resolving itself into a punting duel between Sophomore Hajzyk and Chester of Purdue and Farmer of Iowa. Hajzyk got away the best kick of the afternoon, a fifty-eight yard punt that took Safety Man Farmer by surprise, sailing over his head before he could scramble back and retrieve it.

The Boilermakers, who dominated the yardage gained department for the first two quarters, made the best move of the half in the second period, driving to the Hawkeye 25 yard line before Carter fumbled. Right Tackle Otto recovered for Iowa on the latter's 23 yard stripe.

First Attack Repulsed.

Purdue got under way in the final minute of the first quarter, when Chester got away a neat punt that went out of bounds on the Iowa 11 yard line. Farmer's return punt was downed on the Hawkeye 45 yard mark. Carter and Andretich combined on two thrusts at the line, but the Boilermakers surrendered fifteen yards on a holding penalty. They bounced back from this interruption by dispatching Left End Jim Rush for nine yards on an end-around play, and Andretich added seven yards inside his own left end. Hajzyk, seeking a pass receiver, was spilled for a five yard loss and finally punted out of bounds on the Iowa 27 yard line.

Iowa couldn't produce any yardage and Farmer kicked to Chester, but it suddenly became Purdue's ball on the Iowa 37 yard line, where officials charged the Hawkeyes with clipping while the kick was in the air. They promptly awarded Purdue possession at the point of the foul. Chester smashed the defensive right tackle for nine yards, added four more at his own right end, and then Carter's fumble occurred.

The remainder of the half saw Purdue dominating what offensive exercises were in evidence for a six to two margin in first downs at the intermission, but the Iowa punting and the line play of Walker, Dickerhoof, and Otto continued to frustrate any appreciable progress by the Boilermaker backs.

Blocked Punt; a Touchdown.

Petty touched off the third quarter by kicking off to Green, who returned to his own 36 yard mark. The Iowans failed to gain, and Farmer kicked out of bounds on the Purdue 14 yard stripe. Petty lost two on a reverse, but on the next down he almost produced a first down on a spinner. Hajzyk then slipped thru to the Boilermaker 24 yard mark. Petty went inside his own right tackle for four yards and Meakim contributed three on a cutback over center. Petty just missed making it a first down and Chester went back to punt. Here Parker broke thru to block the kick, and Walker's touchdown dash followed.

From there until the end of the quarter the activity was all Iowa with Mertes and Green doing most of the ball carrying and Farmer's fine punting keeping the Boilermakers sealed up in their own territory for the remainder of the period.

The Purdue homecomers were given an inkling of what their Boilermakers can do at the outset of the fourth quarter when Combs got two yards on an end-around and Andretich toted the ball to the 50 yard line on a fourteen yard sweep around Iowa's left end. Three more plays produced seven yards and Chester then kicked over the goal line. Ultimately, Farmer punted to Chester and returned to the Purdue 49 yard line. The Purdue touchdown drive was on.

Here's the Winning March.

Andretich made five at his right end, and after Chester had picked up one, Meakim broke away around his left end for fourteen yards and a first down on the Iowa 31 yard mark. Meakim picked up a yard at left tackle and then Chester, attempting to pass, elected to run and slipped thru the onrushing Hawkeye defense to the Iowa 20 yard line.

Chester then got a yard inside his own right end, but was dropped for a seven yard loss by Al Couppee while attempting to pass. He then stepped back and connected on his next pitch, Combs fielding it and going to the 5 yard line. Andretich made a yard at his right tackle and then Carter slashed at the other side for three. Andretich then crashed between his own left tackle and left guard for the touchdown and Petty replaced the Chicagoan in order to make the successful conversion.

VITT, BASSLER, INDIAN 'BUDDIES' ARE REUNITED

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 25 (AP).—Oscar Vitt and Johnny Bassler, who almost won the Cleveland Indians an American league pennant in 1940, are going to team up and try to bring Hollywood a Pacific Coast league flag next season.

Business Manager Oscar Reichow of the Stars announced Vitt's signing as manager today. Previously club officials had declined any comment on reports that he was to succeed Bill Sweeney, who piloted the Stars into fourth place this year.

Details of Vitt's contract were not announced. Sweeney, on a $10,000 year-to-year contract, won't be off the pay roll until Jan. 1.

Bassler came here in June as coach. The stars went into a prolonged winning streak. Critics gave Bassler a lot of credit for the improvement. Vitt managed the Portland Beavers the past season. They got nowhere and he resigned recently.

Brown Beats Lafayette on Two Long Runs, 13-0

Easton, Pa., Oct. 25 (AP).—Bob Margarita made two long touchdown runs today to lead Brown to a 13 to 0 victory over Lafayette. A homecoming day crowd of 8,000 including Gov. Arthur H. James and his wife saw Margarita run back the second half kickoff ninety yards for a score and in the last period return a Lafayette punt fifty-eight yards for Brown's last touchdown.

ILLINOIS DUCK FEE PRIVILEGES VARY IN SCOPE

Daily Hunters Get Variety in Price, Acreage.

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois river marshes in which hunters may obtain duck hunting privileges for a daily fee range in size from less than 100 acres to more than 700 acres, according to the survey which this department has just concluded.

This 1941 survey of "where to go" shows that Illinois, like many states, has an established system to make it possible for sportsmen not owning private shooting grounds or having any connection with a duck hunting club to hunt for a fairly moderate fee.

Summary of Places.

Here is a brief summary of our completed survey of duck shooting places, open to hunters on a daily fee basis.

La Salle, Ill.—A new place on Duck lake containing several hundred acres of lakes, slough, marsh, and river frontage. Rates are $7.50 to $10 per day per shooter, without board and lodging. Blinds will accommodate up to three persons. All blinds are not used at same time.

Hennepin, Ill.—An old established place with 10 blinds is located not far from Hennepin. The rate is $15 per person per day or $21 for two men in a blind. This fee includes a guide. Board and lodging extra.

Henry, Ill.—Two blinds available near this town. Rate is $10 per day for one man in a blind or $14 per day for two men. The owner of the marsh "calls" and picks up for hunters. Accommodations can be had in Henry.

Lacon, Ill.—An old established day hunting spot just a couple of miles from this town. Has excellent food supply for puddler ducks. [We have shot this marsh.] When conditions are right it has good shooting. Rate here is $15 per day for two men in a blind. Accommodations in Lacon.

Some on Lower River.

In the lower river are day shooting places ranging in size from 240 acres to 720 acres. The list includes:

Beardstown, Ill.—A big hunting area here with 720 acres, made up of marsh, lake, and slough. About 3½ miles from town. Rates are $7.50 per day per hunter. Two men to a blind. Boats, guides, and decoys furnished. Accommodations may be obtained in town. Another day shooting spot near Beardstown contains 120 acres, and a third contains enough acreage for eight blinds. Rates from $7.50 per day to $10 per day.

Frederick, Ill.—There's a 236 acre day shooting spot near Frederick. Blinds are on Treadway lake. Rate is $10 per day with a pusher or guide.

The wild goose hunting clubs near Miller City, Ill., are about the same as last year. Daily fee of $10 for hunting privileges remains the same.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Bears Touchdowns, Inc., doubtless will declare another scoring dividend in Wrigley field this afternoon in full view of 30,000 who will come prepared to see the Pittsburgh Steelers slaughtered on the football market.

This is not a new experience for the Steelers, who have lost each of their five starts and thereby are not expected to provide too much opposition while the champions go after their fifth straight in National league competition.

The Bears have made something of a laughable prophet out of their boss, George Halas, who has been viewing with alarm since they began preparing for their game with the All-Stars last August. They have answered his gloomy pessimism with a barrage of points, which in four league games have mounted to 175. All but 25 of them have been made in the last three games, for an average of 50, while the three opponents have picked up 28.

And the Referee Has a Whistle.

All right, then, what more can you say? Nothing, except the game will be played with four regulation quarters of 15 minutes each, and that the Bears, as usual, will be seated along the third base sidelines.

The Steelers need make no apologies in advance for the bumps they will receive, yet they have the added disadvantage of being weighted down with injuries. Their ace passer, Coley McDonough, is definitely out. Johnny Schiechl, brilliant center from Santa Clara, also will be sidelined with a knee injury.

Aldo [Buff] Donelli, new coach of the Steelers, is not as sorely pressed as were the Lions last week when they turned their clubhouse boy into a full back. But the Pittsburgh coach will turn to his brother, Allan, to take up some of the slack in the forward passing department. The Steelers have another good passer in Bobby Brumbaugh. Don Looney, end from Texas Christian, is one of the best pass catchers in the league.

Mr. Jones Comes to Chicago.

Pittsburgh has a good personnel and one of its newcomers is a fellow named Art Jones from Richmond [Va.] college. Jones was an unheralded member of this year's College All-Star squad.

There is no reason to believe the Green Bay Packers will have too much trouble today, either. They meet the Lions in Detroit—the same Lions who were routed last week by the Bears, 49 to 0.

Victories today for the Bears and Packers will put a championship touch to their meeting next Sunday in Wrigley field.

Cards Play in Philadelphia.

The Chicago Cardinals hope to further their comeback drive today in Philadelphia against the Eagles. Their traditional red jerseys have given way to blue as an aid in helping Ray Mallouf distinguish pass receivers. The recruit from Southern Methodist is color blind, and made the discovery last week that he can spot his own men if they wear blue shirts. He completed 8 out of 11 passes and had a big part in the 20 to 6 triumph over the Dodgers.

Soccer Teams Play All-Star Games Today

BY OFFSIDE.

Leading players of the International Soccer league, forming four all-star teams, will perform this afternoon in the Mayor Kelly cup semi-finals in Winnemac Park stadium, Foster avenue and Leavvitt street. No league games will be played today, what with key performers from nearly every team in the circuit being recruited for the cup games, first of which starts at 12:30 o'clock.

Joe Silovsky.

In previous years, the Kelly cup games have involved teams of different nationalities. This season, however, the league decided to select all-star squads from four sections of the city. Among these are such well known performers as Joe Silovsky of the Spartas, Billy Fraser of the South Side Swedes, Pete Matevich of the Slovaks, and Johnny Kilgour of the Swedes. The all-star rosters follow:

South vs. East.

SOUTH—Silovsky, Hamous, Werier, Padalik, and Happy, Spartas; Fousek and Zubkow, Eagles; Daniels, Tomecek, Matevich, and Bohn, Slovaks; Grunner and Linderman, Hakoahs; and Cipra, Olympias.

EAST—James and Pearlman, Linneas; Marchiori, Sam Redas; Woodward, Freaser, and Riley, South Side Swedes; Bulza and Abrudan, Carnegie-Illinois; Brant, Freund, Klaber, and Kuhn, Centers; Hallquist, Linneas.

Referee—G. Paulson. Time of game—12:30.

North vs. West.

NORTH—Camplin, Kuehl, Jensen, Dallquist, and Faltum, Vikings; O'Boyle, McCallum, Kilgour, and Flodin, Swedish-Americans; Wunderlich, Jordon, and Braber, Schwabens; Danci and Benesch, Workers.

WEST—Liebich, W. Jotzat, N. Jotzat, Schieber, Eckhart, and Mertnert, Kickers; Weber and Birth, Hansas; Zudlow and Dexded, Wislas; Roberts and Rice, Oak Park; List, German-Americans.

Northwestern Deals Ohio 1st Setback, 14-7

three first downs. While Northwestern's defense and the tactics that kept the Buckeyes penned in their own territory deserve applause, the Wildcats are vulnerable to the criticism that they were profligate with scoring opportunities.

Northwestern seriously threatened twice before scoring, lost a second quarter touchdown when the receiver of a pass interfered with a defender in Ohio State's end zone, and was stopped three times in the fourth period inside Ohio's 12 yard line.

Ohio State's defensive tactics, which frequently shifted apparently for the sole purpose of confusing the offensive on its line assignments, contributed to hold down Northwestern's scoring. Ohio State used a six, seven, and finally, during a successful fourth period goal line defense, a nine man line.

Against this shifting defense, Northwestern took Leon Schoenbaum's kickoff and drove from its 28 yard line to within inches of the Buckeye goal before losing possession on downs. Four first downs were marked up by the first five plays, but this display of power that shattered the Scarlet line ended when Charley Anderson, Ohio State's defending right end, sliced in to grab George Benson on fourth down for no gain.

Fisher Intercepts Pass.

After the kickout from the end zone by Fisher, four consecutive plays moved the Wildcats from Ohio State's 36 to the 13 yard line. Here Graham's first down pass from a sweep to his right was intercepted by Fisher in the end zone for a touchback, and the Buckeyes had possession on their 20 yard line.

The Wildcats rang the bell on their third attack. Hecklinger had punted on fourth down out of bounds on Northwestern's 45. Despite a five yard penalty for taking more time than alloted for putting the ball in play, Graham passed to Motl for fourteen yards and Benson roared thru the line for a first down on Ohio's 42.

On the next play Graham threw to Hasse, who had gone straight down field to the end zone outdistancing Fisher and Hecklinger. Dick Erdlitz' place kick for the point was good.

Buckeyes Tie It Up.

Ohio State received the kickoff, Hecklinger returning sixteen yards to his own 36, and went on to tie up the game. Kindade ran for twelve yards and Fisher, after he had hit left tackle for eight yards, passed to Shaw for thirty yards with Graham downing the receiver on Northwestern's 14 yard line. Northwestern and then Ohio State was off side before Paul Sarringhaus sprinted around Northwestern's left end for nine yards. On his second plunge Sarringhaus drove for a first down on the Wildcat 3 yard line.

Hecklinger smashed defensive right guard for two yards and after Kinkade had been stopped without gain, Hecklinger crashed over Northwestern's right tackle for the score, with the benefit of a fake sweep at right end by Fisher. Schoenbaum's place kick tied the score.

Northwestern won the game the second time it had possession of the ball in the third quarter. After Motl had recovered Hecklinger's fumble on the Buckeye 17 yard line, Graham attempted to circle Ohio's left end on a fake reverse. He was thrown for a yard loss. On the next play Graham went back and to his right to fire the ball to Motl who had run straight into the end zone past Fisher and Hecklinger. Erdlitz again place kicked the point.

Graham Almost Scores.

De Correvont led Northwestern's most serious charge in the last period with runs of nineteen and twenty yards. The latter made a first down on the Buckeyes' 3 yard line. Graham failed to gain, but Ed Hirsch, sophomore full back, plunged for two yards. Graham then went wide around the Buckeye right end and wound up in the end zone, but the officials ruled his left elbow had struck the ground six inches in front of the final line. On fourth down Graham was thrown for a three yard loss by Lin Houston rushing thru from the Buckeyes' nine man line. Statistics:

The Story of the Big, Bad Bears

Red Grange Furnishes Magnetism; Pro Football Starts Its Modern Era of Prosperity

[This is the sixth of a series on the Chicago Bears' rocky road to the professional football heights, from the early 1920s to the present.]

BY EDWARD PRELL.

AND along came Red Grange. Professional football, without the famous redhead, eventually would have reached its present peak of popularity, but old No. 77 from Illinois gave the game just what it needed—a national spark. The most famous player of his day, Grange brought his magnetism to the play-for-pay variety of the sport.

Red Grange was news and when he joined the Chicago Bears two days after finishing his fabulous collegiate career blazing headlines told the story. No longer any need for George Halas to make the rounds of the newspapers with his publicity crumbs. Paragraphs now became columns.

There was criticism that Grange was not allowed to finish his college course. But the redhead assumed full responsibility for withdrawing from school and embarking on the cold cash trail. "I made my own decision to turn pro," he said. He did this over advice of George Huff and Bob Zuppke of Illinois, and his own father.

C. C. [Cash and Carry] Pyle, Champaign theater owner, was Grange's manager. They came to Chicago after the 1925 college season ended. Pyle signed a contract with Halas and Ed [Dutch] Sternaman after Grange had made a written arrangement with Pyle. Manager and star were to divide their profits equally. They were to get 20 per cent of the gross gate receipts at all Bear games after the park rental was taken out.

A Football Argosy; It's a Trans-Continental Tour.

The celebrated redhead joined the Bears the Monday before Thanksgiving. He practiced three days and on the following afternoon made his professional debut when the Bears played the Cardinals. The park was filled to capacity and thousands were turned away. There were no long spectacular runs by Grange that day. The game ended in a scoreless tie. His best run was a twenty yard return of a punt kicked by Paddy Driscoll.

Then the Bears set out on a football argosy never equaled. They played in eight eastern cities. The Polo grounds was jammed for their metropolitan appearance. The Grange-Pyle duo's share was $27,000. St. Louis, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Pittsburgh, Dayton, and Detroit were other stops.

They came back to Chicago, played to another big crowd against the Giants, then set out for new pastures. Three games were played in Florida. Coral Gables promoters built a stadium for the big event and charged the highest top in the history of football—$19.80, including tax. The game drew 25,000. Other stops were Tampa and Jacksonville, then the junket moved to New Orleans and thence to the west coast.

Seventy thousand packed the Coliseum in Los Angeles and Grange and his manager found themselves with $35,000 more in fresh money. There was a big turnout in San Francisco's Kezar stadium. When football time was over, the money continued rolling in. A testimonal for a candy bar was worth $10,000. But there were expenses, too, like $25,000 in a year's time sending out autographed photographs to Red's admirers all over the country.

Pyle was a shrewd operator and he had ambitious plans for 1926. He wanted a franchise in the National league. Failing in this, he and Grange organized a rival circuit, the American, and leased Yankee stadium. This venture was a failure and cost the partners an estimated $150,000. The next year Grange was back with the Bears, an association he severed only a year ago.

In pro football, Grange never matched the spectacular running of his college days. Oddly enough, in later years he perhaps was more effective as a defensive half back—particularly as one of football's greatest against forward passes.

Red's Parting Salute Is 63 Yards Against the Giants.

He played his last game early in 1935 in Los Angeles against the Giants. One of the New York linemen said, "Look out, there goes the old man." The redhead ran 63 yards before he was pulled down from behind. From then on he was a member of the coaching staff.

Later, when their partnership was dissolved, Pyle declared his and Red's net profits, estimated as high as 1 million dollars, in reality had been only a fourth of that. But they had a lot of fun, and covered a lot of miles, including the famous bunion derby promoted by Pyle. Red went along to keep him company—and whet up interest in this strange cross country athletic caravan. Pyle died in 1939.

Today the Bears have a new "Grange" in George McAfee, the golden boy from Duke and fans are trying to compare the two.

The other day Halas and his old teacher, Zuppke, were talking.

"How can we possibly compare George and Red?" asked Halas.

"Just say he's another Grange at his best," was Zup's way of solving it.

Grange Turns Prophet; George McAfee Proves It.

A year ago, when McAfee was a Bear rookie, Grange saw in him the greatness which has developed this season.

"McAfee is one of the finest backs I have ever seen," were Red's prophetic words. "He's got everything and I don't see how he can miss being a sensation. He runs with such ease and with such high knee action that he gives no indication of his tremendous speed, unless you note the manner in which he separates himself from players who try to catch him. It is positively distressing to see defensive backs try to keep up with him when he goes out for a pass. In addition, he's a terrific blocker and tackler, and how he can punt and pass! You just can't build a defense for a boy like that!"

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

$6,070,000 ROAD PLAN APPROVED, BUT CAN IT HELP?

Route Passes Up Heart of Congested Area.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Illinois highway department last week approved Cook county highway department plans to spend $6,070,000 for a southern extension of Stony Island avenue and for a connection with a Tri-State highway at the Indiana line.

Illinois and Indiana have related projects that boost estimated expenditures to $10,330,000, all on the fringe and not thru the heart of the congestion problem south and east of Jackson park to Gary.

The county proposes to build two 24 foot slabs, with a 30 foot center parkway, from Dolton avenue in Calumet City south 4.3 miles, thence east thru Lansing a bit south of Bernice street for 2.75 miles to the Indiana line.

Two 36 Foot State Slabs.

Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the Illinois highway department, said that the state is preparing plans for two 36 foot slabs with a center parkway for Stony Island avenue from its present terminus at 130th street to Dolton avenue, where the county will pick up the job. The cost is estimated at $2,000,000.

Harger said that the state's section will be built in 1942 and '43. The county's section probably will be post-war construction. The authorization from the state was necessary for acquisition of right of way.

Start a Survey Soon.

Robert Kingery, director of the Chicago Regional Planning association, said that the Indiana highway department plans to begin construction this year on a $2,250,000 section of the Tri-State highway east from the state line, where the Cook county project ends. It will cross the Little Calumet river and reach Indianapolis boulevard in Hammond immediately north of 177th street.

Kingery said a survey was to be started for a location to continue the project east to Gary's Broadway as the next section for construction. Ultimately, it is to be continued as a superhighway to La Porte, Ind., with a leg to South Bend and another to Detroit.

In the section of Stony Island avenue south from Dolton avenue, there are to be grade separations at 167th street, 159th street, Greenwood avenue, 154th street, Michigan City road, Sibley boulevard, and at Dolton avenue. On the county's east and west job, there are to be grade separations at Wentworth avenue, Burnham avenue, and Torrence avenue.

In Indiana, grade separations are planned for Hohman street, Calumet avenue, and Indianapolis boulevard.

Slight Relief Expected.

Grade separations also are planned for railroad intersections, four to be built by the Illinois highway department, two by the Cook county highway department, and two by the Indiana highway department.

With this $10,330,000 worth of construction, by Illinois, Indiana and Cook county, little relief is seen for the congestion in travel between Chicago and Gary. The mileage would be excessive for commuters, and also for the traffic between Chicago and western Michigan. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, has called a meeting for Tuesday in Hammond to discuss a proposed direct route on the lake shore, 22 miles estimated to cost $3,000,000 a mile from Jackson park to east of Gary.

With its southern extension, Stony Island would attract more traffic from southern Cook county and some from the south end of Hammond. This would aggravate the present congestion in Stony Island south from 67th street and on the meandering trails of Jackson park.

Expect Record Travel Year to Continue During Winter

BY HAL FOUST.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, yesterday predicted that, with no change in the international situation, vacation tours this winter will continue the summer precedent of record crowds enjoying holidays on the highways. Measured by gasoline consumption, traffic this summer was 16 per cent higher than in 1940.

A detailed analysis, as obtained from statistics at national parks, shows that Illinois motorists rank high among the widely traveled gasoline burners.

2,904 Cars in Yosemite.

At Yosemite National park in California 2,904 Illinois cars, the most from any state outside California, entered during the 1941 travel season as attendance records showed a 17 per cent increase over 1940. Automobiles brought in more than 96 per cent of all visitors there, and in each car there was an average of 3.26 persons.

Illinois motorists also ranked first among visitors from foreign states at Sequoia National park, California. More than 1,200 cars, in which there were 3,946 persons, registered. Illinois guests were third at Mount Rainier National park, Washington, with 4,161 by government count. California was first and Oregon second. They were likewise in third place at Mesa Verde National park in Colorado with 1,810 visitors. Home state Colorado was first and California was second.

Aside from Californians, more Illinois persons visited Grand Canyon than any other state. In the 8,594 Illinois cars recorded there this year there were 27,365 sightseers. Illinoisans were third at Yellowstone as more than 41,000 in 12,763 cars watched geysers and bears. Only California and Montana cars outnumbered them there. At Glacier National park in Montana they were in fourth position with 842 cars and 2,638 guests.

To the south, in the Great Smoky mountains, Illinois license plates were outnumbered only by those from North Carolina and Tennessee, the two states in which the mountains are located.

Great Smokies Are No. 1.

The gain in visitors at national points of interest thruout the nation amounted to 26 per cent over 1940, and constituted the eighth consecutive year which has ended in increased attendance.

Included in the total were approximately 150,000 men in uniform who were admitted free.

The Great Smoky mountains led the field in attendance with 1,247,019. Shenandoah, last year's leader, was second with 1,054,479 and Rocky Mountain was third with 685,393. These three have been highest for the last four years.

Only two parks, Mount Rainier in Washington and Kings Canyon, finished the year with decreases.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

THANKS TO SAFETY LANE.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The other day I took my car to the test lane for its semi-annual inspection and was rejected because of wheel alignment.

I immediately took my car into a garage where the defect was corrected and was told that was the reason my tires showed excessive wear.

When I took my car back to the lane I received my safety sticker, and it is a source of satisfaction to me to know that my car is in perfect shape. Had I not taken my car to the lane for inspection I might have had considerable trouble and expense with my car.

All motorists should avail themselves of this opportunity to get their cars in perfect shape and maybe Chicago's dismal fatality record can be reduced.

AMOS COHEN.

THE MENTALLY INEPT.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The National Safety council convention brought out that some of the motorists may be mentally inept. It certainly seems that something should be done about the person who believes his car gives him a large amount of power. I should like to see some of this imaginary power removed from the "Invincible Behind the Wheel."

BOB OLSEN.

BATTERED SAFETY ISLAND.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—On July 22, at night in the rain, we ran into a safety island at Lincoln avenue and Sacramento avenue. It had only one reflector and no light. A witness in the neighborhood told us it had been hit a few days before and it had not been repaired.

I went back to see the witness a few days later and was told that the island was hit again the night after our accident.

Now I get a bill for the entire damage to the island. I again went back to this witness who lives near the island. He told me he knew of eight cars that had hit the island. I would like to contact some of the other seven drivers to check up on the carelessness of leaving this island in a dangerous condition for two months.

L. A. McQueen, vice president of the General Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., reports that the company's Dual 8, a four ply tire, based on 1942 sales to date, is accounting for a larger percentage of the company's sales than ever before. He said that surveys made by the tire industry show the four ply tire to be the most popular of all tires for passenger cars. He said the Dual 8 was so named because it has a bursting resistance eight times greater than normal air pressure.

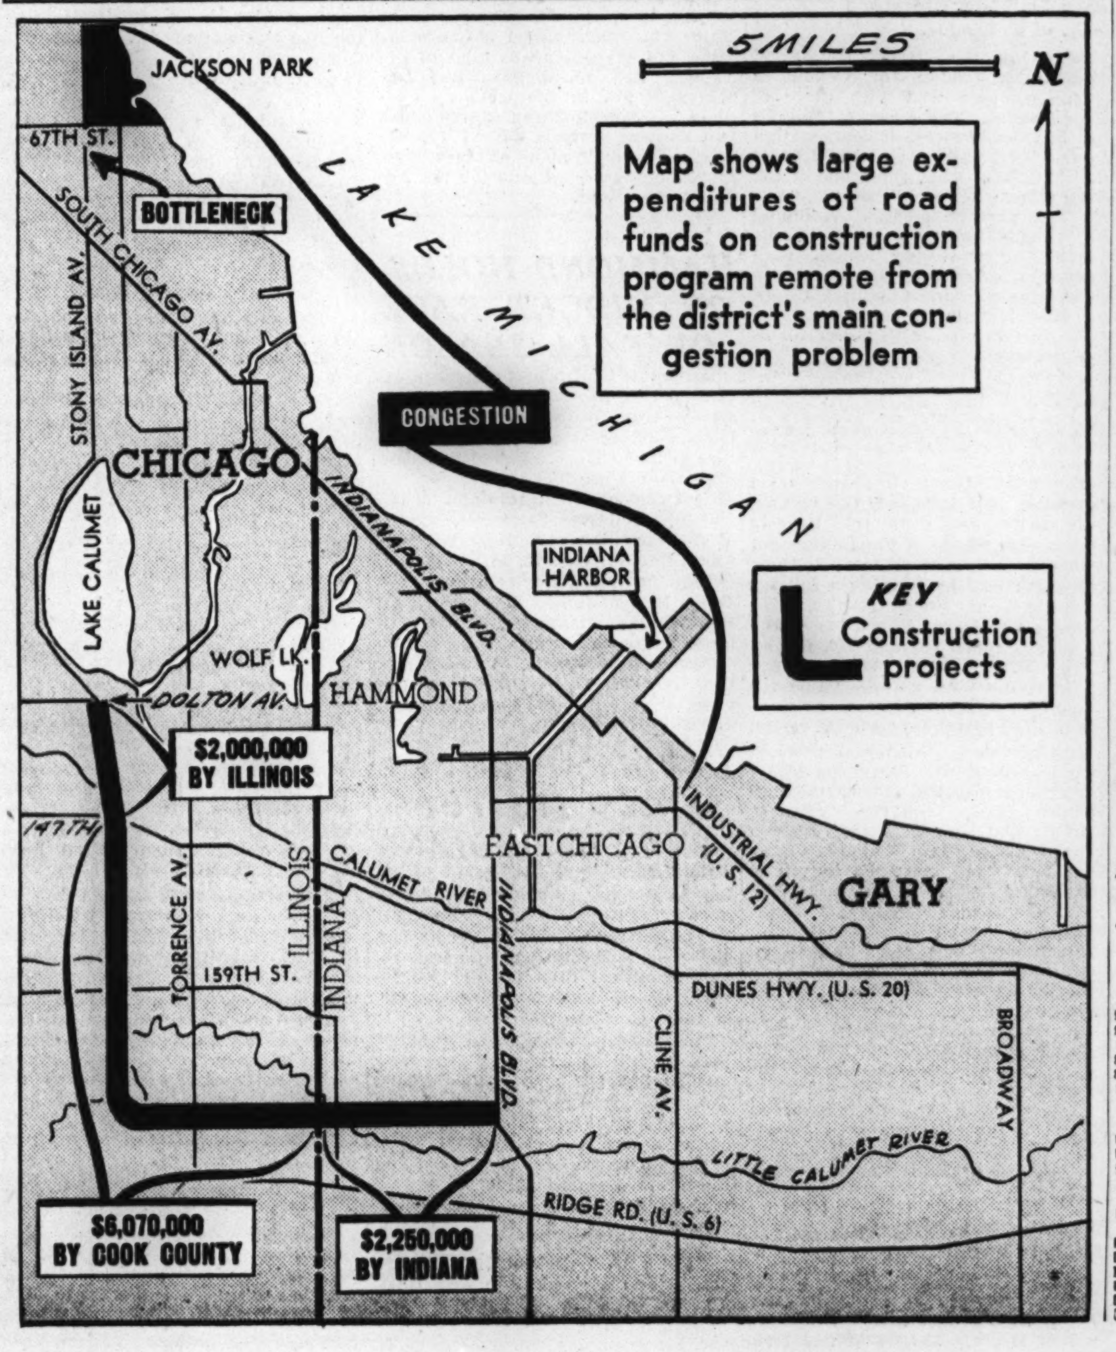
George H. Pratt, general sales manager of the Hudson Motor Car company, comments that he found on a recent nation-wide tour that the curtailment of new car production has served to stimulate the development of customer-service facilities and that dealers generally are expanding and streamlining their service facilities.

$10,330,000 Road Projects Miss Their Objective



GRAIN MARKETS ARE SWAYED BY POLITICAL NEWS

Climb to Two Week Peak, Then Recede.

Grain prices moved lower yesterday. Wheat closed down 1¼ to 1⅜ cents a bushel, with grain for delivery in December quoted at $1.15½. Corn was off ⅝ to ¾ cent; oats unchanged to ⅜ cent lower; rye down 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents, and soy beans 4⅞ to 5 cents. Trading volume was small in the shortened session.

Marketing of new crop soy beans increased as frosts made it possible for farmers to get into their fields. Several other factors were mentioned by brokers in connection with the decline in soy beans and other grains. They were:

1. Farm bloc legislators in Washington said the President had indicated he would veto legislation designed to raise crop loan rates to full parity levels. They intimated a compromise would be made in which the President would support the stand taken by the secretary of agriculture on the price bill, that the ceiling on farm prices would be not less than 110 per cent of parity.

2. Treasury department officials announced they were restricting the use of funds from the frozen assets of foreign nations in the speculative markets. Chicago brokerage house officials commented that there had been much foreign speculation in grains and other commodities.

3. The department of agriculture report of Friday that supplies of wheat in the United States were at an all-time record on Oct. 1.

4. The unfavorable Japanese situation.

FORCE OF ARMS DISRUPTION HITS BUSINESS ANEW

Small Shop Owners Seek Remedies.

The impact of the nation's arms program on business and industry was felt with increasing force last week as shortages or reported shortages of materials complicated the problems of producing the goods required in every day living. Clinics attended by representatives of small businesses and industrial enterprises were held thruout the country to try to lessen the blow to the smaller companies unable to fit themselves at once into the manufacture of arms.

Out of these meetings came the realization that thousands of small concerns, employing many more thousands, will fade from the scene unless they can adjust their operations to the arms program. Most of the smaller companies lack the equipment necessary for producing the highly technical materials used in modern armaments.

Keep Trying, Is Advice.

Advice given the smaller enterprises was to keep on the doorsteps of the agencies allotting orders in an effort to try to find something they can produce.

Meantime, the larger industries were moving on accelerating schedules. The steel mills, roaring with activity, established an all-time high in production when just after noon of Friday they had turned out 66,981,562 tons of ingots to equal the volume produced in all of 1940, which was the previous record. The indications are that more than 80 million tons will have been produced by the end of the year.

Board Studies Rail Facts.

Meantime, the five members of the fact finding board appointed by President Roosevelt to try to find a settlement for the railroad labor dispute, were studying thousands of pages of facts and figures introduced during hearings extending a month. Chairman Wayne L. Morse is to report early in November on the board's recommendations by which it is hoped to avert a threatened strike in the nation's major transportation system.

Car loadings hit a new high since Nov. 2, 1930, with a total of 922,884, but were still under the million car level which had been predicted for the peak period this fall.

Purchases of consumer goods showed a somewhat mixed trend. The rush of buying a few weeks ago to anticipate tax increases cut into current purchases somewhat, but this comparative lull is expected in retail circles to pass as more and more purchasing power is released thru the large disbursements on arms. Retailers already are reported looking forward to a busy Christmas season.

Auto Purchases Lag.

Purchases of new automobiles in many parts of the country failed to live up to the expected volume. The industry apparently was feeling the effect of the large purchases made last year and earlier this year when sales efforts included warnings of shortages and higher prices.

Last week's Associated Press index of industrial activity, which is based on 1929-'30 levels as 100, showed a slight increase, comparing as follows:

	Latest wk.	Prev. wk.	Year ago.
Steel mill act.	137.6	138.4	127.4
Elec. pwr. prod.	148.9	149.4	131.0
Total car loadings	82.7	81.0	73.0
Composite index	139.0	138.7	115.9

The index is adjusted to reflect seasonal variations in business and industry.

SCARCITIES MORE ACUTE IN ITALY, SAYS U. S. AGENCY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25 [Special].—Italy's economic problem is becoming more acute because of the increasing shortage of industrial materials and food supplies, and a growing disparity between wages and living costs, the department of commerce reported today.

The cutting off of overseas trade which followed Italy's entry into the war aggravated the scarcity of cotton, wool, petroleum, scrap iron, rubber, copper, and nickel, the department said. German shipments of coal to Italy were said to have fallen far below the million tons a month agreed upon.

Before Italy actively entered the war a price increase of more than 20 per cent had occurred. Now the increase is believed to have become more precipitate.

Debts Slashed 28 Millions by 6 County Units

Cook county's six major governments cut their total debts by approximately 28½ million dollars in the year ended Sept. 30, a compilation of the quarterly statements showed yesterday. The governments are the city, school board, park district, sanitary district, county, and forest preserve district.

Debts, both long and short term, had declined on Sept. 30 to $434,387,849, compared with $462,756,720 a year earlier.

More than 23 millions of the debt reduction, however, was in outstanding bonds, which are retired automatically as tax collections are made available. The trend in current, or floating debts, which include unpaid bills, salaries, and judgments, failed to keep pace with the bonded debt reduction.

Moderate Increases Reported.

All six governments except the school board reported moderate increases in their current debts over the 12 month period. Current debts of the school board were nearly halved, dropping to $626,421 on Sept. 30 from $1,156,506 a year earlier.

The largest slash in total debts was made by the city, which owed a total of $113,205,948 on Sept. 30, or nearly 20 million dollars less than its obligations on Sept. 30, 1940. A rise of $687,000 in the city's judgments owed, however, caused a small increase in the current debt total, in spite of a reduction of $600,000 in unpaid bills and pay rolls for the year. City bills and pay rolls amounted to $10,035,580 on Sept. 30.

All six governments except the sanitary district reduced their bonded debts during the year. A small increase in the sanitary district's bonds was occasioned by the sale of bonds for new construction.

Debt Totals Compared.

The following tabulation compares total debts of each of the six governments on Sept. 30 with their debts a year earlier:

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Sunday, Oct. 26, 1941.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

INVESTOR BEWARE!

There is evidence that stock and investment swindlers are becoming more active. They are capitalizing on the rearmament "prosperity" in the same way confidence men and cardsharps took advantage of frontier boom towns.

There is money to be spent and stock swindlers are trying to get their share. In many cases, they are prompt to take advantage of the prospective investor's plans for putting his money into securities that will provide an income after post-emergency-deflation has set in.

Federal and state authorities and Better Business bureaus have been successful in checking large numbers of the new crop of frauds, but the coöperation of the investing public is necessary. It is the public whom the fraudulent salesmen approach and it is the public who loses the money.

A relatively new type of swindle has been appearing more frequently in recent months with the return of prosperity to many corporations whose unprofitable operations in past years had resulted in low market prices for their securities or long lapses in dividend payments. Salesmen using this scheme offer to exchange securities of another company for the stock with supposedly little or no value.

Actually, the proffered stock probably has far less intrinsic value than that which the investor is asked to exchange. Often the stock which the prospective victim already holds has increased in value or, unknown to the owner, is in a position to do so. A variation is the salesman who offers to purchase securities at a reasonable price, but at the same time has some to sell.

Investment propositions appearing to contain elements of fraud should be referred to the local Securities and Exchange commission office or Better Business bureau or state authorities. The least an investor can do to protect himself against a swindler is to investigate the securities offered thru his bank or broker. He should not take the word of a smooth talking, high pressure salesman promising quick riches.

An effective means of measuring legitimacy of securities is to investigate the financial record and management of the issuing company. Another precaution is to attempt to apply the same business judgment used in buying an automobile, furniture, or clothes—get all the value possible for the money spent. It should be remembered that the higher the rate of prospective return, the greater the risk. Optimistic reports and rumors concerning the securities offered for sale should be considered warily.

NELSON WARNS CITIES TO DELAY NEW BUILDING

Declares All Metal Will Be Scarce.

Donald M. Nelson, executive director of the Supply Priorities and Allocations board, told the American Municipal association yesterday that until the rearmament program has ended there will be a shortage of all metals and said city administrations must postpone wherever possible any building operation, such as construction of a new city hall.

Nelson, who spoke at the close of the association's three day convention in the Stevens hotel, said the nation has enough metals to meet all military needs, then aded:

"But we do not have—and cannot have until this emergency ends—enough steel, aluminum, and other metals to meet all our civilian requirements. . . . We can get thru this crisis only by cutting down on the amounts that go into civilian industry."

Warns Cities' Officials.

To the 400 city officials attending from thruout the country, he warned:

"City budgets will have to shrink. Money is going to be plentiful henceforth; the temptation to embark on an ambitious program of public improvements and public construction will be strong. Let me urge you as strongly as I can to resist the temptation. . . . If you can possibly make the existing building do, even at the cost of serious inconvenience, do so. The same applies all the way thru your municipal plant and equipment."

Nelson said SPAB's recently adopted policy of refusing priorities assistance for any construction project deemed nonessential is not a "blanket stop building" order. He said any building could be constructed "without use of scarce materials" may be built as freely now as before. Not covered by priorities, he said, are such basic materials as lumber, concrete, stone, brick, and glass.

View on Rearmament.

Referring to the rearmament program as a whole, Nelson asserted that no nation ever set out to do so much in so short a time and declared that no country but the United States could attempt a job of such size.

Warning that shortages will affect every phase of national life, he asserted: "It is hardly an exaggeration to say that from now on this country is going to be just one thing: a gigantic, one purpose factory for the production of armaments. Everything else will be secondary to that."

To small business he held out the hope of larger amounts of rearmament work.

"I think we can discover if we try—and I can promise you that we will try—that it is possible to make things of military value in more shops and factories than we have thus far imagined," he said.

Will Aid Small Industries.

At a press conference, Nelson, who was executive vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., promised "every attempt certainly will be made to help small industries survive" and declared "we have to have small business if the rearmament program is to be a success."

He expressed the view that the country need not be concerned over the silk situation from the standpoint of the rearmament program, because "we can see technical developments to provide substitutes to fill defense needs."

Others who addressed the convention were Mayor Kelly, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator.

Speaks for Small Business.

Mayor Kelly said the "continued life of small industry should be given much more serious consideration by the government" and asserted the government must give small business a chance by "allotting" instead of "awarding" rearmament contracts.

Gov. Lehman urged a speed up in rearmament work and willing sacrifices on the part of Americans to insure their nation's preparedness.

IMPROVED STEEL GIVEN CREDIT FOR BETTER WEAPONS

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Electric furnace and alloy steels have been largely responsible for the improved performance of modern weapons, the American Iron and Steel institute said today.

Increased electric furnace capacity and intensive research to develop new uses for alloy steels have made possible the speedier, higher flying planes and the faster, more powerful tanks and warships, it said.

The agency estimated the output of electric furnace steels during 1941 at a record near 3 million tons, about 13 times annual production during the World war. The industry has expanded electric furnace capacity by 85 per cent in the last two years. Capacity for alloy steel production this year is above 8 million tons, the institute said.

Tractor Firm Gets $21,000,000 Army Contract for Tank Parts

The Caterpillar Tractor company, Peoria, Ill., yesterday announced a 21 million dollar contract with the war department for building tank transmissions and drive assemblies. The company has made about 10 million dollars worth of tractors, Diesel engines, and road grading machinery for the army and navy and has supplied materials for other arms contractors.

H. J. Neumiller, Caterpillar president, said tooling for the new order had been started and production was expected to begin within two months. He said he did not expect to increase the personnel of 16,000 plant workers, but that the contract at least would assure no reduction of employés.

Award Meat Contracts.

Army quartermaster food and equipment supply contracts of $5,198,714 were awarded yesterday by the Chicago quartermaster depot. Purchases included more than 9 million pounds of canned meats, 4½ million pounds of frozen fresh boneless beef and 6 million cans of vegetables.

The larger orders for canned meats included Libby, McNeill & Libby, $548,494; Armour & Co., $381,913; John Morrell & Co., $420,940, and Republic Food Products company, $197,100. The largest order for boneless beef went to Swift & Co. at $614,823. Armour received an order valued at $219,883 and Wilson & Co. one at $123,109.

Westinghouse Gets Order.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced that its Mansfield, O., plant received an army contract for $2,750,000 for 37 mm. armor piercing shells. Production is expected to begin early next year.

Beating the Deadline

Denver, Colo., Oct. 25 (AP).—Construction crews beat engineers' estimates by five months in building a 35 million dollar small arms ammunition plant in the foothills west of Denver.

The job, begun last March 6, was supposed to take a year. Already, however, the plant is ready to start production of 120 million dollars' worth of .30 caliber rifle and machine gun bullets the army has contracted to buy from the Remington Arms company.

The plant includes four main production buildings, 10½ miles of railroad, 3¾ miles of sidewalk, 17 powder storage magazines, 9 indoor ranges, and 10 outdoor firing pits for testing ammunition.

The war department announced the award of 7 million dollars in machine tool contracts. Companies sharing in the order include:

National Acme, Cleveland, O.; Kearney & Trecker, Milwaukee, Wis.; South Bend Lathe works, South Bend, Ind., and Lodge & Shipley Machine Tool, Cincinnati Milling Machine and Grinder, R. K. LeBlond Machine Tool, and Bradford Machine Tool, all of Cincinnati, O.

War materials contracts and expansion of factories and facilities in Illinois last week totaled $120,385,495, the Illinois Manufacturers' association reported. The Chicago area's share was $100,509,418.

Many Copper Items May Get Price Ceilings

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25 (AP).—Leon Henderson, price administrator, said today he was prepared if necessary to establish price ceilings on scores of consumer items such as radios and table utensils made largely of copper.

At the same time, as part of a comprehensive program to stabilize prices of all products made of copper, brass, or other copper base alloys, Henderson said maximum prices would be set shortly on building hardware made of copper. This will be followed, he said, by schedules on other building products made of copper as need arises.

Other Prices Watched.

In addition to radios and table utensils, Henderson said his office was watching prices of other durable goods requiring large amounts of copper, including stoves, cooking utensils, plated flatware, fire extinguishers, generators, motors, signal apparatus, transformers, and certain automobile and truck parts.

He warned manufacturers and distributors against building up inventories in anticipation of future orders. He said they may find themselves trapped with materials and products bought at high prices when the ceilings are issued.

Big Producer Suspends.

San Francisco, Oct. 25 [Special].—Directors of the Walker Mining company, largest California copper producer, voted today to suspend operations because of inability to run at a profit under the present price of copper. The mine produced more than 5,000 tons of metal last year. It employes about 500 men.

DOUBT BRITISH INCOME LOSS WILL BE VAST

May Save Large Part of Investments.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Fears expressed in parliament and market circles that Britain at the end of the war will find itself shorn of a valuable source of income as the result of the wholesale realization of investments abroad are now admittedly proving largely exaggerated.

Since the passage of the lend-lease act financial experts have shown a disposition to take a more favorable view of Britain's chances of substantially maintaining its position as a creditor nation. In an article analyzing the situation this week, the financial editor of the Manchester Guardian estimated that at present there "is no reason to assume that more than one-third of our prewar overseas investments will be lost as a result of the war."

Recall Kindersley Statement.

The total value of the British overseas investments at the end of 1938 was figured at 3 billion 692 million pounds [about 14 billion 768 million dollars]. This estimate was compiled by Lord Kindersley, the present chief of the war savings campaign, who early in the war went on record as declaring that "it would be a mistake to suppose that the whole or even a major part of overseas investments would be affected." Kindersley then said that more than 70 per cent of the investments consisted either of sterling bonds of overseas governments or securities of British companies operating abroad, few of which have a ready market outside this country.

Referring to Kindersley's statement, the Manchester Guardian writer charged that he was "slightly too optimistic." The assets of some British companies in the United States, for instance, have been sold or pledged, despite the fact that there is no ready market for them.

Buy Up Own Bonds.

Similarly, the governments of Canada, India, and South Africa purchased a substantial amount of their own sterling securities from Britain since the outbreak of the war. Private investments in Canada already have been partly realized and more are likely to be sold as need arises.

Nearly one-third of Britain's total prewar investment was in Latin America. Some South American countries wish to acquire the ownership of British assets. That development, however, has no connection with war finance and no doubt would have occurred anyway, with the growth of the South American republics to maturity.

The Manchester Guardian contends: "If international coöperation after the war on the lines of the Atlantic charter should improve the trading position of these countries, we may well receive a larger return on smaller capital than we received in the 1930's on nominally unreduced investments."

Expect Fewer Defaults.

It is clear that writer believes that the application of the Atlantic charter would reduce the likelihood of defaults. In addition it is suggested that "a great deal may be left of the investments in United Kingdom companies working in the British empire, the Dutch East Indies, and China."

The importance of investment income to Britain in bridging the gap between imports and exports may be gauged from the fact that even in 1938, after the shrinkage caused by defaults and repayments, this country still netted 185 million pounds [about 740 million dollars] of foreign exchange.

WAR NEWS PUTS SLIGHT CRIMP IN STOCK MARKET

But Prices Show Gains for Entire Week.

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—War news helped put a slight crimp in today's stock market and the list generally finished a fairly progressive week slightly on the downside.

Recovery efforts encountered opposition at the start and, altho real weakness was a rarity, irregularly lower trends persisted to the close. Final prices in the brief proceedings were lower by fractions to a point in the majority of cases.

The darkening Russian situation, especially admission of the Reds that the Nazis had launched a new and sharper attack along the Moscow front and the German claim of the capture of Kharkov, served to cool the bullish urge, brokers said. In view of the international complexities there was a tendency to lighten commitments for the Sunday recess.

Moves During Week.

Foreign affairs vied with inflation psychology as market factors during the week. Large blocks of low-priced issues buoyed activity in most sessions, as selling to establish income tax losses got under way. The list was unchanged on balance Monday. Commodities shot up Tuesday on the outlook for boosted parity loans on basic farm products. Rail and industrial shares responded with good gains.

There was a setback Wednesday as war fears combined with worries over federal industrial restraints to stem bidding. Rallies revived Thursday and Friday.

CHICAGO LIST STEADY.

Volume leaders were Utah Radio, 1,400 shares, unchanged at 1¼; Commonwealth Edison, 900 shares, up ⅛ to 24⅝, and Minneapolis Brewing, 700 shares, off ¼ to 4½.

Prospective Home Owners Can Buy or Erect Houses, Builders Assert

HAVE MATERIALS FOR 2,500 NEW COMPLETE UNITS

1,500 Now in Last Stages of Completion.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

George F. Nixon.

Despite the curbs on building imposed by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board and the Office of Production Management, some so drastic that many prospective home builders have been frightened into abandoning their plans, new houses can be bought and built today and the purchase of a home is a wiser move now than ever before. This assertion was made yesterday by members of the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association while outlining the construction situation in this area.

"Prospective home buyers and perhaps those engaged in the various phases of home building need to do a little clear thinking," said George F. Nixon, president of the organization. "There has been much discussion regarding priorities on building materials, curtailment orders, scarcity of materials, etc. Let's look at the facts.

Looking at the Facts.

"First, Chicago builders have on hand today probably 1,500 homes in the last stages of completion and for sale. These are in all parts of metropolitan Chicago and cover a wide range of prices, sizes, and styles.

"Second, Chicago builders have on hand enough materials to build another 2,500 complete houses. This is a normal situation.

"Third, the government hasn't said that a builder can't build any kind or size of house he desires or that he can't buy any kind of material needed. At this time there's absolutely no ban on building or on the purchase of materials so long as there is a supply of materials.

Gets Materials for 10 Homes.

"Of course, some lines of merchandise are more difficult to buy than usual and they may become still more scarce. But at the present time a reliable builder with buying ability can get materials without hindrance or priorities.

"One of our members bought, paid for and had delivered this week all the material for 10 homes. Mortgage money is available and the Federal Housing administration still is active in insuring loans."

There were never more or better reasons for a family buying a home than today according to Martin H. Braun, architect, of Carrothers & Braun, a member of the builders' association.

Prices Advancing.

"Prices are advancing and some degree of inflation is here and probably will continue," Braun said. "The family that buys now will buy for less than those who delay. Rents will continue to go up with inflation but the family that buys a house today on an FHA mortgage knows that its cost of shelter will not change for 20 years. Add to these two facts all the usual sound reasons for home ownership and now is certainly the time to buy."

"Home building takes a very small amount of critical materials and according to leading steel authorities there is ample steel for both government and civilian home building," said C. L. Perkins, executive secretary of the association.

"Home buying and home building are aiding in the defense of America and should be continued as vigorously as possible."

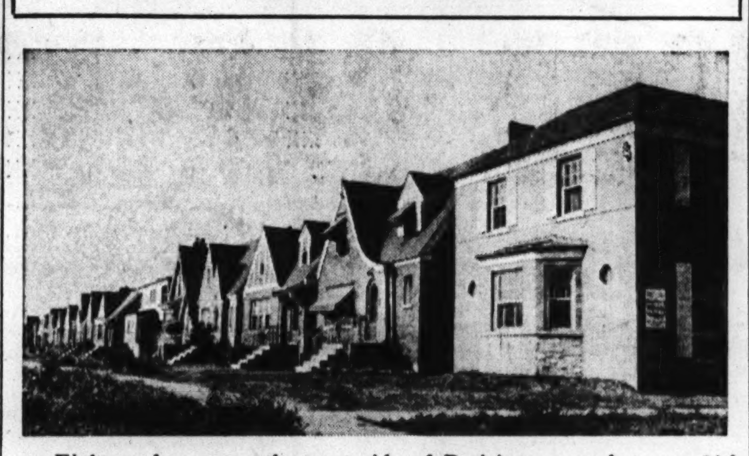
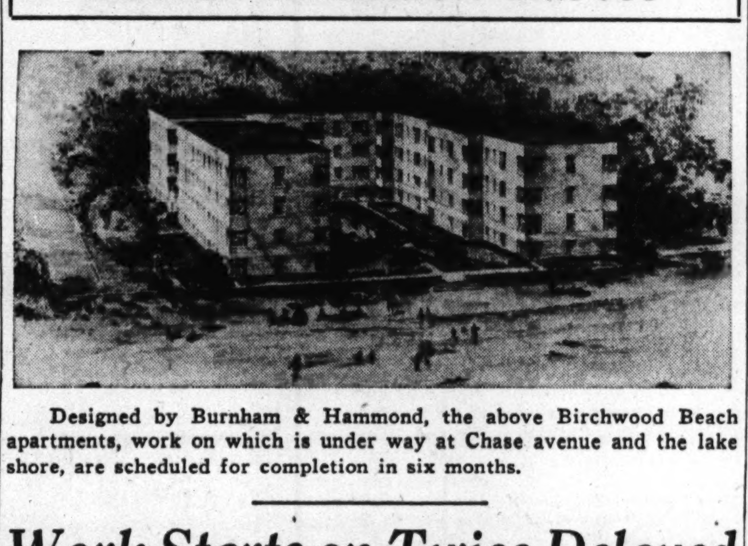
Entire Block of Homes Sold



Eighteen houses on the west side of Prairie avenue, between 84th and 85th streets, built by Peters & Peters. Victor S. Peters, president, said that these and 18 more on the east side of Indiana avenue, in the same block, all have been sold. The price range was from $7,500 to $14,000. This square block was a cornfield two years ago, Peters said.

Materials on Hand for This Job



Designed by Burnham & Hammond, the above Birchwood Beach apartments, work on which is under way at Chase avenue and the lake shore, are scheduled for completion in six months.

Work Starts on Twice Delayed Flat Building in Rogers Park

In the face of a series of drastic curbs recently imposed by the Supply Priorities and Allocations board and Office of Production Management on all kinds of construction except so-called "defense housing" work is going ahead on a $285,000 privately financed apartment project at Chase avenue and the lake.

Definitely not for armament workers, the 47 suites in the Birchwood Beach apartments, containing a total of 190 rooms, will rent, it was said, for an average of $20 per room per month. They will include four three-room flats, 37 with four rooms each, and six five-room apartments.

The project first was announced in December, 1939. Bids were taken, but financing could not be completed and work was not started. It was revived in October of last year and then again it suffered a relapse.

Financing Completed.

This time, the third attempt, despite SPAB and OPM, seems successfully started. Financing has been negotiated by S. Yondorf & Co., Inc., with a $208,000 30 year 4 per cent mortgage made by the National Life Insurance company of Montpelier, Vt., and insured by FHA. A $50,000 equity has been raised, it was said.

The site, fronting 296 feet on the north side of Chase avenue and 158 feet along the lake shore, is owned by Birchwood Beach, Inc., and valued by FHA at $27,000. This vacant property was sold in 1929 for $250,000, it is said.

Woman Chief Owner.

The land was owned by Mrs. Margaret B. Alling of California, who has moved to Chicago and is living at the Sovereign hotel while the building is under construction. She recently conveyed title to Birchwood Beach, Inc., of which she is the principal stockholder.

Burnham & Hammond, architects, said that priorities—bugaboo to most builders—were not worrying the sponsors of this project. Every subcontractor has furnished a completion bond. All necessary materials have been purchased and are on hand, it was said. The John Traff Building Construction company has the general contract.

DE LUGACH BUYS 125 ACRES FOR HOMES PROJECT

Frank De Lugach Real Estate company yesterday purchased 125 acres in Lyons township from the James R. Ferson estate for a reported $30,000, or at the rate of $240 per acre. Fifty acres are on the south side of 79th street, half a mile west of Harlem avenue, extending south to 83d street. Seventy-five acres are on the other side of 83d street, extending south to 87th street and bounded on the east by Oketo avenue [74th avenue] and on the west by the Indiana Harbor Belt line. The property is to be subdivided into half acre and acre tracts under the name of 79th Street estates. This will be Frank De Lugach's 64th south side subdivision.

SPAB EDICT LESS DRASTIC THAN IT LOOKED—JENSEN

Asserts Many Projects Can Be Carried Out.

SPA-9, the recent edict by the Supply Priorities and Allocations board, which stunned the building industry when it was issued on Oct. 9, is not so drastic as it looked at first reading, according to Elmer C. Jensen, president of the Chicago Building Congress.

"Many apparently concluded when they first heard of it that it will prevent all kinds of building construction of a nonrearmament character unless such construction is 'either necessary for direct national defense or essential to the health and safety of the people,'" he said.

Can Be Carried Out.

"After a thoughtful analysis of this order, and after careful consideration by the officers of the Chicago Building Congress, and consultation with public officials in Washington, it is now apparent that many building projects can be carried out without violation of the order and without becoming open to the suspicion that such construction work is untimely and interfering with so-called defense preparations.

"The facts are that in the metropolitan area of Chicago, as well as thruout the entire country, there is an abundance of the ordinary building materials such as sand, gravel, cement, brick, lumber, glass, paint, and others. These materials are produced and sold in many places at only a slight increase in cost.

"As to the so-called critical materials—steel, copper, zinc, aluminum, etc.—which enter into the structural portions of some buildings, and into fixtures and appliances, there appears to be some scarcity.

Slight Effect on Cost.

"Even here, however, the facts are that there are manufacturers who have a stock pile of materials accumulated before the scarcity existed.

"These so-called critical materials represent only a small percentage of the needs of most building construction, and in some cases may not be needed at all, so, if the cost has risen, because of scarcity, the effect on the total cost is comparatively slight."

PACIFIC GARDEN MISSION PLANS AN EXPANSION

The Pacific Garden mission, 650 South State street, the oldest rescue mission west of New York, established 64 years ago, yesterday bought two adjoining buildings at 642-48 South State for expansion. The property, 50 by 108 feet, was purchased from the Philetus Warren Gates estate for $30,000.

Harry Saulnier, superintendent of the mission, said it will be remodeled at a cost of about $30,000 to furnish sleeping quarters for 300 men. It has sleeping space for 72 men in its present building and feeds 230 daily. It has served 26,000 meals so far this year. There is no charge for either food or lodging. The mission was founded by Col. and Mrs. George R. Clarke in 1877. Clarke, an attorney, was a Union army officer in the Civil war.

Realty Miscellany

George F. Anderson.

George F. Anderson of the law firm of Anderson & Anderson, an authority on real estate law, will conduct a legal quiz on leases and real estate contracts at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board's associate division at 12:15 p. m. next Wednesday at the board rooms, 32 West Randolph street. Prizes will be given to members giving the most right answers. James E. Gallagher is division chairman.

The Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association shortly will publish a booklet entitled "Sixty Approved 1942 House Plans," containing pictures, descriptions, locations, floor plans, and prices of homes offered for inspection in Chicago and suburbs. Copies may be ordered from the association, 28 North Clark street, by sending name and address and 50 cents. It will be mailed as soon as published.

Edwin D. Krenn, president of Krenn & Dato, and former vice president of Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust, is now associated with the Lake Shore Realty Company, Inc., George P. Manus, president of that firm, announced yesterday. A large scale program for the future development of Lake Shore and Krenn & Dato subdivisions is planned. Krenn will head a special building department for buyers of lots in those developments.

William W. Bass has been appointed vice president and manager of Thomas D. Bell, Inc., and will have charge of the business, while Thomas D. Bell, president, is on an extended vacation in California.

Members of the Chicago Real Estate board's brokers' division from region one [north side] and region six [loop] have scheduled luncheon meetings this week, Roger P. Minwegen, chairman of the division's board of governors, said yesterday. Max H. Jones of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's classified advertising department is to speak at both meetings on "How to Get the Most Out of Your Classified Advertising."

North side brokers will meet Tuesday noon in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Loop brokers will meet Friday at the board rooms, 32 West Randolph street.

Why spend time commuting when you can live down here near the lake, and near so many interesting things, with just a nice walk to and from your office in the loop? We have little 2 bedroom shaggy roof peasant houses in a little slate paved court, up on the second floor level; heated and serviced like apartments; one furnished. Also a 2 story balcony studio just flooded with light. Also a layout with living room over 30 ft. long, with windows at both ends, and skylight and fireplace; one large and two small bedrooms, and just outside a sunny roof all floored and ready for a roof garden next summer. And a one room with the coziest little fireplace you ever saw. Also a 6 room with sunny bay window living room. A NEW INTEREST
IN LIFE

Husbands and wives become sweethearts again; that dull, bored expression fades as Dad lovingly fingers his fishing rod and hunting gear; Mother finds a new interest in life, new neighbors, "I never knew people could be so friendly," clubs to join, things to do; from all over town sister and brother, son and daughter—all gather at one place for a grand family reunion every week-end when Mother and Dad buy a summer home at Wonder Lake. And the amazing part of it all is that it's planned for you—within easy reach of your pocketbook because all it costs is $50 down and a little each month. Right now you can buy a lovely lake home which we call our ORCHARD HOME because you get a complete selection of Fruit and Shade Trees with the home—completely furnished on a big scenic lot at Wonder Lake for only $795—yes, just $795 for house, lot, bright new furniture and orchard—and all you pay is $50 down.

Day by Day on the Farm

by BOB BECKER

Autumn Pleasures.

Oct. 25, 1941.

A WALK thru any sort of woodlot always is a treat to the outdoor fan, but even more intriguing is a leisurely walk thru a stand of oak and hickory which rarely has felt the cutting edge of an ax or saw.

Most of the woodlots on the Wheaton farm are left in their natural state. They make no pretense of being neat and carefully groomed, but the men have every reason to believe that the game birds, songbirds, and furbearers appreciate the way the underbrush is allowed to grow and the natural cover is left standing to provide shelter and feed.

We spent an hour wandering thru one of these woodlots the other morning, making mental notes on the influx of autumn birds, the condition of the trees, the behavior of the crows, and the colors of the foliage.

Oaks Join Color Parade.

The farm's oak woods have been somewhat of a disappointment this year so far as autumn coloration is concerned. As we approached the giant oaks at the southwest corner of the big pond it seemed that there was little color in any of their leaves, but by going closer and examining individual trees we found many which are helping to hold up autumn's reputation for brilliant coloration. A white oak near the west edge of the woodlot is a solid mass of coppery rust against a light blue autumn sky. Some of the tall oaks which tower up into the open sunlight north of the pond have a variety of light red and yellow leaves to contribute to the color parade.

The graceful, drooping willows frame the big pond with a bank of greenish yellow branches, the only break in their ranks being made by the towering windmill which clanks and booms as its giant shaft pumps water for the white swans.

When we rounded the fence near the windmill we saw many signs of the season. A flock of about 20 juncos stopped their scratching and digging under the oak leaves to dart into the willows. . . . A cottontail rabbit, frightened from the tall grass, rushed away and splashed thru a water filled depression before bobbing hastily out of sight. . . . Gusts of wind showered oak leaves on us and carpeted the ground with russet and brown.

Grackles Keep Up Clatter.

On the side of a little hill west of the pond we could see a solitary wild crab tree putting on an autumn show all its own, its orange leaves brililant in the morning sun. . . . A huge flock of grackles kept up a constant chatter which reminded us of the droning of locusts. . . . And not far away a crow sentry repeated his sharp "Caw, caw, caw" danger signal.

There still are a few Queen Anne's Lace flowers which have retained their round white petals, but most of these attractive but troublesome growths have dead brown "bird's nests" instead of summery flowers at the top of their stalks. . . . And there are no more asters. Autumn has the situation well in hand.

On the return trip to the farm house we noticed one kernel of yellow corn in the middle of an open field, indicating that the squirrels have been raiding the nearby cornstalks.

INJUN SUMMER

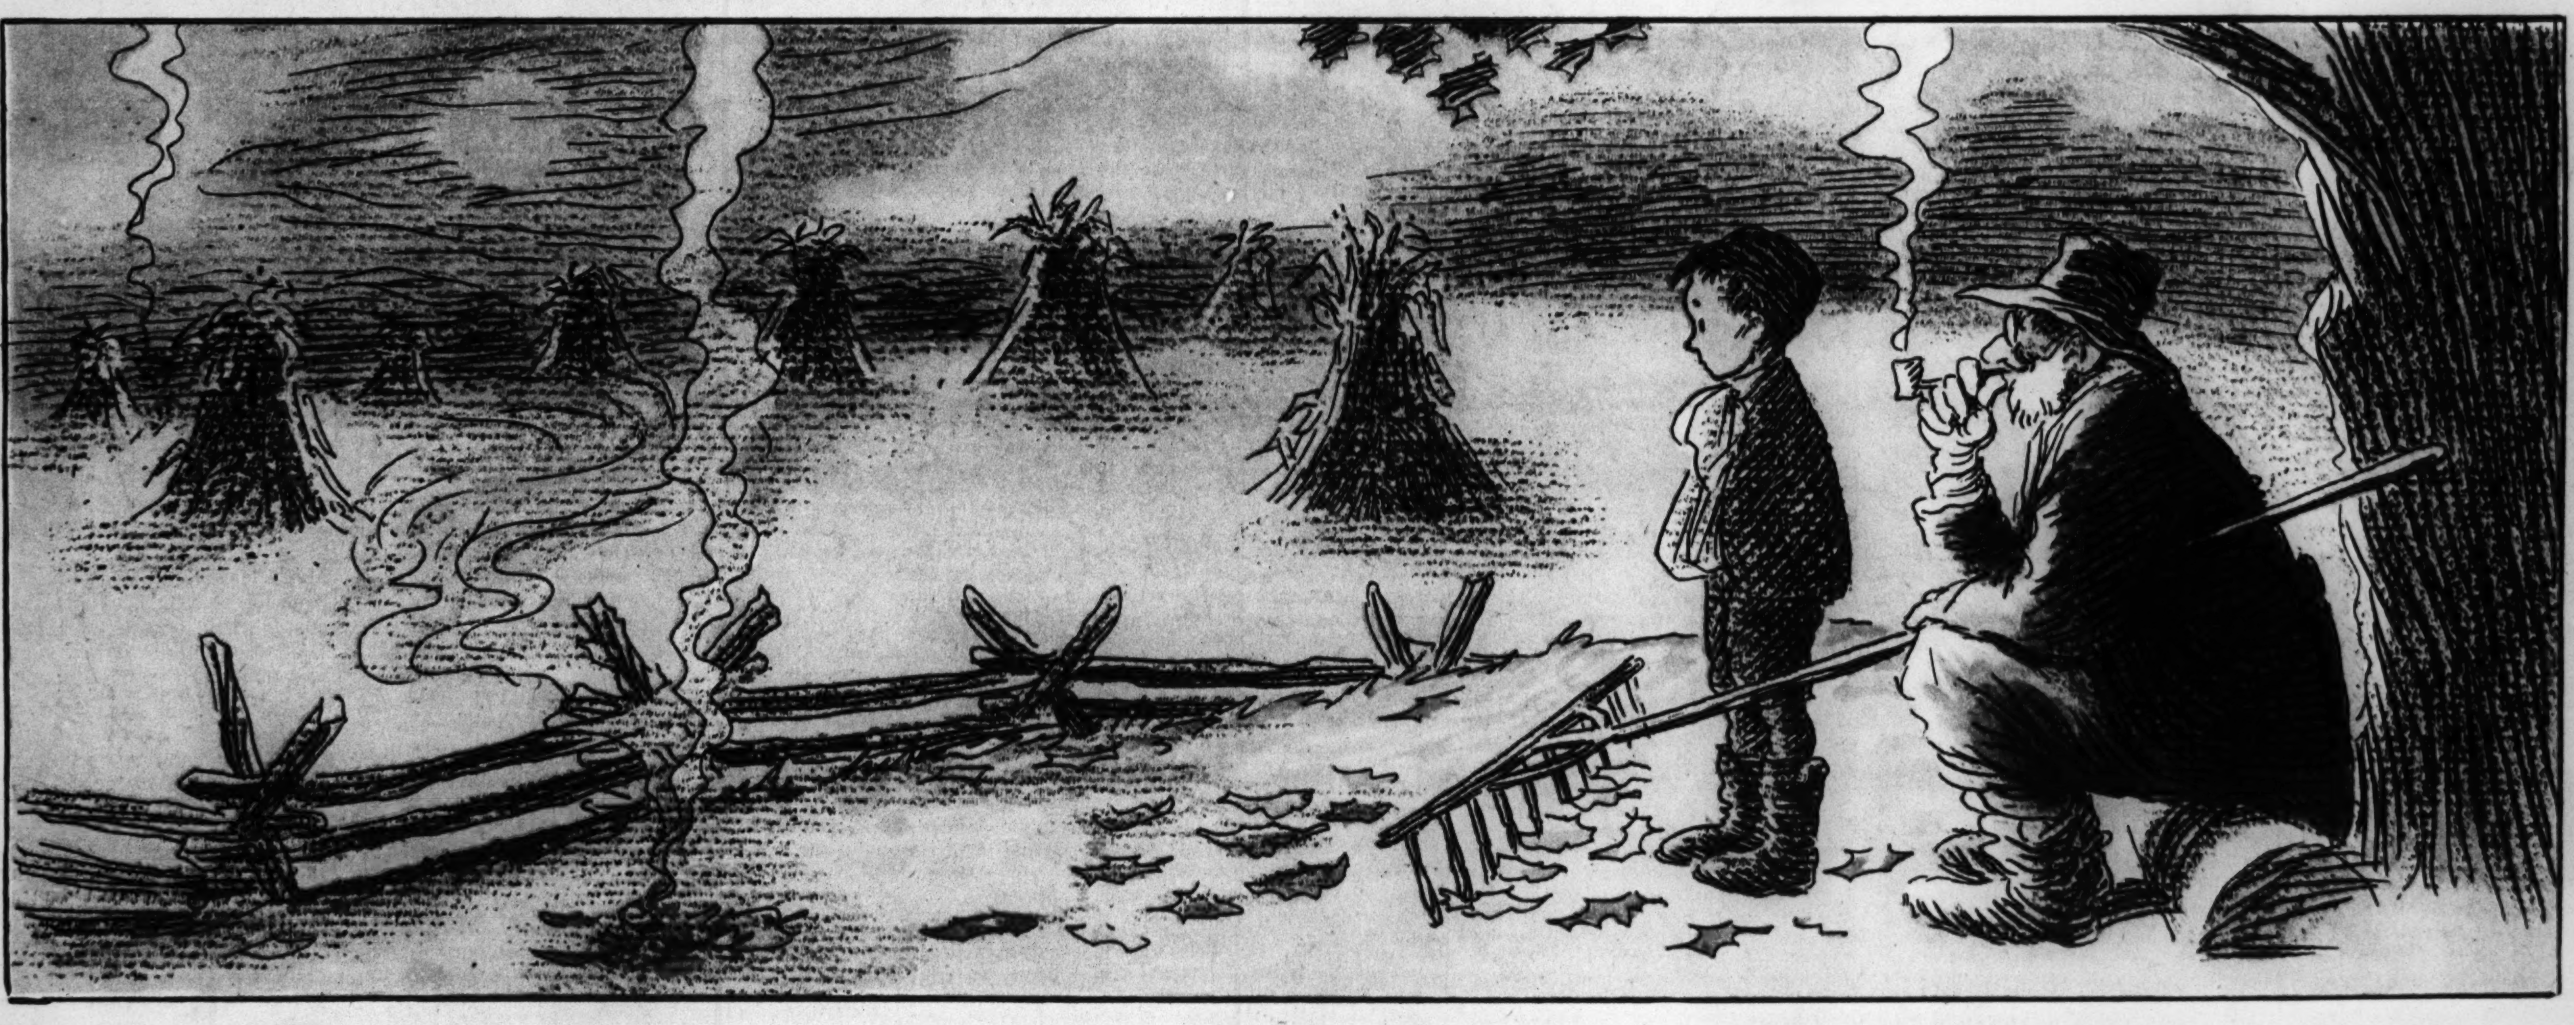
(Copyright: 1912: By John T. McCutcheon. Reprinted here by general request. The original of this cartoon hangs in the museum of the Chicago Historical society.)

Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'.

Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways no live ones. They been gone this many a year.

They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.



But every year, 'long about now, they all come back, leastways their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's jest the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now.

See off yonder; see them tepees? They kind o' look like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'.

Lots o' people say it's just leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' 'round 'em t' beat the old Harry.

You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tepees jest as plain as kin be. You can, eh? I knowed you would after a little while.

Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year? That's jest another sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an' goes up an' squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' an' whisperin' an' creepin' 'round among the leaves all the time; an' ever' once'n a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost and comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now. See how red it is? That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

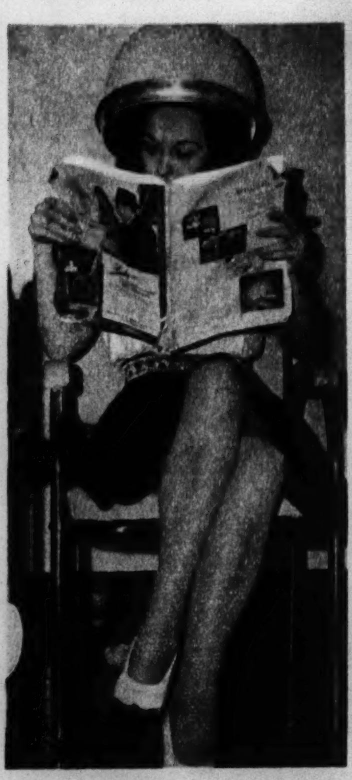
BACKSTAGE SECRETS of a BEAUTY SHOP



Wilma Haliday relaxes under the dryer with a magazine. Some customers become noisily chatty.

This is the second of a series of article revealing the inside story of working girls' lives.

By LLOYD WENDT

WHEN a woman lets down her hair, kicks off her shoes and girdle, and stretches luxuriously beneath a sheet in her beauty shop treatment chair, there comes a relaxation that loosens the tongue at both ends. The first gentle pat of soothing cream on flaccid chin is likely to evoke the life story of the most taciturn matron.

"My dear, you're not married, are you?" they ask Marie. "Well, darling, you don't know how fortunate you are! I don't know what I am going to do with John . . . every year we're married he's worse. He's getting cross as an old bear. He detests his cereal and he simply hates to play bridge. Well, last night . . ."

What a girl learns about life in a beauty shop may be slightly inaccurate, but it will put oomph in her memoirs. Psychoanalysts must writhe in wrath to think that the little beauty operator can tap more grapevine from madam's unconscious in 10 minutes than they can in two weeks.

Marie probably knows more about Mrs. G., one of her best patrons, for example, than do Mrs. G.'s husband, parents, or doctor. When Mrs. G. gets in Marie's booth, shuts her eyes, and gives up two delicious hours to her own self, she begins talking. Her voice wanders on and on. She doesn't care particularly whether Marie is listening, but Marie tosses in encouraging "un-huhs" now and then to keep her going—it's easier to work when they're talking.

The kinesthetic values of the beauty treatment usually leave Mrs. G. cleansed of her troubles as well as her fear of wrinkles. She feels better, has a sprightly walk and a gleam in her eye. Whoever said beauty is skin deep was confused.

Beauty is big business in the United States, and Marie's job is growing rapidly to the stature of a profession. Requirements become stricter every year, and more and more girls are beginning to specialize. When Marie first heard about beauty shops, down on the farm in Kentucky, a girl could go to school for six weeks and come out an expert. Those were the days of the pineapple bob, siren bangs, and mandarin manicures, when you couldn't get a decent permanent under $15. About 15 per cent of the women went to beauty shops and the rest of the progressives sought the barber to shear their tresses.

Now a girl must spend 1,000 hours in a beauty school in some states, 2,000 hours in others, meaning a minimum course of six months to a year. She learns all about hair structure, skin difficulties, the chemistry of preparations she uses, and the anatomy of flabby muscles. A permanent nowadays can cost as little as $5, practically 95 per cent of all women and girls over 10 are customers, and the new problem is how to keep the men from invading the beauty shop.

When Marie first thought about becoming a beauty operator she was the champion milkmaid of Henderson county, Kentucky. That, she thinks now, is the secret of her success. She had strong wrists, sensitive fingers, and inexhaustible patience with capricious bovines.

"Farm girls are naturals for the beauty trade," said Marie. "They say that when three Greeks get together they open a restaurant. When three farm girls meet in the city they open a beauty shop."

Marie's father frowned upon her desire to go to the city and learn beauty secrets. He insisted that women were becoming difficult enough to deal with as it was, without any new-fangled paint jobs. Marie proved his point by running away from home, taking along her butter and egg money which would see her thru school.

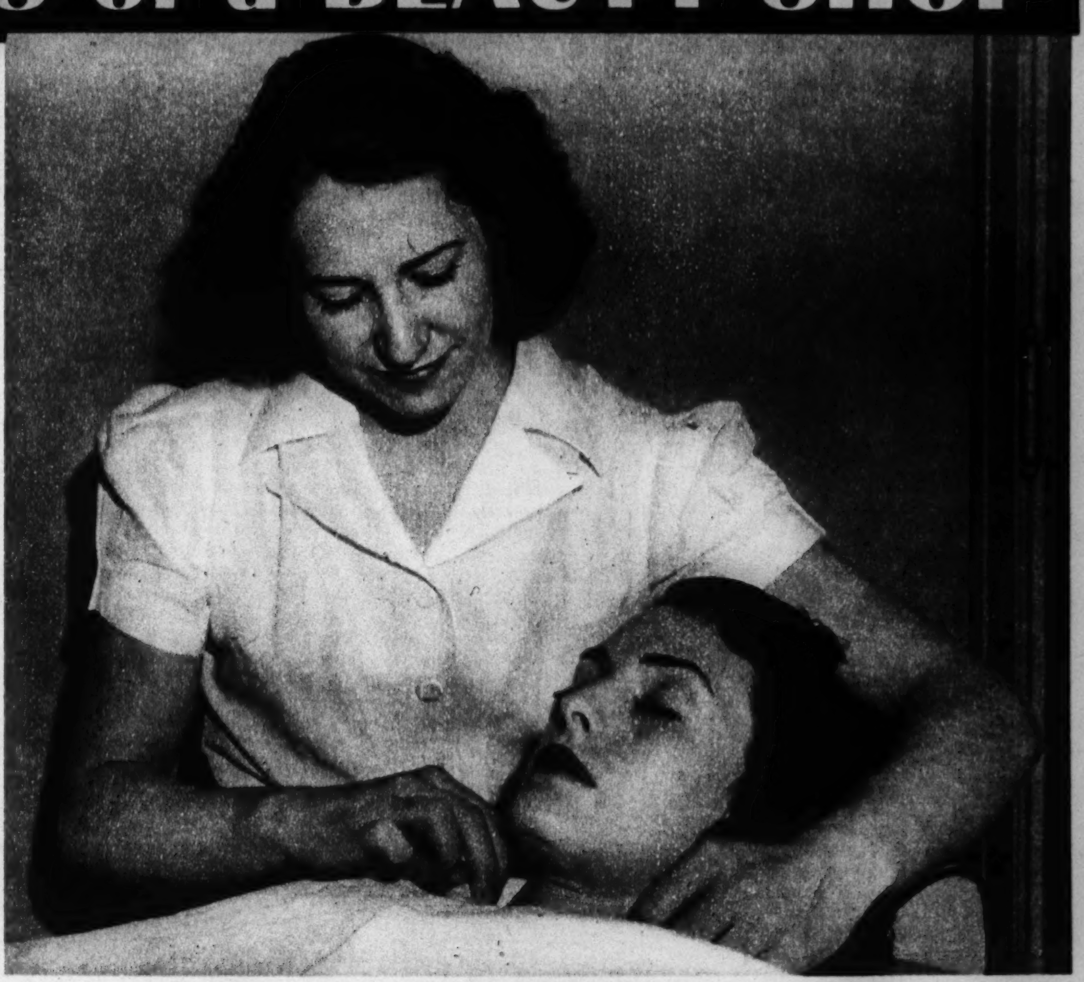
Marie came to Chicago, where she could live with Etta, a girl friend already working in a shop, and she elected to take the 1,000 hour course, not then, as now, required by state law. In school she and all of the girls worked hard. There was a big demand for trained operators, and jobs were awaiting them. Following a brief introduction to theory, they got practical experience working on women who, unable to afford professional treatment, came to the school for free services.

Marie's first job was in a neighborhood of two-flat houses and brick strewn vacant lots. The shop took girls fresh from school and operated on assembly line principles. The patrons wanted lots of results for the little they could afford to spend, so the shop sought to turn them out vastly different, if not exactly prettier. Marie had been taught that no one can properly give a permanent without taking a test curl first, but testing was definitely out. You banged a customer into a chair, sudsed her hair, rinsed it, jammed the protectors down against the scalp until she howled, and then wrapped the curlers so tight she was glad to get out as soon as possible. The theory seemed to be that a good headache proved the efficacy of the treatment, and the particular frizziness characteristic of the shop was esteemed highly in the neighborhood.

The din in the place was terrific. The girls talked normally in the morning, but every customer arriving raised her voice higher than the one immediately preceding, so from noon on you had to yell to be heard. The noise seemed to give a lift to the customers, but Marie would be a wreck by night, her throat so sore she'd only whisper. Nevertheless, she liked it. Her patrons didn't tip, but they invited her over for dinner, and she accompanied them and their husbands and brothers to movies and dances. Everybody had a good time, and there was little preoccupation with personalities, delicate illnesses, and subtle sex problems. It was a neighborly community of extroverts, just like back home.



Ruth Stone, left, a farm girl from Missouri, demonstrates to Francis Dwyer that she has learned the secret of making beauty salon customers comfortable. (Tribune photos by Andrew Pavlin.)

Sometimes there would be a fight in the shop, as when a new girl clamped the curlers too tight or turned too much heat into the coils. And there was the endless difficulty with the women under the dryers. Most women with their heads in a dryer and cotton pads about their ears as protection against the heat and noise cannot seem to appreciate that when they talk loudly enough to hear themselves they are broadcasting to the entire shop.

Marge Gleason, from Iowa, utilizes a free period between customers to rest.

"Is that that Mrs. Brown in Mazie's booth?" asked Mrs. L. from under the dryer. Marie nodded that it was.

"You ought to see her children!" shouted Mrs. L. "She never gives 'em a bath, an' they don't get enough to eat. They're the dirtiest, hungriest young ones I ever saw in my life! She . . ."

Marie signaled frantically for silence, but Mrs. L. got no further. Mrs. Brown had heard, and she dashed out belligerently, prepared to take the measure of Mrs. L. on the spot. Mrs. L. was helpless. Mrs. Brown perceived it would be unsportsmanlike to strike her, so she loosed a tongue-lashing that would uncurl a $10 permanent. Mrs. L. couldn't hear a word, and she smiled benignly. Mrs. Brown set a heel square on Mrs. L.'s toe, and then marched off.

Thereafter the girls had to keep Mrs. Brown and Mrs. L. apart. The problem arises in most shops. A swank Chicago salon has as customers two dowagers who have been warring each other. Neither of the two knows that the other is a patron of the salon. For 10 years the socially for years. It is said thermometers freeze solid when they pass within 50 yards of secret has been kept, proving women can keep secrets if they find it more amusing than telling them. But every one in the shop knows that some day the two will meet.

The girls in the shop where Marie worked had to be saleswomen, too, high-pressuring the customers. If a woman came in for a "general"—shampoo, finger wave, manicure, and arch—it was up to the girl to attempt to sell a scalp treatment and facial as well. Marie got $12 a week (the minimum under state law is now $16.50) plus a commission on all her earnings over $40. It was almost impossible to earn commissions, and if she managed it, she was too tired to spend the money. So, having put some experience behind her, Marie quit.

Etta, Marie's girl friend, got a legacy from an aunt, and decided to open her own shop. She invited Marie to work for her, in a little place with just two booths. The girls had fun getting ready. They carried their cards to neighborhood back doors, put advertising in the papers, and sat down to wait for business. It swooped upon them. "You can always figure on the first two weeks being good when you open a shop," said Etta. "Women are curious, and they'll come to see what you've got. Then it's up to you to keep your share of them."

Winnie Rowe at the work operators like least—manicuring.

It was like play—working in Etta's shop. They kept long hours, and they rarely had time for meals, but they were doing a job the way they thought it should be done. Neither was "boss," even if Etta did own the place. They took an apartment together, joined the young people's club in the neighborhood church, and began to participate in the social life of the community. They met young men at club parties, dances, and the beach.

But it was in the shop that Marie learned about life as it is lived in the city. Customers discussed their hopes, their problems, their children, their youth, and their most intimate marital life with candor and confidence Marie found shocking. She had no choice, of course, but to listen, and finally she grew accustomed to the revelations.

"Funny," said Marie, "but women trust their beauty operators with secrets they wouldn't tell their dearest friend. I think their trust is justified, too. I don't ever remember a girl telling on a customer. You know, when a woman comes into the shop, she's thinking about herself. She doesn't often get the chance. Then she becomes relaxed and comfortable, and she has some one sympathetic waiting upon her, and, well, she just wants to talk—about herself. Some women never lose their reserve, but others don't care what they say. All inhibitions are gone, and many women seem to take a particular delight in discussing topics which would at any other time be taboo. Only what your husband earns and how much rent you pay are subjects not mentioned.

"We try to judge a customer's mood and share it. We've got to keep them thinking we're listening, but after a while we know some of the stories so well we can make the right answers in the right places without listening.

"I've got a customer who keeps telling me her story over and over. She was born in New York and she was working in a checkroom when she got acquainted with a man customer and they started going out.

"Well, it seems she was an innocent girl, and she falls in love with this dope, who is a little older than she is, and a nice looking fellow with clams in the bank. Then he tells her he is married, but he is going to get a divorce. Well, he gets transferred to Chicago, and pretty soon lo, little Bo Peep goes to Chicago, too. It was just an accident. But a girl can't kick fate around, so she calls up the man, and he is just as sweet as he can be.

"He is still getting that divorce, but he has run into some obstructions, so she is living in a modest little apartment while he tries to untangle himself. She keeps asking me whether I think he's on the level, or should she take the apartment key away from him? I always want to ask her, 'Wouldn't it be tough to have to go back to work?', but of course I don't. I just listen and sometimes say he's a bum, and then she gets peeved, and then I say I bet he is a fine fellow."

Most beauty shop customers are lovely, according to Marie. They are usually considerate of the operator, and when they ask for advice on cosmetics, hair-do, and the proper shade of nail

HEPBURN IS HEP!

KATHARINE HEPBURN

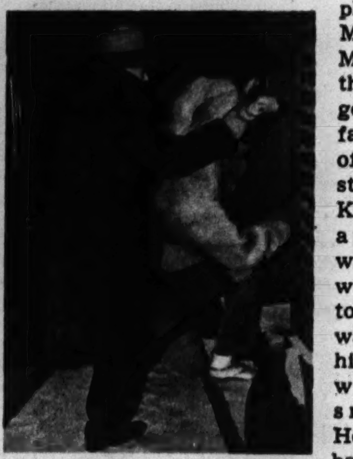
Hollywood.

WHEN YOU add up the sex appeal, acting ability, publicity value, leg art, press agent legends, modesty, hamminesss, and all the other qualities and faults with which movie folk are blessed or cursed, you come to the conclusion—or at least I do—that the most interesting creature out here is a dame with a mind of her own.

Garbo, Jean Arthur, Ginger Rogers—ladies like these make the most interesting stars. And high among them is Katharine Hepburn, a slender, quick-minded, marvelously photographable girl who in a comparatively short time has had spectacular ups and down on the stage and on the screen. Right now Katie, as those more intimate than I call her, is having a very fine set of ups.

In years gone by Hepburn frequently got a bad press because she told journalists to go jump in the lake. I always approved of this, because I think people do a deal too much fawning upon the press. Then once the press told Miss Hepburn to go jump in her own lake, and it was right.

She had appeared in a play called "The Lake," and it wasn't very good, but it was very pretentious. And her performance had the begollies kicked out of it. This was the time that Dorothy Parker said Miss Hepburn ran the gamut of emotions from A to B. Well, the fact that Katharine Hepburn had appeared in a not-so-good play was made too much of—because she was then, as she is now, a vivid person, and vivid persons succeed or fail in a memorable way.



Her leading man helps Hepburn dodge reporters at a Chicago theater.

The history of Miss Hepburn's "The Philadelphia Story" is a fascinating bit of theatrical legend, and it showed her to be a woman of fortitude and fine ability and admirable business sense. Her current film production, "Woman of the Year," is an engaging sequel to "The Philadelphia Story."

Let's start with "The Philadelphia" and get the whole thing in sequence. Before this play was produced Katharine had been in and out of Hollywood. She had become a great screen star with her first performance in "Bill of Divorcement." In 1933 she won an Academy award. Then she went out of Hollywood, and not too gradually.

Her Broadway career meanwhile had not been of shattering importance. Broadway first discovered she was vivid when she played the rôle of an Amazon gal with metal shin guards in "The Warrior's Husband," and shortly thereafter Hollywood took her in. By the time Jed Harris produced "The Lake" she was a national figure, and the heartbreak of this venture was all the greater because of her importance.

Lap-dissolve now to Philip Barry wanting to write a play for her and the Theater guild wanting to produce it. The play was "The Philadelphia Story." Miss Hepburn put up a third of the production, Barry a third, and the guild a third—more or less in each case. Only the income tax people know actual figures in a deal like this. Before the play opened Katharine Hepburn knew it was a good thing and knew it would be a honey for the movies, so she bought the screen rights to the comedy. Nowadays, under Authors' league-Dramatists' guild rules, you can't do this. You have to bid for screen rights in an open market after a play has started its Broadway run. But Katie wasn't handicapped by the rule, and she bought the thing in.

The comedy was a great hit. Critics and other Broadway smarties quickly gave Miss Hepburn credit for an excellent high comedy performance. Hollywood began bidding—but Hollywood didn't want Hepburn. One studio wanted the play as a vehicle for Ginger Rogers; another, I think, wanted it for Jean Arthur; a third sought it for somebody else. But Katie was holding the bag—and this time it was a bag full of money.

"I knew," she told me the other day, "that the movies would be wanting the play, but that they probably wouldn't be wanting me with it. And this was the case. For a while I was tempted to sell it on these terms. Then I got interested"—which meant that she had got her back up a bit—"and I decided to hold out."

Miss Hepburn finally sold screen rights to "The Philadelphia Story" to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer on terms that included a good but not fabulous amount of cash and the stipulation that Katharine would appear in it with a cast that was acceptable to her. The film was as great a hit as the play was, and it smacked Miss Hepburn right back in the ranks of top screen actresses. Last year's Academy award fell between her and Ginger Rogers. Ginger got it for "Kitty Foyle."

But Miss Hepburn didn't repeat "The Philadelphia Story" formula. She switched to another business feat. Naturally M-G-M wanted her for another picture, and naturally she wanted to make another. She looked at some 30 story properties belonging or offered to the studio, but none seemed quite right.

Lap-dissolve now to two young writers, Ring Lardner Jr. and Michael Kanin.

Ring and Mike had an idea for a movie story—an idea about a roughneck sports reporter being married to a high-thinking, world-minded female columnist. It was just an idea, but one night they told Mike's brother, Garson Kanin, about it. Garson, a young prodigy director, now a sergeant at Fort Monmouth, N. J., has been reported to have great affection for Miss Hepburn; and Gar knew that Katharine was looking for a screen story. He suggested that the boys knock out an outline of their yarn and send it to the lady. They sent her a synopsis, and she liked it; and she told the studio about it.

The studio played cagey. Miss Hepburn said, "We'll give you the first 60 pages of the shooting script." And, working long hours for four or five days, Ring Lardner Jr., Michael Kanin, Garson Kanin, and the indomitable Katharine talked up and wrote even more than 60 pages of shooting script. Katharine claims she had nothing to do with this writing, because she can't write; but anyhow the copy was turned in and the studio said O.K.

Miss Hepburn then set a price. She wanted $211,000 for "Woman of the Year." One newspaper yarn about the deal said that this was a number that just happened to pop into her head, but it didn't just pop. The Hepburn head works carefully. Two hundred eleven thousand dollars would give Mike and Ring $100,000, herself $100,000, her agent the usual 10 per cent cut on her hundred, and leave $1,000 over for phone calls and incidentals. Not for nothing was Katharine Hepburn born in New England.

Miss Hepburn also set another condition. She wanted Spencer Tracy for her leading man. Fortunately, Spence's "The Yearling" had folded on account of various troubles and he was available. Fortunately, too, he liked the story and was also willing to tackle Miss Hepburn. And even more fortunately yet, Tracy, one of the most important stars and one of the best actors in the movie business, is a good guy.

Miss Hepburn had one more stipulation. She wanted George Stevens, who was not an M-G-M director, to direct the picture. And she got him. In recent weeks Katharine, Spence, and George have been making "Woman of the Year," and their set has been one of the pleasanter places to visit. Each of the three respects the other two. George, a rather quiet soul, lets the other two personalities bounce off each other; and the Hepburn-Tracy clash has been good fun. Each makes an elaborate gag of one being a star and the other just an extra.

Miss Hepburn likes the stage, not in a patronizing way, but because she thinks she can learn how to act on it. When "Woman of the Year" is finished she will high-tail it back to New York to appear with the Theater guild in another high comedy. She wouldn't tell me what it was or who had written it, but I'll bet that she again has a piece of the production and enough strings on the movie rights so that her next Hollywood venture will be set up the way she wants it.

Katharine is a good business woman so far as making deals goes, and has no manager; but she is a bad business woman with her money after she gets it. She used to spend all she

The Ghost That Walked Too Often

● This is another factual but fictionized adventure in the life of a HOTEL DETECTIVE—the case of an unusual prowler.

By LLOYD WENDT

"We get a call from a woman who said her room had been prowled. She saw the robber." (Tribune Studio photos.)

MR. JONES, the room clerk, dropped the receiver and looked at it reprovingly. Then he called out softly: "Mr. McGrath. O, Mr. McGrath!"

"Yeah, Jonesy," responded the house officer, "what's the trouble?"

"Mr. W., in 723," said Jones. "I guess you had better go up and talk to him. He has just seen a ghost."

"A ghost?" McGrath chuckled. "That's funny. Mr. W. ain't a drinking man."

. . . .

Mr. W. was quite nonchalant, but firm, about it.

"I just thought you ought to know, McGrath," he said. "I'm not psychic, nor given to drink, nor bad dreams. But I definitely did see the white face of a woman, and tangled hair, and wide staring eyes peering thru my transom, which I like to keep wide open. McGrath, a woman's face has got no business at my transom!"

"Did you open the door?" asked McGrath.

"Certainly, as quickly as I could. But there was nothing there at all. Not a trace."

McGrath opened the door himself. He gazed thoughtfully at the ceiling, considering whether it would be possible for the reflection of a woman's face to somehow carom to the lowered transom. That was ou* "No woman could look intu your transom without standing on something," he said.

"She wouldn't have time to pick up a stool or chair," Mr. W. replied. "At least I don't think she would. I ran to the door as fast as I could. Of course the face disappeared the moment I saw it. . . ."

Mr. W.'s telephone rang. He answered and handed it to McGrath. "For you," he said.

It was Jones.

"Mr. McGrath!" he cried. "That ghost! A lady has seen it in 923!"

"Where the devil is Tillotson?" asked McGrath.

"We can't locate him," Jones replied. "I've had the maids looking everywhere. He's disappeared. And the girls know something's wrong. They're scared. You've got to do something!"

"I'll get right up there," McGrath promised. "Send up Urbham. We've got to get to the bottom of this."

Mrs. C. in 923 was almost hysterical.

"I saw her in my door!" she cried. "I opened it to leave the room, and then went back to get some things. I thought I heard or felt something at the door. I turned around. There was a tall, strange looking creature! Her face was deathly white. She wore a long black coat. Her mouth was very large and red. She seemed to me just like a skeleton draped with clothes. I screamed, and she disappeared. I ran to the door and closed it, and then called the office."

McGrath soothed the lady and then inspected the doorway. He could find nothing, but thought he detected a faint trace of perfume. He returned to the room and sniffed experimentally. There was no such scent inside.

"Anyhow," he said cheerfully, "this ghost is wearing perfume. She's a prowler. She won't hurt you, but keep your door locked and put your valuables in the house safe. I . . ." He was interrupted by the telephone.

"I'll take it," he said quickly. He didn't want Mrs. C. to suffer any more excitement.

"This is McGrath," he answered. It was Jones again, as he expected.

"Williams!" Jones was shouting. "Williams just called from 11. He thought he saw a strange looking woman in the corridor. He went after her and she disappeared."

"Jones, get every man in the place on the job," McGrath directed. "Tell the watchmen to let no one out. Call the police detail. What corridor was she in?"

"East wing."

"That's the twenties. Looks like this dame is after all the 23 rooms in the house. Get the men in from the annex, and any other help you can get over in a hurry. We'll need a man on every floor. Tell 'em to check the 23 rooms first thing. Watch the stairways, and make sure that no woman slips out."

McGrath left Urbham with Mrs. C. and went himself to 823, where the guests had seen nothing unusual; 623, which was empty, and finally to 523. Still no sign of Tillotson.

The guest in 523 was out. McGrath took a quick look about and was preparing to leave when he thought he heard a noise in the closet.

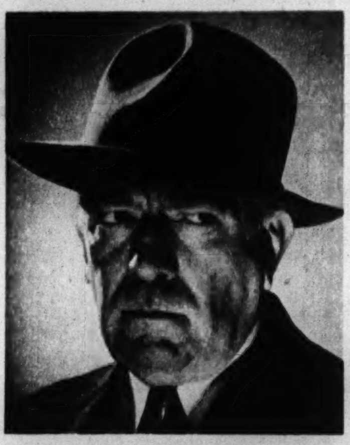
He turned the key and opened the door. There was Tillotson, bound and gagged, and half covered by the clothing he had pulled down in a struggle to free himself.

McGrath tugged him out, untied him, and helped him rise. Tillotson had a big purple bump above his right eye, and a trickle of blood from a small wound had dried on his cheek. He shook himself and loosed a string of oaths.

"Where is she?" he demanded. "Did you get her?"

"Get who?"

"A woman in a long black



He was preparing to leave when he thought he heard a noise.

coat, with a white face, like it was covered with corn starch. I came on her prowling this room. I wasn't sure that she didn't belong here for a minute, and I was just that much too slow. I guess she clouted me. I was out for a little. When I came to I was all tied up and almost smothering in that damned closet."

"She's working every 23 room in the house," McGrath said. "She must be on the upper floors now. Williams saw her on 11. Come on."

McGrath left Tillotson on 12 and went himself to 13. There was no response at 1323 and McGrath let himself in. The room doubtless had been prowled, but McGrath did not know, of course, whether anything had been taken.

He called the office. "Who's in 1323?" he asked. "Mr. Joseph G.," he was told.

"What's he do?"

"He's a merchant. Just came in last night."

"Somebody's been in his room. Did he check anything at the desk? . . . Never mind that right now. Give me the names and occupations of every one in 23 rooms above the 13th."

The first name was the one McGrath thought he wanted. "Mr. F., 1423. Jewelry salesman. Carries bags of samples. . . ."

"I'm on my way to 1423," McGrath said. "Send up some help."

On the 14th floor McGrath saw no one. He hurried to room 1423, but checked his speed en route to look behind him.

A black form dashed out from a service closet. McGrath went after it. He knew he had found his ghost.

Apparition or woman, the creature was amazingly fast. She sped down the stairway, turned abruptly, fled thru a corridor on 12, and then disappeared to the right. McGrath came up just in time to glimpse her flitting down the stairway to 11.

He shouted and heard answering voices on the floor below. When he arrived, breathless, Williams had tackled the woman and was struggling with her on the floor.

McGrath joined the fight. He grasped the prisoner by the hair and a thick black wig came off in his hands.

Jerry (Skinny) Zlescko was a sorry sight when the detectives finished with him. Mascara and lipstick were smeared about his paper white face; his black coat and the dress beneath it, and his ingeniously contrived upholstery beneath that, were ripped and disheveled, and both high heels had snapped off. Skinny sat up moaning.

"What a get-up," said McGrath. "You ought to get 20 years for that alone, providing you live after Tillotson sees you."

"Don't let him see me!" pleaded Skinny.

"I thought you were working New York," said McGrath.

"New York ain't healthy," Skinny explained.

"Why didn't you go to F.'s room in the first place?" McGrath asked.

"Hoh! Smart guy!" said Skinny. "You ain't got nothin' on me. All I get is 10 days for impersonatin' a woman. I don't know nothin' about no Mr. F."

The dragged Skinny toward the elevators to await the hotel detail from the police department.

"Listen," McGrath said. "We don't need to have anything on you, anything besides prowling and assault and battery. Back in New York they'll put you away for a long while—for that jewelry snatch. I told you to stay out of Chicago. You knew F. carries his samples with him. Fifty thousand bucks' worth. You knew he had one of the 23 rooms, but you didn't know just which one. So you prowled 'em all. We just saved $50,000 by catching up with you."

"Smart guy, aintcha?" said Skinny.

"What I want to know," said McGrath, "is why you wanted to scare everybody to death and bring down the whole house on you by painting up like a voodoo witch doctor?"

Skinny rubbed the blue stubble of his chin. "That's powder," he said aggrievedly. "An' it wasn't a bad job before you messed it up. I coulda had three dates t'night."

McGrath and Tillotson, working in different parts of the hotel, could take dinner together. Had they been on the same shift, a half hour must elapse between the time one returned and the other left, for the hotel management makes sure that the guests in any part of the house will not be for one moment unguarded. Tillotson had his wound treated by the house physician and was feeling better.

"You know," said McGrath, chewing largely on a chunk of steak, "if I had been thinking I'd have known that prowler was either Skinny Zlescko or Harry Wilson. They're the only guys in the business who could pull themselves up by the transom bar for a peek into a room.

"I remember one time before I came here, when I was working down the street. We get a call from a woman who said her room had been prowled. She saw the robber go into the bathroom.

"We went up. This prowler had got into the bathroom by swinging from the fire escape to the window ledge and then squeezing thru a window space only 15 inches wide. He did it, too, without disturbing some things lying on the window sill.

"We knew there is only one fellow in the world who could do that: Harry Wilson. You know how long his arms are, and he can climb like a monkey.

"Well, we figured we might trail him, because there was a light flurry of snow, and he would have to leave tracks on the roof.

"We climbed out, and, sure enough, there were the tracks on the roof of the adjoining building. Harry, if it was Harry, had gone toward the back of the building to climb down, and we knew he'd wind up in a blind alley.

"We'd taken our guns with us when we went up on the complaint, so we went after him. Jack M. was with me. We climbed down the south side of the building so Harry couldn't see us, and made for the alley. We figured if he hadn't been too much in a hurry we could head him off.

"When we got down I saw somebody heading toward us. He'd evidently gone to the end of the alley and discovered he couldn't get out that way. Those prowlers always make some kind of a mistake sooner or later.

"I yelled to the fellow to halt. He ducked behind a row of garbage cans or something and then started shooting. Jack and I came out shooting. Trouble is, we have a little light on us, and Harry is in the dark. I heard Jack groan, and down he went. I kept coming in, and Harry fired his last shot. Then he came out with his hands up.

"Jack had a leg wound and I made Harry help him back to the hotel. We found the stuff from the woman's room on Harry, worth about $18. For that and shooting Jack he got a year in prison. But, anyhow, he'd learned to stay out of Chicago. Haven't seen him since, but I was scared for a minute tonight that he was with us again."

McGrath soothed the lady. He was interrupted by the telephone.

Time was when a hotel prowler could earn a living wage in reasonable safety. Once, during the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago, a gang, tipped off that a newly opened wing of a hotel was without guards, worked undisturbed thru an entire night and cleaned out every one of 150 rooms. But those nights are gone.

A few years ago, under the leadership of Conrad Armquist, the house detectives of Chicago formed the Greater Chicago Hotel House Officers' association to devise better methods for fighting hotel criminals. The association asked the police department for a bigger hotel detail and got it. The officers arranged to use the hotel teletype, a private communication system linking the larger houses, to quickly relay information about suspicious looking guests, and to call for aid when a prowler is at large. They began holding regular meetings to exchange information and discuss new police methods.

At one time each hotel staff of house officers worked alone. Now when the staff of one hotel sends out the message, "I've got a prowl," officers are sent from every hotel in his district to help trap the thief. These officers are required to report to the hotel being prowled and to remain there until the depredations end, or the prowler is captured.

Once a man is seized he no longer is booked and immediately released to go back to work. He is held for the police show-up, where all victims of prowlers can look him over, and his record is thoroly checked. Nothing under a habeas corpus can get him out until he has gone thru the entire police routine. As a result of the new methods, which are equally effective against other types of criminals who work hotels, Chicago is almost completely free of such prowlers.

"No other city in the country can equal our record," says Armquist, president of the House Officers' association. "We have chased out the prowler and the pickpocket. The police department gives us the very best coöperation. Our association is alive and trying to improve house officers' work at all times. Hotel management is 100 per cent for our efforts. We've finally ended what used to be a rather trying situation, and other cities are now copying Chicago."

But sometimes even yet an occasional prowler can cause the house officer a lot of trouble and embarrassment. He seldom lasts long, but he's a great worry while he's about.

"I remember once when I was working with Willie P.," McGrath recalled. "We got complaints of a p. m. prowler, one who works afternoons, you know. This one would victimize guests taking a nap or a bath. Didn't get much in each haul, but it was very annoying.

"Willie and I decided we'd set a trap. We each took a room on one of the floors being worked. I went to my room, put out a few bills and some silver and my watch on the bureau, and then I laid down on the bed. I was at an angle so I could look into the mirror and see, without moving, anything that went on in the room.

"If you want a tough job some time, just try lying in bed pretending you're asleep, but yet keeping alert, for two hours at a time. I had a hard time holding my eyes open, but I kept at it, and nothing happened. Finally I decided that nothing was going to happen.

"I got up, collected my things, and went to see how Willie was doing. He had left the door of his room slightly open and I went in. I heard some loud snores, and there was Willie, sleeping like a baby. All the bait he had put on the bureau was gone.

"Willie woke up when I came in, and he was fit to be tied. I thought he was going to tear the whole room to pieces. Honestly, I've never seen a guy so mad before in my life. Willie swore he'd get that prowler if it was the last thing he ever did.

"Out in the hall Willie found a pawn ticket. It was one of those on which the pawner signs his name, real or otherwise. There are lots of guests who might lose a pawn ticket, but Willie figured this was fate finally giving him a break. We had suspected some of the new help, and Willie took the pawn ticket and some samples of their handwriting down to the police crime detection laboratory, and they put it under the comparison microscope.

"Sure enough, the ticket belonged to one of the scrubwomen. We checked the pawnshop, where she had given a phony name and address, recovered the loot, and grabbed the woman. She'd been working the racket in the east for years, and managed to get a job in our hotel despite the precautions the management takes.

"Well, sir, I never again expect to see a man as pleased as Willie was when he grabbed that woman. He's the best advocate of scientific crime detection we've got."

SECRETS OF A BEAUTY SHOP

polish, they usually follow it. They're grateful for any improvement the operator can effect.

"But some customers are cranks, and you can't please them. They're usually the kind who break appointments at the last minute, too. I wish women would realize that when they cancel an appointment for a permanent at the last minute, they've knocked the operator out of a half day's work. It's really hard on both the girl and the shop. And if a customer comes in 15 minutes late she throws her girl off schedule for the whole day. The result is that every one is cross, and the customer just simply can't get the best possible treatment."

Some customers love to pry into the private lives of the operators. What they learn depends on the mood of the girl.

A few tales of Rabelaisian proportions have thus come out of the beauty shops, but there is apparently nothing but lurid imagination behind them.

"It's funny," said Marie, "how some customers like to cheat the shop. They'll whisper to the girl to throw in something extra without charging for it, while the owner isn't looking. Then, invariably, they'll tip us more than the 'thrown in' treatment would cost. But it makes 'em feel good to think they're getting away with something, and we like to please them. The owner knows perfectly well what we're doing.

"You know, we're really proud of the trust the customers place in us. I think it's good for a woman to get her troubles off her chest. And we learn lots of things from many of them, about books, plays, music. We like to have a woman talk; it's easier to work with her, and if she's talking she won't smoke so many cigarets. But some of the stories! That play, 'The Women,' was a gem of understatement."

Etta married, and sold her shop when the baby was coming. Marie had the first opportunity to buy it, but she wasn't ready to settle down. She had more than two years of experience and she could get work in a good salon at a good salary. She couldn't understand Etta quitting for good. More than half the 16,000 beauty operators in Chicago are married, and many have children.

Marie found a place in a bigger shop. Pay, including tips, averaged $35 a week, altho tipping is not prevalent in most shops. She and Marion, another operator, took an apartment together and lived elegantly. There was money for riding, an occasional opera and play, and all the books they wanted . . . the shop movie magazines get tiresome.

Marie had boy friends north, enough to share with Marion, and the girls had little time or inclination to meet the men in the neighborhood where they lived.

"They're too pretty, most I've seen," said Marie. "Remind me of some of the boys in beauty school. I remember one! He used to bring in a pal for hair bleaches; and for Christmas he gave him a permanent wave! Course, there are some men in the beauty business who can lick their weight in wildcats, but they're more likely to go around with a customer than an operator."

There is a definite threat that men will invade the beauty shop, just as women parachuted into the barber shops a few years ago. Already some salons in the east have started the practice of men's night every Thursday, and some shops have added a men's annex. Mostly men want scalp treatments, but many require facials and manicures, and a few even get waves or permanents. You'd be surprised at the number of men who have their hair dyed.

Flowers for Football

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate, Inc.)

IF YOU are one of the lucky girls who rate invitations to a big game it should be a challenge to make the most of your good looks on the red letter day, whether your escort is a uniformed beau on long-awaited leave, a college rooter, or Friend Husband.

Fresh flowers and casual sport clothes are basic essentials of the stadium fashion parade. And, as every beauty-wise woman should know, a dramatic entrance amid the confusion of the football special train and the cheering section calls for extra large corsages and bright-hued costume accents, in winning colors, of course. Whether the man in your life wires you flowers to wear on the football special or calls in person to motor you to the game, you owe it to yourself and to him to give concentrated thought to wearing your flowers where they'll do the most for your personal style of good looks.

Designed for special glamor at the big game crowd is this extra-size muff corsage of fragrant carnations in new come-apart style.

Matching corsages of gladioli decorated with loops of their own foliage are a thoughtful reward to mother for her role as chaperon.

For perfect grooming you should choose your lipstick with an eye to complementing, not quarreling with, your flowers. If the blossoms you wear to the stadium are purple orchids, a lipstick with a bluish red tinge will be most flattering. If pink roses or the pinkish daisy type chrysanthemums are used for your big game corsage, it's smart beauty technique to use a lighter shade of lipstick.

If your uniformed beau sends you one of the new patriotic corsages of red, white, and blue flowers, blue eye shadow will add an extra bit of glamor.

If you haven't already studied the strategy of fresh flower drama, by all means do a little experimenting before you sally forth to the big game parade. If you're the lucky possessor of one of the large-sized fur muffs you'll find it a particularly effective background for your extra-size stadium corsage of chrysanthemums, orchids, gardenias, or dahlias.

This fall florists are giving the classic giant chrysanthemum an extra plus of drama by manipulating the natural leaves and using sumptuous colored streamers. The teaming of chrysanthemums with exotically marked croton leaves is another new beauty trick. It's even worth while educating out-of-town beaux, because all the new styles in fresh flowers may be wired anywhere in the country.

Whether the hat you choose for the big game is one of the gay young stocking caps, a demure cloche, a profile brim, or a chin-swatching turban, you can count on fresh flowers to give the extra touch of distinction a red letter day requires. But pin the flowers with an eye to accenting your best features. You can transfer your posies into a headdress later on if you go "formal" to a victory dance. Lapel corsages give drama to your fur jacket, whether it's opossum sheared beaver, opulent mink, or dyed muskrat, and you can transfer them to the neckline of your frock for the tea-dance after the game. The come-apart corsages the florists are featuring are especially designed for popular belles who want to achieve maximum visibility in the stadium style parade and subtler allure with the same flowers later on when the tea-dancing begins.

Here the come-apart stadium corsage of fresh carnations is doing party duty as twin epaulets after the game when the dance band strikes up.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, one of our country's outstanding statesmen of all time, was born Jan. 11, 1757, on the island of Nevis in the West Indies. His early education was received on the island of St. Croix, where he also was employed while a boy as a clerk in a counting house.

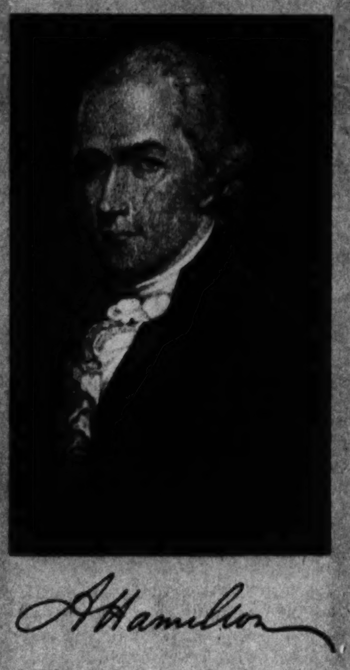
At the age of 15 he was scholarly far beyond his years, and some of his friends, impressed by his talents, made it possible for him to complete his education in the colonies of the mainland. Some time in October, 1772, he arrived in New York. Placed in a secondary school at Elizabethtown, N. J., he displayed remarkable gifts as a pupil and soon was ready for King's college (now Columbia university).

In 1775, while still a student, Hamilton joined a volunteer corps of militia of the city of New York and proceeded to study military tactics. On March 14 of the following year he was appointed captain of a New York artillery company, and as such saw action in the fighting on Long Island and at the battle of White Plains. It was in the last-named engagement that he attracted the attention of General Washington. He was at Trenton and at Princeton, and on March 1, 1777, Washington selected him as his aide-de-camp, with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

From then on until early in 1781 Hamilton was Washington's principal, most confidential, and almost constant adviser. Later he obtained thru Washington a field command and won distinction at Yorktown, where he led the American troops that captured the first redoubt of the British works.

After the war he turned to law and was admitted to the bar of the New York Supreme court in 1782, the same year that saw him elected to congress. He served only one year as a national representative. As a delegate to the Annapolis convention in 1786 he supported James Madison in persuading the convention to exceed its delegated powers and call the federal convention of 1787 in Philadelphia. He himself drafted the summons. His services in the Philadelphia convention were of immense value. Altho at first he favored an elective executive of life tenure, with power to appoint the states' governors, and an upper house of congress chosen for life on a property basis, toward the close of the convention he altered his opinions in these respects. One of his final propositions was that the President should serve for only three years.

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



When the constitution that had been adopted by the convention was submitted to the people, Hamilton, in association with Madison and John Jay, began publication of a series of essays under the signature "Publius" in explanation and vindication of the principles of the government. These essays form the two volumes of that famous and immortal work, "The Federalist." The essays totaled 85. Jay wrote 5, Madison about 20, and Hamilton the rest.

After the constitution had been ratified by the requisite number of states it went into operation in the course of the year 1789, and when the treasury department was established Hamilton was placed at its head as secretary. He remained in this office upward of five years, resigning in January, 1795, after having built up and placed on secure foundations the fiscal concerns of the nation. It was while he was serving as secretary of the treasury that Hamilton advised Washington on the wisdom of this country remaining neutral during the war between Great Britain and France. He was a strong advocate of neutrality, and assisted Washington in carrying out his policy of keeping clear of foreign entanglements.

On his retirement from public life Hamilton returned to his law practice. He still remained, however, an appreciated adviser of Washington, notably in the crisis arising as the result of the Jay treaty with Great Britain. Altho Washington himself wrote his celebrated "Farewell Address," it was Hamilton who dressed it up in clear and concise language.

In the spring of 1798 it appeared that the depredations of France upon the commerce of this country might compel America to go to war. Hamilton at this crisis published a series of articles under the signature "Titus Manlius," with a view of rousing the people to the impending danger. On the recommendation of Washington he was appointed inspector general of the small American army created to face the French in the event of war.

Aaron Burr early in 1804 was proposed at Albany as a candidate for governor of New York. Hamilton publicly objected to the nomination on the grounds that Burr was unsafe and unfit for the office. The following summer, after Burr had lost the election, he challenged Hamilton to a duel. The two met on the morning of July 11, 1804. Hamilton was mortally wounded and died the next day.

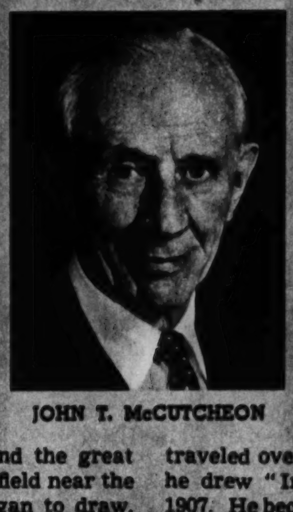
IT WAS one of those warm, hazy afternoons of autumn, when the leaves are red and golden, the bright cheeks of pumpkins gleam among the corn rows, and irresistible nostalgia overcomes those lucky people born on the farms of the great midwest. John T. McCutcheon, world-traveled cartoonist and correspondent for The Chicago Tribune, sat dreaming over his drawing board, remembering the husky, lush twilights of his boyhood in such a season on the family farm in Tippecanoe county, Indiana. He recalled the stories of Indian lore he had heard in his youth, remembered the old Tecumseh trail and the great Tippecanoe battlefield near the farm—and he began to draw.



JOHN T. McCUTCHEON

Mr. McCutcheon's cartoon for The Tribune of Sept. 30, 1907, was "Injun Summer," a classic of newspaper art. The original is now on exhibition at the Chicago Historical society.

The Tribune found that thousands of readers had the same warm yearning for the country when the sun is soft after an early frost and there is a smell of burning leaves in the air. At the request of an appreciative public "Injun Summer" has been republished each autumn year after year, recently in color.

"I started getting material for that cartoon when I was 3 or 4 years old," Mr. McCutcheon said. "I was born in a farmhouse on a gentle hilltop eight miles south of Lafayette. It was surrounded by cornfields. Not far away, on the banks of the Wabash, was the site of the Indian village of Ouiatenon. Six or eight miles up the river was the battlefield of Tippecanoe.

"It was in the early '70s. The newspapers that occasionally reached us were full of Indian warfare in the west, culminating in the Custer massacre.

"Upon all sides then suggestions of Indians and Indian warfare were always present. The early fall saw the tasseled rows of corn like the waving spears of Indians, and a little later came the corn shocks, so much like tepees in the smoky haze of Indian summer. Undoubtedly in my boyish imagination all these things were registering."

Altho he had not been outside Indiana until he was 18, Mr. McCutcheon had traveled over the world before he drew "Injun Summer" in 1907. He became cartoonist for The Tribune in 1903, and two years later made his first trip to Europe. In 1897 he started on a six months' world cruise, but at Hongkong he joined Admiral Dewey's fleet and was a volunteer at the battle of Manila. He reported the Spanish-American war, the Filipino insurrection, and the Boer war in Africa before returning to Chicago three years later.

Other famous cartoons and cartoon-story series by Mr. McCutcheon in addition to "Injun Summer" are "The Colors," printed at the outbreak of the World war and reprinted many times since; "Jack Frost," "The Hunter's Moon," "The Rhyme of the Restless Rover," "The Ballad of the Beautiful Words," "Congressman Pumphrey, the People's Friend," "An Heir at Large," and "The Master of the World." He won the Pulitzer prize for cartoons in 1931.

The Morgan boys are getting their weekly allowance, having put their miners' wages into the common cash box. "Yours first, Ivor," says Mr. Morgan (Donald Crisp). Carleton Knights and Days

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE MEN'S APPAREL shops in Northfield, Minn., are doing a whale of a business this year. Not because the man students at Carleton college there are any less loyal to their dirty corduroys and sloppy socks, but because the co-eds have decided that men's clothes have glamor—for girls.

As a group Carleton college girls are extremely feminine. They don't wear slacks on campus nor smoke right out in plain sight. They are distinguished, we'd say, for their well brushed, well coiffed hair and carefully tended nails. But, maybe to point up their very femininity, it suits their current fancy to cloak their nice young figures in boxy, square-shouldered jackets, men's lumberjack shirts, and voluminous men's sweaters in heavy wool, plaid or plain, with clumsy V necks.

This is part whimsy and part practicality. Carleton college is a physical and cultural gem set in rather cold Minnesota prairie. During most of the school year there is chill in the wind that sweeps over its 800 acres, glorified by superb buildings and inspired landscaping. Outdoor activities are an essential part of the college life, and there is the necessity to keep warm. Riding is popular, and there are athletic fields for both the men and the women. In winter skiing and skating are the favorite diversions.

This fall two freshmen, Bobbie Friedman and Roxane Cowles, who live off the campus at Dean Lodge, have introduced roller skates as a means of transportation. Bobbie, who is as brunette as her side-kick is blonde, throws the place into confusion occasionally by wearing a long, flowing wig that matches her own short Tahitian hair. It amuses her to have short hair one day and long the next. There are more three-inch haircuts at Carleton than at many schools, incidentally. Sophomore Gracia Mattson of Evanston has a particularly attractive short bob for her soft blonde hair. Dinks are very popular, which is as it should be, since good hair seems to be an outstanding characteristic of the Carleton girl.

The enrollment of a little more than 800 is about evenly divided between boys and girls, and one of the most interesting attributes of the school is the fun the students have. Northfield is a small city and a dry one and by big-city standards could be dull; but without exception Carleton students will tell you that they enjoy every minute in and out of classes. For a flat yearly fee—and a small one—every student may participate in the many social affairs, which means, as the students say, that "money doesn't make any difference at Carleton."

The Carleton girls are well dressed, with an appreciation of well cut suits and coats in quality materials. They like warm reversibles, with and without hoods, that zip up snugly, and they like mittens so well it is no hardship for the freshmen to wear their woolly green ones, as they must until Christmas. Monogrammed socks, dickies, and blouses are popular, too, not only because they circumvent the casual borrowing that is one of the trials of life in the women's residence hall but because they're chic.

HOW TO END this Important Cause of TOOTH INJURY

STOP CUTTING CAVITIES LIKE THIS IN THE EXPOSED, SOFT PART OF YOUR TEETH BY CHANGING TO LIQUID DENTIFRICE—IT CLEANS TEETH UTTERLY WITHOUT ABRASIVES

Illustrating injury when soft part of tooth is exposed. No gum or hard enamel protects it. 8 out of 10 adults examined risk this damage.

Millions Are Risking This Injury—

Be Safe! Brush Your Teeth the Liquid Way

New Liquid Dentifrice Cannot Injure Teeth—Contains No Abrasives

TODAY millions of people are unknowingly causing serious damage to their teeth—by regular brushing with dentifrices containing abrasives.

Gradually, as months go by, these abrasives cut cavities into the soft part of teeth along the gum line exposed by shrinking gums, where there is no hard enamel to protect them.

In fact, among people who brush their teeth regularly, a very large percentage of all cavities along the gum line that require filling are probably the result of this injury. This was shown by a clinical study in a leading dental journal.

Disclosed by Scientific Research

These startling facts were recently confirmed by scientific research. Eminent independent scientists made laboratory toothbrushing tests with a number of dentifrices containing abrasives. Every one cut cavities into the soft part of the teeth.

In the same manner, these scientists tested the new liquid dentifrice—Teel. In no case did Teel injure the teeth in any way, because Teel contains absolutely no abrasives of any kind.

How Teel Reveals Beauty of Your Smile

Teel doesn't use abrasives for cleansing. Instead, it contains a newly-discovered, patented cleansing agent that's almost magic-like in the way it helps reveal natural whiteness and beauty of your teeth. It isn't soap, yet multiplies into thousands of tiny bubbles.

These active bubbles amazingly help remove the daily accumulation of decaying food particles and dulling surface film. Thus your teeth look so much whiter, more thrillingly beautiful. They "feel" satin-smooth—your mouth gloriously refreshed.

MAKE THIS TEST

to tell if your dentifrice contains an abrasive!

Tonight, put some of your favorite dentifrice in a glass of water and stir. Let it stand overnight. When you see a white sediment in the bottom of the glass, you know your dentifrice contains an abrasive. Teel, however, leaves no sediment, proving it contains no abrasives whatever which could injure exposed soft part of your teeth.

Start This Safe Liquid Way Today

Naturally, you want to save your teeth from this injury. If, however, you feel that your teeth need an abrasive scouring, at least occasionally, follow special directions on the Teel package.

Get Teel at any drug, department or 10¢ store. And see your dentist regularly for his professional advice.

Arnold—Remorseless Traitor

HISTORIANS have speculated for more than 150 years on the reasoning that led Benedict Arnold, perhaps the most impetuous leader of troops in the American revolution, to sell himself, his soul, and his services to the British for cash.

Carl Van Doren's new "Secret History of the American Revolution," one of the most fascinating works in a decade, removes most of the grounds for guesswork about the Arnold-André conspiracy. It depicts Arnold, on manifest facts drawn from hitherto unpublished manuscripts, as the "Iago of traitors"; as one with hardly a redeeming facet in his character. If he ever repented of his treachery, Van Doren has found no trace of the remorse in a tremendous job of research.

Among the facts related are:

1. Arnold on his own volition inaugurated negotiations for his sale at a great price.

2. He bargained bitterly for the amount he was to receive, and his insistence on having the deal acknowledged personally by André cost that accomplished Englishman his life.

3. Arnold's wife, Peggy Shippen Arnold, was a party to the conspiracy from its beginning a month after their marriage, and may have known of it before the ceremony. Her previous acquaintance with André was a great aid in the negotiations.

4. Arnold deliberately pulled wires to get the command at West Point, that he might surrender that fortress and its garrison to Sir Henry Clinton for £20,000, which Clinton had offered.

5. The archtraitor tried to obtain from patriot generals, including Lafayette, the names of their spies operating within British lines—an attempt that was not successful.

Nothing in the book is more interesting than the arrangements under which Arnold, as military governor of Philadelphia, and the adjutant general of the British forces in America, stationed in New York, carried on their correspondence. The communications went thru two poets, not very good poets, one in Philadelphia, carefully nursing a china shop, and the other in New York, eking out a narrow living as chaplain to a unit of British troops (he was also a clergyman and a physician of sorts).

The poets, with the help of the engaging Major André, engaged messengers to carry their letters, which were usually in cipher or a strange sort of double talk in which innocent looking references to commercial transactions or the social activities of mutual acquaintances were actually discussions of the proposed bargain. The old invisible ink trick was resorted to, and André suggested secret marks by which the recipient of a letter would know whether to use heat or acid to bring out the hidden message.

Arnold's first demand—and he called in the Philadelphia poet to transmit it—was for £10,000. That was in May of 1779. Thereafter a number of names were used as aliases for Arnold in the correspondence, among them "Monk," "Mr. Moore," and "Gustavus." The first supposedly represented the desire of Arnold to draw a parallel between his case and that of the British general who changed sides and placed Charles II. on his throne after Cromwell's death.

Clinton was properly averse to committing himself to a large payment to Arnold unless he could render services to his majesty's government actually worth the money. He would be generous in the case of failure to produce results, he said, but would pay handsomely for a blow crushing to American arms and morale.

Van Doren relates how André informed the traitor that Clinton would consider 2 guineas a head the right amount to pay for all the American soldiers Arnold could contrive to have caught in some planned trap by the British.

Mrs. Arnold's part in the plot is discussed in some detail, and the history shows that she must have known virtually all her husband did. Letters and verbal messages passed thru her hands to the general, and the British acknowledged her services later with a grant of money. It can only be assumed that this woman, a mere girl at the time of her marriage, was tremendously grasping. At last it has been shown that Washington, Lafayette, and Hamilton, who were convinced of her innocence, were wrong, and that the villainous Aaron Burr, who accused her later of guilt in the matter, was actually right.

The "Secret History" displays step by step the progress of Arnold's crime, as well as its results. The failure to turn West Point over to the British (a matter more of chance favoring the Americans than of illogical plotting) is evaluated as one of the important factors that in the end won a free America.

Arnold is followed in his headlong flight after André was captured. His career as a British general warring on his own people is not glossed over, nor his orotund proclamations urging others to follow his example, a plea that met with little sympathy. Indeed, it is believed to have strengthened the great majority in their fight to throw off the British yoke.

It may be significant that the archtraitor, like all of his ilk, justified his own treachery by high-minded words while demanding the money and the promised honors that really actuated him in making his switch of allegiance. Any reader of history should be entranced by Van Doren's picture of the ways of traitors and the people who hired them.

Emma Trentini as Marietta in 1910.

"Naughty Marietta" Lives Again!

W-G-N and the Mutual network will present "Naughty Marietta" as the feature of the Chicago Theater of the Air program Saturday night, Nov. 1, at 8:45.

IN THE DECADE after its establishment in 1718 New Orleans was a French colony of rude cabins and muddy, unpaved streets, set in a thick, swampy forest. Many of the Frenchmen who had helped to settle it were from the upper classes. But its female population, like that of most frontier towns, was largely far from respectable.

Not long after the establishment of New Orleans many of the men, missing their home life, threatened to go back to France. If the threat were to be fulfilled the chances of the town's survival would be slim indeed. So when Jean Baptiste Le Moyne, sieur de Bienville, the founder of the city, returned to France in 1724 he promised to send a shipload of women who would provide good wives for the settlers.

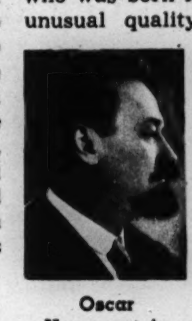
The first stipulated shipment arrived three years later. The women were referred to as casket girls (filles à la cassette), partly because they were individually supplied with dowries borne in small boxes or cassettes, and partly because the dowry came from the royal purse, likewise known as a cassette. They were placed under the care of some Ursuline nuns who had established a convent in New Orleans in the year of the girls' arrival, 1727.

This interesting minor incident in America's history has provided the story for what is widely considered Victor Herbert's most satisfactory and certainly the most frequently revived of his many light operas. Librettist Rida Johnson Young took one of these young women, Marietta D'Altena, as the fictional heroine of her story and put her thru a series of complicated but amusing escapades. In due time, of course, Marietta finds her man—a young American officer, Capt. Richard Warrington.

When "Naughty Marietta" was first produced at the New York theater in New York on Nov. 7, 1910, Oscar Hammerstein, the producer, drew his leading players from his own famous Manhattan Opera company, Emma Trentini and Orville Harrold.

Emma Trentini was a small, dark, vivacious Italian soprano who was born in Mantua. The unusual quality of her voice



Oscar Hammerstein

was discovered by a nun. After a long period of training in the conservatory of Milan, Emma made her debut on the operatic stage in "La Traviata" in a small city called Ivrea. Her success led to appearances in more important Italian cities until she was signed for the Manhattan Opera company by Mr. Hammerstein, who had heard her in Turin.

Brought to New York in 1906, she made her first appearance in this country as Frasquita in "Carmen." Subsequently she sang a variety of rôles with the Manhattan Opera.

Orville Harrold's career prior to "Naughty Marietta" was diametrically different from that of Miss Trentini. He was born in Muncie, Ind., in 1878, but spent his early boyhood in Kansas. There he first sang "close harmony" with a group of boys known as "the pump-house gang."

Eventually the young tenor went to New York. Mr. Hammerstein discovered Harrold singing at the old Victoria theater in New York and turned him over to the distinguished vocal teacher, Oscar Saenger. By 1909 Harrold was ready to make his operatic debut as Canio in "Pagliacci" under Hammerstein's wing, and he enjoyed a successful season before he joined the "Naughty Marietta" production.

Miss Trentini scored another notable hit in Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly." After appearances in a few more productions she retired. Harrold, after studying in Paris, sang in opera in London and in this country with the Ravinia, Century, and Metropolitan opera companies. After returning once again to his old profession as a vaudevillian and light opera performer he died at Darien, Conn., on Oct. 23, 1933.

In its many professional revivals the leading rôles of "Naughty Marietta" have been played by most of the élite of light opera. The motion picture version which appeared in 1935 was the first of the long series of film musicals which so successfully paired Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

On Saturday's broadcast of "Naughty Marietta" Marion Claire and John Carter will be teamed in the chief parts. To them and the assisting W-G-N singers will fall that quartet of perennially popular songs: "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "The Italian Street Song," "'Neath the Southern Moon," and "I'm Falling in Love with Some One." But a few of the companion melodies are also worth noting, notably "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "It Never, Never Can Be Love," "If I Were Anybody Else," and "Live for Today."

Now . . . do the same thing with Dreft . . . and you'll scarcely believe your eyes! The dishes—and glasses, too—will dry so brilliantly clean and gleaming—you'll know that wiping is a plain waste of time!

Obviously, not wiping dishes means a great saving for you in time and work. But there's an even sounder reason for following this method, now made practical by Dreft.

Advised by Health Authorities

Many prominent health officials and sanitation experts will tell you it's a far cleaner and more sanitary way to do your dishes! It's a simple, yet extremely important step in preventing the spread of infectious germs!

EXCERPT FROM UNITED STATES PUBLIC HEALTH BULLETIN

The United States Public Health Service, in a proposed ordinance for regulating eating and drinking establishments, recommends:

"...that wherever possible, utensils be permitted to drain dry without the use of drying cloths."

"HELP PREVENT SPREAD OF INFECTIOUS GERMS BY NOT WIPING DISHES" ... ADVICE OF LEADING AUTHORITIES ...

The following excerpt is from an article on dishwashing in the November, 1938, issue of HEALTH MAGAZINE: "It is probable that no dish is bacterially clean when it has been wiped dry."

And, as further proof, comes this regulation for eating and drinking places, issued by the North Carolina State Board of Health:

"Hand drying of dishes shall be prohibited."

PERFECT POEMS

HALLOWED GROUND

By THOMAS CAMPBELL

What's hallowed ground? Has earth a clod
Its Maker meant not should be trod
By man, the image of his God,
Erect and free,
Unscourged by Superstition's rod
To bow the knee?

That's hallowed ground where, mourned and missed,
The lips repose our love has kissed;—
But where's their memory's mansion? Is't
Yon churchyard's bowers?
No! in ourselves their souls exist,
A part of ours.

A kiss can consecrate the ground
Where mated hearts are mutual bound;
The spot where love's first links were wound,
That ne'er are riven,
Is hallowed, down to earth's profound,
And up to heaven!

For time makes all but true love old;
The burning thoughts that then were told
Run molten still in memory's mold,
And will not cool
Until the heart itself be cold
In Lethe's pool.

What hallows ground where heroes sleep?
'Tis not the sculptured piles you heap!—
In dews that heavens far distant weep
Their turf may bloom,
Or genii twine beneath the deep
Their coral tomb.

But strew his ashes to the wind
Whose sword or voice has served mankind—
And is he dead whose glorious mind
Lifts thine on high?—
To live in hearts we leave behind
Is not to die.

Is't death to fall for Freedom's right?
He's dead alone that lacks her light!
And murder sullies in Heaven's sight
The sword he draws:—
What can alone ennoble fight?
A noble cause!

Give that! and welcome war to brace
Her drums, and rend heaven's reeking space!
The colors planted face to face,
The charging cheer,
Tho Death's pale horse lead on the chase,
Shall still be dear.

And place our trophies where men kneel
To Heaven!—But Heaven rebukes my zeal.
The cause of truth and human weal,
O God above!
Transfer it from the sword's appeal
To peace and love.

Peace! love! — the cherubim that join
Their spread wings o'er devotion's shrine!
Prayers sound in vain, and temples shine,
Where they are not;
The heart alone can make divine
Religion's spot.

To incantations dost thou trust,
And pompous rites in domes august?
See moldering stones and metal's rust
Belie the vaunt,
That men can bless one pile of dust
With chime or chant.

The ticking wood-worm mocks thee, man!
Thy temples, creeds themselves, grow wan!
But there's a dome of nobler span,
A temple given
Thy faith, that bigots dare not ban—
Its space is heaven!

Its roof star-pictured Nature's ceiling,
Where, trancing the rapt spirit's feeling,
And God Himself to man revealing,
The harmonious spheres
Make music, tho unheard their pealing
By mortal ears.

Fair stars! are not your beings pure?
Can sin, can death, your worlds obscure?
Else why so swell the thoughts at your Aspect above?
Ye must be heavens that make us sure
Or heavenly love!

And in your harmony sublime
I read the doom of distant time:
That man's regenerate soul from crime
Shall yet be drawn,
And reason, on his mortal clime,
Immortal dawn.

What's hallowed ground? 'Tis what gives birth
To sacred thoughts in souls of worth!—
Peace! independence! truth! go forth,
Earth's compass round;
And your high priesthood shall make earth
All hallowed ground!

Serve Pot Roast and Save

Inexpensive, Easy to Prepare

By MARY MEADE

MOST COOKS are economy minded these days, and that means that they're preparing more pot roasts than usual. A pot roast differs from an oven roast in that, being a less tender cut of meat, it is cooked by braising instead of dry roasting. A long, slow simmering will make it very tender, and pot roast gravy is beefy and delicious. There are many cuts from which to select your pot roast. One of the most attractive and easily carved is the arm bone. Buy four or five pounds, even if your family numbers no more than three or four, because the leftovers may be used in many attractive ways, and you'll find the larger pot roast an economy.

It's an economy roast, but so tender and delicious that it will be eaten with great enthusiasm.

BRAISED POT ROAST

4-5 pounds arm-bone pot roast
3 tablespoons bacon drippings or other fat
Salt, pepper
Water

Brown the meat on both sides in the hot fat, using a heavy skillet. You may dip the roast in flour before browning if you like. Flour aids in browning and will help thicken the gravy to be made after the meat has cooked. When the meat is as brown as you like it, add a small amount of water, about a fourth cup, cover the skillet, and reduce the heat. Cook at very low temperature until the meat is tender, adding water in small amounts from time to time as needed. Forty-five minutes to the pound will cook the meat tender as a rule.

Other seasonings may be added in addition to salt and pepper if liked. Celery salt, chopped onion, parsley, celery tops, a bit of bay leaf, a sprinkle of garlic salt—any or several of these seasonings may supplement salt and pepper. Sour cream or tomato juice often is used as the liquid in place of the water.

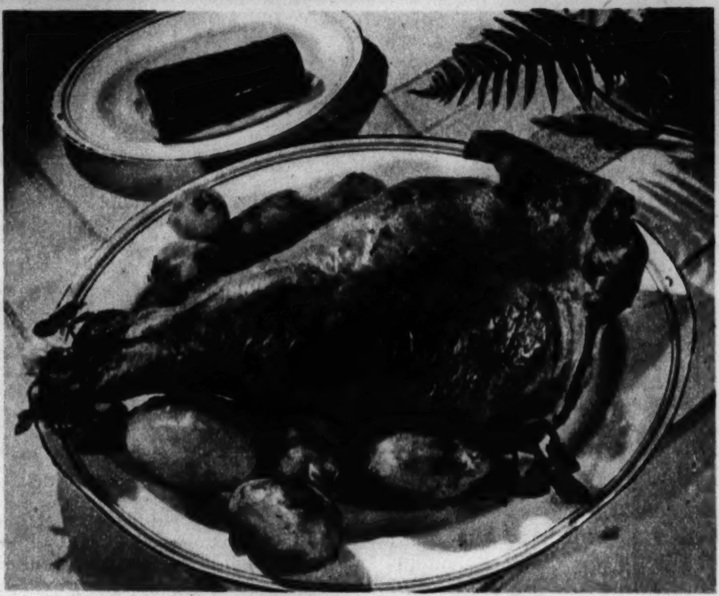
With a plain pot roast and gravy dinner serve baked potatoes, buttered green or lima beans, a tossed vegetable salad, and baked apples or apple pie.

A leg of lamb is a good choice for company dinner, and there is no chance of anything but a tender, juicy, and delicately flavored roast if these simple directions are followed:

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Have the meat dealer remove the meat around the end of the shank bone so that you can put a paper frill on the end of the bone when you serve the meat. This simple trimming process is called Frenching the leg of lamb. Have him leave the fell, or paperlike covering of the leg, in place, as the roast will cook more quickly and keep its shape better if this is not removed. Rub roast with salt and pepper and place skin side down on a rack in an open roasting pan. Roast uncovered at 300 degrees for about 35 minutes to the pound. A more accurate way to gauge time for cooking is to insert a meat thermometer into the thickest portion of the leg, making sure that it does not rest on fat or bone. Roast to an interior temperature of 180 degrees.

Browned potatoes, mint jelly, mashed squash, pear and watercress salad, and coconut pie or layer cake for dessert would round out a menu including roast leg of lamb.



When you want a handsome roast for company, consider leg of lamb—easy to prepare, tender, and delicately flavored.

Dear Mae Tinée: Altho my own reactions to "Major Barbara" were more favorable than yours, I both enjoyed your review and commend its nice judging. With no previous interest in Shaw, the grand ole duck quite tickled my mental emotions. I think I enjoyed being made to laugh with him at us. If I don't quite agree with the Utopian illusion about that munitions plant, I do emphatically approve the common-sensible views that money or any materials may be good if used aright and that even prayer can be perverted sanctimoniously. I think the use of things or words was his message. I do not want more of Wendy Hiller, tho, unless she can lose that stagy style of acting. Memory is most relishing having seen Rex Harrison! He is all O.K. Sincerely yours, BEULAH BARKER.

Dear Miss Barker: I like the way you write! Please visit our column again some Sunday.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am submitting the following poem, "To Hollywood":

O! Hollywood, aren't you ashamed
The way you flaunt your glamor dames?
For they were Broadway's first, you know;
Did you say Merci vous O! No?
You just corralled them two by two
And then laughed like an ingénue.
But wait, they'll leave you some day
And return to dear Broadway.

SHIRLEY ALEXANDER.

Dear Shirley: Are you sure about that?

Dear Miss Tinée: I have read your column for many years and enjoy it very much, but this is the first time I have ever written to you. I would appreciate it very much if you would put a picture of Robert Livingston and something about him in your column. Thank you, and I hope your column will continue for many more years. Sincerely,

Robert Livingston

Dear Miss Scheffner: Here's that picture and something about Robert Livingston, and I'm glad we have both for you. He was born in Quincy, Ill., Dec. 8, 1908. He's 6 feet tall and weighs 180 pounds. Married to Dorothy Gee. Thanks for your encouraging words. Please keep on liking us.

OIL IN THE NEAR EAST

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

THE ACCOMPANYING map shows the locations of the important oil fields of the near east, including those of Russia. In 1940 these fields produced 335,300,000 barrels of crude petroleum, or roughly about one-sixth of the world's total production for the year, which was 2,146,000,000 barrels.

Removal of oil from the earth, where it has lain trapped in vast pools for millions of years, is more vital to civilization today than ever before. This is because a large proportion of the people of the world are involved in the kind of a war that cannot be fought without oil. Fully as necessary as guns and shells in modern warfare is the oil that comes out of the ground, for without this the oil-burning navies, the war tanks, armored cars, military trucks and carriers, airplanes, and the like cannot operate. No synthetic oil or oil product, such as motor fuel, has as yet been produced in sufficient quantities to meet the needs in any great degree.

The oil fields of the near east, as shown in the map, are under control of forces opposed to Germany and Italy. One of the principal aims of the Germans in driving toward the east with their armies is to capture, if possible, the oil fields under the control of the British and the Russians. It is obvious that if the allied forces can continue to protect the eastern oil from the Nazis they thus can retain an enormous military advantage over their enemies.

The eastern oil fields, particularly those of Iran and Iraq, are comparatively new and represent greater untouched reserves than are present in fields that have been worked intensively and extensively for many years.

What may be surprising to many readers is the fact that an important oil field has been developed in Egypt since the beginning of the war. Before hostilities the Egyptian field was only a minor one, but now, as one of the legends on the map discloses, it is producing 21,000 barrels a day. Located at Suez are two large refineries, with a total capacity of 20,000 barrels a day, which is close to the total daily production of this field.

In the opinion of Theron Wasson, chief geologist of the Pure Oil company, this total production of the Egyptian oil field may not be sufficient to meet all local military needs in North Africa (including fuel for the British squadrons based on Egyptian and Red sea ports), but it is enough to supply a considerable part of the requirements. Oil from Iran, Arabia, and Iraq can be shipped readily to North Africa. The distance from the island of Abadan, the outlet of the Iran fields, to Suez, however, is somewhat more than the distance from Suez to the British Isles.

The important oil fields of Russia, as shown on the map, still are a long distance from the nearest spearhead of the advancing Germans. The Maikop and Grozny fields and the single line pipe line that links them with the Black sea port of Tuapse lie north of the main ranges of the Caucasus mountains, while the Baku field in Azerbaijan and its double pipe line to Batum, on the Black sea, lie south of the mountains. The Baku field is by far the most important of Russia's producing areas. It is conceivable that the Germans might drive thru the barrier of the mountains to the Baku field, but the distance by land is great (about 800 miles from Mariukol to Baku), and the lines of communication that would be left in their rear would be difficult to keep open. It is more likely that if the Germans attempt to take the Baku field they will approach by sea and thru the valley that lies south of the Caucasus ranges. In order to exploit the oil properties around Baku Germany not only would have to push a large force to the very shores of the Caspian sea, but it would have to maintain control of the pipe line from Baku to Batum and of the Black sea as well.

It would be more practical for the Germans, if successful in their drive to take the Russian fields, to remove oil from the Baku wells by means of the pipe line to Batum than to try to take it out by the two rather poorly equipped railroads that cross the Caucasian isthmus. Russia's chief refineries are located in and around Baku.

With the help of the Free French, the British control the Iraq oil fields, the main one of which, the Kirkuk field, is connected with the Mediterranean by two pipe lines. One line runs to Tripoli in Syria, and the other to Haifa in Palestine. As will be noted in a legend on the map, production in the Iraq fields has fallen off to some extent since the French surrender. This, is would seem, is due to conditions at the Mediterranean ends of the pipe lines rather than to conditions in the producing field itself.

Both Haifa and Tripoli are vulnerable to German air attacks from Crete and Greece, yet both can be protected to a certain extent by British warcraft based on Egyptian ports.

There is a small refinery in the Iraq field, which provides for local requirements, but the main refinery for Iraq oil is in Haifa. Its daily capacity is 40,000 barrels.

The oil fields of Iran are said to be the richest in the world so far as reserves are concerned. Back in 1901 a man by the name of William K. D'Arcy obtained a 60-year concession to drill, produce, pipe, and carry away natural gas, petroleum, asphalt, and the like in an area of 500,000 square miles in Persia (now Iran). That concession will expire May 28, 1961, unless it is renewed or extended in the meantime. In 1908 oil was struck in large quantities in what now is the Masjid-i-Sulaiman field, and in the following year the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, Ltd., was formed to work the concession. When the company became hard pressed for funds in 1913 the British government went to its rescue, and as a result since then the admiralty has had in its possession valuable contracts with the company for supplying it with naval fuel oil.

The largest refinery in Iran is on the island of Abadan, at the head of the Persian gulf. Abadan is connected with the oil fields by a pipe line. It is 137 miles by this line from the head of the gulf to the center of the Masjid-i-Sulaiman oil field. The Abadan refinery and two others in Iran have a total capacity of 330,000 barrels daily, which is far greater than the daily production of Iran's oil fields, altho it is believed that production can be increased to the capacity of the refineries whenever there is need for the increase. In other words, refinery facilities have been provided there with the object of having them ready whenever needed.

The Suez area can be supplied with Iran oil by a 3,393-mile tanker haul, but from Suez to England, thru the Mediterranean, the route is dangerous for British tankers. Most of Iran's oil, therefore, is going to India, to British possessions in the far east, and to ports along the eastern coast of Africa. It is less expensive and quicker for the British Isles to import Venezuelan oil than to bring Iran or Arabian oil by sea around the Cape of Good Hope. Oil of Iran and Arabia actually is an excess supply so far as Great Britain's vital needs are concerned. It represents on the other hand, however, a very valuable reserve for the day when it may be vitally needed.

What has been set forth here in respect to Iran's oil applies as well to that of Saudi Arabia and Bahrein Island. On Bahrein Island is a refinery that has a daily capacity of 32,000 barrels. This is more than 50 per cent greater than the daily production of the Bahrein Island oil field, the refinery having been constructed in anticipation of increased production.

Legends on the map show the specific gravity of the oil of the different near eastern fields. This is given in degrees as measured by the A. P. I. (American Petroleum institute). The measure is an arbitrary scale devised by a French chemist, Antoine Baumé. In this scale water is 10 degrees, while crude petroleum of the near east ranges from 26 to 38 degrees. The higher the number of degrees the better the oil and the more gasoline it contains. In Baumé's scale Texas and Oklahoma oil ranges from 30 to 34 degrees, Pennsylvania oil is as high as 40 degrees, and Mexican oil as low as 16 degrees.

Depths of the oil wells also are shown in the map's legends. This may be significant only in case the allies destroy their wells if they are threatened by the Germans. New wells can be drilled to oil pools that lie close to the surface more easily than to those that lie at greater depths.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

MAIL BOX

DISTEMPER, feeding, housebreaking, and general training—these are the four major problems of novice dog owners, judging from the many letters received by this department each day. Here are some of the typical letters which came in one recent mail:

My male Scottie, 3 years old, lately has started growling at us when displeased about something. Will you please advise me how to break him of this habit?—MRS. H. E. T., Chicago.

There's no magic training trick which will eliminate this trait in your dog. Surliness usually is evidence that the owner has neglected to give his dog basic training in obedience. The dog evidently has had its own way most of the time and resents authority. Better join a training club in your neighborhood and teach your pet to come when called, sit down and lie down on command, walk at heel, and other simple commands. After it has experienced the discipline in learning such commands it will be more tractable and more of a pleasure in the home. The training will teach it to accept your authority and the growling will disappear.

Kindly inform me if there is such a breed as a chow-wow-wow.—W. P. S., Chicago.

The name sounds more like a character from Gilbert and Sullivan than a breed of dog. You undoubtedly are referring to the chow chow (usually shortened to chow), or the Chihuahua, which is pronounced "she-wah-wah."

When I bought my dog the kennel owner told me it wasn't necessary to inoculate her against distemper and rabies providing I kept her away from other dogs. Is this correct?—R. F. M., Chicago.

We recommend distemper inoculations for every dog, because this disease is so infectious. If your dog is worth owning it is worth protecting against this dangerous ailment. For many years there has been a dispute about the efficiency of rabies inoculations. We have our dogs inoculated. In the final analysis, however, the safest way of avoiding rabies is to keep your dog under control and not let it run the streets untended. Dogs can get rabies only if they are bitten by another animal which has the disease.

A hunting breed of ancient lineage, the basset hound, is not seen very often in homes or on the street. This pair, named Davis' King and Davis' Queen, were just 3 months old when photographed.

I am writing you for advice on how to feed our dog. She is of mixed breeding, 11 months old. Can you please recommend a money-saving diet for her?—I. K., Cicero, Ill.

There are many ways of feeding a dog economically. For example, use of prepared dog foods will reduce feeding costs. The dog may have beef, lamb, mutton, and boned fish, such as salmon, from the table. The booklet entitled "Feeding the Dog" will give you information on the proper nutrition of your pet. It was written with the coöperation of more than 50 leading American kennels and dog breeders. It is available for 30 cents in stamps from the Chicago Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

This 4-month-old bulldog has the impressive name of Johnny Bull of Northwoods. The breed, despite appearance, is an amiable one.

There is a police dog in our town the color of a Jersey cow. A neighbor claims its color is due to malnutrition. Is this correct?—M. V. S., Natchez, Miss.

Malnutrition can be the cause of many dog troubles, but we have yet to see a case where the dog's color has been changed. The official standard for German shepherds has this to say about the color of their coats: "All colors are permissible from solid black to solid white, including many variations of browns, grays, and mixed wolf colorings, also brindles."

Altho she's only $2\frac{1}{2}$ months old, this short-haired pointer posed for her picture like a veteran.

I would appreciate it if you would give me some information about the Brussels griffon. I recently acquired a dog of this breed and have been unable to find any reference to it in dog books.—MRS. A. J. C., Escanaba, Mich.

You are the owner of an unusual and distinctive breed. The Brussels griffon is classified as a toy dog because of its weight, which never should exceed 12 pounds. But it isn't a toy in working ability, because it makes an excellent ratter. It is of Belgian origin. It is a compact little dog with a harsh reddish coat, and it has a keen brain which makes it an interesting and useful house pet.

Movie Stars in Color

● MR. AND MRS. GENE RAYMOND (she, of course, is Jeanette MacDonald) will soon be seen on the screen together in the most recent film version of "Smilin' Thru." It is a new event in the parallel course of their lives. Jeanette was born in Philadelphia on June 18, 1907; Gene in New York City on Aug. 13, 1908. Both were educated in private schools, and both broke into the movies by virtue of performances on the stage. Miss MacDonald got her first acting job thru her sister—a rôle in a stage musical. A leading part in a Greenwich Village theater production put her into the big time, and it wasn't long before Ernst Lubitsch picked her from all of New York's musical stars to appear opposite Maurice Chevalier in the film "The Love Parade." Since then her screen career has been highly successful. Gene had a shorter stage experience, joining the film colony in 1932.

● The Mullican girl named Rosemary, who with her sister Priscilla became famous as a singing star with Fred Waring's orchestra, is now the screen's ROSEMARY LANE; seen most recently in "Time Out for Rhythm." Born in Indianola, Ia., on April 4, 1916, she was educated at Simpson college in her home state. She's 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 108 pounds.

● Pasadena Playhouse, maker of many stars, is the theatrical alma mater of ROBERT PRESTON, currently appearing in "Parachute Battalion" and now working on "The Night of January 16." Bob was born in Newton Highlands, Mass., but was educated in Los Angeles public schools. He's 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 175 pounds.

● EVELYN KEYES heard movie opportunity knocking while she was dancing in night clubs. Her first picture was "The Buccaneer," and her brief movie career of three years includes "Gone with the Wind" and now the fantasy-comedy "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," with Robert Montgomery. Evelyn was born in Port Arthur, Tex., and went to high school there. She's married and has one child.

earned. On what? She can't remember. She never bought herself a lot of jewelry or went overboard on clothes. She just spent. But now her father, Dr. Thoman Norval Hepburn, a Hartford, Conn., surgeon, invests his daughter's earnings and puts her on an allowance.

Miss Hepburn's autobiography is soon to appear serially in a magazine. It should be frank and witty, for the lady has both these qualities. She was brought up that way. Born 32 years ago in Hartford, she arrived in a family that specialized in self-expression. Her mother was a pioneer suffragette—once picketed the White House advocating votes for women. Katharine grew up a fierce and energetic tomboy, demanding equality from her two elder brothers. One of them, Dick, is a would-be playwright; the other, Bob, is a Hartford intern. There are two younger sisters—Marion, once a social worker, and Peggy, who's in college.

Voice of the Movie Fan will be found on page nine.

Katharine had the usual child's bent toward play-acting, and by the time she arrived at Bryn Mawr she seemed really set on a stage career. However, she took a doctor of psychology degree before starting on the long hunt for a Broadway job. Her first opportunity came from Edwin Knopf, now an M-G-M producer and writer, who was running a stock company in Baltimore.

After a spell in stock she went back to New York—to study, this time; to study voice with Frances Robinson Duff and ballet with Mordkin. Then she landed the feminine lead in "The Big Pond," but quit during the tryout in an argument with the director.

Arthur Hopkins had caught a tryout performance and had made a cuff note to remember one Katharine Hepburn. When he produced "These Days" Miss H. was in the cast. The play ran a week on Broadway. Hopkins then made Miss Hepburn Hope Williams' understudy in "Holiday"—but Miss Williams never missed a performance. The following season Katharine got a rôle in "Death Takes a Holiday"—and argued herself right out of it before the play opened.

Next she played more stock, in Stockbridge, Mass. Then she appeared unimportantly in Jane Cowl's "Art and Mrs. Bottle," and was to have had the lead opposite Leslie Howard in "The Animal Kingdom"; but again she quarreled her way out of the job. Up to now her batting average and judgment had been bad; the jobs she lost were good ones in hits, and the ones she kept were modest ones in flops or near-flops. Then she appeared as the young Amazon in "The Warrior's Husband," and both Hepburn and the play were hits. RKO hired her for "A Bill for Divorcement" at $1,500 a week. This made Katharine a notable film personality, and it marked the beginning of a long battle with interviewers. She resented having every small item about her chronicled, and she resented being made to appear like an eccentric. The RKO publicity department, seeking to give its new star as much color as possible, was partly to blame for this. Anyhow, for years Katharine was poison to the press; now she's a pleasant, ready-minded interview subject.

Other hits followed "A Bill of Divorcement"—"Christopher Strong," "Little Women," "Morning Glory," which won her the 1933 Oscar. In 1935 she did "Alice Adams," and then she began going from bad to worse, and three years ago she quit Hollywood to go back to New York and learn more about acting. Philip Barry provided the necessary lessons by writing "The Philadelphia Story," which kept Katharine busy for two years.

I wonder, and she wonders, how long the new Theater guild play will keep her busy.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

MOST AMATEURS know that good pictures have composition, but only a few try to find out what is meant by the term and how they can apply it to their own picture taking.

The word composition means arrangement of materials. In the case of photography it involves arranging your three-dimensional subject in such a manner that a pleasing picture results on the flat surface of your printing paper.

Even beginners in photography look thru their view finders to compose their pictures—at least to the extent of being sure to include their subjects. Most of them have noticed that by shifting their viewpoint or by rearranging the subject more pleasing effects can be created. But this is as far as they go.

By observing the following five rules of composition you are bound to get results: (1) Have just one center of interest. (2) Select the right format (vertical or horizontal) for your picture. (3) Place your subject carefully in the picture space. (4) Light your subject to best advantage. (5) Use taste and care in filling the space around your subject.

You cannot make a good picture that deserves the name without knowing exactly just what you want to photograph. Once you know, you should concentrate on this center of interest. Compose your picture in the view finder or on the ground glass in such a manner that this center of interest stands out unmistakably. No distracting subject should be included either by plan or accident.

It's a matter of habit to make most pictures either vertical or horizontal, altho square pictures are becoming more popular. The shape you select should be determined by the main lines of your subject. A tall building or a head and shoulder portrait calls for a vertical format, while the natural thing to do is to use the horizontal shape for the broad expanse of a landscape.

The tall and slender figures, taken at close range from a low angle, make a vertical composition unavoidable. By darkening the sky the figures as well as the bows and arrows are strongly highlighted, placing a clear and definite accent on the main picture subject.

Once the format is decided, place your subject carefully in the picture space. Never put the subject in the exact center unless for the sake of some special effect. If it shows motion, leave plenty of empty space into which it can move, or it will seem about to leave your picture.

On the other hand, you should fill your picture space carefully. Don't leave too much blank space, or your main subject will appear small in proportion. If your subject is in the upper part of the picture, leaving much foreground, fill this foreground with objects which by their nature aid in picturing the main subject. They can help to lend atmosphere, or they can, with the aid of their lines and masses, lead the eye to the main subject. If there is much sky in the picture, try to show a few clouds, or as a substitute darken the sky with the aid of filters or in making the print.

The proper lighting of your subject is part of composing the picture. By placing highlights and shadows just where you want them you can emphasize the main subject or any part of it according to plan.

New Equipment

For names of manufacturers who produce these items send stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Know Your Camera," Equipment Review Department, care Graphic Section, The Chicago Tribune. Be sure to mention serial number of item.

295 A new 2¼x3¼ press type camera is less expensive than anything comparable on the market, accommodates flash gun and range finder, and has a telescopic view finder with parallax adjustment, double extension bellows that travels on a grooved track, and a removable lens board.

296 Keeping cameras and lenses clean is more of a problem than most amateurs realize. A new little camel's hair brush set on a rubber blower bulb is a clever aid in keeping things clean. The air loosens the dust while the brush carries it away. Gadget costs $1.

297 Instead of trying to build your own stereoscopic camera by coupling two cameras, you can have the job done by experts. They revamp cameras so that the film is wound simultaneously in two coupled cameras and the shutters are actually synchronized. Many makes of standard cameras lend themselves to this rebuilding job.

BEAUTY SHOP SECRETS

women," said Marie. "They love to be worked on, once they get used to it. And they tip beautifully. But in this shop, we don't like 'em. We don't have men's night, and if a man walks in during regular hours, it'll upset the whole shop."

Most steady customers soon begin to feel they own the shop. They often try to transact their business over the shop phone, and they expect every one in the place to dash into service when they enter. They love to advise the operator into a more fulsome life. They never get over their fear that other women will discover they're having their hair dyed, and elaborate precautions are taken to insure secrecy. A true veteran may even pick up shop vernacular, and, instead of calling for a permanent, demand a "batch of wiggles." Most shops, however, have no trade slang.

Typical working girl in a typical Chicago salon is Marge Gleason, operator in a charming Rush street place much favored by night club girls and wives of newspaper men. The shop is staffed and owned by farmers' daughters. Marge comes from near Burlington, Ia. Dorothy Hurley, the owner, lived on a farm near Pence, Ind. Winnie Rowe once hoed tobacco on her father's farm near Viroqua, Wis., and Ruth Stone lived on a farm not far outside Cameron, Mo.

Dorothy Hurley . . . owns a shop.

Marge loves quail hunting and skeet shooting, and once she got a pheasant near the wilds of Park Ridge. She favors historical novels and movies, and she can put 'em in the aisles doing her Yiddish version of "Little Red Riding Hood."

Fun? The girls are planning a party pretty soon, over at Marge's brother-in-law's. They've got a new movie camera, and they're working up a scenario. A shot of brother-in-law leaving the house, a shot of Marge's boy friend on the sofa wooing brother-in-law's wife, and then a shot of brother-in-law unexpectedly returning for the cigaret lighter he forgot. . . . They haven't got any further than that.

Winnie likes acrobatics, as does Marge. A beauty operator must exercise, for stoop shoulder is almost an occupational disease in the trade. All four of the girls are fishermen, thoroly familiar with northern Wisconsin topography.

Gertrude Kamin and Alma Schultz, comprising the staff of a little Sheridan road shop popular with the matrons who air their youngsters in Touhy park, are likewise from out of town, altho they didn't live on farms. Their favorite sport is bowling, and Alma is proud of her cookery.

"An operator must watch her diet," she explained. "The schedule of a beauty shop worker is terribly irregular, and we rarely have a meal at the same time two days in a row." The girls prefer giving permanents above everything else in the business, and they dislike manicures most, even if it does give them a chance to sit down.

The beauty business is a splendid field for girls to enter, and right now affords more opportunities than ever before, according to Helen O'Brien, gracious gray-eyed manager of a big Michigan avenue salon, one of the most pretentious in the city.

Her girls are carefully selected and well paid. They must have extensive experience, fine personalities, and must specialize in some phase of beauty culture.

"We seek girls who are poised, well bred, and possessed of special talent," Miss O'Brien said. "Then we train them for six months before they begin to work. We try to assign our girls to fit the personality of the patron.

"College girls are beginning to enter the beauty field, and I think it offers many opportunities. Beauty treatment isn't just superficial . . . it does something for the morale of a woman. I think that it will more and more require specially trained workers who will find a good deal of satisfaction and happiness in their jobs."

"A girl who seriously enters the beauty business usually stays in it," said Virginia Huss, editor of Modern Beauty Shop, a trade magazine. "She's usually serious, because it takes money to go to school. A girl must have a pleasing personality to succeed, as the service is highly personal. It seems to me the business will continue to expand, because it's vitally needed. And then, if men are going to want beauty treatment . . .! The time may not be far off when every beauty shop will have its family entrance."

FESTIVAL TO USHER IN HALLOWEEN

NEW SOUTH AREA TUNNEL TO END WATER DANGERS

Will Assure Pressure in Emergency.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Bids were opened last week for a new water tunnel link which upon its completion several months hence is expected to relieve water pressure shortages which periodically plague the south and southwest sides. This was announced by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, who said the bids will be submitted to the city council for their action.

The low bid of $714,550, submitted by the Kenny Construction company, was substantially below the estimates of probable cost made by city engineers. The high bid was $1,072,890, submitted by the Santucci Construction company.

The proposed new tunnel will consist of 3,160 feet of main, 16 feet in diameter and 1,070 feet of 13-foot main which will connect the tunnels of the new south side filtration plant with the lake intake to the pumping stations at 68th street, Roseland, and Western avenue.

Deliver More Water.

This hookup will deliver more lake water to the intakes of the pumps, which are not now large enough to supply these pumps with all the water they are capable of raising to usable pressure according to city Engineer W. W. De Berard, who ordered the hydraulic and economic study that resulted in the new tunnel proposal.

"Our pumps are big enough, but the intake tunnel from the Edward F. Dunne crib is too small," De Berard said. "The proposed new tunnel will greatly increase this intake capacity, and so give the pumps more water to distribute to south and southwest side users."

The city engineer said the average water consumption in the area served by the three south side pumping stations is about 340 million gallons a day.

The maximum capacity of the present intakes is 485 million gallons a day. The new tunnel would boost this to 635 million gallons.

While the present intake capacity is sufficient on ordinary days, when the demand for water is unusually heavy, as often has happened, water pressures in south side mains drop dangerously low.

Test Shows Danger.

De Berard revealed that last July 29, when hot weather caused a big water demand, test pressures were taken in widely scattered parts of the city while the three south side pumping stations were pumping all the water they could. At some points the pressure was only two pounds to the square inch, he said, and at many places it was far less than the low limit of 25 pounds which is regarded as the danger level.

Recent studies have shown that these substandard points in numerous cases are areas with important defense industries.

The city engineer explained how lowered water pressure affects public health and safety. In the event of a big fire, he said, it is important to have as much water as possible instantly available from the city mains. If pressure is too low, fire engines might pump the water out faster than it can flow in, thus creating a dangerous handicap for the firemen.

Also when pressure drops too low, many large water users, such as hotels and factories, start their own booster pumps to bring the water up to a usable pressure. These booster pumps have been known to take the pressure completely out of the city mains from which they feed and replace it with a vacuum.

Cite Health Danger.

With a vacuum in the water system instead of the usual pressure, sewage and other poisonous fluids can siphon into pipes that supply drinking water. This possibility is a constant plague to city health authorities.

Until the new filtration plant is completed, probably some time in 1943, the new tunnel connection would help deliver raw lake water to the pumping stations when such help was needed. With the completion of the filtration works, the new tunnel will pipe water to the pumps only after it has passed thru the purifying filter beds. Thereafter no raw lake water will find its way into south side mains.

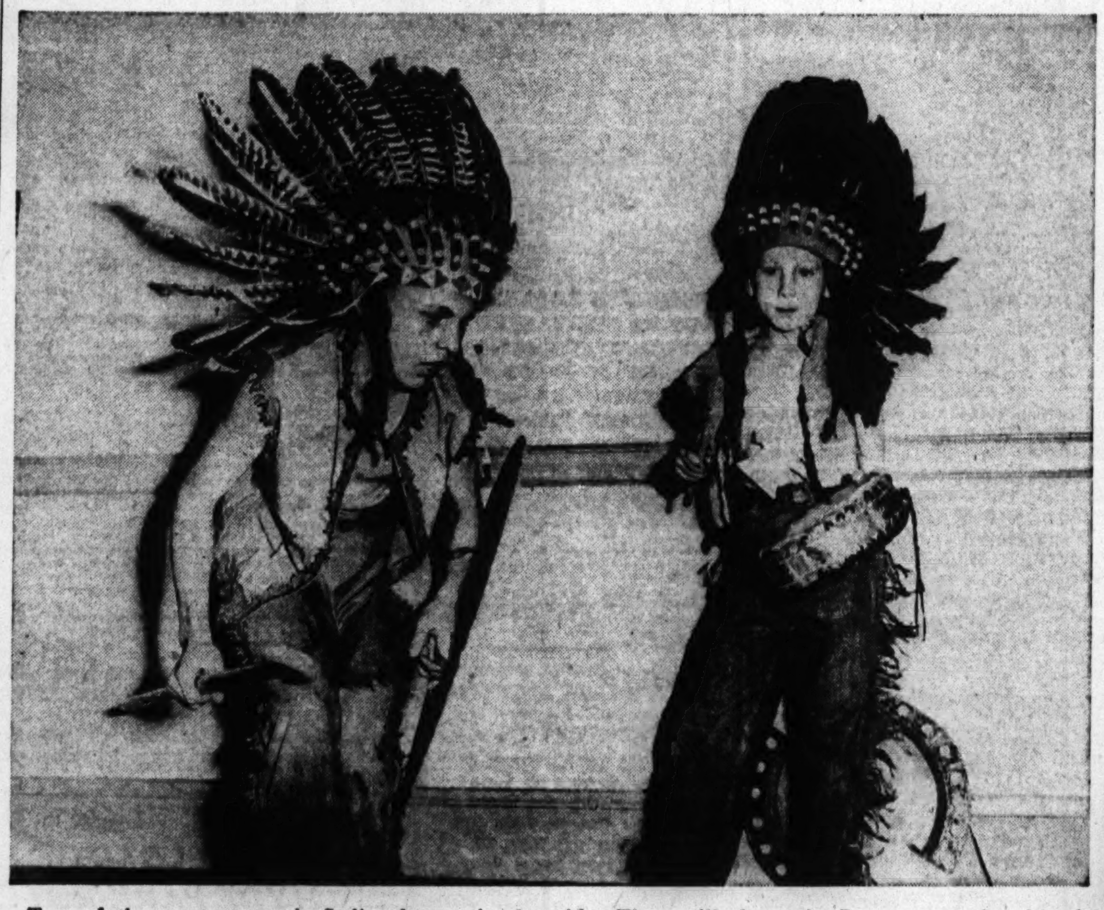
CALUMET CIRCLE OF ISABELLANS NAMES OFFICERS

Calumet circle, Daughters of Isabella, elected officers at a recent meeting. The new regent is Mrs. Mary Camp, 4315 Ellis avenue.

Other officers are Miss Helen Mulqueen, vice regent; Miss Betty Titus, financial secretary; Mrs. Marie Nuhfer, treasurer; Miss Catherine Evans, custodian; Mrs. Margaret McEnerney, monitor; Mrs. Margaret O'Neill, inner guard; Mrs. Rosalie Lynch, outer guard; Miss Josephine Cortilet, trustee; Mrs. Sarah Morgan, chancellor; Mrs. Charlotte Geserick, recording secretary; Miss Alice Capples, first guide, and Miss Catherine Browne, second guide.

Miss Kay Mulvihill will be banner bearer and Mrs. Rose Sauter, organist.

South Chicago Youngsters Stage Preview of Halloween Fun



Two of the most energetic Indian braves in the Halloween parade Friday evening which will climax the South Chicago fall festival are Severin Bejma (left), 15 years old, and Charles Wilhelmy, 11 years old. They will dance in Bessemer park with the YMCA Indian tribe. Severin, of 9322 Marquette road, attends Bowen High school and Charles, of 9347 Marquette road, is a pupil at the Phil Sheridan school.

Billie Oliver, 10185 Indianapolis boulevard, a 9 year old pupil of the Gallistel school, plans to show up at the parade as a Czecho-Slovakian peasant Friday evening.

Here's a pair no one would want to be introduced to in a dark alley. The ghost is played by Clifford Zabka and the witch by Clifton Zabka. They are 12 year old twins who live at 9153 Kingston avenue and attend the Warren school.

Joan Hoffman of 8551 Bennett avenue, a pupil at the Caldwell school, will be dressed up in a witch's costume, complete with broomstick, while Charles Gomez of 8955 Buffalo avenue, a pupil at the Thorp school, will parade with the South Chicago YMCA Rancheros in his Mexican costume.

Seek to Stop Floods Under City Viaducts

Chicagoans who wade deep in water under some 200 viaducts every time there is a severe rainstorm may get a break tomorrow when the city's traffic experts tangle with the ancient problem of flood control.

The executive committees of four area councils of the Chicago Motor club will meet with city, county, state, and sanitary district engineers and industrial and school leaders to seek a solution to the problem of Chicago's flooded viaducts. The meeting will be held at noon at the Illinois Athletic club.

Street Cars Stalled.

Viaduct floods, sure signs of spring and fall in Chicago, annually cost an untold sum in damage and traffic delay, and cause discomfort and frequently danger to thousands of persons, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

The Chicago Surface Lines report that street cars have been stalled from one to five times at 103 viaducts during the last 12 months. Trucking companies report long delays at some 200 viaducts during flood times.

The problem goes back many years. The city long ago was successful in getting all major railroads to raise their tracks in all sections. But, in most cases, the tracks were not raised high enough for proper clearance of street car and truck traffic without lowering the street levels under the viaducts.

Overloads Sewers.

It is this dip in the street levels under the viaducts that causes all the trouble. During heavy rains, the waters settle in the viaducts, overloading the sewer systems and causing them to back up. The situation is further complicated with the plugging up of drains by leaves and debris.

Thus, in many cases, viaducts which ordinarily would be drained within several minutes remain flooded for hours.

Two solutions have been proposed by engineers. One is to install new sewers, particularly in the Hyde Park district and on the west and northwest side along Kostner avenue from 26th street to North avenue and west to Mont Clare avenue. This project, it is estimated, would cost from 20 to 30 million dollars.

The second plan, which is said to be cheaper, would be to install pumps at individual viaducts which during a rain would be operated by the city. Each pump would cost about $15,000 and about $600 a year to operate.

The latter plan already is in operation at the recently completed viaducts on Austin avenue near Bloomingdale avenue under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and at 79th street, southwest highway, and Kedzie avenue.

The three viaducts on the south side which had some of the worst flood conditions are:

Seventy-ninth street and Greenwood avenue—42 times out of use, 8 hours 57 minutes maximum time.

Sixty-fourth and State streets—13 times out of use, 13 hours 5 minutes maximum time.

Twenty-sixth and Federal streets—8 times out of use, 4 hours maximum time.

Church Young Ladies' Club Gives Dance This Evening

The Young Ladies club of St. Thomas the Apostle parish will have a dance at 8 o'clock this evening in Tighe hall, 5467 Woodlawn avenue. The next event will be a roller skating party Sunday evening, Nov. 18 at the Planet roller rink, 75th street and Racine avenue.

It's Lucky This Quartet Has Peaceful Ways

BY PAUL HEALY.

It's rather fortunate that Bruno Markunas, Gil McLaughlin, Harry Tanan, and Melvin Mudd are quiet, peace-loving fellows. These young men, who constitute the backbone of the Hyde Park YMCA champion weight-lifting team, are adorned with muscles as big as pine knots and are built along the lines of an inverted pyramid. In their company even Superman might look undernourished.

Because each of them can lift between 65 and 100 pounds more than his body weight straight over his head, they are particularly well developed thru the chest, shoulders, and arms. A size 16½ collar wouldn't fit any of them and Harry Tanan, who is 5 feet, 6½ inches tall, has a chest measurement of 43 inches [Joe Louis' is 41]. The sight of such Herculean physiques lounging about the "Y" has increased membership in the body building class to 76 this year.

Apply Hobby to Jobs.

Luckily, no one has ever become pugnacious with the four champions, each of whom regards throwing weights around as the ideal way to relax. In fact, three of them prefer it as a daily occupation. Markunas, the city and state heavyweight "Y" champion, works with heavy ladles, setting moulds in a foundry; McLaughlin, city champion in the 165 pound novice division, where he holds three records, stands 400 pound cakes of ice on end; and Tanan, Central AAU novice middleweight champion, loads 500 pound oil drums on trucks.

Each has refused an office job, where there was nothing in sight but paper weights. Twice a week after work they spend one or two hours in the "Y" playing with Olympic bar bells to rest up. Annually they participate in five weight-lifting meets, in addition to the "Mr. Chicago" contest conducted by the AAU to find the most perfect male body in the city. Last year it was won by Howard Gold, another member of the Hyde Park body building class.

Sings Praises of Sport.

"Weight lifting is really the best all-round sport," explains McLaughlin. "It fits you for anything. In fact we can beat most of the other groups in the "Y," such as the wrestlers and gymnasts, at their own games. Our training develops the triceps, a big muscle on the upper part of the arm, which comes from raising heavy objects straight over the head."

McLaughlin says he gained 25 pounds and added five inches to his chest during his first four months in weight lifting. Now he weighs 165 pounds and can "press" 230 pounds [raise it from his chest straight over his head, with his legs rigid]. Markunas, who weighs 181, can "press" 280 pounds.

George Parnell, president of the Weight Lifting club, is head of the "Y's" body building class, which gives members opportunity to find new muscles by using dumbbells, weights, and bars. The most rugged of these Titans—about 15—sometimes compete in weight lifting contests for the "Y."

The team recently won its first dual meet in competition with the Irving Park "Y." Modestly the four champions flaunt their knobby muscles only in contests, tho they admit they are ready if any one ever cares to start something.

3 MUSIC FESTIVAL WINNERS TO SING AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Three winners in vocal contests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S annual Chicagoland Music Festival will sing solos tonight in Orchestra hall at the Sunday Evening club services.

Edgar Nelson.

Louisa Hoe, soprano, chosen "best woman singer" in the 1937 competition, will be heard with the club choir under the direction of Edgar Nelson, who is also general choral director of the festival. Two other vocalists who will sing are Irene Stoddard, first place winner in this summer's Cook county finals in the lyric soprano division, and George McHardy, lyric tenor, who placed second in the county finals.

Miss Stoddard and Mr. McHardy will sing with the Drexel Park Presbyterian church choir, conducted by Theodore Barg, at the 7 o'clock meeting. The Drexel Park choir sings each summer in the Tribune vesper services held in the Cook County forest preserves.

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of the Mount Vernon place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will be guest speaker at the 8 o'clock meeting. Clifford W. Barnes, president and founder of the club, will preside.

GRAND CROSSING AID APPEALS FOR USED CLOTHING

An appeal for discarded clothes was made last week by Mrs. Daniel D. Foreman, director of the Grand Crossing Community Aid center, 7740 Ingleside avenue. Mrs. Foreman says she will arrange to call for them, clean them, and distribute them to needy children in the neighborhood. The center's phone number is Stewart 0623.

The center will sponsor a fall harvest dance, card party, and bazar Thursday evening at Odd Fellows hall, 75th street and Ellis avenue. Proceeds will be used to buy shoe leather and hire cobblers to repair the shoes of needy boys and girls in the community. General chairmen for the party are Mrs. Carlson Sanden, Mrs. Paul Karstrom, and Mrs. R. M. Wolfson. Mrs. Helen Hemill is ticket chairman.

Hundreds of school children and many adults have been outfitted since the community aid center was established by Mrs. Foreman in 1938. The organization has the coöperation of the police department, PTA groups, civic groups, churches, and residents of the Grand Crossing district. Until this year it also had the assistance of the WPA shoe repair project.

Girl Reserve Secretaries Will Hold Meeting Today

Young YWCA workers from Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana will meet at the Hyde Park hotel today for a regional conference of Girl Reserve secretaries. The purpose is to have the girls work out common problems and exchange experiences. South siders on the reception committee are Miss Margaret Shreffler, 1368 East 57th street, and Miss Charlotte Pearson, 6459 Kenwood avenue.

SOUTH CHICAGO TO OFFER WEEK OF GALA EVENTS

Parks Also Prepare for Holiday.

Biggest of the Halloween celebrations in south side parks, schools, and YMCA's this week will take place in South Chicago where the chamber of commerce is staging a fall festival scheduled to begin tomorrow and run thru Friday. As in many other communities, the purpose of the climax, Friday evening, is to provide supervised fun for young people.

The next six days also will be known as Homecoming week in South Chicago because of numerous events planned by the Bowen High school alumni. Queen of the manysided festival will be Miss Winnie Karlsten, 10918 Ewing avenue, who won the title by popular vote. Tomorrow evening she will be crowned in front of the new South Chicago library, 91st street and Houston avenue, where a musical program will be given.

In Court of Honor.

In Miss Karlsten's court of honor will be Miss Marie Zielinski, 9129 Houston avenue; Miss Manda Bublich, 9648 Avenue N; Miss Geneva Griffin, 7840 Muskegon avenue; Miss Nellia Krevokich, 10358 Avenue G, and Miss Charlotte Marks, 8850 Exchange avenue. The program will be concluded with a patriotic tableau. It will feature "Miss Liberty," a soldier, a sailor, and a marine. Miss Beatrice Flessor, 6558 Ellis avenue, will be "Miss Liberty."

Tuesday will be known as "Merchant's day" and business men in the community will dress their windows with colorful displays in the fall festival motif. Awards will be given for the best exhibits.

The spotlight will be focused on Bowen High school Wednesday. There will be athletic exhibitions and an aquacade pageant in the natatorium in the afternoon and a dinner-dance in the school gymnasium in the evening. Music will be furnished by the Bowen band.

Just Like Hollywood.

One of the highlights of the festival will take place Thursday when the chamber of commerce stages a mock movie premier at the Commercial theater. Residents of the community, impersonating well known movie stars, will roll up to the theater in limousines and make their entrance before a battery of floodlights and crowds of onlookers. Reasonable facsimiles of Charlie Chaplin, Jane Withers, Mickey Rooney, Zazu Pitts, Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, and other stars will be seen.

Prizes will be awarded for the most popular impersonations. William Galligan, chairman of the movie premier committee, has announced that a newsreel company will film the event.

The annual South Chicago Halloween parade and carnival will take place Friday evening. The parade will include numerous national groups in native costumes and most of the public and parochial schools in the district. One thousand are expected to participate in the parade and more than 200 awards will be distributed for the best costumes.

Plan a Witch Burning.

After the parade there will be a giant witch-burning ceremony in Bessemer park. The effigy of a witch will be tossed on the bonfire as the marchers and the YMCA and Bowen bands look on. Awards will be given for the children among the spectators who most resemble witches, cowboys, and Indians.

The Bowen alumni will have their high point on Saturday afternoon at the South Shore-Bowen football game which is billed as a "grudge fight."

John F. Burhorn is general chairman and Warren Froom is co-chairman of the festival. Also on the committees are Walter Tredup, Frank Stanley, George Hedges, George Tormoehlen, Max Canterbury, Ted Urbanek, William Solomon, Mauri Fredrickson, and John V. Hanberg. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] is honorary chairman.

LUTHERAN ZION CHURCH TO NOTE 60TH BIRTHDAY

Rites Set for Today and Next Sunday.

Special services to celebrate the 60th anniversary of Evangelical Lutheran Zion church, 91st street and Burley avenue, will take place today and next Sunday. The church was founded by Germans, but today it includes 20 nationalities among its 510 communicants and 750 congregation members. The Rev. John Detjen has been pastor since March 9, 1924, when he became the church's eighth minister.

The Rev. John Detjen.

The jubilee service will start at 10 o'clock this morning with the Rev. Martin Hollensen, of Marion, O., preaching the sermon. At 7:30 o'clock this evening the Rev. Christ Hollensen, of Cleveland, O., will preach.

Speakers are Brothers.

The guest speakers are brothers and former members of the congregation. Grandsons of a charter member, they were ordained to the ministry in the American Lutheran church, in which the Evangelical Lutheran Zion church holds membership.

Next Sunday the congregation will attend a Holy Communion service and celebrate the Reformation festival with the Pastor Detjen in charge. The Zion Lutheran choir, directed by Mrs. Esther Jessen, has prepared special numbers for the service.

The church was started by 13 families in October, 1881, and the first services were held in Bethany church, 9118 Houston avenue. A school building and later a church were erected at 91st street and Superior [now Burley] avenue in 1882. During the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893 the church, school and many neighboring buildings were destroyed by fire. Only the church bell was salvaged. The following year the present church and school were built and the old church bell is still in use.

New Parsonage Built.

During the Rev. Mr. Detjen's tenure extensive repairs were made on the church and a new parsonage was constructed. A campaign is being conducted to raise funds for the purchase of a site for a new church building.

Pastors who preceded the Rev. Mr. Detjen are Dr. Henry Doermann, the Rev. A. A. Feeger, Dr. Paul Hein, Dr. M. E. Doermann, the Rev. Emil Richter, the Rev. Frederick Werhahn, and the Rev. William Steinmeyer.

Arrangements for the celebration today were made principally by Joseph Hartman, Mrs. August Schwebbe, the Ladies Aid and the school board. Mrs. Joseph Hartman is president of the congregation, assisted by Fred H. Lambrecht, vice president; Earl Iversen, treasurer; Mrs. Laura Iversen, financial secretary; Otto Hoffman and Franz Kallweit, secretaries.

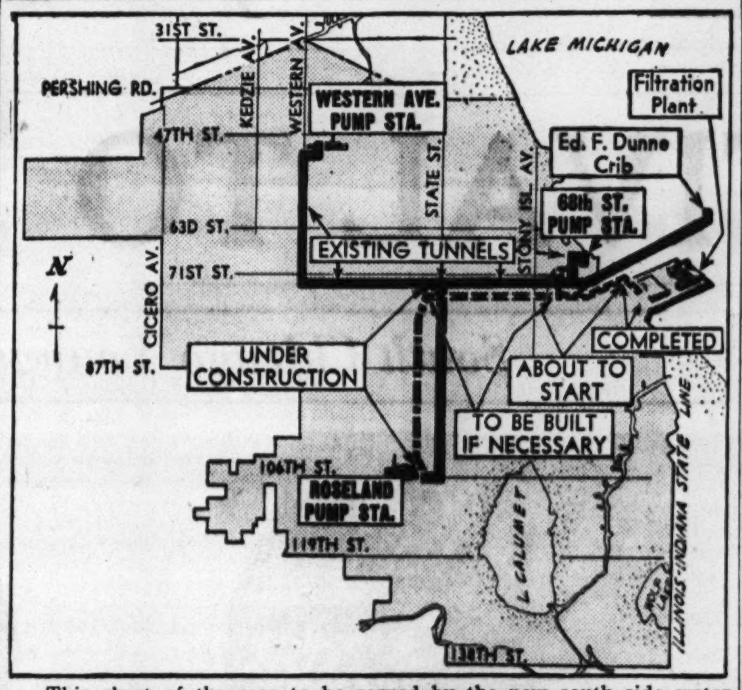
For Improved Water Service



This chart of the area to be served by the new south side water filtration plant shows what is being done to enlarge intake capacity even before the plant is completed in 1943, thus correcting dangerously low pressures resulting at times of peak demand. When and if the tunnels represented by broken lines are installed, existing pumps could deliver almost twice as much water at proper pressure as they can now. The portion labeled "About to start" will boost the present capacity of 485 million gallons a day to 635 million gallons. (Story on page 1.)

GOOD SHEPHERD CENTER BACKING PLAY AS BENEFIT

'NativeSon' Production Billed Nov. 10.

A benefit performance of "Native Son," now playing on Broadway, will be sponsored by the Good Shepherd community center, 5120 South Park Way, on Monday, Nov. 10, when the play is produced here. The drama is taken from a novel written by Richard Wright, a former resident of the south central district.

According to Horace R. Cayton, director of the center, one of the reasons the center has been selected as the site for the benefit performance is to keep local boys from following in the footsteps of Bigger Thomas, the protagonist of the story. Recently Mr. Wright spent two weeks at the center gathering material for his new book, "A Thousand Voices."

Clubs Start Projects.

Ten clubs, each sponsoring a project for underprivileged groups, have joined the affiliated club plan at the center. Special concessions for meetings and social events are open to clubs, in an effort to interest them in community service, it has been announced by Mrs. Tessie Adams, program director.

The Copasettiques club will seek to found free camps for underprivileged children; the Children's Missionary Organization of the Mid-South Side will attempt to care for the sick and shutins, as well as establish a Center library; and the Erudites will share its funds for scholarships and local charities to furnish a clubroom in the center for other groups.

Other Clubs Listed.

THEATER OF AIR DRAWS COAST TO COAST RESPONSE

'Naughty Marietta' Next; John Carter Guest.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The response to the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, aired over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system Saturday evenings, this season is overshadowing that of last year. The tremendous popularity of the outstanding musical productions is reflected in a flood of letters and cards.

These communications from listeners are filled with favorable comment, congratulations, and requests for souvenir programs. They come from coast to coast and from the gulf to Canada.

Among the points from which letters have been received, just to mention a few, are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pasadena, Cal.; Albany, Cortland, New York City, and suburbs from New York state; Bridgeport, Conn.; Washington, D. C.; Roanoke, Va.; Mobile, Ala.; Austin, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Atlanta, Ga., and Winnipeg, Man.

"Naughty Marietta" Next.

Marion Claire and John Carter will lead an all-star singing cast in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," to be aired from 8:45 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the title rôle of Marietta.

Highlight of the program will be Miss Claire's singing of Marietta's famous obligato, "Italian Street Song." Carter will be making his second appearance in the series this year. He sang opposite Miss Claire last night in "Sweethearts."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and the augmented chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. The program will be directed by William A. Bacher.

Betty Winkler to Star.

Supporting Miss Claire and Carter in the singing cast will be Ruth Slater, contralto, and Win Stracke, bass baritone.

Betty Winkler will highlight the dramatic cast, playing the speaking rôle of Marietta, while Bob Bailey will be cast as Capt. Dick Warrington, the rôle sung by Carter. Others in the cast will be Bret Morrison, Elia Braca, Bob Jellison, Florence Brower, Willard Waterman, and Marvin Mueller.

Notable among the musical selections will be "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and the casket girl's song, "Taisez Vous." Marietta's charming introductory number, "Naughty Marietta," is another bright spot. The unforgettable strains of "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" are woven thruout the operetta.

Helen Hayes Will Star in 'Kitty Foyle' on CBS

Helen Hayes, noted actress, will appear on WBBM-CBS at 9:30 tonight in a radio adaptation of Christopher Morley's best seller, "Kitty Foyle." This story was adapted by the movies with Ginger Rogers as the star.

ROSEMARY GARBELL ON WAY TO ACHIEVE HER AMBITION AT 11

Altho only 11, Rosemary Garbell is well on the way to the achievement of her ambition — someday to be the greatest actress in radio. Three years ago she was playing with dolls and taking dancing lessons, like many other girls of her age. Now she has many important radio rôles, among them, Josey in "Harold Teen," broadcast by W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. each Tuesday.

'Way back in 1938, just after her eighth birthday, Rosemary got her start in radio. A part was open in a Chicago daytime serial, and she was recommended for the rôle by a producer who had seen her dance at Mayor Kelly's Christmas benefit show.

But first she would have to learn to act. Radio was suggested as the perfect training school. So radio won Rosemary away from dancing. Now she intends to concentrate on acting and follow in the footsteps of her mother, the former Eva Belmont, once an actress on Broadway.

Rosemary doesn't sit in the corner and read Shakespeare when her studio assignments are completed. She likes to ride a bike and sit on the steps of her home with her many girl friends as they discuss plans for the enlargement of their "Orphan Annie" club, of which Rosemary is the vice president.

LESLEY WOODS IS FEATURED IN 'THE RAINS CAME'

Lesley Woods, former Chicago actress, who was heard last year on W-G-N as the star of the "Carters of Elm Street," is now featured in W-G-N and Mutual's radio adaptation of Louis Bromfield's novel, "The Rains Came," aired every Monday thru Friday at 1:30 p. m. [CST].

Master Canaries Show Features a Chorus of 12

The world's smallest artists, singing canaries, may be heard every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on W-G-N when the Master Radio Canaries presents a 15 minute musical program.

There are solo selections by outstanding singing canaries blended with a chorus of 12 birds. Jess Kirkpatrick is master of ceremonies for the artists and has planned a program that suits the musical tastes of the birds. Some of the canaries prefer classical music, while some like popular tunes. All the birds get their chance for solo work in the type of music they like best. Jess says the dissenting canaries who don't like the type of music being sung sit quietly by, shaking their heads.

Jan Tomasow, violinist with the W59C studio salon orchestra, will be the soloist tomorrow at a concert given in Philadelphia by the Philadelphia Piano orchestra at the Academy of Music.

[Korman Photo.]

Eleanor French, songstress appearing at the Camellia house in the Drake hotel, will make a guest appearance on "The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and Mutual.

Mixing charming vocalists, cowboys, and the navy is not usually done on radio programs, but then the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" is no average radio program. The show to be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m., CST, will feature Miss Eleanor French, vocal stylist from the Camellia house of the Drake hotel, Ken Maynard, cowboy movie star currently with the rodeo at the Chicago Stadium, together with Tom [Bud Vandover], Dick [Marlin Hurt], and Harry [Gordon Vandover].

Ken Maynard.

Miss French, known to numerous night spots in New York, Miami, and Hollywood as well as Chicago, will sing "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "S' Wonderful."

The orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler will open with a Navy day salute, singing "We Saw the Sea," and later offer "Gift from Heaven" with lyrics by Edgar Guest.

The show is produced by William A. Bacher with dialog written by Paul Larmer.

Adolphe Menjou, Wife in 'Case of the Evil Angel'

Adolph Menjou and his wife, Verree Teasdale, will be featured in the production of "The Case of the Evil Angel" on the Silver Theater broadcast over WBBM-CBS at 5 p. m. today. Comedy and mystery are intertwined in this play.

LIVES OF 50,000 TO BE PUT UNDER THE MICROSCOPE

Students Will Analyze Bloom Township.

A 20 week survey of the resources, problems, and opportunities of the nine Bloom township communities and three outlying towns has been begun by the township's schools under the direction of the department of education at the University of Chicago. The inquiry, which is being conducted by 40 advanced students in a special class, will cover 39 square miles within the township alone and will deal with almost every phase of the life of 50,000 persons.

Establishment of the survey, which has enrolled 30 township teachers and 10 civic leaders, was brought about by the efforts of Raymond D. Meade, principal of Bloom Township High school, and Ben A. Sylla, superintendent of Chicago Heights' seven elementary schools.

"We intend to sidestep nothing," said Meade. "This survey will be neither a crusade nor a snooping expedition, but rather an attempt to gather sufficient facts from which conclusions can be drawn later."

Project a New One.

The project is a new one for the university, according to Prof. William C. Reavis, who is in charge. "They came to us with their problem and it seemed worthwhile to give them help. The only similar task we have undertaken is the survey of Hinsdale's schools completed recently."

Dr. Lloyd Allen Cook, professor of sociology at Ohio State university, is collaborating in the task. He is known as an expert in community surveys and has recently completed one in Des Moines, Ia. Prof. Ralph W. Tyler, chairman of the department of education, and Professors Stephen Corey and Newton Edwards are also assisting Prof. Reavis.

Mr. Meade pointed to the high rate of juvenile delinquency in the community, made up largely of wage earners, many of foreign extraction, as "one problem which can be solved only when we find out what makes our community tick."

Ten Teams on Job.

The class has been divided into 10 teams and a specific problem assigned to each. The topics to be explored, as listed by Meade, follow:

1. Basic statistics of the community [from birth rates to bank clearances].
2. Agricultural activities.
3. Health problems and deficiencies.
4. A study of the nationality background of the community. [The foreign-born population is largely Italian, Polish, and Swedish.]
5. Attitude of the community toward phases of education, including vocational training.
6. Agencies serving youth; their objectives and success.
7. Organized facilities for leisure time physical and recreational activities.
8. Organized facilities for intellectual activities.
9. Problems and results of vocational training. [Unlike No. 5.]
10. An over-all cataloging of educational and recreational opportunities. [Listing of specific times for inspection tours of plants and government agencies, etc.]

Meade said publication of the results of the survey had been guaranteed by the community, and would be available to those interested. He declared that several community organizations had shown their full support.

Look to Four Sources.

The facts will be gathered in four ways, Meade said, from individuals, from official figures of police and government agencies, from civic groups, and by personal investigation.

Fashions for Early Winter

MARY MARTIN.

Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Eddie [Rochester] Anderson, Brian Donlevy, and Carolyn Lee will appear on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 8:30 p. m. next Saturday in a special broadcast previewing songs from the new Paramount picture, "The Birth of the Blues."

SMART APPAREL IS FOUND CLOSE TO INDUSTRIES

Simplicity, Good Taste Seen in Clothing.

BY ANGELA.

In the center of the south side industrial section is a store for men's and women's apparel which has a definite suburban atmosphere—building itself, the sales force, the merchandise. An anacronism, but a charming one.

Here in a quiet, leisurely manner women, who come from all the fashionable, residential south side sections and suburbs, select dresses, suits, coats and sports wear from a stock of individual and distinctive models. Wool dresses, exquisitely fashioned gabardine suits, skirts, and quantities of them in plain and plaid and striped materials with sweaters or jackets in matching or contrasting colors, knitted suits, simple silks—all of them extremely good taste to meet the demands of thousands of women of equally sound judgment.

1. This two piece suit of light tan tweed is a very youthful style—an excellent costume for city women. The pockets and the tailored collar are of otter.

2. Wool jersey meets all the requirements of the tailored woman no matter where she lives. Here is a two piece tan wool jersey, the cardigan faced in bright blue and red plaid grosgrain down the front.

3. The knitted suit is casual and comfortable beyond words. The coat and skirt, tho of different colors, are of the same weave. The black skirt has an indistinct plaid pattern in the texture only. The pattern in the biege coat is in color [black] as well as texture. Twisted silver buttons fasten the front closing.

4. Soft black wool fashions this simple tailored dress with the high round neck and the surplice closing. Biege stitching outlines the hem on the peplum, sleeves and neckline.

COLORED POSTAL WORKERS GROUP MARKS BIRTHDAY

The 28th anniversary of the National Alliance of Postal Employés will be celebrated by the Chicago branch at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Good Shepherd Congregational church, 5700 Prairie avenue. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Irene McCoy Gaines, president of the Chicago Council of Negro Organizations.

Musical entertainers scheduled to appear are the Federal Glee club, directed by William E. Myricks; the Alliance quartet; Miss Wilma Fletcher of Galesburg, Ill., and 6 year old Emmerlyn Jane Kemp.

PIPES IN FLOOR PROVIDE HEAT IN RAVINE HOME

Pump Circulates Water Thru System.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is news and interest back of the story of three engaging small homes at the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan just east of Sheridan road.

All these were designed by William A. Ganster, architect. He also is the owner of one of the homes. In the heating of these dwellings he has employed radiant heating. This is a method of heating which utilizes pipe coils in the floor, walls, or ceilings to heat the rooms.

There now are more than 100 radiant heating installations in the United States, with approximately 20 in the Chicago area, according to Louis T. Braun, secretary of the Chicago Master Steam Fitters' association.

In the case of the three Waukegan homes the pipe coils are in the floors, hot water is the heating medium and the boilers are oil-fired.

For Moderate Cost Homes.

The use of radiant heating in these houses is especially interesting because the houses are moderate in cost, Mr. Ganster's home was built for $7,900 in the fall of 1940; P. W. Yager's house, which adjoins Mr. Ganster's, cost $8,000, and D. J. Dalziel's, which is just east of the Yager house, cost $6,700.

While radiant heating effects may be attained with pipe coils placed either in floors, ceilings, walls, or all three, Mr. Ganster prefers to place them in the floor with supplementary ceiling or wall panels as necessary. The circulation of the water is forced thru the coils by means of an electric pump. None of the houses have basements and the boilers are placed in utility rooms. The circulation of the water thru the pipe coils in the floor is controled by a thermostat placed outdoors.

Three Walls of Glass.

Of interest, too, is the fact, that each house has a blank wall to the street and is open to the ravine and the sun. Glass from the floor to the ceiling—eight feet—on three sides of the living room of the Ganster house floods it with light and provides solar heat during the bright days in the winter, thus economizing on fuel.

By use of cantilever construction, the living room and one of the bedrooms of the house literally are hung over the ravine. The effect of the entire front of the house so spectacularly hung over the steep ravine is startling to any one accustomed to seeing all weight securely borne by pillers or walls.

Radiant heating was first used in England some 50 years ago. It is quite widely used in Europe both for heating and cooling. Imbedded pipe coils, of course, can be used for cooling only in regions where the humidity is low. The first building in the United States to be heated by this method was the British embassy in Washington, built in 1930.

Water Temperature Lower.

The essential difference between radiant heating and heating with radiators is in the heat distributing surface. In the case of a radiator, the surface is relatively small and the temperature of the heating medium is high. In the case of radiant heating, the entire wall, floor, or ceiling in which the pipe coils are imbedded acts as a radiant surface. Because the radiant surface is so large, the temperature of the heating medium is correspondingly low, especially when hot water is used. The water, by the way, is kept circulating continuously by the pump and water temperatures as low as 100 degrees are practical in installations designed for this low operating temperature.

Mr. Ganster reports a fuel cost of $125 for 12 months which includes the heating of the domestic hot water supply by the boiler the year around. Boilers are identical with those used for conventional hot water heating with radiators or convectors.

The procedure which Mr. Ganster specifies for the installation of pipe coils in the floor is first a sand fill six inches deep on the earth. The sand is covered with partition tile, 4 by 12 by 12, laid flat, and the pipe coils are placed on the tile. Sand is filled in between the pipes, and acts as a cushion or bed taking up the expansion and contraction of the pipe. Then a 4 inch concrete slab is poured on top the sand cushion.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 27.

Trees and shrubs and hardy vines still can be planted if the ground is not too frozen. Large trees or slow-growing low trees like the hawthorn and crab can be moved freely and safely when balled and baled. This method is more costly than when smaller material is moved without being balled. Often a single large tree will change the whole appearance of a yard and increase its value.

No established tree should be cut to make way for a new building unless it is absolutely necessary. The hard wood native trees are preferable; these include oak, hackberry, walnut, and kindred kinds.

A tree or two of the new hardy hickories, pecans, chestnuts, or walnuts have an economic value that is well worth while and as specimens any of them may be used. These are best moved in spring but may be planned for at that time.

Tuesday, Oct. 28.

Rake off heavy accumulations of leaves on the lawn to avoid matting down and possible smothering of the grass. Hardwood leaves make fine material for composting, but leaves from softwoods decay rapidly and are not as useful as the former. Leafmold is very useful when mixed with composted soil and sand as potting soil, and the home gardener seems never to have enough of it.

Cut and burn the tops of all hardy perennials, annuals, and weeds in the neighborhood to destroy lurking places of insect pests and disease. Collect and burn all leaves from rose plants to avoid the retention of disease spores. Black spot prevails in some beds and may lie dormant all winter and become active in springtime.

Wednesday, Oct. 29.

Never allow tools to lie out of doors to be ruined by exposure to the elements. And never permit tools to be placed in storage until they are thoroly cleaned and oiled to prevent rust. Paint all parts that can be painted, oil every part that needs it, run water from the hose and hang it up where it will not be run over by the auto; in fact, see that everything is gardenshape before severe weather arrives.

Trim the Boston ivy or Engelman's ivy away from window casings. Protect newly planted trees and shrubs with strawy manure spread around their base. It is unnecessary to wait until the ground is frozen before applying this material around the plants. Spread it any time it can be obtained in late fall and results will be satisfactory.

Thursday, Oct. 30.

To keep dahlia tubers over winter, pack in boxes of sand or peat with a burlap over them. Dust those that keep poorly with sulphur. Furnace heated basements are so dry it is sometimes difficult to keep roots in good condition. Place the dahlias upside down.

Gladiolus bulbs can be stored in a cool place, or above freezing. Place in paper bags, 100 to the bag with an ounce of naphthalene flakes as a means of killing any thrips that may be on them. A 40 degree temperature will not injure these bulbs. Cannas may be stored in the same way as dahlias.

Friday, Oct. 31.

Late chrysanthemums, unless frozen, can be lifted and potted and placed on an inclosed porch where they will flower and furnish material to brighten up the home. Lily of the valley clumps and spurge are greatly benefited when given a light mulch of manure. Peat moss or leafmold also may be used.

Saturday, Nov. 1.

Buy a few small pot plants of various kinds to grow in the house. Many of the begonias furnish excellent material to grow on and the florist usually has a good variety from which to make a selection. Select the good flowering kinds, such as President Carot, lucerna, B. templini, and others of equal beauty.

END HALSTED ST. BLACKOUTS WITH BRIGHTER LIGHTS

Bridgeport Wins 'New Lamps for Old.'

New street lamps that will increase illumination by 30 per cent are being installed on Halsted street between 35th and 43d streets. Workmen on the project probably will finish the job by the end of the week.

Halsted is the main business street in the Bridgeport community, and business men and civic groups for 10 years have been demanding the lighting improvement. Finally last spring the city council approved an order introduced by Ald. Hugh B. Connelly [11th], granting sufficient funds for the rehabilitation and installation of street lights on several important thorofares in the ward.

No More Blackouts.

The Halsted street project calls for 44 lamps of the 1,000 candle power transformer type. With this type, other lights on the same circuit are not affected when one lamp is extinguished. When one of the old type lights, which these replace, went out, an entire block was thrown into darkness.

From this section, the workers next week will move northward to improve the present lighting on Halsted street from Archer avenue to 35th street. Here the outside globes shielding the street lamps will be replaced by modern reflectors.

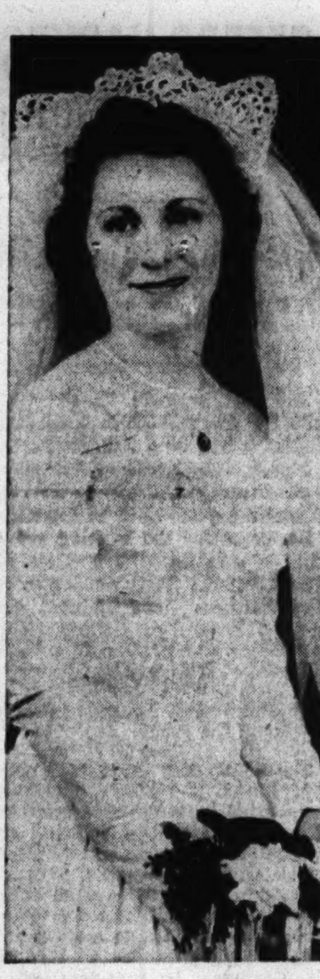
Next week also work will begin on the installation of 116 new 1,000 candle power transformer type lamps on Wallace street from Root to 29th street and 191 lights of the same type on Archer avenue from Canal to Wood street.

Install Other Lights.

Thomas J. Fitzgibbon, district superintendent of the department of electricity, has charge of the lighting improvements in the ward.

Installation of new 1,000 candle power lights has been completed on Wentworth avenue between 41st and 43d street; on 35th street [41 lights] between Ashland avenue and Wentworth, which carries the heavy traffic to Comiskey park, and on Pershing road [106 lights] from Ashland avenue to Wentworth.

Whiting Girl Wed



The former Miss Marie Gaburiak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vendline Gaburiak of Whiting, is the bride of Michael Benko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Benko of Hegewisch. The wedding took place recently in St. John's church.

ARRANGE DANCE SATURDAY FOR NEGRO SOLDIERS

"A Night for Soldiers" ball will be sponsored by Ald. Earl B. Dickerson [2d] Saturday evening in the 8th regiment armory, 35th street and Giles avenue. The purpose, said the alderman, is "to express the interest of local citizens in the welfare of the Negro boys in camp in the Chicago area."

Five thousand are expected to attend the show. Admission will be a pack of cigarets, a tube of tooth paste, a tooth brush, or a box of stationery. These contributions will be sent to Negroes at Fort Custer and camps at Chanute, Rantoul, Savannah, and Proving Ground, Ill. Five hundred soldiers from these camps will be present.

Hostesses will be 300 local young women who have volunteered their services. Making arrangements for the program is the South Central Recreation committee, headed by W. Ellis Stewart, chairman; John Johnson, and Joseph Jefferson. For the patriotic ceremony, music will be supplied by Giles post of the American Legion, of which Ald. Dickerson is first commander, and the colors will be posted by a local Boy Scout troop.

Auburn Pk. Business Men to Present Fashion Show

The Auburn Park Business Men's association will sponsor a card party, style show, and business exposition at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 7832 Union street. Patrick Doyle is president of the association and John H. Schroll is secretary.

Dancing Party Wednesday Will Fete James M. Whalen

An entertainment and dancing party will be held Wednesday evening at the Trianon ballroom to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the first election of James M. Whalen as democratic committeeman of the 6th ward. Mr. Whalen entered public life when he was appointed by the late John W. Rainey as chief clerk of the Circuit court. Then he served as a member of the Cook County Civil Service commission until 1922, when he was elected sanitary district trustee. Mr. Whalen lives with his wife and four children at 6641 Kimbark avenue.

Engaged

The engagement of Miss Lee Goldberg to Maurice Goldman was recently announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Goldberg of South Bend. Mr. Goldman is the son of Mrs. Lena Goldman, 903 West 69th street.

Operetta Time at Union Park

TESTING A HIGH NOTE

Geisha girls, with chrysanthemums in their hair, performed in "Miss Cherry Blossom" last Monday and Tuesday evenings in Union park fieldhouse, known for its annual song fests. The Geisha girls were really the prettiest from Union park, where Miss Anna Walker, park dramatic director, has been teaching them the dances and the deportment of Japan. Back stage between scenes is Willie Trives (left), cast in the role of Tozo, listening to a deep bass note coming from Koko, who is Napoleon Bethea off stage.

THREE LITTLE MAIDS

The operetta had its three pretty maids from school who are, left to right, Clara Hixson, Doris Wright, and Alvia Holmas. The girls made their own costumes and the scenery was a contribution from the drama shop of Washington park.

LAST MINUTE AID

The Japanese girl at the left is being prepared for her stage entrance by Miss Bessie Brady, the hairdresser for the cast. The actress here is Marjorie Bethea.

TOUCH UP MOMENT

With the first scene over the Geisha girls put on an extra dash of makeup. Doris Wright and Geraldine Cook serve as critics for Illinois Causey, who plies the powder puff.

SWING REHEARSAL

RELAXATION

After the first act Koko dons his glasses, lights a cigaret, and rests as he receives the plaudits of Geisha girls, Dorothy Cobbs and Illinois Causey.

SEEK METHODS TO STOP FLOODS UNDER VIADUCTS

Engineers Draft 2 Plans for Study.

Chicagoans who wade deep in water under some 200 viaducts every time there is a severe rainstorm may get a break tomorrow when the city's traffic experts tangle with the ancient problem of flood control.

The executive committees of four area councils of the Chicago Motor club will meet with city, county, state, and sanitary district engineers and industrial and school leaders to seek a solution to the problem of Chicago's flooded viaducts. The meeting will be held at noon at the Illinois Athletic club.

Street Cars Stalled.

Viaduct floods, sure signs of spring and fall in Chicago, annually cost an untold sum in damage and traffic delay, and cause discomfort and frequently danger to thousands of persons, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

The Chicago Surface Lines report that street cars have been stalled from one to five times at 103 viaducts during the last 12 months. Trucking companies report long delays at some 200 viaducts during flood times.

The problem goes back many years. The city long ago was successful in getting all major railroads to raise their tracks in all sections. But, in most cases, the tracks were not raised high enough for proper clearance of street car and truck traffic without lowering the street levels under the viaducts.

Overloads Sewers.

It is this dip in the street levels under the viaducts that causes all the trouble. During heavy rains, the waters settle in the viaducts, overloading the sewer systems and causing them to back up. The situation is further complicated with the plugging up of drains by leaves and debris.

Thus, in many cases, viaducts which ordinarily would be drained within several minutes remain flooded for hours.

Two solutions have been proposed by engineers. One is to install new sewers, particularly in the Hyde Park district and on the west and northwest side along Kostner avenue from 26th street to North avenue and west to Mont Clare avenue. This project, it is estimated, would cost from 20 to 30 million dollars.

The second plan, which is said to be cheaper, would be to install pumps at individual viaducts which during a rain would be operated by the city. Each pump would cost about $15,000 and about $600 a year to operate.

The latter plan already is in operation at the recently completed viaducts on Austin avenue near Bloomingdale avenue under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and at 79th street, southwest highway, and Kedzie avenue.

Five viaducts on the west side named as the worst for flood conditions, and statistics on the time they could not be used, are Pulaski-Kinzie, out of use 21 times, maximum time out of use, 8 hours and 7 minutes; North-Kenton, 17 times out of use; 14 hours and 15 minutes, maximum time out of use; Division-Kenton, 15 times out of use, maximum time, 11 hours and 45 minutes; Chicago-Albany, 12 times out of use, 3 hours and 15 minutes, maximum time out of use; Cicero-Kinzie, 12 times out of use; 4 hours and 30 minutes, maximum time.

Lawndale Trades Hot Dogs for Damage

NOT THIS—

Lawndale has caught its ghosts. The community has them eating hot dogs out of its hand. Before the three hour program, designed by Marcy center to capture the fancy of any ghost or goblin, Halloween in Lawndale was an upset-the-garbage-can proposition. There was something bad in every good little boy that came atearin' and ararin' thru town on All Saints' eve. Demonstrating how not to celebrate Halloween are, left to right, Anthony Cairo, Jimmy Cairo, Irwin Slotnick, Don Kunel, Tom Orsic, Billy Johansen, Wally Jacobs, and Steve Jancik.

BUT THIS—

In contrast is Halloween today with the good in every bad little boy showing, but with the halos invisible. There will be parades and movies and bonfires on the Marcy playground, the appeasement policy of Marcy settlement toward the Halloween goblins. Here are Lieut. Edward F. Flood of engine company No. 38 and Officer Oscar Steinberg of the Fillmore station (at the right) showing the boys how to build a fire and make it count for cooking. The 1941 goblins about to get a sandwich are, left to right, Joseph Zib, Harold Prock, Daniel Connelly, Ken Prock, Howard Cohen, and Robert Tresch.

MOTHERS' CLUB OF ST. IGNATIUS TO PLAY CARDS

The alumni group of St. Ignatius High School Mothers' club will hold a dessert bridge party at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Damen hall, 1076 West Roosevelt road.

Mrs. Richard Quilter is chairman of the party assisted by Mrs. James C. Byrne, Mrs. Felix A. Cinoski, Mrs. Thomas Condon, Mrs. Abraham Lapping, Mrs. Frank Doyle, Mrs. Harold Koch, Mrs. Walter Slania, and Mrs. Albert Vanderbosch.

Mrs. Stephen O'Connor is president of the club and the Rev. Bernard A. Foote is moderator.

Maywood Dance.

Maywood Jewish Community center will hold its annual dance Dec. 13 at the Midwest Athletic club.

St. Isaac Jogues Parish Will Give Annual Party

St. Isaac Jogues parish, Hinsdale, will give its annual parish dance and card party Saturday night at the Edgewood Valley Country club, Willow Springs road and 75th street. Card playing will start at 8:30 o'clock. Refreshments will be served thruout the evening. Invitation to attend the party is extended to friends of the parish in and about Chicago.

La Grange Women Voters to Study South America

"Introducing South America" will be the topic of Gregorino Martinez de Antonana who will speak tomorrow at a meeting of the La Grange League of Women Voters at 1 p. m. in the Green Shutters tearoom. Mrs. L. J. Travis, chairman of foreign relations, will speak on "Mexicans and Us."'

WISCONSINITE TAKES POSITION AT OAK PARK 'Y'

Gordon D. Shorney, president of the board of the Oak Park YMCA, has announced that Omer K. Wright from Racine, Wis., has accepted the position of assistant boys' work secretary.

At the "Y" he will be in charge of the building activities of the boys' division, will supervise the lobby and will work on membership campaigns. He succeeds Allan F. Beyers who resigned Sept. 15 to become United Service organization secretary at Rantoul, Ill., to serve the soldiers at Chanute field.

Marvin Lotz has been added to the boys' division staff as part time assistant with a major responsibility for the elementary school age community club program.

MARCY CENTER PLANS BONFIRES AFTER PARADE

Parks, Suburbs Will Have Carnivals.

Three hours of prevention is worth a week of cleaning up and paying the bills in the Lawndale area after Halloween.

Marcy center, 1539 South Springfield avenue, in coöperation with Yarmo Devere post of the American Legion, the Fillmore police station, engine company No. 38 of the Chicago fire department, William Penn school, and Lawndale business men has planned a three hour community program to keep Halloween sprites too busy for mischief.

The program tried last year brought 3,000 participants and a thousand spectators. The police department reported that not one police call based on Halloween pranks had been received and no false fire alarms had been turned in from the Marcy center area. The program begins with a long parade and ends with a movie program lasting an hour. By this time, Marcy center officials affirm, the Halloween goblins are tired enough for bed.

The Lawndale parade will form in the front playground of the center at 7 o'clock. Hundreds of boys and girls, some in elaborate costumes and some with charcoal rubbed on their faces and costumed in old pants and torn shirt, will march for more than a mile down Springfield to 15th street, on Crawford to 14th, as far as Roosevelt road and then back to the center.

A huge bonfire will be waiting the returning marchers in the Marcy playground. After they have assembled a lighted torch suspended on invisible wire will shoot from a window at the settlement and sweep down to ignite the stack of wood in the yard.

After the large bonfire has been extinguished four smaller fires will be kindled and the children will toast wieners for sandwiches. The last thing on the program is the motion picture show.

Advertised Thru School.

The event is being advertised thru the William Penn school under the direction of Will Anderson, principal. The police department will provide a motorcycle escort and the American Legion drum and bugle corps will march at the head of the parade. The 16th street business men are contributing funds to defray the program expenses.

Capt. Louis Klatsco of the Fillmore police is sending Sergt. William Touhy to help with the parade and the entertainment. Chief John Finnen of engine company No. 38 will be represented by Lieut. Edward F. Flood, who will assist in building and extinguishing the fires.

Hyman Levine is general chairman of the committee. Members of the parade committee are Wes Leverich, Walter Schlenker, Harold Ludwig, Sam Bittman, Albert Schuster. The bonfire committee members are Herbert Burke, Arnold Bernstein, Dave Rosen, and Eddy Ross. The wiener roast committee is composed of Miss Eda Jacobson, Miss Leona Wadler, Miss Dolores Braver, Miss Thelma Brown, and Miss Evelyn Katz.

In Columbus Park.

Halloween will also be observed in Chicago in several park fieldhouses and playgrounds. Featuring the Columbus park program will be a costume parade thru the neighborhood, a huge bonfire on the park playgrounds, games and contests.

One thousand apples will be hidden thru the park for an apple hunt. A prize will be awarded to the costume winners in three different divisions.

At the refectory hall a jitterbug contest will be held for the senior boys and girls group of the park community starting at 8:30 o'clock. Only those in costumes will be admitted.

The Garfield park celebration is cosponsored by the Garfield Park Business Men's association and the park district. Public schools, Scout troops, and Truck Drivers' squad No. 816 of the American Legion are coöperating.

To Have Costume Parade.

The Douglas park celebration will include a costume parade, an amateur show, a novelty act, community singing, black cat and bean guessing games, and a bonfire.

A Halloween party at Harrison park, 18th and Wood streets, will begin with a costume parade thru the streets led by Pilsen post American Legion drum and bugle corps. When the paraders return to the park they will set fire to a witch on top of the fieldhouse and she will come sliding down a wire to a pile of brush and paper in the middle of the ballfield and serve as ignition for the bonfire.

SUBURBAN FESTIVALS

According to plans of business leaders in several west suburbs all the Halloween spooks will be gathered together for community parties on the eve when the autumn leaves rustle in their most mysterious fashion and there is witchery in every swish of the night wind.

A double anniversary celebration to commemorate the 35th year since the founding of the congregation and the 25th year since the dedication of its church building will be held today by Trinity Lutheran church of Oak Park, of which the Rev. H. W. Romoser is pastor.

At 10:45 o'clock this morning the Rev. Martin Walker of Buffalo, N. Y., president of the English district of the Missouri synod, will preach. The Rev. J. M. Bailey of Good Shepherd Lutheran church in Maywood, who was the first pastor of Trinity church, serving from 1907 to 1920, will preach the sermon at 7:45 o'clock this evening.

Trinity choir, now in its 10th year, will sing anniversary anthems under the direction of Prof. Theodore Lams, organist and conductor, at both services.

Use Engine House Hall.

On Oct. 28, 1906, when Trinity congregation was founded, there were no church quarters to be found. There were not even empty store buildings, which was what many Chicago and suburban churches used for their first meeting places. However, the Oak Park village officers gave the organizers the use of the hall above the old engine house at Lake street and Lombard.

There were no pews, no church furniture, and no stove, but the worshipers met regularly. Less than three years from the date of the opening services, the chapel building on Erie street just east of Ridgeland was dedicated.

Find Chapel Too Small.

The formal organization of the congregation had taken place on April 4, 1907. The Erie street chapel, which was erected in 1909, soon became too small and on Nov. 26, 1916, the present building at Ridgeland avenue and Erie street was dedicated. The current church membership is approximately 600.

A number of charter members of the church are active in its work today.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

IT is a long step from Melrose Park to opera in New York but Waldemar Schroeder, 31 year old baritone, has accomplished it. In 1932 he was chosen the "best man singer" of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contest. Last week Mr. Schroeder, who was a bank clerk, made his debut as Guglielmo in "Cosi Fan Tutte" in the first of a six week series of operas being given by the New Opera company at the Forty-fourth Street theater in New York.

DANIEL A. WEDGE, oldest retired employé of the Burlington railroad and believed to be the oldest retired railroad conductor in the country, will celebrate his 100th birthday today in his home at 544 Pennsylvania avenue, Aurora. He started railroading in 1875 in the Burlington shops at Aurora. He became a brakeman in 1880 and was promoted to conductor in 1882. He retired on a pension at the age of 78.

In celebration of Mr. Wedge's birthday, the Burlington dining car department has prepared a cake with 100 candles which will be presented to the centenarian today by Vice President J. C. James and Assistant Vice President H. C. Murphy of the railroad. When Mr. Wedge went to work for the Burlington the railroad's system ended shortly beyond the Missouri river in Nebraska and the line from Aurora to St. Paul had not been built. It was the era of gas lights, open platforms, and wooden cars.

PIPES IN FLOOR PROVIDE HEAT IN RAVINE HOME

Pump Circulates Water Thru System.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is news and interest back of the story of three engaging small homes at the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan just east of Sheridan road.

All these were designed by William A. Ganster, architect. He also is the owner of one of the homes. In the heating of these dwellings he has employed radiant heating. This is a method of heating which utilizes pipe coils in the floor, walls, or ceilings to heat the rooms.

There now are more than 100 radiant heating installations in the United States, with approximately 20 in the Chicago area, according to Louis T. Braun, secretary of the Chicago Master Steam Fitters' association.

In the case of the three Waukegan homes the pipe coils are in the floors, hot water is the heating medium and the boilers are oil-fired.

For Moderate Cost Homes.

The use of radiant heating in these houses is especially interesting because the houses are moderate in cost, Mr. Ganster's home was built for $7,900 in the fall of 1940; P. W. Yager's house, which adjoins Mr. Ganster's, cost $8,000, and D. J. Dalziel's, which is just east of the Yager house, cost $6,700.

While radiant heating effects may be attained with pipe coils placed either in floors, ceilings, walls, or all three, Mr. Ganster prefers to place them in the floor with supplementary ceiling or wall panels as necessary. The circulation of the water is forced thru the coils by means of an electric pump. None of the houses have basements and the boilers are placed in utility rooms. The circulation of the water thru the pipe coils in the floor is controled by a thermostat placed outdoors.

Three Walls of Glass.

Of interest, too, is the fact that each house has a blank wall to the street and is open to the ravine and the sun. Glass from the floor to the ceiling—eight feet—on three sides of the living room of the Ganster house floods it with light and provides solar heat during the bright days in the winter, thus economizing on fuel.

The essential difference between radiant heating and heating with radiators is in the heat distributing surface. In the case of a radiator, the surface is relatively small and the temperature of the heating medium is high. In the case of radiant heating, the entire wall, floor, or ceiling in which the pipe coils are imbedded acts as a radiant surface. Because the radiant surface is so large, the temperature of the heating medium is correspondingly low, especially when hot water is used. The water, by the way, is kept circulating continuously by the pump and water temperatures as low as 100 degrees are practical in installations designed for this low operating temperature.

Mr. Ganster reports a fuel cost of $125 for 12 months which includes the heating of the domestic hot water supply by the boiler the year around. Boilers are identical with those used for conventional hot water heating with radiators or convectors.

The procedure which Mr. Ganster specifies for the installation of pipe coils in the floor is first a sand fill six inches deep on the earth. The sand is covered with partition tile, 4 by 12 by 12, laid flat, and the pipe coils are placed on the tile. Sand is filled in between the pipes, and acts as a cushion or bed taking up the expansion and contraction of the pipe. Then a 4 inch concrete slab is poured on top the sand cushion.

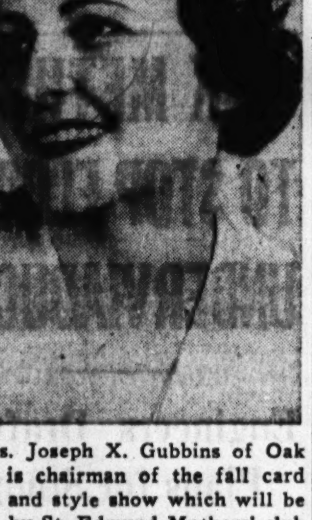
Planning Benefit



Mrs. Joseph X. Gubbins of Oak Park is chairman of the fall card party and style show which will be given by St. Edmund Mothers' club of Oak Park at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 12, in the St. Edmund school hall. Mrs. William Cahill is co-chairman.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 27.

Trees and shrubs and hardy vines still can be planted if the ground is not too frozen. Large trees or slow-growing low trees like the hawthorn and crab can be moved freely and safely when balled and baled. This method is more costly than when smaller material is moved without being balled. Often a single large tree will change the whole appearance of a yard and increase its value.

Tuesday, Oct. 28.

Rake off heavy accumulations of leaves on the lawn to avoid matting down and possible smothering of the grass. Hardwood leaves make fine material for composting, but leaves from softwoods decay rapidly and are not as useful as the former. Leafmold is very useful when mixed with composted soil and sand as potting soil, and the home gardener seems never to have enough of it.

Cut and burn the tops of all hardy perennials, annuals, and weeds in the neighborhood to destroy lurking places of insect pests and disease. Collect and burn all leaves from rose plants to avoid the retention of disease spores. Black spot prevails in some beds and may lie dormant all winter and become active in springtime.

Wednesday, Oct. 29.

Never allow tools to lie out of doors to be ruined by exposure to the elements. And never permit tools to be placed in storage until they are thoroly cleaned and oiled to prevent rust. Paint all parts that can be painted, oil every part that needs it, run water from the hose and hang it up where it will not be run over by the auto; in fact, see that everything is gardenshape before severe weather arrives.

Thursday, Oct. 30.

To keep dahlia tubers over winter, pack in boxes of sand or peat with a burlap over them. Dust those that keep poorly with sulphur. Furnace heated basements are so dry it is sometimes difficult to keep roots in good condition. Place the dahlias upside down.

Gladiolus bulbs can be stored in a cool place, or above freezing. Place in paper bags, 100 to the bag with an ounce of naphthalene flakes as a means of killing any thrips that may be on them. A 40 degree temperature will not injure these bulbs. Cannas may be stored in the same way as dahlias.

Friday, Oct. 31.

Late chrysanthemums, unless frozen, can be lifted and potted and placed on an inclosed porch where they will flower and furnish material to brighten up the home. Lily of the valley clumps and spurge are greatly benefited when given a light mulch of manure. Peat moss or leafmold also may be used.

Saturday, Nov. 1.

Buy a few small pot plants of various kinds to grow in the house. Many of the begonias furnish excellent material to grow on and the florist usually has a good variety from which to make a selection. Select the good flowering kinds, such as President Carot, lucerna, B. templini, and others of equal beauty.

ELMHURST'S 7TH CIVIC GROUP TO SEEK MEMBERS

East Central Assn. Will Visit All Homes.

Organized in the summer of 1940, the East Central Improvement association of Elmhurst, newest of seven such groups in the suburb, is preparing a house-to-house membership campaign.

The new organization is representative of 277 residents of the territory extending from the Great Western railroad tracks north to the south side of St. Charles road, and from the eastern limits of Elmhurst to the west side of York road, embracing the Cherry Farm and Crescent Park subdivisions.

In common with other improvement groups of Elmhurst, the purpose of the association is "to preserve and enhance wherever possible the community attributes which make Elmhurst a desirable residential city."

Brings About Reforms.

During its brief existence the association has been active in obtaining needed repair of streets, removal of traffic hazards, and bus service for the transportation of school children. It has contributed financially to litigation against increases in suburban train fares and to summer recreational activities for boys and girls.

The association also has fought evasions of the zoning and building restrictions of the district and has sought to attract new residents by giving assurance that property and social values will not be allowed to deteriorate.

Recognizing that the interests of all neighborhoods in Elmhurst are closely related, the association has membership in the Elmhurst Improvement Association council which coördinates the activities of all improvement groups of the city.

The organization conducts for its members an educational program concerning the operations of the city government. Its officers are:

S. E. Taylor, president; Robert Plecity, vice president; L. H. Schell, secretary, and E. L. McGrath, treasurer. Members of the board of directors are P. F. Gifford, M. I. Hersey, R. E. Ericzon, L. W. Ritter, G. C. Biester, and A. G. Metcalfe.

Committee appointments include A. A. Mattich, chairman; J. W. Freimuth, P. F. Gifford, program; E. A. Christian, chairman, and G. P. Lichtenheld, recreation; S. E. Taylor, chairman; A. G. Metcalfe, G. M. Smith, J. A. Swales, and M. I. Hersey, zoning.

A. F. Schlandt, chairman; G. C. Biester, and Robert Plecity, council; L. H. Schell, S. C. Metcalfe, Dr. George H. Richardson, and F. H. Woy, transportation; E. L. McGrath, chairman, and L. W. Ritter, publicity; W. A. Twiss, chairman, and G. L. Meister, H. C. Sandberg, and P. V. Jordan, membership; E. F. Kane, chairman, and R. E. Peterson, J. V. Guthrie, Dr. E. L. Irish, and D. L. Harwood, public improvements.

OPPONENTS ON DEFENSE POLICIES ADVERTISE VIEWS IN SUBURB

Controversy over the question of national defense has reached the stage in Glen Ellyn where the Glen Ellyn News has opened its columns to advertisments of opposing groups and limited other space to advance notices of meetings.

Edmund J. Phillips Jr., an advertising man who is a resident of the village, began the paid-for argument with an article headed, "It's a Sad State of Affairs" and regretting that local division of opinion was such that the local newspaper must suspend reports of the meetings of opposing groups. He explained that he was not a member of the America First committee or the Committee to Defend America, and suggested a merger of the two groups.

Replying in an article headed "Alleged Disunity," Walter M. Fowler, a member of America First, Glen Ellyn chapter, explained there was no disunity upon the question of national defense, and added "the real question causing disunity among the people is "Shall we enter the current foreign war on the side of Britain and Russia and against Germany, Italy, and Finland. If there is any disunity among the two committees, it stems from that question and none other." Mr. Fowler is a lawyer and a former president of the village.

F. G. Milmoe, publisher of the Glen Ellyn News, explained to both groups that all articles accepted for publication must be dignified in their nature.

Will Head Institute

Mrs. Ernest B. Tomlinson is president of the Oak Park Council on International Affairs which will hold its 10th annual institute Tuesday and Wednesday in the 19th Century clubhouse, Oak Park. AMERICA FIRST UNIT IN WHEATON NAMES OFFICERS

Maps Plans for Future Anti-War Rallies.

The campaign to keep this country out of a "shooting" war overseas has now been perfected in Du Page county. Final steps were taken last Monday evening, with the organization of the Wheaton chapter of the America First committee.

Frederic Babcock, travel editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was elected chairman of the chapter. Henry S. Rademacher, Chicago attorney, was named vice chairman; Mrs. V. C. Lynch, secretary, and Miss Nettie M. Burd, treasurer.

On the executive committee are the officers and Thomas P. Kellogg, Mrs. O. S. Mundy, Mrs. Jacob Hahn, Walter S. Pyne, Edward Hutchcraft, and Lewis H. Stafford.

Win Use of Hall.

Permanent organization followed a dispute over the chapter's use of the Wheaton Community hall. Opponents of the America First committee had contended that any building supported by the taxpayers should not be open to groups engaged in political controversy. E. L. Gates, chairman of the Wheaton park commission, which controls the Community hall, took the position that any recognized group—be it pro-war or anti-war—was entitled to freedom of speech and freedom of assembly. He therefore refused to intervene.

The Wheaton chapter plans to coöperate with the chapters in Glen Ellyn, Lombard, Warrenville, and other nearby towns in bringing in nationally known speakers and holding public meetings in a campaign of education against war. It already has sent telegrams to Sen. C. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] and Rep. Chauncey Reed [R., 11th], commending their stand against repeal of the neutrality act, and to Sen. Scott Lucas [D., Ill.], demanding that he vote to keep intact what is left of the neutrality law.

Member of Legion.

Babcock, the new chairman, is a veteran of the World war. He is a member of both the American Legion and the Authors' League of America. Of English descent, he traces his Americanism back to the Pilgrims. His forefathers fought in both the American revolution and the Civil war. He is the author of numerous magazine articles and of the anti-war novel, "Blood of the Lamb."

Rademacher, the vice chairman, also is a veteran of the World war. His grandfather fought in the Civil war.

Toman Forum Will Talk on 'Governments in Exile'

Toman Library forum, 27th street and Pulaski road, will conduct a symposium on "Governments in Exile" at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening in the library. The speakers are James Martinek, Czechoslovak journalist; Anthony Czarnecki, Polish journalist, and Edvard Hambro, son of the former Norwegian prime minister, Carl Hambro. R. A. Ginsburg is chairman.

GUILD FOUNDED ON DISASTER TO DISPLAY GIFTS

Needlework Group Will Meet Wednesday.

Hundreds of articles, from bathrobes to pillow cases and from coats to wash cloths, will be on display at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the Austin YMCA, 501 North Central avenue. It will be the one meeting of the year for the Austin chapter of the Needlework Guild of America. Membership in the organization, which was founded in England in 1882, means the giving of two new garments a year for the needy.

There are no dues in the organization, no tea parties and no programs. Once a year the members bring their two garments or send them to one of the directors and they are displayed before being sent to the needy in that community. More than two million garments were collected in the United States last year. There are 163 city branches, 536 town branches and 23 Negro branches in the national organization.

Based on Mine Disaster.

The organization, based on the one meeting and one deed a year, has grown to such proportions that the work is carried on in Labrador, New Zealand, Scotland, Canada and Honolulu. It started when a tragic mine disaster in Wales orphaned many little children who were taken to a nearby institution in which Lady Wolverton of Dorsetshire, England, was interested.

To clothe these children she asked her friends each to contribute two new articles of clothing, exactly alike, so the child would know he had a spare article of clothing to wear when the first one needed washing.

The response to the request was so generous that a permanent organization was formed for the purpose of collecting each year a supply of new clothing, household linen and bedding for the needy. Three years later Mrs. Alanson Hartpence of Philadelphia returned from England with the story of the organization.

Work Is Started.

Her niece, Miss Laura Safford, and six girls who met for Bible study agreed to interest others in contributing new articles for needy persons in Philadelphia. At the first meeting 921 articles were collected and distributed to hospitals, orphanages and private homes.

By 1892 there were 100 branches organized and 95,868 articles distributed. The Needlework guild coöperates with the American Red Cross in local and national relief work. In time of disaster it makes special collections as requested by the Red Cross. The first special collection was during the time of the Johnstown flood in 1889. Since then there have been 27 special collections.

Collect 1,000 Garments.

Almost one thousand garments are collected and used in the Austin area where Mrs. Cornelius J. Peeples has been an officer for 25 years. She has been president of the unit for 10 years.

Serving with her are Mrs. Maynard C. Norton, Mrs. Joseph T. Eschmann, Mrs. Julian S. Mogenson, and Mrs. Louis F. Alrutz, vice presidents; Mrs. Albert H. Johnson, secretary, and Mrs. N. L. Kratz, treasurer.

Committees for the 1941 ingathering are Mrs. George Logan, Mrs. Frank Wyatt, and Mrs. N. L. Kratz, receiving chairmen; Mrs. Albert J. Pohlman and Mrs. Peeples, program; Mrs. Alrutz, Mrs. Norton, and Mrs. Robert J. McLaren, refreshments, and Mrs. Eschmann and Mrs. Mogenson, reception.

Bride-to-Be

Miss Dorothy Jane Braese is engaged to be married to Richard Rowland Jones. The announcement was made by her mother, Mrs. Otto C. Braese of Oak Park. Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Jones of Oak Park. No date has been set for the wedding.

B'nai B'rith Auxiliary to Hold Membership Tea

The Lawndale Woman's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith will hold its first membership tea at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Congress hotel. There will be a play by members of the Hillel foundation.

ADAMS LIBRARY IN WHEATON AT 50 YEAR MARK

Rededication Is Set for Tuesday Evening.

At a rededication program Tuesday night in the children's room of the building, the Adams Memorial library in Wheaton will observe its 50th anniversary. Dr. J. Christian Bay, librarian of the John Crerar library, will be the principal speaker on a program arranged by Mrs. Schuyler Reber. Effort will be made to have the program correspond as closely as possible to the original dedication ceremonies a half century ago.

Fifty years ago, John Quincy Adams, doner of the library, turned the keys over to J. S. Peironnet, chairman of the newly created board of trustees. Mr. Adams, a descendant of the famous Massachusetts family, built the library as a memorial to his wife, Marilla Phipps Adams, a direct descendant of William Phipps, first royal governor of Massachusetts.

Follow Original Program.

As on the original program, music will be provided by a string orchestra and a male quartet. Mrs. Mignon MacKenzie will be the vocal soloist.

Ralph Wheaton, president of the Adams Memorial library board of trustees, will speak on behalf of the board. Greetings will be read from Mrs. Frederick L. Wells, daughter of the founder, and patron of the library for many years. City officials, librarians from neighboring communities and former trustees will be among the guests.

Two Institutions Merged.

Until 1923, the library operated as a privately endowed institution. Then the Wheaton Public library, financed by public tax funds, was created and the facilities of the two institutions were merged. The Adams library maintains the building and the reference collection. The Public library operates the library and maintains the circulating collection.

Tuesday night's program will be the climax of a month's observance of the anniversary, in which a score of Wheaton organizations devoted portions of their meetings to recognition of the library and its service to the community.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Elmhurst, is now holding services in the Sunday school room of the new church edifice, Prospect avenue and Claremont street. Despite the shortage of labor and materials, construction of the new building is going forward as planned. Arrangements are now being made for floodlighting the church spire. Landscaping of the grounds is already under way.

THEATER OF AIR DRAWS COAST TO COAST RESPONSE

'Naughty Marietta' Next; John Carter Guest.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The response to the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, aired over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system Saturday evenings, this season is overshadowing that of last year. The tremendous popularity of the outstanding musical productions is reflected in a flood of letters and cards.

These communications from listeners are filled with favorable comment, congratulations, and requests for souvenir programs. They come from coast to coast and from the gulf to Canada.

Among the points from which letters have been received, just to mention a few, are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pasadena, Cal.; Albany, Cortland, New York City, and suburbs from New York state; Bridgeport, Conn.; Washington, D. C.; Roanoke, Va.; Mobile, Ala.; Austin, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Atlanta, Ga., and Winnipeg, Man.

"Naughty Marietta" Next.

Marion Claire and John Carter will lead an all-star singing cast in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," to be aired from 8:45 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the title rôle of Marietta.

Highlight of the program will be Miss Claire's singing of Marietta's famous obligato, "Italian Street Song." Carter will be making his second appearance in the series this year. He sang opposite Miss Claire last night in "Sweethearts."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and the augmented chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. The program will be directed by William A. Bacher.

Betty Winkler to Star.

Supporting Miss Claire and Carter in the singing cast will be Ruth Slater, contralto, and Win Stracke, bass baritone.

Betty Winkler will highlight the dramatic cast, playing the speaking rôle of Marietta, while Bob Bailey will be cast as Capt. Dick Warrington, the rôle sung by Carter. Others in the cast will be Bret Morrison, Elia Braca, Bob Jellison, Florence Brower, Willard Waterman, and Marvin Mueller.

Notable among the musical selections will be "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and the casket girl's song, "Taisez Vous." Marietta's charming introductory number, "Naughty Marietta," is another bright spot. The unforgettable strains of "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" are woven thruout the operetta.

New Continuity Writers.

Two continuity writers, Ruth Barry and Paul Dempsey, have been added to the staff of W59C, W-G-N's new frequency modulated station. Miss Barry writes the script for many of the musical programs and is responsible for the planning and continuity of the Children's Concert heard every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 5:15 p. m. [CDST].

ROSEMARY GARBELL ON WAY TO ACHIEVE HER AMBITION AT 11

Altho only 11, Rosemary Garbell is well on the way to the achievement of her ambition—someday to be the greatest actress in radio. Three years ago she was playing with dolls and taking dancing lessons, like many other girls of her age. Now she has many important radio rôles, among them, Josey in "Harold Teen," broadcast by W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. each Tuesday.

'Way back in 1938, just after her eighth birthday, Rosemary got her start in radio. A part was open in a Chicago daytime serial, and she was recommended for the rôle by a producer who had seen her dance at Mayor Kelly's Christmas benefit show.

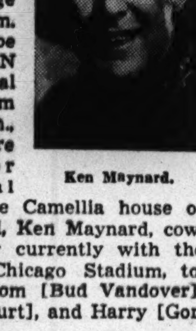
But first she would have to learn to act. Radio was suggested as the perfect training school. So radio won Rosemary away from dancing. Now she intends to concentrate on acting and follow in the footsteps of her mother, the former Eva Belmont, once an actress on Broadway.

Rosemary doesn't sit in the corner and read Shakespeare when her studio assignments are completed. She likes to ride a bike and sit on the steps of her home with her many girl friends as she discusses plans for the enlargement of their "Orphan Annie" club, of which Rosemary is the vice president.

A W-G-N Guest

Eleanor French, songstress appearing at the Camellia house in the Drake hotel, will make a guest appearance on "The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and Mutual. [Korman Photo.]

Mixing charming vocalists, cowboys, and the navy is not usually done on radio programs, but then the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" is no average radio program. The show to be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m., CST, will feature Miss Eleanor French, vocal stylist from the Camellia house of the Drake hotel, Ken Maynard, cowboy movie star currently with the rodeo at the Chicago Stadium, together with Tom [Bud Vandover], Dick [Marlin Hurt], and Harry [Gordon Vandover].



Ken Maynard.

Miss French, known to numerous night spots in New York, Miami, and Hollywood as well as Chicago, will sing "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "S' Wonderful."

The orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler will open with a Navy day salute, singing "We Saw the Sea," and later offer "Gift from Heaven" with lyrics by Edgar Guest.

The show is produced by William A. Bacher with dialog written by Paul Larmer.

Fulton Lewis to Speak on MBS from Cessna Plant

A special defense program from the plant of the Cessna Aircraft company at Wichita, Kas., will be aired at 4 p. m. [CST] today on W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network. Commentator Fulton Lewis Jr., who is the network's defense commentator, will interview workers in the Cessna plant. Duane Wallace, president of the Cessna company, will speak. The Wichita Symphony orchestra also will be heard.

Fulton Lewis Jr.

Master Canaries Show Features a Chorus of 12

The world's smallest artists, singing canaries, may be heard every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on W-G-N when the Master Radio Canaries presents a 15 minute musical program.

There are solo selections by outstanding singing canaries blended with a chorus of 12 birds. Jess Kirkpatrick is master of ceremonies for the artists and has planned a program that suits the musical tastes of the birds. Some of the canaries prefer classical music, while some like popular tunes. All the birds get their chance for solo work in the type of music they like best. Jess says the dissenting canaries who don't like the type of music being sung sit quietly by, shaking their heads.

Helen Traubel Will Sing on Sunday Evening Hour

Helen Traubel, American soprano, who is to replace Kirsten Flagstad in many Wagnerian performances at the Metropolitan Opera this season, will make a guest appearance on the Sunday Evening hour over WBBM-CBS at 8 tonight. George Szell is to be the conductor. Miss Traubel is to sing an aria from "Die Walküere and another from "Tannhäuser."

LORD HAW HAW GETS A HELPER; FOULMOUTH FRED

Lord Haw Haw, who directs Oxford accented broadcasts from Nazi Germany to the British Empire, has a new partner with a Cockney accent, who is striving to appeal to the British lower classes.

The new radio commentator uses profanity, expletive and vile language of the type never heard before on the air, Britishers who have come to the United States in the last two months, have disclosed. British listeners have dubbed the new speaker, whose identity is not yet known, Foulmouth Fred.

Lord Haw Haw is William Joyce, an Englishman who fled to Germany in 1939, who has been broadcasting comments with the objective of upsetting British morale and self-assurance ever since.

The new Nazi voice is heard nightly around 11 p. m. Greenwich time on a wave length close to that of one of the London stations, making it easy for Britishers to pick him up. His transmissions are sent out on the medium long waves which cannot be heard in America.

With Crosby

MARY MARTIN.

Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Eddie [Rochester] Anderson, Brian Donlevy, and Carolyn Lee will appear on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 8:30 p. m. next Saturday in a special broadcast previewing songs from the new Paramount picture, "The Birth of the Blues."

The broadcast will precede the Hollywood première of the picture scheduled for later the same evening. Top tunes from the ASCAP catalog will highlight the program as "The Birth of the Blues" has built its story around the rise of modern music.

Listeners will hear Crosby and his leading lady, Mary Martin, sing such songs as W. C. Handy's epic, "The St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues," and "Beale Street Blues," all featured in the film. Dave Rose's orchestra, from Mutual's west coast affiliate KHJ, will accompany them.

ROOSEVELT TO TALK ON NAVY, TOTAL DEFENSE

President Roosevelt will speak to the nation at 9 o'clock [CST] tomorrow night over W-G-N-Mutual and other networks. The occasion of the address will be Navy day. The President will proclaim Navy and Total Defense day and discuss the problems of defense. The President will speak from the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C., where a dinner sponsored by the Navy league will be in progress.

'Who Killed Cock Robin?' on Disney Song Parade

A special radio adaptation of Walt Disney's popular movie short, "Who Killed Cock Robin," will be aired on the Walt Disney Song Parade on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 2:30 to 2:45 p. m. today. The cast for the broadcast will include the same characters who were so popular on the screen: The owl judges, the prosecuting parrot, and the Mae-Westian lady-bird, who warbles that intriguing number, "Somebody Rubbed Out My Robin."

American Radio Warblers in 14th Year on the Air

The American Radio Warblers, W-G-N singing canaries heard from noon to 12:15 p. m. [CST], are in their 14th year on the air. Three newcomers, Ranny, Ronnie, and Rudy, made their debuts last week when the program returned to the air. They joined the other birds who have been broadcasting from 3 to 10 years. The three R's were the best singers from a group of more than a thousand baby canaries trained in the American Radio Warblers Chicago singing school. Helen Westbrook again plays the organ accompaniments for the Warblers.

SPOOKS TO CAVORT ON HALLOWEEN

PASTOR, FLOCK SAW AND NAIL ON CHURCH JOB

Wood Dale Sees All Working Together.

BY HARRY FISHER.

In a rustic setting of elms, maples, and sapling pines a young minister and his congregation in Wood Dale are building an addition to their church. In a world rent with hatred and greed they have found it necessary to enlarge their edifice of prayer and meditation.

The minister is Royald V. Caldwell, a 26 year old sandy haired Iowan, who was graduated last year from the Evangelical Theological seminary. His congregation, almost all of whom are taking some part in the actual construction, are the 49 members of the Community Evangelical church.

All the work is voluntary. Some of the workers are farmers. They have set in their corn and the rainy spell has given them time off from their usual fall labors. Some are local store keepers who in lulls during the day leave the clerk in charge of the counter and come over to hammer down a few rows of shingles or help to mix cement for the basement floor.

Help in Evening.

Still others, whose jobs keep them in Chicago all day, take advantage of an hour or two of twilight to do their bit. Soon lights will be strung so that they can continue after dark. By working overtime they expect to finish in time to hold Christmas services in the new addition.

The young minister stays on the job almost every day and two of his most faithful helpers are Farmers Elbert Gathman and Fred Ollman. Of course on Sundays, the Rev. Mr. Caldwell mounts the pulpit wearing his clerical robes, but during the week as he labors on the scaffolding he's indistinguishable among the other men in his work pants, a purple sweatshirt and nail apron.

Until last week he worked side by side with the Rev. Martin Gronewold, 72 year old president of the board of trustees and first pastor of the church. Lately, tho, the elder clergyman has been laid up with a touch of rheumatism. "He insisted on working during this wet spell," explains Mrs. Gronewold.

Moved from Itasca.

It was the Rev. Mr. Gronewold who founded the church in 1928, moved a small frame parochial schoolhouse from Itasca and converted it into a parish house. A year later he was called to another church, but returned in 1938 and was its pastor until this fall.

Every afternoon members of the Women's guild, of which Mrs. Cora Lluanza is president, meets at the church to serve coffee and sandwiches to their sons and husbands. All last week the guild held a rummage sale to raise funds for a well which will be drilled behind the new addition. Inside the vestibule they have placed a "rainbag" to catch stray nickels and dimes to add to the fund.

Head of the building committee is Fred Depe, who also directs the 14 members of the choir in Sunday choral services. Other members are Ray Herness, Borge Hansen, and Mrs. Albert Mellon. They estimate the cost of the completed building will be only $3,500.

Cellar Floods Bring Demand for New Sewer

An auxiliary sewer main on Roscoe street from Harlem avenue to the Chicago river was proposed last week by Superintendent of Sewers Thomas D. Garry as a solution to the problem of inadequate drainage on the northwest side.

The proposal followed a deluge of complaints from property owners whose basements have resembled swimming pools after every recent rainfall. The suggested sewer came as an answer to the request of Alderman P. J. Cullerton [38th] for a report of sewage facilities in his ward.

"The bureau of sewers is well aware that drainage facilities are overtaxed and inadequate," said Mr. Garry. "The problem is raising the necessary funds to bring the sewage system up to date. The suggested auxiliary main would provide an adequate outlet for the drainage district bounded on the north by Grace street and on the south by Wellington avenue. Plans for this system are in the formative stage, but can be completed within a short time, if we get the money."

Work Stopped in July.

Sewers constructed during the last few years have been built by the Works Progress administration, but due to lack of city funds—the city as sponsor is required to contribute 25 per cent of the cost—the work was closed down last July. If the WPA should be revived, this sewer could be readily built.

"The other method of constructing sewers," said Mr. Garry, "is by special assessment. This method is not popular and would take years before being confirmed by the courts. A rough estimate of the system places the cost at $4,500,000. If, however, the property owners in this district so desire, the sewers might be financed by this method.

"In the meantime, the bureau of sewers can only maintain and keep in operation the existing system. Complaints from citizens in this or any other part of the city receive immediate attention from the cleaning and repairing forces.

"It should be kept in mind that property owners can protect basements from flooding by a rearrangement of the drainage in their buildings. Their plumber should be consulted for the best method. Shut-off valves or stand-off pipes are usually recommended."

In Fear of Floods.

Meanwhile, northwest side home owners anticipate a miniature flood whenever the sky becomes overcast. In the 3200 block on Neva avenue, a recently developed district equipped with only a 15 inch pipe, residents have been especially harrassed by a backwash of sewage which enters basements thru the drains and in some instances has broken holes in the cement floors.

Since September 1, they have reported five flooded basements varying in depth from ten to 30 inches. The Neva avenue line, just one block east of Harlem avenue, empties into the Belmont avenue main at a point where its capacity is smallest. The Belmont sewer, only 2½ feet in diameter where it starts at Harlem, increases to a diameter of seven feet where it empties into the Chicago river.

The proposed Roscoe street sewer would run parallel to the Belmont avenue line a distance of approximately five miles from Harlem avenue to the river. With a probable diameter of seven feet along the entire line, it would accommodate excess water from the Belmont avenue sewer by means of four joining pipe lines running north and south between Harlem and Cicero avenues.

Would Aid Addison Sewer.

It would similarly relieve the Addison street sewer. The latter begins

Halloween's an Exciting Time for Kerrigan Younger Generation

With Halloween in the offing Mrs. James Kerrigan, 5346 West Pensacola avenue, with the aid of Theresa Ann Krojniak, who lives several doors away, schools her three sons in the correct way to make chocolate fudge. Two and a half year old Dickie (left) samples the first batch. Four year old John (right) keeps his eye on the mixing bowl, as does his big brother, Jim, who is almost 6. It is a tradition of the Kerrigans to keep a supply of goodies on hand for hungry youngsters who stop at their door on Halloween.

Patrolman James (Bill) Kerrigan carries little Dickie after a family costume parade. Jimmy and John proudly display their new tiger and leopard cub costumes. Jimmy will wear his Friday afternoon when he attends a party at Our Lady of Victory kindergarten. His only regret is that "they won't let me wear my new false face." As a policeman, Officer Kerrigan expects to be unusually busy on Halloween.

Mrs. Kerrigan checks Ann's measurements as she prepares to fit a costume. Grandma, Mrs. L. A. Backus (Mrs. Kerrigan's mother) mends a just found tear in Dickie's new costume. Halloween is a big event for this northwest Chicago family, since this is the first year that the boys are old enough to share in the excitement.

Cary Asks Thru Travel Routed Outside Town

In an endeavor to decrease the number of accidents on Northwest highway thru Cary, members of the Cary Parent-Teacher association recently adopted a resolution asking Gov. Green to reroute the state highway, diverting all thru traffic outside the limits of the village.

According to members of the PTA, many of the accidents are caused by motorists who do not heed the 25 mile speed limit of the village, which, with a population of about 700, is unable to pay a motorcycle policeman to enforce the traffic law.

Drivers Miss Curve.

The two lane highway turns as it passes thru the residential section of Cary, and residents recall numerous times when drivers have missed the curve and ran their cars up on the parkways and sidewalks, endangering children playing there. Since the highway divides the McHenry county village in two almost equal parts, children in both the local schools have to cross the route several times each day.

Officials of the PTA recommend that a by-pass be constructed, diverting traffic around the north side of the village. The Chicago Motor club, to whom a copy of the resolution was sent, favors the plan, altho it has not yet investigated the details.

Aid to Thru Traffic.

The club is in accord with the plan because it would not only increase the safety of Cary residents, but would facilitate motorists traveling to and from the many vacation spots in the northwest lake district and in lower Wisconsin.

C. H. Apple, district engineer for the state highway department, is investigating the rerouting proposal.

Seek to Stop Floods Under City Viaducts

Chicagoans who wade deep in water under some 200 viaducts every time there is a severe rainstorm may get a break tomorrow when the city's traffic experts tangle with the ancient problem of flood control.

The executive committees of four area councils of the Chicago Motor club will meet with city, county, state, and sanitary district engineers and industrial and school leaders to seek a solution to the problem of Chicago's flooded viaducts. The meeting will be held at noon at the Illinois Athletic club.

Street Cars Stalled.

Viaduct floods, sure signs of spring and fall in Chicago, annually cost an untold sum in damage and traffic delay, and cause discomfort and frequently danger to thousands of persons, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

The Chicago Surface Lines report that street cars have been stalled from one to five times at 103 viaducts during the last 12 months. Trucking companies report long delays at some 200 viaducts during flood times.

The problem goes back many years. The city long ago was successful in getting all major railroads to raise their tracks in all sections. But, in most cases, the tracks were not raised high enough for proper clearance of street car and truck traffic without lowering the street levels under the viaducts.

Overloads Sewers.

It is this dip in the street levels under the viaducts that causes all the trouble. During heavy rains, the waters settle in the viaducts, overloading the sewer systems and causing them to back up. The situation is fur-

Members of fieldhouse artcraft classes are engaged in making decorations, such as masks, black cats, pumpkins and costumes, to be used Friday night for the festivities. George T. Donoghue, park district general superintendent, announced that the various parties will keep thousands of youngsters off the street, and result in saving for residents the money that is usually spent for repairs after a prankish Halloween.

In Irving Park.

SOAP ART CONTEST STIRS INTEREST OF CHILDREN IN ITASCA

Students in the Itasca grade school have acquired an unusual interest in art these days—they're practicing for the annual soap drawing contest that will be sponsored Friday afternoon by the Itasca Woman's club. Local merchants have offered their coöperation, and store windows will become canvases for many young artists.

Youngsters who enter the contest—and in past years practically all Itasca juveniles have been represented—sign a pledge to do no damage in the community during the Halloween season.

Mrs. Morgan Webster, art teacher at the school, welcomes the event because it "brings out undiscovered talents and abilities."

Mrs. Ray Franzen, chairman of the soaping contest, announces that 12 awards have been purchased for contest winners. Members of the Woman's club on Friday morning will mark store windows, allotting a specified amount of drawing space to each contestant. The boys and girls will be asked not to copy from magazines, papers, or other publications, but to create original ideas and to fulfill them.

PIPES IN FLOOR PROVIDE HEAT IN RAVINE HOME

Pump Circulates Water Thru System.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is news and interest back of the story of three engaging small homes at the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan just east of Sheridan road.

All these were designed by William A. Ganster, architect. He also is the owner of one of the homes. In the heating of these dwellings he has employed radiant heating. This is a method of heating which utilizes pipe coils in the floor, walls, or ceilings to heat the rooms.

There now are more than 100 radiant heating installations in the United States, with approximately 20 in the Chicago area, according to Louis T. Braun, secretary of the Chicago Master Steam Fitters' association.

In the case of the three Waukegan homes the pipe coils are in the floors, hot water is the heating medium and the boilers are oil-fired.

For Moderate Cost Homes.

The use of radiant heating in these houses is especially interesting because the houses are moderate in cost, Mr. Ganster's home was built for $7,900 in the fall of 1940; P. W. Yager's house, which adjoins Mr. Ganster's, cost $8,000, and D. J. Dalziel's, which is just east of the Yager house, cost $6,700.

While radiant heating effects may be attained with pipe coils placed either in floors, ceilings, walls, or all three, Mr. Ganster prefers to place them in the floor with supplementary ceiling or wall panels as necessary. The circulation of the water is forced thru the coils by means of an electric pump. None of the houses have basements and the boilers are placed in utility rooms. The circulation of the water thru the pipe coils in the floor is controled by a thermostat placed outdoors.

Three Walls of Glass.

Of interest, too, is the fact that each house has a blank wall to the street and is open to the ravine and the sun. Glass from the floor to the ceiling—eight feet—on three sides of the living room of the Ganster house floods it with light and provides solar heat during the bright days in the winter, thus economizing on fuel.

The essential difference between radiant heating and heating with radiators is in the heat distributing surface. In the case of a radiator, the surface is relatively small and the temperature of the heating medium is high. In the case of radiant heating, the entire wall, floor, or ceiling in which the pipe coils are imbedded acts as a radiant surface. Because the radiant surface is so large, the temperature of the heating medium is correspondingly low, especially when hot water is used. The water, by the way, is kept circulating continuously by the pump and water temperatures as low as 100 degrees are practical in installations designed for this low operating temperature.

Mr. Ganster reports a fuel cost of $125 for 12 months which includes the heating of the domestic hot water supply by the boiler the year around. Boilers are identical with those used for conventional hot water heating with radiators or convectors.

How Pipe Is Installed.

The procedure which Mr. Ganster specifies for the installation of pipe coils in the floor is first a sand fill six inches deep on the earth. The sand is covered with partition tile, 4 by 12 by 12, laid flat, and the pipe coils are placed on the tile. Sand is filled in between the pipes, and acts as a cushion or bed taking up the expansion and contraction of the pipe. Then a 4 inch concrete slab is poured on top the sand cushion.

On North Shore Ravine

Quite a new type of an engaging small home that hugs the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan. The architect and owner is William A. Ganster. Pipe coils in the floor heat the home; hot water is the heating medium and the boiler is oil fired.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 27.

Trees and shrubs and hardy vines still can be planted if the ground is not too frozen. Large trees or slow-growing low trees like the hawthorn and crab can be moved freely and safely when balled and baled. This method is more costly than when smaller material is moved without being balled. Often a single large tree will change the whole appearance of a yard and increase its value.

No established tree should be cut to make way for a new building unless it is absolutely necessary. The hard wood native trees are preferable; these include oak, hackberry, walnut, and kindred kinds.

A tree or two of the new hardy hickories, pecans, chestnuts, or walnuts have an economic value that is well worth while and as specimens any of them may be used. These are best moved in spring but may be planned for at that time.

Tuesday, Oct. 28.

Rake off heavy accumulations of leaves on the lawn to avoid matting down and possible smothering of the grass. Hardwood leaves make fine material for composting, but leaves from softwoods decay rapidly and are not as useful as the former. Leafmold is very useful when mixed with composted soil and sand as potting soil, and the home gardener seems never to have enough of it.

Cut and burn the tops of all hardy perennials, annuals, and weeds in the neighborhood to destroy lurking places of insect pests and disease. Collect and burn all leaves from rose plants to avoid the retention of disease spores. Black spot prevails in some beds and may lie dormant all winter and become active in springtime.

Wednesday, Oct. 29.

Never allow tools to lie out of doors to be ruined by exposure to the elements. And never permit tools to be placed in storage until they are thoroly cleaned and oiled to prevent rust. Paint all parts that can be painted, oil every part that needs it, run water from the hose and hang it up where it will not be run over by the auto; in fact, see that everything is gardenshape before severe weather arrives.

Trim the Boston ivy or Engelman's ivy away from window casings. Protect newly planted trees and shrubs with strawy manure spread around their base. It is unnecessary to wait until the ground is frozen before applying this material around the plants. Spread it any time it can be obtained in late fall and results will be satisfactory.

Thursday, Oct. 30.

To keep dahlia tubers over winter, pack in boxes of sand or peat with a burlap over them. Dust those that keep poorly with sulphur. Furnace heated basements are so dry it is sometimes difficult to keep roots in good condition. Place the dahlias upside down.

Gladiolus bulbs can be stored in a cool place, or above freezing. Place in paper bags, 100 to the bag with an ounce of naphthalene flakes as a means of killing any thrips that may be on them. A 40 degree temperature will not injure these bulbs. Cannas may be stored in the same way as dahlias.

Friday, Oct. 31.

Late chrysanthemums, unless frozen, can be lifted and potted and placed on an inclosed porch where they will flower and furnish material to brighten up the home. Lily of the valley clumps and spurge are greatly benefited when given a light mulch of manure. Peat moss or leafmold also may be used.

Store tuberous rooted begonias in sand, peat, or sawdust in a temperature of around 50 degrees. Pot plants can be gradually dried off and kept in the pots, if desired.

Saturday, Nov. 1.

Buy a few small pot plants of various kinds to grow in the house. Many of the begonias furnish excellent material to grow on and the florist usually has a good variety from which to make a selection. Select the good flowering kinds, such as President Carot, lucerna, B. templini, and others of equal beauty.

Watch for red spiders on house plants. A good way to determine whether any are present is to gently draw a leaf between the fingers and if any are present a residue will be noticed, or a small glass may be used. If any are observed, dust with superfine sulphur two or three times over a 10 day period.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

THEATER OF AIR DRAWS COAST TO COAST RESPONSE

'Naughty Marietta' Next; John Carter Guest.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The response to the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, aired over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system Saturday evenings, this season is overshadowing that of last year. The tremendous popularity of the outstanding musical productions is reflected in a flood of letters and cards.

These communications from listeners are filled with favorable comment, congratulations, and requests for souvenir programs. They come from coast to coast and from the gulf to Canada.

Among the points from which letters have been received, just to mention a few, are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pasadena, Cal.; Albany, Cortland, New York City, and suburbs from New York state; Bridgeport, Conn.; Washington, D. C.; Roanoke, Va.; Mobile, Ala.; Austin, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Atlanta, Ga., and Winnipeg, Man.

"Naughty Marietta" Next.

Marion Claire and John Carter will lead an all-star singing cast in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," to be aired from 8:45 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the title rôle of Marietta.

Highlight of the program will be Miss Claire's singing of Marietta's famous obligato, "Italian Street Song." Carter will be making his second appearance in the series this year. He sang opposite Miss Claire last night in "Sweethearts."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and the augmented chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. The program will be directed by William A. Bacher.

Betty Winkler to Star.

Supporting Miss Claire and Carter in the singing cast will be Ruth Slater, contralto, and Win Stracke, bass baritone.

Betty Winkler will highlight the dramatic cast, playing the speaking rôle of Marietta, while Bob Bailey will be cast as Capt. Dick Warrington, the rôle sung by Carter. Others in the cast will be Bret Morrison, Ella Braca, Bob Jellison, Florence Brower, Willard Waterman, and Marvin Mueller.

Notable among the musical selections will be "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and the casket girl's song, "Taisez Vous." Marietta's charming introductory number, "Naughty Marietta," is another bright spot. The unforgettable strains of "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" are woven thruout the operetta.

EVELYN DAVIS IS 1ST VIOLINIST FOR W59C GROUP

Evelyn Davis, concert master of the Chicago Woman's Symphony orchestra, last week was appointed first violinist of the W59C Studio Salon orchestra. In addition to her appearances with the salon orchestra Miss Davis is featured frequently each week on W-G-N's FM station in solo concerts and recitals with Harry Sukman, concert pianist.

Evelyn Davis.

Miss Davis started her musical studies when she was 2½ years old. She has given many recitals.

A W-G-N Guest

Eleanor French, songstress appearing at the Camellia house in the Drake hotel, will make a guest appearance on "The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and Mutual. [Korman Photo.]

Mixing charming vocalists, cowboys, and the navy is not usually done on radio programs, but then the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" is no average radio program. The show to be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m., CST, will feature Miss Eleanor French, vocal stylist from the Camellia house of the Drake hotel, Ken Maynard, cowboy movie star currently with the rodeo at the Chicago Stadium, together with Tom [Bud Vandover], Dick [Marlin Hurt], and Harry [Gordon Vandover].

Ken Maynard.

Miss French, known to numerous night spots in New York, Miami, and Hollywood as well as Chicago, will sing "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "S' Wonderful."

The orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler will open with a Navy day salute, singing "We Saw the Sea," and later offer "Gift from Heaven" with lyrics by Edgar Guest.

The show is produced by William A. Bacher with dialog written by Paul Larmer.

LORD HAW HAW GETS A HELPER; FOULMOUTH FRED

Lord Haw Haw, who directs Oxford accented broadcasts from Nazi Germany to the British Empire, has a new partner with a Cockney accent, who is striving to appeal to the British lower classes.

The new radio commentator uses profanity, expletive and vile language of the type never heard before on the air, Britishers who have come to the United States in the last two months, have disclosed. British listeners have dubbed the new speaker, whose identity is not yet known, Foulmouth Fred.

Lord Haw Haw is William Joyce, an Englishman who fled to Germany in 1939, who has been broadcasting comments with the objective of upsetting British morale and self-assurance ever since.

The new Nazi voice is heard nightly around 11 p. m. Greenwich time on a wave length close to that of one of the London stations, making it easy for Britishers to pick him up. His transmissions are sent out on the medium long waves which cannot be heard in America.

The Wichita Symphony orchestra also will be heard.

ROSEMARY AT 11 WELL ON WAY TO ACHIEVE GOAL

Altho only 11, Rosemary Garbell is well on the way to the achievement of her ambition — someday to be the greatest actress in radio. Three years ago she was playing with dolls and taking dancing lessons, like many other girls of her age. Now she has many important radio rôles, among them, Josey in "Harold Teen," broadcast by W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. each Tuesday.

'Way back in 1938, just after her eighth birthday, Rosemary got her start in radio. A part was open in a Chicago daytime serial, and she was recommended for the rôle by a producer who had seen her dance at Mayor Kelly's Christmas benefit show.

But first she would have to learn to act. Radio was suggested as the perfect training school. So radio won Rosemary away from dancing. Now she intends to concentrate on acting and follow in the footsteps of her mother, the former Eva Belmont, once an actress on Broadway.

Rosemary doesn't sit in the corner and read Shakespeare when her studio assignments are completed. She likes to ride a bike and sit on the steps of her home with her many girl friends as they discuss plans for the enlargement of their "Orphan Annie" club, of which Rosemary is the vice president.

American Radio Warblers in 14th Year on the Air

The American Radio Warblers, W-G-N singing canaries heard from noon to 12:15 p. m. [CST], are in their 14th year on the air. Three newcomers, Ranny, Ronnie, and Rudy, made their debuts last week when the program returned to the air. They joined the other birds who have been broadcasting from 3 to 10 years. The three R's were the best singers from a group of more than a thousand baby canaries trained in the American Radio Warblers Chicago singing school. Helen Westbrook again plays the organ accompaniments for the Warblers.

New Continuity Writers.

Two continuity writers, Ruth Barry and Paul Dempsey, have been added to the staff of W59C, W-G-N's new frequency modulated station. Miss Barry writes the script for many of the musical programs and is responsible for the planning and continuity of the Children's Concert heard every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 5:15 p. m. [CDST].

Helen Hayes Will Star in 'Kitty Foyle' on CBS

Master Canaries Show Features a Chorus of 12

The world's smallest artists, singing canaries, may be heard every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on W-G-N when the Master Radio Canaries presents a 15 minute musical program.

There are solo selections by outstanding singing canaries blended with a chorus of 12 birds. Jess Kirkpatrick is master of ceremonies for the artists and has planned a program that suits the musical tastes of the birds. Some of the canaries prefer classical music, while some like popular tunes. All the birds get their chance for solo work in the type of music they like best. Jess says the dissenting canaries who don't like the type of music being sung sit quietly by, shaking their heads.

With Crosby

MARY MARTIN.

Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Eddie [Rochester] Anderson, Brian Donlevy, and Carolyn Lee will appear on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 8:30 p. m. next Saturday in a special broadcast previewing songs from the new Paramount picture, "The Birth of the Blues."

The broadcast will precede the Hollywood première of the picture scheduled for later the same evening. Top tunes from the ASCAP catalog will highlight the program as "The Birth of the Blues" has built its story around the rise of modern music.

Listeners will hear Crosby and his leading lady, Mary Martin, sing such songs as W. C. Handy's epic, "The St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues," and "Beale Street Blues," all featured in the film. Dave Rose's orchestra, from Mutual's west coast affiliate KHJ, will accompany them.

200 LISTENERS JOIN IN TOUR OF ART INSTITUTE

More than 200 visitors crowded the Art institute in Chicago last Sunday to join in a special tour introducing the institute's new "Great Artists" program on W-G-N, aired at 2:30 p. m. each Tuesday. Only a few short announcements giving the time and date of the tour were broadcast by W-G-N, and Art institute executives were surprised at the heavy listener response. About 250 persons requested tickets for the hour.

The Art institute tour was planned to acquaint the radio audience with various departments of the institute before the "Great Artists" series started on W-G-N last Tuesday. A highlight in the tour was a stop at the institute's silversmith exhibit, a further explanation of which will be given on the "Great Artists" program Tuesday.

'PEEPING TOM' PLOT ON BURNS AND ALLEN HOUR

"Peeping Tom" Lastfogel will perpetrate a diabolical plot against his neighbors, George Burns and Gracie Allen, with the result that George and Tom exchange blows and the entire cast gets involved in the feud during the broadcast of the Burns and Allen show on W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. next Thursday.

Gladys Hall, veteran fan magazine writer, seeks a serious interview with Gracie, and while they are chatting in the house Lastfogel moves Miss Hall's car in front of the fire plug and summons the police.

What with interruptions from Paul Whiteman, Bill Goodwin, Señor Lee, and Jimmy Cash, and George's battles with Lastfogel, the interview becomes something of a shambles.

CELLAR FLOODS BRING DEMAND FOR NEW SEWER

Neva Avenue Basements Like Duck Ponds.

at Harlem avenue and empties into the Belmont line thru a cross sewer at Lavergne avenue, then begins again just west of Cicero avenue and continues to the river.

At the Albert Walker residence, 3245 Neva avenue, a heavy rain precipitates a geyser of sewage which has torn two holes in the cement floor and caused numerous cracks. The floor surface has taken on a roller coaster effect.

A pingpong table intended for leisure hour enjoyment is piled high with tools and equipment. "We intended to make a recreation room out of the basement," explains Mrs. Walker, "you can see what our chances are. During the last storm we had to wade down and rescue my new washing machine. The cement around two main steel supports has given way and we fear this may undermine the house."

The Walkers built their home three years ago. "Like nearly everybody else, we have a mortgage on it," says Mrs. Walker. "We'd hate to have the house topple over on us."

Wives Talk It Over.

At Saturday afternoon bridge parties neighborhood housewives air their complaints. All have a similar tale of woe. In the house across the street from the Walkers, built last spring by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kolanowski, 3250 Neva avenue, the floods have been controled to some extent by the use of standoff pipes placed in the drains.

These precautions, however, have not prevented the floor from cracking. Thru two large holes, sewage gushed to a depth of 14 inches during the last downpour. At some expense they have relaid a large portion of the floor.

In the basement of the house next door at 3248 Neva, Joseph Baltero and his wife have built a kitchen and living quarters complete with wooden floorboards. These have to be ripped up after every flood to wash away the sediment. Mr. Baltero rolls up the linoleum carpet every time the weather looks threatening.

Sewage Ruins Piano.

The Peter Herds at 3233 Neva have built an elaborate cellar playroom for their two sons and daughter. Their pingpong table is loaded down with toys. The sewage ruined a piano and made it necessary to remove a studio couch. The floor has not cracked badly yet. During the last storm the water level was ten inches lower than any previous downpour.

"We want to redecorate but see no use in doing so without some promise of relief," says Mrs. Herd. "Besides, the children don't like to play down there any more. We moved away from the city to give them more room, and now they have to play out in the street."

The Frank Kovels' basement bar was once attractively decorated, but the floods have changed that. Now they have to entertain guests upstairs. They live at 3236 Neva avenue with their two small daughters. After the last deluge Mr. Kovel spent six hours scrubbing and washing away the residual layer of filth.

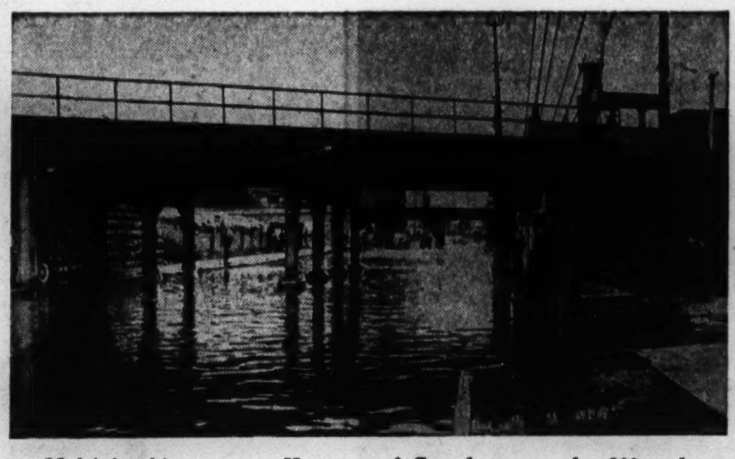
N. PARK COLLEGE ENTERTAINMENT SEASON TO OPEN

The first 1941 "Tuesday Evening at North Park college" will be held this week, opening a series of lectures, motion pictures and concerts to be presented at the college, Foster and Kedzie avenues.

Canfield Cook will speak of "America's Sky Defenders," at the first session. One of the youngest combat pilots in the first World war, he flew with Great Britain's air force.

Future programs at the school, to which the public is invited, include: Faculty concert, Oct. 28; Elder C. Anderson, motion pictures, "Alaska," Nov. 4; Karin Branzell, contralto, Nov. 14; Maynard Krueger and Frank Smothers, Nov. 16; W. L. Husband, "How America Lives," colored movies, Nov. 28; Alfred Noyes, "Poetry and Reality," Dec. 2; Sherwood Eddy, "The American Sharecropper," Dec. 9, and the annual Christmas concert on Dec. 16.

Result of Rainstorm



Multiply this scene at Kenton and Grand avenues by 200 and you have an idea what happens during a heavy rainstorm under the city's most important viaducts. This picture was taken Oct. 3 as one example of Chicago's flooded viaducts.

ther complicated with the plugging up of drains by leaves and debris.

Two solutions have been proposed by engineers. One is to install new sewers, particularly in the Hyde Park district and on the west and northwest side along Kostner avenue from 26th street to North avenue and west to Mont Clare avenue. This project, it is estimated, would cost from 20 to 30 million dollars.

The second plan, which is said to be cheaper, would be to install pumps at individual viaducts which during a rain would be operated by the city. Each pump would cost about $15,000 and about $600 a year to operate.

The latter plan already is in operation at the recently completed viaducts on Austin avenue near Bloomingdale avenue under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and at 79th street, southwest highway, and Kedzie avenue.

Passes Are Flooded.

Five viaducts on the northwest side, where flood conditions have been the worst during the last five years, are located as follows: Grand and Kenton avenues, out of use 32 times for a maximum period of 15 hours 28 minutes; Cicero-Grand, out of use 28 times, 12 hours 49 minutes; Armitage-Kenton, 24 times, 14 hours 18 minutes; Grand-La Crosse, 24 times, 11 hours 40 minutes; Belmont-Kildare, 20 times, 14 hours 45 minutes.

PASTOR, FLOCK SAW AND NAIL ON CHURCH JOB

lighting and John Hermberger will put in the plumbing.

Another important member of the congregation is Mrs. Lawrence Kolze, daughter of the Rev. Mr. Gronewold, and superintendent of the Sunday school. Classes meet just before church services Sunday morning.

Watching every phase of construction and guarding his flowerbeds from the careless feet of workmen is 80 year old Henry Thormahlen. Since his retirement some years ago he has spent much of his time as self-appointed gardener and church custodian.

Will Have a Kitchen.

When the addition is completed it will accommodate 150 people, will include a kitchen, dining room, choir room, and class rooms. The Wood Dale church is truly a community institution. Altho under Evangelical denomination, it appeals to all sects. Of the last 22 persons who have joined our congregation," says the Rev. Mr. Caldwell, "only one has belonged to the church. The rest have been Presbyterians, Catholics, Methodists, Baptists, and Quakers."

He thinks this is a good sign at a time when racial, religious, and national intolerance and misunderstanding are at a peak. He'd like to see even more villagers next Sunday, for as he observes with humor, "If 'absence makes the heart grow fonder,' the church must have a great following."

HALLOWEEN FETES TO HALT MISCHIEF

HARVEY RECALLS THAT ITS WALKS OFTEN FLOATED

Memory Book Opens on Golden Jubilee.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Oldtimer of Harvey, figuratively speaking, have hitched old Dobbin to the sleigh, and are jogging down memory's road, to the boom town on the prairie that was Harvey, the Magic City, in pre-Columbian exposition days.

It is the golden anniversary of the town, being celebrated this week with parades and pageantry, that turns the early settlers' thoughts back to Harvey's beginnings; to the wooden sidewalks that floated like rafts when the rains came, and the ankle-deep mud that the town waded thru before the pavements were laid; to WCTU meetings and church socials; to the dappled gray fire team, rehearsed every night before an admiring crowd at the city hall; to the father of the city, Turlington W. Harvey, temperance leader, staunch churchman, in his bearded dignity.

Recalls Amusing Story.

At the time the Elzey Osgood family arrived—that was in March of '91, the month before Harvey was incorporated under a village code—there was an amusing story still going the rounds, Mrs. Osgood remembers, about how Postmaster W. H. Pease had stolen a march on Mr. Harvey in naming the town. Back in those days Mr. Pease had the postoffice in his grocery store on Columbia avenue.

"The story went that Mr. Pease favored Harvey for a name and told Mr. Harvey so," Mrs. Osgood recalls, "but Mr. Harvey thought he would prefer Turlington, and was pondering the question. Mr. Pease was convinced his was the better choice, so he simply sent in his suggestion to the postoffice department in Washington, Harvey was approved, and that settled it."

At 83 Mrs. Osgood is a button-bright little lady whose keenness of mind and shrewd wit are a perpetual delight to her friends. Fragile as a French doll, she appears, but, "I'm healthy as can be," she declares, adding, with a sly twinkle for modern convictions, "I take my vitamins every day."

Town Widely Advertised.

When the town was planned, the Harvey Land association advertised it widely, particularly in church papers. Mr. Harvey, close friend of Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, and sturdy in his temperance convictions, decreed against intoxicating liquors in Harvey for all time.

Every purchaser of land made a legal covenant not to "allow, suffer, or permit any intoxicating drink or drinks to be manufactured, sold or given away upon the premises." The temperance clause drew many families of prohibition persuasions to the new town.

The Osgood family was one. Her mother, Mrs. Osgood says, "was a Massachusetts Yankee and a strong temperance woman." She read one of the Harvey advertisments, purchased a lot, and turned it over to her daughter. The Osgoods were then living in Mexico, where Mr. Osgood's work on the Southern Pacific railroad had taken him.

Helps Build Sidewalks.

He arrived in Harvey in time to help lay the board sidewalks. Both he and Mrs. Osgood—they had two sons—served on the board of education. Mrs. Osgood was active in the WCTU and she sang in the choir of the Federated church. She was a charter member of the Harvey Woman's club.

A widow, she alone of the family remains in Harvey. One son lives in Chicago, the other in Birmingham, Ala. "The Carolina poplars we planted when we first came are gone," Mrs. Osgood wistfully comments. "I have outlived my trees."

The town had its "characters." There was, for example, a local Johnny Appleseed, who still is a vivid figure in the memory of Miss Georgia Mynard, one time Harvey school ma'am. He was Alexander Page Gaston.

Loved to Plant Trees.

"He was a horticulturist," Miss Mynard relates. "Ever since he was a boy in Ohio he had gone about planting saplings and seeds. He was always planting things just anywhere

Jubilee Program

The city of Harvey, incorporated as a village government in 1891, will celebrate its golden jubilee this week. Tomorrow night Mayor Frank W. Bruggemann, honorary chairman of the jubilee, and the city fathers will appear at a council meeting in the flashy plumage of the Gay Nineties, and the entire town will turn out for a warming up rally and parade. A queen will be elected to preside over the festivities.

A 110 foot stage has been set up on the Thornton Township High school athletic field, and there Tuesday an historical pageant, in which close to 700 persons are taking part, will open and continue for five nights. Products of Harvey industries will be displayed all week at the field in a "Harvey Builds for Defense" exhibit. The jubilee will close next Sunday with an all day air show at the Rubinkam airport.

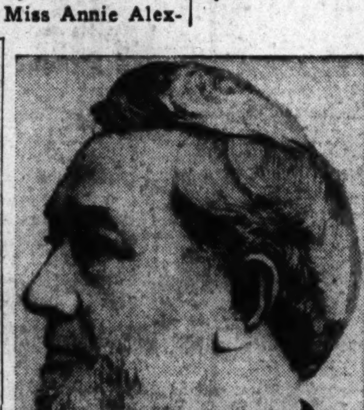
Photos Recall Harvey in Its Youth as Golden Jubilee Nears

In the blast of the fire whistle and the answering thunder of the hoofs of these dappled grays there was drama and excitement for all the small boys of Harvey back in the early '90s. Pride of the town was this first horse drawn fire wagon. Such old pictures as this will come to life in the town this week as Harvey celebrates its golden jubilee with parades and historic pageant. As the old timers identify them, the firemen of the photograph are (left to right in the wagon) Driver C. L. Davidson, Marshal John L. Ott, Fred Madory, and Jake Flecher, and (same order, standing) Lon Madory, George Greiner, Robert Craig, Emil Daton, Claude Roeder, and James Craig.

Back in 1904 the enforcement of the law rested with these five gallant gentlemen (left to right), Charles McManis, Henry Weber, Chief James Bates, George Swanson, and George E. Gore. Mr. Bates is to appear as police chief in the jubilee pageant.

Many a Harvey citizen learned to read "The cat sat on the mat" in Miss Georgia Mynard's room (first grade) in the old Whittier school. This is a cherished picture of Harvey teachers in Miss Mynard's album of memories. First row, Archie Roy, Miss Annie Alexander, Prof. F. L. Miller, Miss Flora Smith, Miss Anna Lawson (last in row unidentified); second row, Miss Mynard, Miss Marjorie Beers, and Miss Janie Lytton.

Old settlers all are these four citizens, who remember a youthful ambition to be firemen. They are William D. Rogers, identified almost since its beginning with the Harvey Land association; G. H. Gibson, former mayor; Edward Bastar, jeweler (rear), and Nels Swanson.



Turlington W. Harvey, pillar of the church, and shrewd business man, founded the town that bears his name.

With the incorporation of Harvey in 1891, Peter B. Lamb was elected president of the village.

Temperance was the watchword of the early Harvey, and a militant WCTU kept the demon rum at bay. The ladies had their picture taken on the steps of the Baptist church. As Mrs. Frances Osgood, now 83 years old, remembers them, they were (left to right, first row): Mrs. Anna Morse, Mrs. Osgood, Mrs. Corbiss; second row, Mrs. F. Swett, Mrs. F. L. Miller, the school superintendent's wife, Mrs. Gillson, Mrs. Bishop, and Mrs. Meach; third row, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Jerome (third woman unidentified), Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Gilbert, and Mrs. Little; fourth row, Mrs. Holman, Mrs. Zella Anderson, Mrs. Myra Dunning, Mrs. Ellis, and Mrs. Mary C. Johnston, the organizer; last row, Mrs. Mahan, Mrs. Pattee (third unidentified), Mrs. Henrietta Gaston, Mrs. T. C. (Calamity) Martin. The last two are unidentified.

Beverly Hills Bows Today to Ralph Morgan

Hundreds of men and women of Beverly Hills, many of whom as children rolled their hoops, waded in the pools and played hopscotch under his watchful eye, will unite today in a public tribute to Ralph W. Morgan, retiring after more than 20 years as supervisor of Ridge park. Mr. Morgan is 65 years old, and the state compulsory retirement act sets retirements at his age.

Ralph W. Morgan.

So today Mr. Morgan's years of service in the community will be sealed with a farewell reception in which every important organization of the district will participate.

The party will be held at 6 o'clock in the park fieldhouse, Longwood drive and 96th street, with the Ridge Civic council, the unifying agency for most of the community organizations, the Beverly Hills Woman's club and Beverly Hills post No. 407 of the American Legion in charge of arrangements.

Taken in by Merger.

Mr. Morgan had been directing the playtime of Beverly Hill's children and programs for adult recreation for 13 years at Ridge park when, in 1934, the consolidation of the 22 independent park districts of the city was effected.

Tho Kalamazoo, Mich, was his birthplace, Mr. Morgan passed his boyhood in Buffalo, N. Y.

One of his most vivid recollections of Buffalo is of his meeting with President William McKinley on the fateful day of Sept. 5, 1904. Mr. Morgan was in charge of an exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition. The display caught the attention of the President as he strolled about the exposition with his party. He stopped, introduced himself and chatted for a while. It was less than a half hour later that, in the temple of music, the President was shot.

Married 34 Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan have been married 34 years. They reside at 9753 South Wood street. They have a daughter, Mrs. Giles Roberts, and two sons, James and Ralph Jr.

In charge of arrangements for the open house today are Mrs. Frank H. White, 1706 West 103d street, chairman for the Ridge Civic council, Morton J. Howell, 10412 Claremont street, chairman for the Legion post, and Mrs. Charles Stolp, 2030 West 103d street, the woman's club chairman.

Seek to Stop Floods Under City Viaducts

Chicagoans who wade deep in water under some 200 viaducts every time there is a severe rainstorm may get a break tomorrow when the city's traffic experts tangle with the ancient problem of flood control.

The executive committees of four area councils of the Chicago Motor club will meet with city, county, state, and sanitary district engineers and industrial and school leaders to seek a solution to the problem of Chicago's flooded viaducts. The meeting will be held at noon at the Illinois Athletic club.

Street Cars Stalled.

Viaduct floods, sure signs of spring and fall in Chicago, annually cost an untold sum in damage and traffic delay, and cause discomfort and frequently danger to thousands of persons, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

The Chicago Surface Lines report that street cars have been stalled from one to five times at 103 viaducts during the last 12 months. Trucking companies report long delays at some 200 viaducts during flood times.

The problem goes back many years. The city long ago was successful in getting all major railroads to raise their tracks in all sections. But, in most cases, the tracks were not raised high enough for proper clearance of street car and truck traffic without lowering the street levels under the viaducts.

Overloads Sewers.

It is this dip in the street levels under the viaducts that causes all the trouble. During heavy rains, the waters settle in the viaducts, overloading the sewer systems and causing them to back up. The situation is further complicated with the plugging up of drains by leaves and debris.

Thus, in many cases, viaducts which ordinarily would be drained within several minutes remain flooded for hours.

Two solutions have been proposed by engineers. One is to install new sewers, particularly in the Hyde Park district and on the west and northwest side along Kostner avenue from 26th street to North avenue and west to Mont Clare avenue. This project,

FOUR SOUTHWEST DRAFTEES WIN THEIR APPEALS

Four southwest side draftees won their pleas for deferred classifications and 14 others lost, according to reports made by the eight Cook county draft appeals boards to Col. Louis A. Boening, county draft director.

Those who were successful were Edward Fitch, 507 West 25th place; Frank Colet, 4417 South Wolcott avenue; John Schmitz, 5259 South Damen avenue, and Kenneth Carlson, 7837 South Hermitage avenue. All were deferred because of dependents.

Most of the losers also claimed dependency deferments.

PLAN CARNIVALS AS ANTIDOTE FOR PRANKS FRIDAY

Parades, Bonfires to Draw Throngs.

Dwindling legions of hobgoblins, off in their shadow land, must be shaking a collective head over the pretty pass things have come to on their old Chicago stamping grounds. Might as well forget about the rugged past when each black tree trunk on Halloween hid a small impish ally, lying in wait to scare the wits out of the unwary; when galloping ghosts, trailing their mothers' best sheets, uprooted fences, carried off gates, and transferred garbage cans from alleys to front porches.

There's little left for a hobgoblin to do but twiddle his thumbs, when wily park supervisors and community leaders, up to date on their child psychology, steal the mischief brewers' thunder.

Parties for 200,000.

By planned celebrations at 90 parks and playgrounds in the city park staffs and civic organizations expect to divert 200,000 potential pranksters from property damage. And the program they are organizing, with masquerade parades, snake dances, bonfires, witch burnings, gymnastics, tugs of war, and chambers of horrors, are warranted to delight, and tire out, the liveliest young spook in the neighborhood.

Preparing for the Halloween parties, artcraft classes in many of the parks are carving pumpkins and making masks, costumes, and witch and black cat cut-outs.

There are to be barn dances and games for adults also in several of the fieldhouse gymnasiums.

On the southwest side the West Pullman community is planning on a mammoth scale for a Halloween celebration Friday night. A huge costume parade, forming at 7:30 o'clock at the park fieldhouse, 123d street and Stewart avenue, will proceed thru the business streets and wind up on the park grounds for singing and games about a giant bonfire.

Plan Special Fête.

Children under 7 will have a special party in the park assembly hall. Coöperating with the park district on plans for the West Pullman celebration are the Stewart-Ridge Mothers' club, veterans and auxiliary of St. Mihiel post of the American Legion, the Gompers and West Pullman Parent-Teacher associations, and the West Pullman Civic and Woman's clubs.

An army of spooks and goblins, headed by Square post's Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps, the group that won the national championship in Milwaukee last month, will parade from Sherman park, 53d street and Racine avenue, in Racine, 51st street, Ashland avenue, and Garfield boulevard. Returning to the park grounds, the merrymakers will light a bonfire and hold carnival under William J. McNeil's supervisory eye.

In the fieldhouse, Friday being the regular dance night for the Sherman Park Barn Dance club, a gala costume party will begin at 8:30 o'clock. There will be prizes for the best costumes and refreshments of chocolate and cake. Limbering up with polka twirls, the dancers will work up to Herr Schmidts, Rye waltzes, schottishes, and fox trots. The music will continue until 11:30.

Band to Lead Parade.

The James J. Zientek Legion band will lead another army of young Halloween sprites from Davis square on parade in Ashland avenue, 51st street, and Marshfield avenue. The witch will be burned with full Halloween rites at a bonfire in the park.

Cornell park, 51st and Wood streets, will be no place for delicate nerves on Halloween. The swimming pool locker room will be a chamber of horrors, peopled by weird apparitions that appear and disappear. Strange creatures will dance and dangle in the air, and Bluebeard's seven wives will be on view. Supervisor Robert Wach will open the Cornell chamber of horrors to visitors for previews, beginning tomorrow night.

Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, and Cub packs will give a Halloween party for parents in Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue. The Diver club, a community organization, will hold an apple ducking party. The Pilgrims and Pilgrimettes, an adult group that meets at the fieldhouse, will celebrate Saturday night at a dance and games party.

Mark White Program.

At Mark White square, Halsted and 27th streets, the gymnasium classes will turn out in costume in the afternoon for games and apple ducking contests. McKinley park and Western avenue and 39th street and Gage park, and Western and 55th street will celebrate with parades and bonfires.

The Square Dance club [adult] of Marquette park, Kedzie avenue and 67th street, will invoke the spirit of Halloween Wednesday night at a square dance festival. The fieldhouse will be decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins, jack-o'-lanterns, and black cat cut-outs. It is to be a costume party. William R. McLean, park supervisor, will call the dances. The arrangements committee promises an authentic square dance orchestra and Halloween refreshments of cider and doughnuts.

NEW LOG LODGE TO BE DEDICATED BY BEVERLY 'Y'

Ceremony to Be Held Next Sunday.

Dedication ceremonies will be conducted at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon by the Beverly YMCA at its newly constructed lodge in Palos hills. The lodge is the third to be built by YMCA branches on an 8 acre wooded tract which was purchased by the Chicago Young Men's Christian association last spring. The property lies a mile south of the CCC camp and three miles west of the old Palos hills ski slide.

Judge Cecil C. Smith.

Judge Cecil C. Smith will preside at the dedication, and the ceremonies will be conducted by the Rev. H. C. Boblitt, minister at the Morgan Park Christian church.

The history of the camping project will be recounted by Newton Farr, chairman of the general camp committee of the Chicago YMCA, who will present the key to the lodge to George B. Miller, chairman of the board of directors of the Beverly "Y."

Will Speak for Boys.

Dean Griffith of the Lancers Hi-Y club will appear on the program to speak for the boys who will use the lodge, and Miss Edith Spierling of Sigman chapter of the Tri-Hi-Y clubs will be spokesman for the girls.

It is the plan of the Beverly "Y" to make the lodge available not only to its 57 affiliated clubs but also to Boy and Girl Scout troops and Sunday school classes under adequate leadership.

An all-year camp, the lodge, designed by Murray D. Hetherington, is sturdily built of cypress log siding with asphalt shingles. The lounge is 27 feet long and 18 feet wide, dominated by a large rough stone fireplace.

NEW SOUTH AREA TUNNEL TO END WATER DANGERS

Will Assure Pressure in All Emergencies.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Bids were opened last week for a new water tunnel link which upon its completion several months hence is expected to relieve water pressure shortages which periodically plague the south and southwest sides. This was announced by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, who said the bids will be submitted to the city council for their action.

The low bid of $714,550, submitted by the Kenny Construction company, was substantially below the estimates of probable cost made by city engineers. The high bid was $1,072,890, submitted by the Santucci Construction company.

The proposed new tunnel will consist of 3,160 feet of main, 16 feet in diameter and 1,070 feet of 13-foot main which will connect the tunnels of the new south side filtration plant with the lake intake to the pumping stations at 68th street, Roseland, and Western avenue.

Deliver More Water.

This hookup will deliver more lake water to the intakes of the pumps, which are not now large enough to supply these pumps with all the water they are capable of raising to usable pressure according to city Engineer W. W. De Berard, who ordered the hydraulic and economic study that resulted in the new tunnel proposal.

"Our pumps are big enough, but the intake tunnel from the Edward F. Dunne crib is too small," De Berard said. "The proposed new tunnel will greatly increase this intake capacity, and so give the pumps more water to distribute to south and southwest side users."

The city engineer said the average water consumption in the area served by the three south side pumping stations is about 340 million gallons a day.

The maximum capacity of the present intakes is 485 million gallons a day. The new tunnel would boost this to 635 million gallons.

While the present intake capacity is sufficient on ordinary days, when the demand for water is unusually heavy, as often has happened, water pressures in south side mains drop dangerously low.

Test Shows Danger.

De Berard revealed that last July 29, when hot weather caused a big water demand, test pressures were taken in widely scattered parts of the city while the three south side pumping stations were pumping all the water they could. At some points the pressure was only two pounds to the square inch, he said, and at many places it was far less than the low limit of 25 pounds which is regarded as the danger level.

Recent studies have shown that these substandard points in numerous cases are areas with important defense industries.

The city engineer explained how lowered water pressure affects public health and safety. In the event of a big fire, he said, it is important to have as much water as possible instantly available from the city mains. If pressure is too low, fire engines might pump the water out faster than it can flow in, thus creating a dangerous handicap for the firemen.

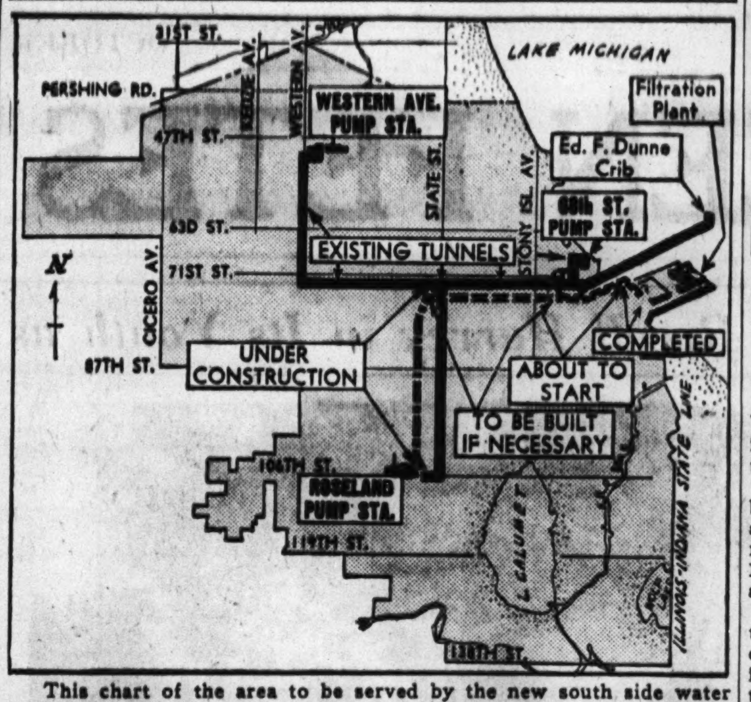
Also when pressure drops too low, many large water users, such as hotels and factories, start their own booster pumps to bring the water up to a usable pressure. These booster pumps have been known to take the pressure completely out of the city mains from which they feed and replace it with a vacuum.

Cite Health Danger.

With a vacuum in the water system instead of the usual pressure, sewage and other poisonous fluids can siphon into pipes that supply drinking water. This possibility is a constant plague to city health authorities.

Until the new filtration plant is completed, probably some time in 1943, the new tunnel connection would help deliver raw lake water to the pumping stations when such help was needed. With the completion of the filtration works, the new tunnel will pipe water to the pumps only after it has passed thru the purifying filter beds. Thereafter no raw lake water will find its way into south side mains.

For Improved Water Service



This chart of the area to be served by the new south side water filtration plant shows what is being done to enlarge intake capacity even before the plant is completed in 1943, thus correcting dangerously low pressures resulting at times of peak demand. When and if the tunnels represented by broken lines are installed, existing pumps could deliver almost twice as much water at proper pressure as they can now. The portion labeled "About to start" will boost the present capacity of 485 million gallons a day to 635 million gallons.

Nominations to Judiciary, Topic of Women Voters

The method of nominating judges will be discussed at the meeting of the Hyde Park League of Women Voters at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the First Unitarian church house. Leading the discussion will be Charles M. Thompson, former president of the Chicago Bar association, and John L. East, Republican committeeman of the 5th ward.

SEEK METHODS TO STOP FLOODS UNDER VIADUCTS

Engineers Outline Two Plans for Study.

it is estimated, would cost from 20 to 30 million dollars.

The second plan, which is said to be cheaper, would be to install pumps at individual viaducts which during a rain would be operated by the city. Each pump would cost about $15,000 and about $600 a year to operate.

The latter plan already is in operation at the recently completed viaducts on Austin avenue near Bloomingdale avenue under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and at 79th street, southwest highway, and Kedzie avenue.

Of the viaducts on the southwest side the following seven have been most frequently flooded in a period of five years:

Wallace avenue-81st street, 42 times out of use for a maximum period of 16 hours and 2 minutes.

Wallace-avenue-79th street, 32 times out of use for a maximum period of 9 hours and 40 minutes.

Stewart avenue-59th street, 18 times out of use for a maximum period of 9 hours and 10 minutes.

Racine avenue-75th street, 10 times out of use for a maximum period of 7 hours and 55 minutes.

Wallace avenue-51st street, 4 times out of use for a maximum period of 5 hours and 21 minutes.

Wallace avenue-69th stret, 3 times out of use for a maximum period of 2 hours and 27 minutes.

WOMEN'S PART IN DEFENSE IS MEETING THEME

3d District Takes Up Question Wednesday.

Dominant in the thought of hundreds of clubwomen gathered Wednesday at the first general assembly of the Third district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will be the question of women's part in the national defense effort. From various angles the subject will be presented in lecture and by panel discussion. The meeting, convening at 11:30 o'clock, is to be held in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive.

Mrs. William T. Bruckner, Illinois director of the General federation, will address the meeting in the afternoon on "Women and National Defense."

Plan Panel Discussion.

The subject of "Women's Opportunity in the National Emergency" will be considered in panel discussion by five district department heads: Mrs. H. T. Simpson, American citizenship chairman; Mrs. J. E. Trieschmann, American home; Mrs. I. S. Turley, education; Mrs. James Hughes, international relations; Mrs. David A. Wyburne, legislation, and Mrs. John N. McGuiggan, public health.

HARVEY RECALLS THAT ITS WALKS OFTEN FLOATED

Memory Book Is Opened for Golden Jubilee.

he felt like it in Harvey, and no one ever interfered. Principally he planted Russian mulberries and poplars, but he set out many fruit trees, also, or as likely as not you'd find him placing a tomato plant or cucumber seeds in front of your house.

"Mr. Gaston had definite ideas about the manner in which his funeral was to be conducted. He wanted fruit on his coffin. So when he died they covered his casket with branches from the pear trees he had planted, and also placed on it a basket of fruit.

"The Lincoln Chautauqua was in town when he was in his last illness. If he died before the Chautauqua left, he told his family, he hoped his funeral would be held in the tent.

"The Chautauqua ran its course, and Johnny Appleseed Gaston still lived. But every one knew it wouldn't be for long. The Chautauqua people left the tent up. In a few days the funeral was held just as Mr. Gaston had wanted it."

Remembers Lucy Gaston.

Mr. Gaston was not the only member of his family with original ideas. His daughter was the famous Lucy Page Gaston, anti-cigaret crusader. Miss Mynard remembers her as a "tall, ungainly young woman, not at all good looking, but kind hearted and sincere in her cause."

"She was always circulating WCTU literature and collecting for the Anti-Cigaret league's campaign. And she was persistent. You simply had to come thru. You couldn't say "no' to Lucy Page."

Then there was Mrs. Gaston, whose given name was Henrietta. The reform spirit was strong in all the Gastons. Mrs. Gaston was a militant member of the WCTU. She, Miss Maynard recalls, kept a vigilant eye on the fire department. She was always on the spot with a pot of coffee when the firemen returned after fighting a blaze. "It keeps my fire boys out of the saloons," Mrs. Gaston would say. Mrs. Gaston was 94 years old when, in 1925, she died in Evanston.

Authority On Early Days.

The jubilee committee has obtained costumes for the pageant and old pictures from Miss Mynard. She is one of the town's authorities on the early days.

Across the street from the Illinois Central station stands one of Harvey's old landmarks, the W. D. Rogers building, which was the office of the Harvey Land association. There, at an old fashioned roll top desk sits white haired William Dwight Rogers, who started out as a salesman for the land association in 1891. For all practical purposes, for years now Mr. Rogers has been the land association. It was just within the last two weeks that the company's last remaining property was sold.

Looking back to his first year as a salesman, Mr. Rogers recalls that he used to meet every train that left Chicago after 9 o'clock in the morning to greet prospective customers.

"In one 60 day period," he recounts, "we sold 10 solid blocks of lots."

Had a System Then, Too.

He chuckles over the salesmen's tactics. "We used to take the customers up on a roof to view the town," he confesses. "If they once got on the ground their enthusiasm might bog down in the mud."

Mr. Rogers, in the old phrase, has a weakness for young people. He has a great pride in his town, but he is most proud of all of its schools, particularly Thornton Township High school. He was president and a member of the board of education for many years.

George H. Gibson was another Ninety-Oner. There is another ex-mayor of Harvey living, F. C. Braley, but he is in California, and to Mr. Gibson goes the distinction of being the only former mayor in town. He is one of the two old timers taking part in the historical pageant that opens Tuesday night on the high school athletic grounds. The other is the first chief of police, John A. Bates.

Recalls Justice De Young.

Mr. Gibson was mayor from 1913 to 1919. Tho Harvey voted to adopt the commission form of government in 1912, it was under Mr. Gibson that the new system was instituted. He recalls that Frederic R. De Young, who in later years became chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, was then in the state legislature and Harvey's city attorney. Mr. De Young, he remembers, procured the legislation which obliged Chicago to furnish water to Harvey and other communities not immediately contiguous. It was a great triumph for De Young, the mayor, and Harvey.

An admirer of the late justice, Mr. Gibson recalls De Young's eloquence in public address.

"But never was he better," Mr. Gibson declares, "than when he spoke here in his own town. He was always our Fourth of July speaker. He had a profound effect for good in this city. He is remembered here with pride."

Reminiscences of Harvey.

Many of the old timers remember Thurling Harvey, the distinguished, bewhiskered gentleman, who drove thru the town in his spring wagon behind a handsome pair of roans. But Mrs. Florence Armington remembers him intimately. She was his niece.

Mrs. Armington visited Harvey in '91, and she came back to the town to stay two years later, the World's Fair year.

"No, Uncle Harvey himself never lived in Harvey," she relates. "His home was on Prairie avenue in Chicago.

"His hobby was a large stock farm that he owned in Nebraska. We had great times there when we were children. I shall never forget the joke he played on me once, when I had boasted what fine bargainer I was. There was a certain pony, Billy, I used to ride. "'Would you consider buying Billy for a dollar?'" Uncle Harvey asked me. I scampered madly upstairs for my purse, and counted out the nickels and dimes. 'What!' exclaimed my uncle, 'You'd be willing to buy on Sunday?'"

Darling of the Beverly Hills Woman's club is arranging the program for her group's annual men's night meeting tomorrow at Ridge park fieldhouse. Mrs. John B. Mr. Whalen lives with his wife and four children at 6641 Kimbark avenue.

LIVES OF 50,000 TO BE PUT UNDER THE MICROSCOPE

Students Will Analyze Bloom Township.

A 20 week survey of the resources, problems, and opportunities of the nine Bloom township communities and three outlying towns has been begun by the township's schools under the direction of the department of education at the University of Chicago. The inquiry, which is being conducted by 40 advanced students in a special class, will cover 39 square miles within the township alone and will deal with almost every phase of the life of 50,000 persons.

Establishment of the survey, which has enrolled 30 township teachers and 10 civic leaders, was brought about by the efforts of Raymond D. Meade, principal of Bloom Township High school, and Ben A. Sylla, superintendent of Chicago Heights' seven elementary schools.

"We intend to sidestep nothing," said Meade. "This survey will be neither a crusade nor a snooping expedition, but rather an attempt to gather sufficient facts from which conclusions can be drawn later."

Project a New One.

The project is a new one for the university, according to Prof. William C. Reavis, who is in charge. "They came to us with their problem and it seemed worthwhile to give them help. The only similar task we have undertaken is the survey of Hinsdale's schools completed recently."

Dr. Lloyd Allen Cook, professor of sociology at Ohio State university, is collaborating in the task. He is known as an expert in community surveys and has recently completed one in Des Moines, Ia. Prof. Ralph W. Tyler, chairman of the department of education, and Professors Stephen Corey and Newton Edwards are also assisting Prof. Reavis.

Mr. Meade pointed to the high rate of juvenile delinquency in the community, made up largely of wage earners, many of foreign extraction, as "one problem which can be solved only when we find out what makes our community tick."

Ten Teams on Job.

The class has been divided into 10 teams and a specific problem assigned to each. The topics to be explored, as listed by Meade, follow:

1. Basic statistics of the community [from birth rates to bank clearances].
2. Agricultural activities.
3. Health problems and deficiencies.
4. A study of the nationality background of the community. [The foreign-born population is largely Italian, Polish, and Swedish.]
5. Attitude of the community toward phases of education, including vocational training.
6. Agencies serving youth; their objectives and success.
7. Organized facilities for leisure time physical and recreational activities.
8. Organized facilities for intellectual activities.
9. Problems and results of vocational training. [Unlike No. 5.]
10. An over-all cataloging of educational and recreational opportunities. [Listing of specific times for inspection tours of plants and government agencies, etc.]

Meade said publication of the results of the survey had been guaranteed by the community, and would be available to those interested. He declared that several community organizations had shown their full support.

Look to Four Sources.

The facts will be gathered in four ways, Meade said, from individuals, from official figures of police and government agencies, from civic groups, and by personal investigation.

A special survey of housing conditions is to be undertaken by the township senior high school class studying "problems of democracy" under Paul R. Busey. The results will be added to the general survey, which has been extended to nearby Matteson, and Frankfort and Crete in Will county. The class meets once a week for advice from the collaborating professors and members can obtain graduate credit for their work.

"We're not trying to prove something," Meade said, "but rather attempting a community analysis to aid the schools and civic groups in solving their problems."

Double Golden Day

TEACHERS HONOR CHARLES WINGO, ARGO PRINCIPAL

Charles E. Wingo, principal of Argo Community High school, recently was elected a member of the legislative commission of the Illinois High School association by a vote of high school principals from suburban Cook county, and Lake, McHenry, Kane, Du Page and Kendall counties, comprising district 3.

The commission will report on proposed changes in the association at its annual November meeting at the University of Illinois.

The association controls all athletic, musical, literary, commercial, and forensic activities of state high schools. Any proposals of the legislative commission will be considered at the association meeting.

GARDEN GROUP WILL BEAUTIFY RAILWAY PLOT

The Blue Island Garden club has begun a project to beautify the Rock Island railroad right of way and station grounds at Vermont street in the suburb, and club members have asked residents to donate shrubbery for transplanting. The railroad has agreed to clear the ground. The project calls for many new shrubs for some distance along the tracks, and some in the clear space north of the station.

THEATER OF AIR DRAWS COAST TO COAST RESPONSE

'Naughty Marietta' Next; John Carter Guest.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The response to the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, aired over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system Saturday evenings, this season is overshadowing that of last year. The tremendous popularity of the outstanding musical productions is reflected in a flood of letters and cards.

These communications from listeners are filled with favorable comment, congratulations, and requests for souvenir programs. They come from coast to coast and from the gulf to Canada.

Among the points from which letters have been received, just to mention a few, are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pasadena, Cal.; Albany, Cortland, New York City, and suburbs from New York state; Bridgeport, Conn.; Washington, D. C.; Roanoke, Va.; Mobile, Ala.; Austin, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Atlanta, Ga., and Winnipeg, Man.

"Naughty Marietta" Next.

Marion Claire and John Carter will lead an all-star singing cast in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," to be aired from 8:45 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the title rôle of Marietta.

Highlight of the program will be Miss Claire's singing of Marietta's famous obligato, "Italian Street Song." Carter will be making his second appearance in the series this year. He sang opposite Miss Claire last night in "Sweethearts."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and the augmented chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. The program will be directed by William A. Bacher.

Betty Winkler to Star.

Supporting Miss Claire and Carter in the singing cast will be Ruth Slater, contralto, and Win Stracke, bass baritone.

Betty Winkler will highlight the dramatic cast, playing the speaking rôle of Marietta, while Bob Bailey will be cast as Capt. Dick Warrington, the rôle sung by Carter. Others in the cast will be Bret Morrison, Elia Braca, Bob Jellison, Florence Brower, Willard Waterman, and Marvin Mueller.

Notable among the musical selections will be "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and the casket girl's song, "Taisez Vous." Marietta's charming introductory number, "Naughty Marietta," is another bright spot. The unforgettable strains of "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" are woven thruout the operetta.

ROSEMARY GARBELL ON WAY TO ACHIEVE HER AMBITION AT 11

Altho only 11, Rosemary Garbell is well on the way to the achievement of her ambition — someday to be the greatest actress in radio. Three years ago she was playing with dolls and taking dancing lessons, like many other girls of her age. Now she has many important radio rôles, among them, Josey in "Harold Teen," broadcast by W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. each Tuesday.

'Way back in 1938, just after her eighth birthday, Rosemary got her start in radio. A part was open in a Chicago daytime serial, and she was recommended for the rôle by a producer who had seen her dance at Mayor Kelly's Christmas benefit show.

But first she would have to learn to act. Radio was suggested as the perfect training school. So radio won Rosemary away from dancing. Now she intends to concentrate on acting and follow in the footsteps of her mother, the former Eva Belmont, once an actress on Broadway.

Rosemary doesn't sit in the corner and read Shakespeare when her studio assignments are completed. She likes to ride a bike and sit on the steps of her home with her many girl friends as they discuss plans for the enelargement of their "Orphan Annie" club, of which Rosemary is the vice president.

A W-G-N Guest

Eleanor French, songstress appearing at the Camellia house in the Drake hotel, will make a guest appearance on "The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and Mutual.

Mixing charming vocalists, cowboys, and the navy is not usually done on radio programs, but then the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" is no average radio program. The show to be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m., CST, will feature Miss Eleanor French, vocal stylist from the Camellia house of the Drake hotel, Ken Maynard, cowboy movie star currently with the rodeo at the Chicago Stadium, together with Tom [Bud Vandover], Dick [Marlin Hurt], and Harry [Gordon Vandover].

Ken Maynard.

Miss French, known to numerous night spots in New York, Miami, and Hollywood as well as Chicago, will sing "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "S' Wonderful."

The orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler will open with a Navy day salute, singing "We Saw the Sea," and later offer "Gift from Heaven" with lyrics by Edgar Guest.

The show is produced by William A. Bacher with dialog written by Paul Larmer.

Fulton Lewis to Speak on MBS from Cessna Plant

A special defense program from the plant of the Cessna Aircraft company at Wichita, Kas., will be aired at 4 p. m. [CST] today on W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network. Commentator Fulton Lewis Jr., who is the network's defense commentator, will interview workers in the Cessna plant. Duane Wallace, president of the Cessna company, will speak. The Wichita Symphony orchestra also will be heard.

Fulton Lewis Jr.

Helen Hayes Will Star in 'Kitty Foyle' on CBS

The American Radio Warblers, W-G-N singing canaries heard from noon to 12:15 p. m. [CST], are in their 14th year on the air. Three newcomers, Ranny, Ronnie, and Rudy, made their debuts last week when the program returned to the air. They joined the other birds who have been broadcasting from 3 to 10 years. The three R's were the best singers from a group of more than a thousand baby canaries trained in the American Radio Warblers Chicago singing school. Helen Westbrook again plays the organ accompaniments for the Warblers.

PIPES IN FLOOR PROVIDE HEAT IN RAVINE HOME

Pump Circulates Water Thru System.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is news and interest back of the story of three engaging small homes at the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan just east of Sheridan road.

All these were designed by William A. Ganster, architect. He also is the owner of one of the homes. In the heating of these dwellings he has employed radiant heating. This is a method of heating which utilizes pipe coils in the floor, walls, or ceilings to heat the rooms.

There now are more than 100 radiant heating installations in the United States, with approximately 20 in the Chicago area, according to Louis T. Braun, secretary of the Chicago Master Steam Fitters' association.

In the case of the three Waukegan homes the pipe coils are in the floors, hot water is the heating medium and the boilers are oil-fired.

For Moderate Cost Homes.

The use of radiant heating in these houses is especially interesting because the houses are moderate in cost, Mr. Ganster's home was built for $7,900 in the fall of 1940; P. W. Yager's house, which adjoins Mr. Ganster's, cost $8,000, and D. J. Dalziel's, which is just east of the Yager house, cost $6,700.

While radiant heating effects may be attained with pipe coils placed either in floors, ceilings, walls, or all three, Mr. Ganster prefers to place them in the floor with supplementary ceiling or wall panels as necessary.

Water Temperature Lower.

The essential difference between radiant heating and heating with radiators is in the heat distributing surface. In the case of a radiator, the surface is relatively small and the temperature of the heating medium is high. In the case of radiant heating, the entire wall, floor, or ceiling in which the pipe coils are imbedded acts as a radiant surface. Because the radiant surface is so large, the temperature of the heating medium is correspondingly low, especially when hot water is used. The water, by the way, is kept circulating continuously by the pump and water temperatures as low as 100 degrees are practical in installations designed for this low operating temperature.

The procedure which Mr. Ganster specifies for the installation of pipe coils in the floor is first a sand fill six inches deep on the earth. The sand is covered with partition tile, 4 by 12 by 12, laid flat, and the pipe coils are placed on the tile. Sand is filled in between the pipes, and acts as a cushion or bed taking up the expansion and contraction of the pipe. Then a 4 inch concrete slab is poured on top the sand cushion.

3 MUSIC FESTIVAL WINNERS TO SING AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Three winners in vocal contests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S annual Chicagoland Music Festival will sing solos tonight in Orchestra hall at the Sunday Evening club services.

Edgar Nelson.

Louisa Hoe, soprano, chosen "best woman singer" in the 1937 competition, will be heard with the club choir under the direction of Edgar Nelson, who is also general choral director of the festival. Two other vocalists who will sing are Irene Stoddard, first place winner in this summer's Cook county finals in the lyric soprano division, and George McHardy, lyric tenor, who placed second in the county finals.

Miss Stoddard and Mr. McHardy will sing with the Drexel Park Presbyterian church choir, conducted by Theodore Barg, at the 7 o'clock meeting. The Drexel Park choir sings each summer in the Tribune vesper services held in the Cook County forest preserves.

Dr. Harold Bosley, pastor of the Mount Vernon place Methodist church, Baltimore, Md., will be guest speaker at the 8 o'clock meeting. Clifford W. Barnes, president and founder of the club, will preside.

Fashions for Early Winter

Four examples of the women's apparel found in a south side store. Descriptions may be found in the story in adjoining column.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 27.

Trees and shrubs and hardy vines still can be planted if the ground is not too frozen. Large trees or slow-growing low trees like the hawthorn and crab can be moved freely and safely when balled and baled. This method is more costly than when smaller material is moved without being balled. Often a single large tree will change the whole appearance of a yard and increase its value.

No established tree should be cut to make way for a new building unless it is absolutely necessary. The hard wood native trees are preferable; these include oak, hackberry, walnut, and kindred kinds.

A tree or two of the new hardy hickories, pecans, chestnuts, or walnuts have an economic value that is well worth while and as specimens any of them may be used. These are best moved in spring but may be planned for at that time.

Tuesday, Oct. 28.

Rake off heavy accumulations of leaves on the lawn to avoid matting down and possible smothering of the grass. Hardwood leaves make fine material for composting, but leaves from softwoods decay rapidly and are not as useful as the former. Leafmold is very useful when mixed with composted soil and sand as potting soil, and the home gardener seems never to have enough of it.

Cut and burn the tops of all hardy perennials, annuals, and weeds in the neighborhood to destroy lurking places of insect pests and disease. Collect and burn all leaves from rose plants to avoid the retention of disease spores. Black spot prevails in some beds and may lie dormant all winter and become active in springtime.

Wednesday, Oct. 29.

Never allow tools to lie out of doors to be ruined by exposure to the elements. And never permit tools to be placed in storage until they are thoroly cleaned and oiled to prevent rust. Paint all parts that can be painted, oil every part that needs it, run water from the hose and hang it up where it will not be run over by the auto; in fact, see that everything is gardenshape before severe weather arrives.

Trim the Boston ivy or Engelman's ivy away from window casings. Protect newly planted trees and shrubs with strawy manure spread around their base. It is unnecessary to wait until the ground is frozen before applying this material around the plants. Spread it any time it can be obtained in late fall and results will be satisfactory.

Thursday, Oct. 30.

To keep dahlia tubers over winter, pack in boxes of sand or peat with a burlap over them. Dust those that keep poorly with sulphur. Furnace heated basements are so dry it is sometimes difficult to keep roots in good condition. Place the dahlias upside down.

Gladiolus bulbs can be stored in a cool place, or above freezing. Place in paper bags, 100 to the bag with an ounce of naphthalene flakes as a means of killing any thrips that may be on them. A 40 degree temperature will not injure these bulbs. Cannas may be stored in the same way as dahlias.

Friday, Oct. 31.

Late chrysanthemums, unless frozen, can be lifted and potted and placed on an inclosed porch where they will flower and furnish material to brighten up the home. Lily of the valley clumps and spurge are greatly benefited when given a light mulch of manure. Peat moss or leafmold also may be used.

Store tuberous rooted begonias in sand, peat, or sawdust in a temperature of around 50 degrees. Pot plants can be gradually dried off and kept in the pots, if desired.

Saturday, Nov. 1.

Buy a few small pot plants of various kinds to grow in the house. Many of the begonias furnish excellent material to grow on and the florist usually has a good variety from which to make a selection. Select the good flowering kinds, such as President Carot, lucerna, B. templini, and others of equal beauty.

SMART APPAREL IS FOUND CLOSE TO INDUSTRIES

Simplicity, Good Taste Seen in Clothing.

BY ANGELA.

In the center of the south side industrial section is a store for men's and women's apparel which has a definite suburban atmosphere—building itself, the sales force, the merchandise. An anacronism, but a charming one.

Here in a quiet, leisurely manner women, who come from all the fashionable, residential south side sections and suburbs, select dresses, suits, coats and sports wear from a stock of individual and distinctive models. Wool dresses, exquisitely fashioned gabardine suits, skirts, and quantities of them in plain and plaid and striped materials with sweaters or jackets in matching or contrasting colors, knitted suits, simple silks—all of them extremely good taste to meet the demands of thousands of women of equally sound judgment.

1. This two piece suit of light tan tweed is a very youthful style—an excellent costume for city women. The pockets and the tailored collar are of otter.

2. Wool jersey meets all the requirements of the tailored woman no matter where she lives. Here is a two piece tan wool jersey, the cardigan faced in bright blue and red plaid grosgrain down the front.

3. The knitted suit is casual and comfortable beyond words. The coat and skirt, tho of different colors, are of the same weave. The black skirt has an indistinct plaid pattern in the texture only. The pattern in the biege coat is in color [black] as well as texture. Twisted silver buttons fasten the front closing.

4. Soft black wool fashions this simple tailored dress with the high round neck and the surplice closing. Biege stitching outlines the hem on the peplum, sleeves and neckline.

With Crosby

MARY MARTIN.

Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Eddie [Rochester] Anderson, Brian Donlevy, and Carolyn Lee will appear on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 8:30 p. m. next Saturday in a special broadcast previewing songs from the new Paramount picture, "The Birth of the Blues."

The broadcast will precede the Hollywood première of the picture scheduled for later the same evening. Top tunes from the ASCAP catalog will highlight the program as "The Birth of the Blues" has built its story around the rise of modern music.

Listeners will hear Crosby and his leading lady, Mary Martin, sing such songs as W. C. Handy's epic, "The St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues," and "Beale Street Blues," all featured in the film. Dave Rose's orchestra, from Mutual's west coast affiliate KHJ, will accompany them.

Master Canaries Show Features a Chorus of 12

The world's smallest artists, singing canaries, may be heard every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on W-G-N when the Master Radio Canaries presents a 15 minute musical program.

There are solo selections by outstanding singing canaries blended with a chorus of 12 birds. Jess Kirkpatrick is master of ceremonies for the artists and has planned a program that suits the musical tastes of the birds. Some of the canaries prefer classical music, while some like popular tunes. All the birds get their chance for solo work in the type of music they like best. Jess says the dissenting canaries who don't like the type of music being sung sit quietly by, shaking their heads.

END HALSTED ST. BLACKOUTS WITH BRIGHTER LIGHTS

Bridgeport Wins 'New Lamps for Old.'

New street lamps that will increase illumination by 30 per cent are being installed on Halsted street between 35th and 43d streets. Workmen on the project probably will finish the job by the end of the week.

Halsted is the main business street in the Bridgeport community, and business men and civic groups for 10 years have been demanding the lighting improvement. Finally last spring the city council approved an order introduced by Ald. Hugh B. Connelly [11th], granting sufficient funds for the rehabilitation and installation of street lights on several important thorofares in the ward.

No More Blackouts.

The Halsted street project calls for 44 lamps of the 1,000 candle power transformer type. With this type, other lights on the same circuit are not affected when one lamp is extinguished. When one of the old type lights, which these replace, went out, an entire block was thrown into darkness.

From this section, the workers next week will move northward to improve the present lighting on Halsted street from Archer avenue to 35th street. Here the outside globes shielding the street lamps will be replaced by modern reflectors.

Next week also work will begin on the installation of 116 new 1,000 candle power transformer type lamps on Wallace street from Root to 29th street and 191 lights of the same type on Archer avenue from Canal to Wood street.

Install Other Lights.

Thomas J. Fitzgibbon, district superintendent of the department of electricity, has charge of the lighting improvements in the ward.

Installation of new 1,000 candle power lights has been completed on Wentworth avenue between 41st and 43d street; on 35th street [41 lights] between Ashland avenue and Wentworth, which carries the heavy traffic to Comiskey park, and on Pershing road [106 lights] from Ashland avenue to Wentworth.

These improvements were begun in March. Several new traffic signal lights also have been installed in the ward at various hazardous intersections.

Sassin, secretary; Henrietta Barker, treasurer; Mary Anson, chaplain; Marney Monteith, historian; Betty Simpson, corresponding secretary, and Lucile Hornback, sergeant at arms. Mrs. Bertha Stiles, past 3d district director, will be the installing officer.

Entertainment, dancing, and refreshments will follow the ceremonies.

Hatfield, commander; Gerry Patrick, senior vice commander; Edward Classen, junior vice commander; Edward Kloud, finance officer; Sandy Williams, adjutant; Ben Meek, chaplain; Walter Garonke, historian, and William A. Schwartz and Ben Huebner, sergeant at arms.

The annual Halloween card party sponsored by the 122d field artillery unit will be held Tuesday night at the Chicago armory, 234 East Chicago avenue.

SEEK METHODS TO STOP FLOODS UNDER VIADUCTS

Engineers Draft 2 Plans for Study.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

Chicagoans who wade deep in water under some 200 viaducts every time there is a severe rainstorm may get a break tomorrow when the city's traffic experts tangle with the ancient problem of flood control.

The executive committees of four area councils of the Chicago Motor club will meet with city, county, state, and sanitary district engineers and industrial and school leaders to seek a solution to the problem of Chicago's flooded viaducts. The meeting will be held at noon at the Illinois Athletic club.

Street Cars Stalled.

Viaduct floods, sure signs of spring and fall in Chicago, annually cost an untold sum in damage and traffic delay, and cause discomfort and frequently danger to thousands of persons, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

The Chicago Surface Lines report that street cars have been stalled from one to five times at 103 viaducts during the last 12 months. Trucking companies report long delays at some 200 viaducts during flood times.

The problem goes back many years. The city long ago was successful in getting all major railroads to raise their tracks in all sections. But, in most cases, the tracks were not raised high enough for proper clearance of street car and truck traffic without lowering the street levels under the viaducts.

Overloads Sewers.

It is this dip in the street levels under the viaducts that causes all the trouble. During heavy rains, the waters settle in the viaducts, overloading the sewer systems and causing them to back up. The situation is further complicated with the plugging up of drains by leaves and debris.

Two solutions have been proposed by engineers. One is to install new sewers, particularly in the Hyde Park district and on the west and northwest side along Kostner avenue from 26th street to North avenue and west to Mont Clare avenue. This project, it is estimated, would cost from 20 to 30 million dollars.

The second plan, which is said to be cheaper, would be to install pumps at individual viaducts which during a rain would be operated by the city. Each pump would cost about $15,000 and about $600 a year to operate.

The latter plan already is in operation at the recently completed viaducts on Austin avenue near Bloomingdale avenue under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and at 79th street, southwest highway, and Kedzie avenue.

Here is a thumbnail case history of five north side viaducts over a period of five years:

Montrose-Ravenswood. This viaduct was closed to traffic 11 times in the five year period. On one occasion traffic was tied up for two hours and 20 minutes.

Lawrence-Ravenswood. Flooded nine times; traffic stalled for a maximum time of one hour 40 minutes.

Impassable Five Times.

Fullerton-Hoyne. Out of use five times; traffic tied up for a maximum of one hour and 27 minutes.

Irving Park-Ravenswood. This viaduct, just east of the busy Damen-Irving Park intersection, has been closed by floods five times, with stoppage of traffic for one period of two hours and 37 minutes.

Clybourn-Terra Cotta. Closed to traffic twice in five years; one time for one hour.

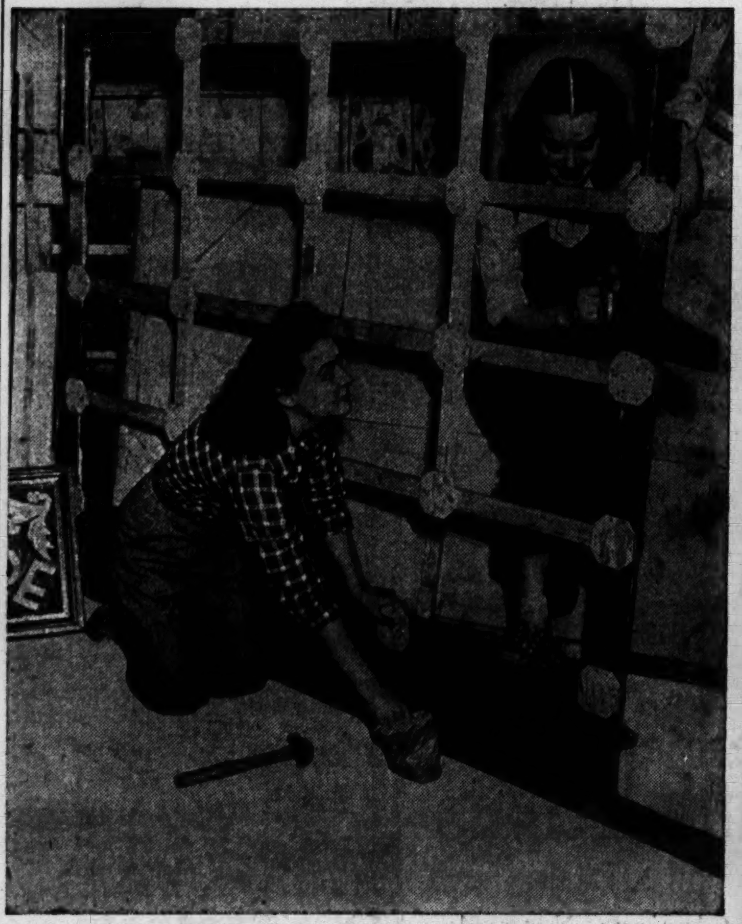
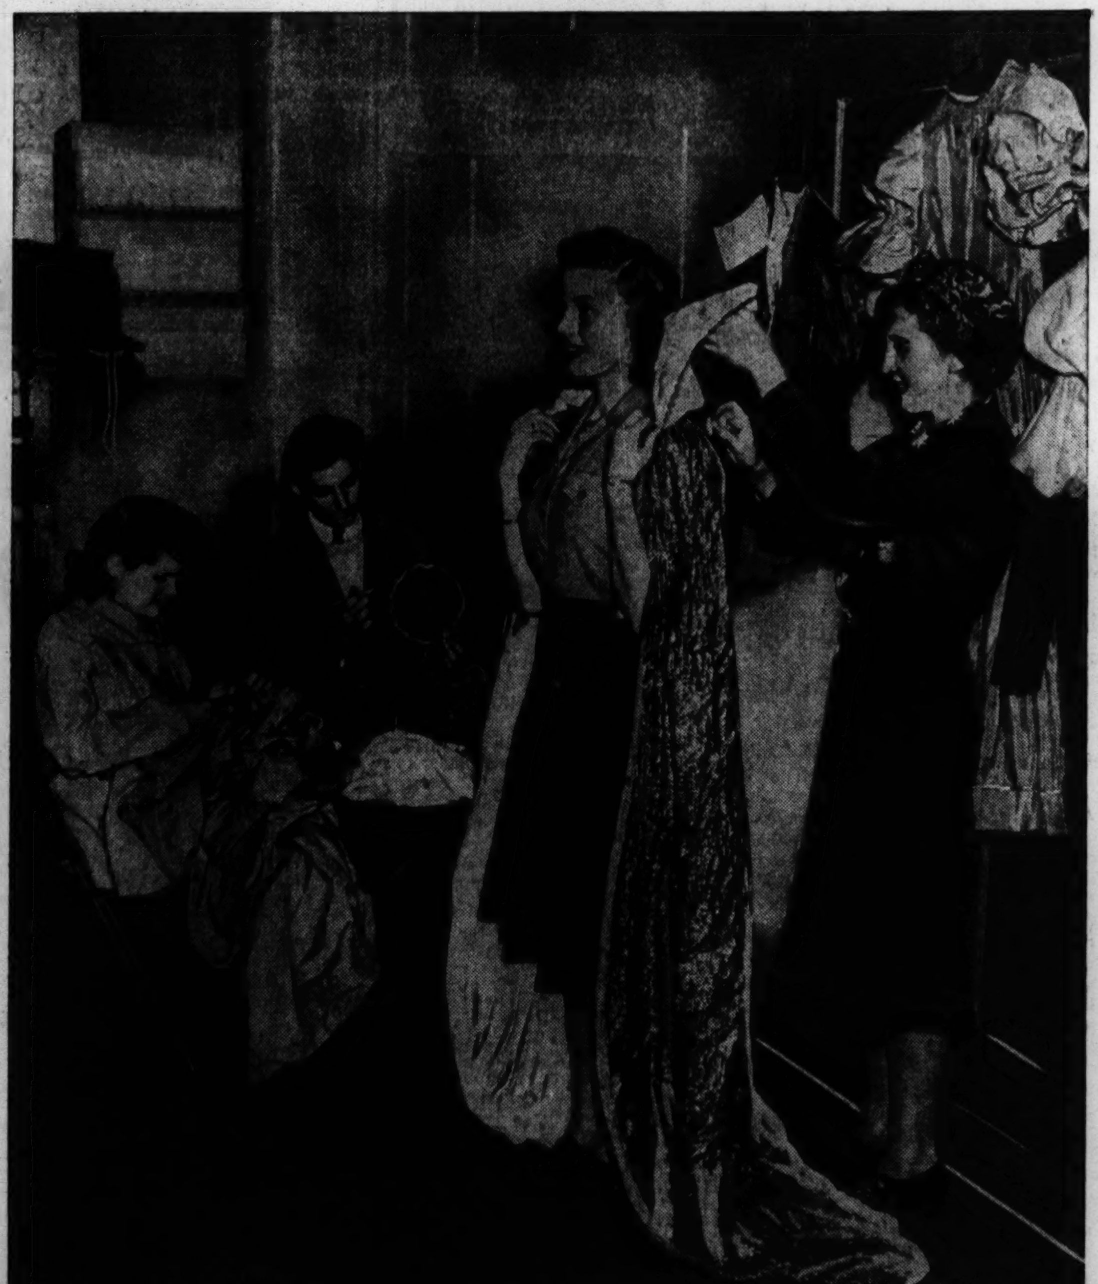
Three North Siders Named Majors in ROTC at U. of I.

Three north side University of Illinois students were honored recently when they received appointments as cadet officers in the ROTC unit at the school. Edward N. Koenig, 2482 Estes avenue, was named major of the coast artillery corps; Edward L. Burch, 4456 Magnolia avenue, major of cavalry, and Roy A. Hammar, 4021 Kenmore avenue, major of the signal corps. The unit, one of the largest in the country, has 80 regular army instructors and nearly 4,500 students.

It's Work and Fun Preparing for Children's Theater Plays



When Miss Winifred Ward, founder and director of the Children's theater of Evanston, and her associates have selected a play for production in that organization, members of the Northwestern university school of speech, scene crews go to work on stage sets. Miriam Ruge and Betty Jane Allen are the carpenters working on the set for "The Prince and the Pauper," the play chosen to open the 17th season of the Children's theater. First performance will be in Haven school, Evanston, Friday afternoon.



The costume crew makes another busy group working toward the play's production. Leila McMillan and Roger Parr put together princely robes and crowns, while Mary Mitchel tries on a royal robe with Maurine Mitchel, costume director, to do the fitting.

The sets are built at the university work shop and then moved to Haven and Nichols schools, where children's plays are given. William McCreary, technical director, oversees, moving the sets with Arthur Kraszewski assisting. Miss Ward, the theater director, checks off the property list.

Ticket buying begins early, and many youngsters who buy season tickets for the four plays are as particular about their seats as veteran playgoers. They reserve the same seats from year to year. Lined up and waiting are, left to right, Kenneth McGrew, Eleanor Shaw, George Ballard, Donald Straben, Jim Rice, Shirley Sherrill, Jane Farrell, Mary Hillison, Theresa Vandervort, James Luke, Hildegard Leopold, and Drew Waitley. Geraldine Brain Siks, associate director of the Children's theater, is in the ticket booth.

War Still Just Misery to Old Africa Fighter

When Edward Marshall, Scotland born head engineer of Glencoe schools, reads about military activities in Africa these days, he gets to reminiscing. Forty years ago last May he spent his 19th birthday as a prisoner of the Boers. He had gone out with the British armies seeking adventure; he found dust, disease, and thirst.

"It was a lot of misery and suffering then," he says, "and it's the same now, with the difference that the modern guns are bigger and can shoot farther. And the airplanes are pretty deadly, too. Looks as tho people would get tired of war. It never seems to accomplish anything but stir up causes for another war later on."

Marshall recalls the rations in Africa. "I read that the boys don't think so much of the food now. Well, I don't blame them, but it could be worse. Fighting men in the Boer war had a day's rations of a pound of Chicago canned beef, a pound of hardtack, one-third ounce of tea, half ounce of coffee, and three ounces of sugar. Sometimes we got put on half rations."

Meals are Miracles.

Marshall, who has been a school engineer in Glencoe for 27 years, says his daily meals have never ceased being daily miracles to him since his experiences in Africa. "When we had fresh meat it meant that one of the army oxen had been injured and had to be killed. Eating one of them was like chewing a board. Along with an oxen ration we received a pound of flour. We mixed that with water and cooked it over a manure fire."

While modern soldiers may have better rations, Marshall admits that he and his comrades had the advantage in fighting. "We had anthills," he explains. African ants build huge homes, some of which are almost as large as a small room. The boys from the British isles used to hide behind them "for three bullets. When the third zing came, we knew we'd better move. The fourth hit would break up the hill."

Young as he was, Marshall was impressed by the extent natural conditions control the living habits of a people. "Every one regards the Dutch as an extremely clean people," he says. "In their own country, they are. But out in Africa where water was scarce, the Boers forgot a lot of the scrubbing.

Relied on Vultures.

Vultures carried off all waste, so the Boers were careless with that, too. Consequently, when they were crowded into camps, their habits, which hadn't mattered in the wide open spaces, brought disease and death."

As a prisoner, Marshall was given a share of the poor supplies of food and water the Boers had. Then he and his fellows were taken out to a road and told to follow it and they'd reach Kimberley. That much freedom is an ordeal in a country where water is scarce, but he survived the journey.

Returning to Scotland, Marshall married, but the restlessness that soldiers know was strong upon him. In 1908 he and his wife and two children sailed away from their homeland and came to live on the north shore. Their third child was born here.

He says, "I wasn't disabled in the war, but I didn't want to stay in one place any longer. I guess I'd been kind of a bum if I hadn't married. All soldiers get that restlessness, I guess. Fighting upsets a lot of fellows who might have been contented merchants and farmers if they hadn't gone to war."

BRITISH AID DONOR SWEARS OFF; WRITES APPEAL FOR OUR NEEDY

Like so many other doctors and dentists, Dr. Michael H. Dally of Evanston, a dental surgeon, has received an avalanche of requests for contributions to British and other war relief agencies.

He contributed to several of them. Recently, however, one agency to which he had already donated solicited him again. This organization, says Dr. Dally, made him think of America's own homeless, hungry, and poor. And thinking about the misery in America, he grew angry. His anger became poetic, resulting in the following untitled verse, which Dr. Dally dedicated to the Community Fund of Chicago:

"Were sending bundles by the score
To lands across a mine-strewn sea,
To help those victims of a war
Less fortunate than you and me.

"And yet right here in our own land
Where Peace, by God's grace, still prevails,
Are those who need a helping hand
As much as those whom war assails.

"Small children, ill and underfed,
Who live in tenement or slum,
Who seldom get a crust of bread
To warm their bodies cold and numb.

"The aged and the feeble too,
Whom fickle Fortune has betrayed,
Depend on folks like you and you
To bring them sorely needed aid.

"Look where and how and when you please
In any land you choose to roam,
You'll find no truer words than these,
'That Charity Begins at Home!'"

MERCHANTS JOIN PARKS IN AIDING FESTIVAL PLAN

Parties and Parades Set for Friday.

Halloween on the north side this Friday will step into the Mardi Gras class. It will be the safest and sanest in many a year, but not at all the dullest, say civic and neighborhood leaders who are planning hundreds of parties and festivals.

Thruout the city nearly 200,000 youths, who would otherwise be roaming the streets, will attend pumpkin parties and masquerades at 90 park district fieldhouses. George T. Donoghue, park district general superintendent, estimates these neighborhood celebrations will cut down vandalism and save taxpayers thousands of dollars in damage and trouble.

Hundreds of storekeepers in two north side shopping districts, Devon-Western and along Clark street between Howard and Devon avenue, have "insured" their windows against pre-Halloween soaping. The "premiums" are to go to a general fund which after Halloween is to be divided up among neighborhood schools.

No Pay if Soaped.

If a merchant's window is soaped, he cancels his insurance. Student mayors of each of the schools have appointed monitors to see to it that no-soaping insurance agreements are not violated.

On Halloween night, however, the insurance is automatically canceled and the youngsters will be permitted to soap and wax all windows as much as they please. In fact, most storekeepers in the two neighborhoods intend to hand out the soap themselves.

After the official soaping is over, the storekeepers will be hosts at street festivals and will award prizes to the youngsters wearing the spookiest costumes and to winners of jitterbug dance contests.

5,000 to Take Part.

At Paul Revere park, 2509 Irving Park road, at least 5,000 youngsters are expected to take part in a community celebration staged by Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Sea Scouts. Boys and girls from Welles park will parade in costume to Paul Revere fieldhouse.

Thousands of youngsters will march in a costume parade Friday evening to Hamlin park, Wellington and Hoyne avenues, where a program will be given by the park district and Lake View American Legion post. The marchers will engage in a snake dance around a bonfire and visit a "chamber of horrors" at the fieldhouse.

A similar celebration will be held at Chase park, Leland avenue and Clark street, for Uptown, Edgewater, and Ravenswood youngsters. Sponsors of the fête include the Central Uptown Business Men's association, Uptown-Clark Business association, Ravenswood American Legion post and auxiliary, Lincoln Park Legion drum and bugle corps, Community Club of Sheridan Park, Stewart PTA, and Sheridan Park Neighborhood club.

Guests of PTA.

More than 1,500 youngsters will be guests of Swift School PTA and at a celebration in the playground, 5900 Winthrop avenue. The program will include a bonfire and lantern parade and will be under the supervision of Miss Julia Dulion and L. H. Krandel, playground directors.

In the villages around Waukegan, including North Chicago, Gurnee, Millburn, Zion, and Winthrop Harbor, all Boy Scout troops will celebrate Halloween at parties and bonfires in parks and playgrounds.

In Glencoe a spook party will be held in the village for pupils of the town's schools. Committee chairmen include Howard Copp, E. S. Smith, John McFadzean, Joe Connor, and Kenneth Howe.

A talent show and costume parade will be given Halloween night at the First Methodist Church of Evanston for children of the church school.

The Rosary society of Old St. Joseph's church will have a Halloween card party in the church clubrooms, Hill and Franklin streets.

MUMS TO SHOW THEIR BEAUTIES IN PARK EXHIBITS

750,000 Buds, Blossoms Will Be on View.

The year-round preparation for the park district's annual chrysanthemum show at Garfield and Lincoln parks were nearing completion last week. The display of 16,000 plants which will bear 750,000 buds and blossoms will open at both conservatories on Nov. 8.

It will be the parks' 29th annual showing. Seven hundred fifty chrysanthemum varieties will be represented. The flowers will be in every color except blue and will range in size from 21 inch blossoms to dainty pompoms a quarter of an inch in diameter.

Known to Ancients.

The chrysanthemum, which was popular as far back as 2300 B. C., is known in Japan as the "Queen of Flowers." It was mentioned in the writings of Confucius in 500 B. C., but wasn't introduced to America until about 1800. In 1860 a single plant of a hairy type chrysanthemum was purchased for $1,500.

Since then new varieties have been produced annually. Hundreds of new type seedlings are started at the park district conservatories' propagating houses. After each annual exhibit, the best are saved for cuttings. These are carefully nurtured until the new show.

Tied to Props.

In order that they will be seen in the best possible postures, workmen in the flower houses tie them to props, using 32,000 yards of linen thread.

The show will continue daily from 8 o'clock in the morning until 10 in the evening to Nov. 30. Admission is free. Last year's exhibit broke all previous attendance records, 397,943 persons visiting the show during the 23 day run.

Party Chairman

Mrs. Charles Goodwillie, 1501 Hood avenue, is chairman of arrangements for a dessert bridge at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Loyola gymnasium. Murnighan, 7346 North Oakley avenue, is party chairman.

If your hair is soft, sparkling clean, glimmering with highlights and beautifully dressed; no one will notice if your eyes are a trifle small or your nose a trifle large, because beautiful hair attracts more attention and greater admiration than any other one feature. PRINCE, PAUPER TANGLE TO OPEN NOVEL THEATER

17th Year for Evanston Stage Group.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The delightful story of mixed identities, Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper," has been chosen for the first production of the 17th season of the nationally known Children's Theater of Evanston. "First nighters," ranging from toddlers to grownups and outfitted in snowsuits or rainy day clothes or whatever the weather dictates, will see the opening performance at the suburb's Haven school at 3:45 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Two additional performances at Haven will be given at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and 2:30 o'clock that afternoon. The play will be given at the same hours at Nichols school on Nov. 7 and 8. Haven and Nichols are the Evanston junior high schools.

In the Children's theater, founded and directed by Miss Winifred Ward of the School of Speech of Northwestern university, children play children's rôles; older parts go to high school or university students. Casts are changed for the two schools. Haven children play in productions at their school; Nichols pupils are used for the dramas there.

Have Title Rôles.

John Chapman and Cornelius Sipple are the Haven boys who will have the title rôles. Other child parts will be taken by Charlene Hiatt, Jane Willikan, Francene Lewis, Jean Betty Trask, D'Etta Mae Ashwell, Dorothy Lane, John Finlayson, Joan Tyson, and Edith Irish.

The plays, which include "Little Black Sambo and the Tigers," "Mr. Dooley, Jr." and "Caddie Woodlawn," on this year's bill, are planned especially for children. To the youngsters, the plays are entertainment. Miss Ward and the theater staff select them, however, not only as entertainment but as excellent training for both the children on the stage and in the audience.

Miss Ward writes that an afternoon at a play is really, "Training [for children] as men and women who will appreciate what is good and fitting in line, color, and movement. Training as adults aware of human values and of the patterns of doing which lead to full, useful lives. As audiences which will demand and support a theater which places artistic integrity above commercial gains."

Meaning of "Creative."

Miss Ward's conception of creative dramatics brought about the theater. The term creative distinguishes the dramatic work from formal, ready made plays. In creative dramatics, the children become thoroly familiar with the story and then carry out their own dramatizations.

Miss Ward says children find new understanding of other people by creating them. She insists that the children are "not child actors but children acting, children learning thru experience." By way of carrying out her findings for presenting plays by children, Miss Ward gave "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at the School of Speech in 1925.

Two years later, the community had become so interested that school districts 75 and 76, both in Evanston, and the local parent-teacher associations gave coöperation and sponsorship. Productions developed to the extent that there were Saturday performances on alternate weeks at the two junior high schools.

6th, 7th, 8th Graders.

The children in the plays are principally 7th and 8th grade pupils, with a few 6th graders. Both junior high schools have creative dramatics courses, and the work is offered also at Willard, Orrington, Noyes, Lincolnwood, Foster, Miller, Roycemore, St. Mary's, St. Nicholas, and St. Athanasius schools.

University students do the technical work in the plays, but the children became so interested that now a limited group of boys are allowed to assist backtasge. William McCreary of the School of Speech began stagecraft classes on the junior high school level several years ago, and now those classes have grown and gone on under other instruction. McCreary is technical director of the Children's theater.

Geraldine Brain Siks, associate director of the theater, has dramatized "Caddie Woodlawn." Anne Hardy Thurman, business manager, is explaining to the regular season ticket buyers that the charge is $1.10 this year;

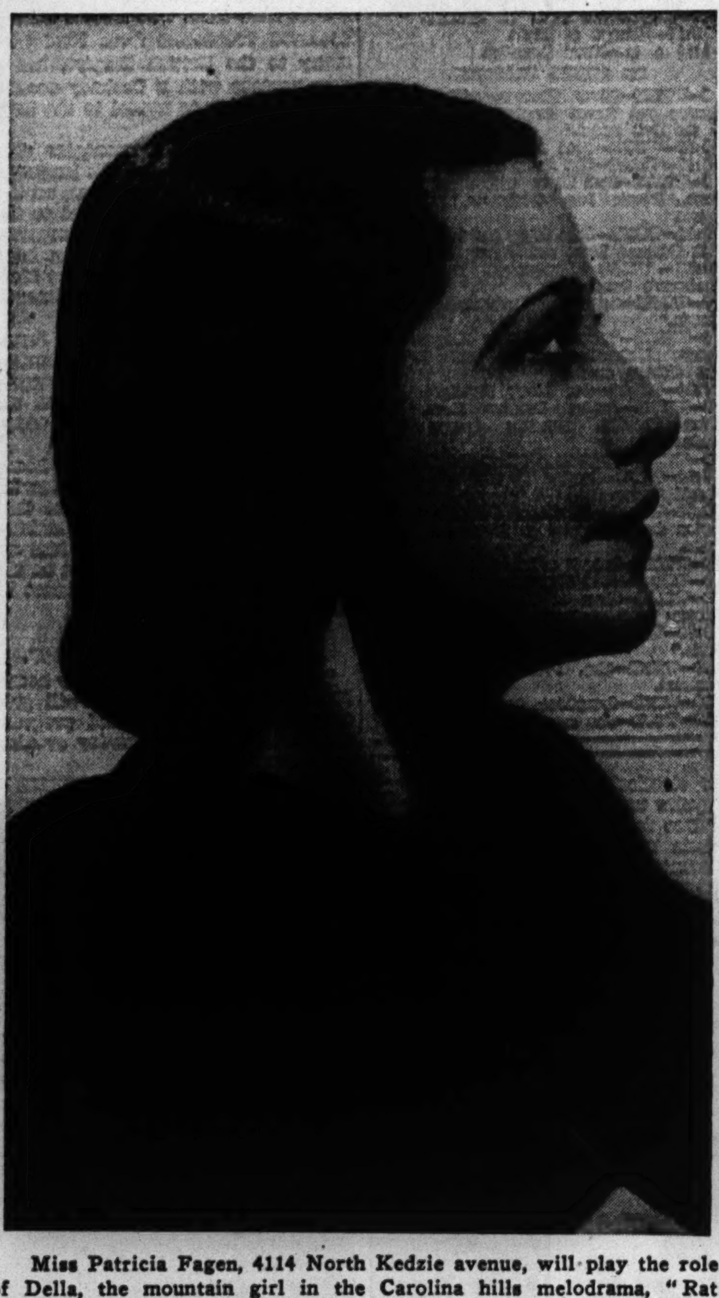
Actors Lunch Together.

On Saturdays the young actors lunch together in the school cafeteria. Often there are visitors who have come from other schools. Sometimes these visitors offer their criticism, and the children learn as they eat.

High school students in "The Prince and the Pauper" will be Charles Halvorsen, Robert Mogge, Mort Chambers, Wadman Daly, and Charles Anderson. Northwestern students in the cast of more than 40 are Albert Hachmeister, Donald Hale, Joan Millmer, Janet Dowd, Lenore Heifetz, Robert Wacker, Roger Parr, and Arthur Kraszwaki.

Nichols pupils who will have special child rôles are Douglas Lippsey, the prince, and Charles Phalin, pauper, Don Davis, Sara Sharpless, Jeanne Brandt, Susan Campbell, Donna Larson, Nancy Brewer, Joy Curry, Berneice Stephenson, and Grace Rubbo.

Plays Mountain Girl



Miss Patricia Fagen, 4114 North Kedzie avenue, will play the role of Della, the mountain girl in the Carolina hills melodrama, "Rat Holler," which the James Hargis Connelly players will present this evening in their playhouse, 921 Kimball bulding. The play will be sponsored by the North Shore Animal shelter of which Dorothy Eagles is founder.

Married

Mrs. Manuel Rosner was Miss Phyllis LaZoris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. LaZoris, 1321 Lunt avenue, before her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rosner of 7621 Greenview avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Rosner are residing at the Pratt Lane hotel, 1246 Pratt boulevard.

3 MUSIC FESTIVAL WINNERS TO SING AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

THEATER OF AIR DRAWS COAST TO COAST RESPONSE

'Naughty Marietta' Next; John Carter Guest.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The response to the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, aired over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system Saturday evenings, this season is overshadowing that of last year. The tremendous popularity of the outstanding musical productions is reflected in a flood of letters and cards.

These communications from listeners are filled with favorable comment, congratulations, and requests for souvenir programs. They come from coast to coast and from the gulf to Canada.

Among the points from which letters have been received, just to mention a few, are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pasadena, Cal.; Albany, Cortland, New York City, and suburbs from New York state; Bridgeport, Conn.; Washington, D. C.; Roanoke, Va.; Mobile, Ala.; Austin, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Atlanta, Ga., and Winnipeg, Man.

"Naughty Marietta" Next.

Marion Claire and John Carter will lead an all-star singing cast in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," to be aired from 8:45 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

Miss Claire will sing the title rôle of Marietta.

Highlight of the program will be Miss Claire's singing of Marietta's famous obligato, "Italian Street Song." Carter will be making his second appearance in the series this year. He sang opposite Miss Claire last night in "Sweethearts."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and the augmented chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. The program will be directed by William A. Bacher.

Betty Winkler to Star.

Supporting Miss Claire and Carter in the singing cast will be Ruth Slater, contralto, and Win Stracke, bass baritone.

Betty Winkler will highlight the dramatic cast, playing the speaking rôle of Marietta, while Bob Bailey will be cast as Capt. Dick Warrington, the rôle sung by Carter. Others in the cast will be Bret Morrison, Ella Braca, Bob Jellison, Florence Brower, Willard Waterman, and Marvin Mueller.

Notable among the musical selections will be "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and the casket girl's song, "Taisez Vous." Marietta's charming introductory number, "Naughty Marietta," is another bright spot. The unforgettable strains of "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" are woven thruout the operetta.

Russian Orthodox Bishop in Church Hour Services

The Right Rev. Leonty, bishop of the Russian Orthodox diocese of Chicago, will be the celebrant of the liturgy of the faithful on the Chicagoland church hour this morning on W-G-N from 9 to 10 o'clock. The service will be held in Holy Trinity Russian cathedral, 1121 North Leavitt street. The Rev. Emelian Solanka will deliver the sermon. The famous cathedral a cappella choir will sing the liturgy under the direction of V. T. Greevsky.

ROSEMARY GARBELL ON WAY TO ACHIEVE HER AMBITION AT 11

Altho only 11, Rosemary Garbell is well on the way to the achievement of her ambition — someday to be the greatest actress in radio. Three years ago she was playing with dolls and taking dancing lessons, like many other girls of her age. Now she has many important radio rôles, among them, Josey in "Harold Teen," broadcast by W-G-N at 7:30 p. m. each Tuesday.

'Way back in 1938, just after her eighth birthday, Rosemary got her start in radio. A part was open in a Chicago daytime serial, and she was recommended for the rôle by a producer who had seen her dance at Mayor Kelly's Christmas benefit show.

But first she would have to learn to act. Radio was suggested as the perfect training school. So radio won Rosemary away from dancing. Now she intends to concentrate on acting and follow in the footsteps of her mother, the former Eva Belmont, once an actress on Broadway.

Rosemary doesn't sit in the corner and read Shakespeare when her studio assignments are completed. She likes to ride a bike and sit on the steps of her home with her many girl friends as they discuss plans for the enlargement of their "Orphan Annie" club, of which Rosemary is the vice president.

A W-G-N Guest

Eleanor French, songstress appearing at the Camellia house in the Drake hotel, will make a guest appearance on "The Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and Mutual.

Mixing charming vocalists, cowboys, and the navy is not usually done on radio programs, but then the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" is no average radio program. The show to be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m., CST, will feature Miss Eleanor French, vocal stylist from the Camellia house of the Drake hotel, Ken Maynard, cowboy movie star currently with the rodeo at the Chicago Stadium, together with Tom [Bud Vandover], Dick [Marlin Hurt], and Harry [Gordon Vandover].

Ken Maynard.

The show is produced by William A. Bacher with dialog written by Paul Larmer.

An increase in time was necessary to present the many daily service features for W-G-N farm listeners, according to Frank P. Schreiber, station manager. Lew La Mar is the announcer.

Radio Features Today

Chicago turns its clocks back to central standard time this morning after six months of daylight saving. Network programs will be found listed, starting today, one hour earlier by the clock. Thus, a network program aired the last month at 7 p. m. daylight time, will be aired at 6 p. m. henceforth. Many local programs also will be moved one hour, but others will be found at new periods.

Master Canaries Show Features a Chorus of 12

The world's smallest artists, singing canaries, may be heard every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on W-G-N when the Master Radio Canaries presents a 15 minute musical program.

There are solo selections by outstanding singing canaries blended with a chorus of 12 birds. Jess Kirkpatrick is master of ceremonies for the artists and has planned a program that suits the musical tastes of the birds. Some of the canaries prefer classical music, while some like popular tunes. All the birds get their chance for solo work in the type of music they like best. Jess says the dissenting canaries who don't like the type of music being sung sit quietly by, shaking their heads.

"Long Haul" on WENR.

"The Long Haul," a story of the last day of the old Erie canal when the new fangled railroads were almost literally drying up "The Big Ditch," will be dramatized on Hidden History over WENR at 1:15 p. m. today.

LORD HAW HAW GETS A HELPER; FOULMOUTH FRED

Lord Haw Haw, who directs Oxford accented broadcasts from Nazi Germany to the British Empire, has a new partner with a Cockney accent, who is striving to appeal to the British lower classes.

The new radio commentator uses profanity, expletive and vile language of the type never heard before on the air, Britishers who have come to the United States in the last two months, have disclosed. British listeners have dubbed the new speaker, whose identity is not yet known, Foulmouth Fred.

Lord Haw Haw is William Joyce, an Englishman who fled to Germany in 1939, who has been broadcasting comments with the objective of upsetting British morale and self-assurance ever since.

The new Nazi voice is heard nightly around 11 p. m. Greenwich time on a wave length close to that of one of the London stations, making it easy for Britishers to pick him up. His transmissions are sent out on the medium long waves which cannot be heard in America.

BOO!

. . . says the Bugaboo and fifty lovely ladies swoon from fright. Yes, wimmin are sensitive critters and it's right easy to understand why; for instance, the sight of a tiny, harmless little mouse will send bustles flyin' in all directions. Now, maybe this mouse scare business goes 'way back to those dark ages when women huddled in dimly lit caves next to their shaggy spouses. Perhaps a mouse in those days was some big prehistoric monster spouting fire and brimstone out of huge nostrils. It's more than likely that one of these brutes snuck up on some poor unsuspectin' female and scared the devil right smack out of her!

Nimble of foot, she scurried for safety and made it. Then mother to daughter the tale went on and on down thru the ages how once a big mouse nearly got Great Grandma until finally it got lost somewhere between the Tertiary and the Pliocene periods (your guess is as good as mine). It got lost as a story but in the subconscious mind of every fair female is a downright, no fooling, fear of that tiny mouse critter.

So it is with the subconscious fear women have about laundries using strong chemicals and bleaches and losing gobs of things. These are stories passed down by Great Grandma until women of today don't know where they heard it and don't even have a good reason to believe it. To remove this fear from your minds and hearts Skokie's invitin' you all to come over hippity hop and watch a few hundred SUN-GLO washings go through our beautiful plant . . .

NOTES 57 YEARS AS PASTOR IN ARMENIA CHURCH

Father Hovagimian to Be Feted Today.

Fifty-seven years ago today Karekin Hovagimian, 1619 Lawrence avenue, was ordained a minister in the Armenian Apostolic church in Sivis, Turkey. After serving as a pastor in Asia Minor for 36 years following his ordination he came to this country in 1920 and began preaching in churches in Racine, Wis., and West Pullman. Members of those churches will join with members of the Armenian Apostolic church, Augusta boulevard and Hoyne avenue, in celebrating the Most Rev. Father Hovagimian's ordination anniversary today.

The Rev. Karekin Hovagimian. [E. Gergerian Photo.]

The anniversary plans are in charge of the Rev. Skon Der-Hagopian, pastor of the Augusta boulevard church. Ceremonies will begin with masses at 9 and 10 o'clock this morning.

Dinner to Be Served.

There will be a dinner in the church hall after the services, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon there will be another celebration mass for guests who could not attend the morning ceremonies.

Father Hovagimian, who is 86 years old, served regular charges until two years ago. He still supplies pulpits quite regularly and is able to read and write without glasses. He and his wife have celebrated their 63d wedding anniversary.

Four Children Living.

Four of their six children are living. They include Rose and Harry Hovagimian, both living with the parents; Mrs. Takouhe Boshnakian of Detroit, and Hovagin Hovagimian of 3718 North Ashland avenue. There are six grandchildren.

The veteran pastor will celebrate one of the masses himself today. His services will be in Armenian, since he does not use English.

'PEEPING TOM' PLOT ON BURNS AND ALLEN HOUR

"Peeping Tom" Lastfogel will perpetrate a diabolical plot against his neighbors, George Burns and Gracie Allen, with the result that George and Tom exchange blows and the entire cast gets involved in the feud during the broadcast of the Burns and Allen show on W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. next Thursday.

Gladys Hall, veteran fan magazine writer, seeks a serious interview with Gracie, and while they are chatting in the house Lastfogel moves Miss Hall's car in front of the fire plug and summons the police.

What with interruptions from Paul Whiteman, Bill Goodwin, Señor Lee, and Jimmy Cash, and George's battles with Lastfogel, the interview becomes something of a shambles.

BENNY TO RECREATE HIS CAREER IN NAVY DURING WORLD WAR

As a prelude to the observance of Navy day tomorrow Jack Benny on his broadcast at 6 p. m. tonight over WMAQ will re-create highlights of his career in the navy during the World war. He served with the navy at Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Jack Benny in the Navy.

Benny actually got his start as a comedian because of the navy. Benny who played the fiddle, was asked to appear in a Great Lakes naval revue. He strode onto the stage and played his violin. There was no applause. Benny tried again. But he failed to move the men. Then he tucked the fiddle under his arm and started talking to the sailors. They laughed and thus the comedian, Jack Benny, was launched on his career.

CHILDREN AGAIN STRESS SAFETY IN ROGERS PARK

Bicycle Riding Given Special Attention.

The Rogers Park Safety league, a children's organization sponsored by the Rogers Park Woman's club, begins a fourth season this week with a program dedicated to emphasizing safety and bicycle safety especially.

The league, a division added to the General Federation of Woman's clubs several years ago, found such response among Rogers Park children that the Rogers Park club won the national first prize of $50 for safety work in 1939. The work was under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. M. Kerr.

Last year the Rogers Parkers took the second prize, $25, under the leadership of Mrs. H. C. Batchelor. This fund will be devoted to safety work for the boys and girls, according to Mrs. C. R. Grebey, this year's chairman.

Making Safety Film.

One of the season's first projects, sponsored by the woman's club, will be a movie, now in the making and to be released about the end of November. It will be the picture story of safety violations right in the neighborhood. The pictures will show women pushing baby buggies across streets while the lights are against them, food piled on sidewalks, cyclists riding two or three abreast or two on one bicycle, and boys hitching rides on trucks.

The safety league, open to children from 10 years old thru the high school years, will offer money prizes for scrapbooks. The books are to be on any form of safety—household, automobile, industrial, bicycle. This form of competition, according to Mrs. Grebey, seems to be the fairest for children in such a great age range. "We know 10 year olds can't write safety essays to compete with high school compositions," she explains, "but we do think a 10 year old can turn in a neat scrapbook."

May Overcome Priorities.

In line with the bicycle safety campaign, Mrs. Grebey is trying to get reflectors, "despite priorities." Her program will be partially dictated by the boys and girls themselves since they are to be asked to collaborate on all plans. One of the autumn outings will be a trip to the YMCA cabin in the woods west of Highland Park.

Each safety leaguer signs a pledge agreeing to a dozen rules for safety, such as: "Obey all traffic laws, signs, and signals. Display a white head lamp and a red tail light when riding between sunset and sunrise. Give both pedestrians and motor vehicles the right of way."

Each leaguer receives a membership card after he has signed his pledge. The Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, and school patrol boys cooperate in the league.

With Crosby

MARY MARTIN.

Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Eddie [Rochester] Anderson, Brian Donlevy, and Carolyn Lee will appear on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8 to 8:30 p. m. next Saturday in a special broadcast previewing songs from the new Paramount picture, "The Birth of the Blues."

The broadcast will precede the Hollywood première of the picture scheduled for later the same evening. Top tunes from the ASCAP catalog will highlight the program as "The Birth of the Blues" has built its story around the rise of modern music.

Listeners will hear Crosby and his leading lady, Mary Martin, sing such songs as W. C. Handy's epic, "The St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues," and "Beale Street Blues," all featured in the film. Dave Rose's orchestra, from Mutual's west coast affiliate KHJ, will accompany them.

American Radio Warblers in 14th Year on the Air

The American Radio Warblers, W-G-N singing canaries heard from noon to 12:15 p. m. [CST], are in their 14th year on the air. Three newcomers, Ranny, Ronnie, and Rudy, made their debuts last week when the program returned to the air. They joined the other birds who have been broadcasting from 3 to 10 years. The three R's were the best singers from a group of more than a thousand baby canaries trained in the American Radio Warblers Chicago singing school. Helen Westbrook again plays the organ accompaniments for the Warblers.

PIPES IN FLOOR PROVIDE HEAT IN RAVINE HOME

Pump Circulates Water Thru System.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

There is news and interest back of the story of three engaging small homes at the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan just east of Sheridan road.

All these were designed by William A. Ganster, architect. He also is the owner of one of the homes. In the heating of these dwellings he has employed radiant heating. This is a method of heating which utilizes pipe coils in the floor, walls, or ceilings to heat the rooms.

There now are more than 100 radiant heating installations in the United States, with approximately 20 in the Chicago area, according to Louis T. Braun, secretary of the Chicago Master Steam Fitters' association.

In the case of the three Waukegan homes the pipe coils are in the floors, hot water is the heating medium and the boilers are oil-fired.

For Moderate Cost Homes.

The use of radiant heating in these houses is especially interesting because the houses are moderate in cost, Mr. Ganster's home was built for $7,900 in the fall of 1940; P. W. Yager's house, which adjoins Mr. Ganster's, cost $8,000, and D. J. Dalziel's, which is just east of the Yager house, cost $6,700.

While radiant heating effects may be attained with pipe coils placed either in floors, ceilings, walls, or all three, Mr. Ganster prefers to place them in the floor with supplementary ceiling or wall panels as necessary. The circulation of the water is forced thru the coils by means of an electric pump. None of the houses have basements and the boilers are placed in utility rooms. The circulation of the water thru the pipe coils in the floor is controled by a thermostat placed outdoors.

Three Walls of Glass.

Of interest, too, is the fact that each house has a blank wall to the street and is open to the ravine and the sun. Glass from the floor to the ceiling—eight feet—on three sides of the living room of the Ganster house floods it with light and provides solar heat during the bright days in the winter, thus economizing on fuel.

By use of cantilever construction, the living room and one of the bedrooms of the house literally are hung over the ravine.

Radiant heating was first used in England some 50 years ago. It is quite widely used in Europe both for heating and cooling. Imbedded pipe coils, of course, can be used for cooling only in regions where the humidity is low. The first building in the United States to be heated by this method was the British embassy in Washington, built in 1930.

Water Temperature Lower.

The essential difference between radiant heating and heating with radiators is in the heat distributing surface. In the case of a radiator, the surface is relatively small and the temperature of the heating medium is high. In the case of radiant heating, the entire wall, floor, or ceiling in which the pipe coils are imbedded acts as a radiant surface. Because the radiant surface is so large, the temperature of the heating medium is correspondingly low, especially when hot water is used. The water, by the way, is kept circulating continuously by the pump and water temperatures as low as 100 degrees are practical in installations designed for this low operating temperature.

Mr. Ganster reports a fuel cost of $125 for 12 months which includes the heating of the domestic hot water supply by the boiler the year around. Boilers are identical with those used for conventional hot water heating with radiators or convectors.

How Pipe Is Installed.

The procedure which Mr. Ganster specifies for the installation of pipe coils in the floor is first a sand fill six inches deep on the earth. The sand is covered with partition tile, 4 by 12 by 12, laid flat, and the pipe coils are placed on the tile. Sand is filled in between the pipes, and acts as a cushion or bed taking up the expansion and contraction of the pipe. Then a 4 inch concrete slab is poured on top the sand cushion.

On North Shore Ravine

Quite a new type of an engaging small home that hugs the edge of a picturesque ravine in the Buckley Hills subdivision north of Waukegan. The architect and owner is William A. Ganster. Pipe coils in the floor heat the home; hot water is the heating medium and the boiler is oil fired.

Myer N. Rosengard is chairman of the forum arrangements committee and Sam Spector is secretary.

ONE NORTH SIDE SELECTEE GIVEN DRAFT APPEAL

Only one north sider was granted appeal from his local draft board's classification in action taken by the Cook county appeals boards last week, while the pleas of nine others were denied.

The sole winner from the north side was Anthony Pfeifer, 4850 North Winthrop avenue, who asked dependency reclassification on account of his wife.

Losers included Sam Minitello, 1119 Cleveland avenue; Russell Swedberg, 812 Wilson avenue; Irving Nathan, 3530 Lake Shore drive; James Adler, 1456 Farragut avenue; Harry Tate, 843 Agatite avenue; James Hall, 1760 Juneway terrace; Frank Baclene, 7455 North Greenview avenue; Walter Pauly, 1617 Gregory street, and Robert Gettner, 2416 Winnemac avenue.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 27.

Trees and shrubs and hardy vines still can be planted if the ground is not too frozen. Large trees or slow-growing low trees like the hawthorn and crab can be moved freely and safely when balled and baled. This method is more costly than when smaller material is moved without being balled. Often a single large tree will change the whole appearance of a yard and increase its value.

No established tree should be cut to make way for a new building unless it is absolutely necessary. The hard wood native trees are preferable; these include oak, hackberry, walnut, and kindred kinds.

A tree or two of the new hardy hickories, pecans, chestnuts, or walnuts have an economic value that is well worth while and as specimens any of them may be used. These are best moved in spring but may be planned for at that time.

Tuesday, Oct. 28.

Rake off heavy accumulations of leaves on the lawn to avoid matting down and possible smothering of the grass. Hardwood leaves make fine material for composting, but leaves from softwoods decay rapidly and are not as useful as the former. Leafmold is very useful when mixed with composted soil and sand as potting soil, and the home gardener seems never to have enough of it.

Cut and burn the tops of all hardy perennials, annuals, and weeds in the neighborhood to destroy lurking places of insect pests and disease. Collect and burn all leaves from rose plants to avoid the retention of disease spores. Black spot prevails in some beds and may lie dormant all winter and become active in springtime.

Wednesday, Oct. 29.

Never allow tools to lie out of doors to be ruined by exposure to the elements. And never permit tools to be placed in storage until they are thoroly cleaned and oiled to prevent rust. Paint all parts that can be painted, oil every part that needs it, run water from the hose and hang it up where it will not be run over by the auto; in fact, see that everything is gardenshape before severe weather arrives.

Trim the Boston ivy or Engelman's ivy away from window casings. Protect newly planted trees and shrubs with strawy manure spread around their base. It is unnecessary to wait until the ground is frozen before applying this material around the plants. Spread it any time it can be obtained in late fall and results will be satisfactory.

Thursday, Oct. 30.

To keep dahlia tubers over winter, pack in boxes of sand or peat with a burlap over them. Dust those that keep poorly with sulphur. Furnace heated basements are so dry it is sometimes difficult to keep roots in good condition.

Gladiolus bulbs can be stored in a cool place, or above freezing. Place in paper bags, 100 to the bag with an ounce of naphthalene flakes as a means of killing any thrips that may be on them. A 40 degree temperature will not injure these bulbs. Cannas may be stored in the same way as dahlias.

Friday, Oct. 31.

Late chrysanthemums, unless frozen, can be lifted and potted and placed on an inclosed porch where they will flower and furnish material to brighten up the home. Lily of the valley clumps and spurge are greatly benefited when given a light mulch of manure.

Store tuberous rooted begonias in sand, peat, or sawdust in a temperature of around 50 degrees. Pot plants can be gradually dried off and kept in the pots, if desired.

Saturday, Nov. 1.

Buy a few small pot plants of various kinds to grow in the house. Many of the begonias furnish excellent material to grow on and the florist usually has a good variety from which to make a selection. Select the good flowering kinds, such as President Carot, lucerna, B. templini, and others of equal beauty.

Watch for red spiders on house plants. A good way to determine whether any are present is to gently draw a leaf between the fingers and if any are present a residue will be noticed, or a small glass may be used. If any are observed, dust with superfine sulphur two or three times over a 10 day period.

GOT TROUBLES? TOOT 'EM AWAY ON AN OCARINA

Miss Ream Has Recipe for Contentment.

If you'd like your own fountain of youth and general remedy for the blues—learn to play an ocarina. Whistle out your favorite ballad on a little tonette. Plat it on a set of bells, or find it in the strings of a violin or keys of a piano.

For whether it's a series of squeaks or a brilliantly executed glissando, the best music is the music one makes for himself, according to Miss Martha E. Ream, music counselor in the Glencoe public schools. She agrees with the oft repeated statement that music is the international language. But she amends the generality with the observation, "Too few people speak it."

Briefly, Miss Ream has devoted her professional life to the theory that music, as an art, is for everybody, because art in all its forms makes for happier and more satisfactory living. It should be a part of the individual's own routine rather than something set aside for a few professionals. Bringing her practice into her own field, she believes that every child can enjoy playing a tune. He doesn't have to be particularly talented.

Adults Can Play, Too.

And Miss Ream thinks that every adult can play, too, even tho he might have been relegated to monotone row back in his schooldays. A small, enthusiastic woman, Miss Ream quickly transmits her own zest to others.

In practice Miss Ream has turned a group of 30 primary boys and girls, equipped with ocarinas, tonettes, drums, and bells, into a fair sounding orchestra after a few lessons. More than that, the regular classroom teachers, impressed by "Yankee Doodle" as played by a drum and ocarina band, have taken to tootling a tune or two themselves. Parents have followed the teachers, and now dozens of Glencoe residents have been initiated into the joys of making music.

The Glencoe children learn in the classroom. Miss Ream guides them into a prospect of having fun rather than doing something for culture. Parents and teachers are borrowing the youngsters' "Play and Sing" books and following the instructions therein. Now the PTA women can "strike up the band" as well as discuss social adjustments. And the grade school teachers could put on a pretty good after school swing session if they wished.

Keep Amateur Status.

The simple instruments and easy instructions keep music in the field of amateurism and pleasure where it belongs for enjoyment. Initiated by harmonicas and drums, many children and adults go on to more difficult instruments.

Miss Ream taught a lawyer to blow and finger one of the fat, gooseshaped little ocarinas. Housewives by the dozen have learned to blow the little tonettes, clarinet-like instruments.

The teacher says, "People who have always had a secret longing for music but thought it too hard find evenings of enjoyment. When one gets really started it's like knitting at a club meeting. Your fingers feel so much better when they're doing something."

Relief for Nerves.

Whistling "Auld Lang Syne" on an ocarina can be a means of improved physical and social adjustments as well as good conditioning for noise ridden nerves. Miss Ream believes in serious study, of course, but she insists that music practice loses value when it becomes a strain. "Good tones don't come from tense and nervous minds and fingers."

The Glencoe teacher bases her beliefs on her lifetime of music study, beginning with violin lessons back in her hometown, Crawfordsville, Ind. Her teaching career has included several college assignments, and she has studied abroad, in the Auer classes, and has done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin.

In Glencoe she is carrying out her conviction that the average family needs more homemade music. "A man who can play a harmonica knows a lot more about enjoying music than a dozen nonplaying concert goers who spend hundreds of dollars in a do-or-die pursuit of culture. And the harmonica player can shed his troubles right into his tunes. He can be a little boy again."

New Hats Offer Fit and Flattery

Right: Spanish mantilla model turban using open-mesh crocheted yarn to make hat as well as gracefully draped scarf effect. Huge, vivid flowers are appliquéd to the turban, affording brilliant contrast.

Left: Femme fatale, big felt hat with lacy mesh crocheted yarn scarf-snood arrangement which is fastened at the under back headline of the hat. This is an eye-compelling, dramatic model in deep black.

Above: Barbaric splendor in gold metal cuff bracelets and matching collar necklace for simple dresses. Right: Jeweled and embroidered turban with crocheted scarf fastened to the hat. Bows are expertly placed to add color to the throat of a dress.

Above: Felt hat and muff of looped felt. The high hat looks like a green crest, and the muff is huge.

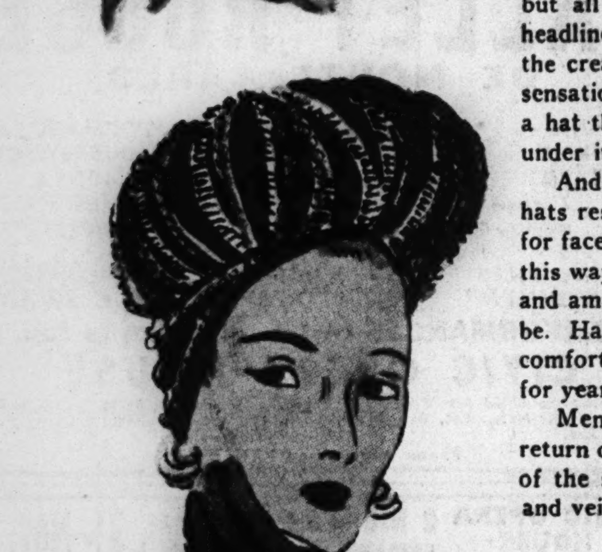
By REA SEEGER

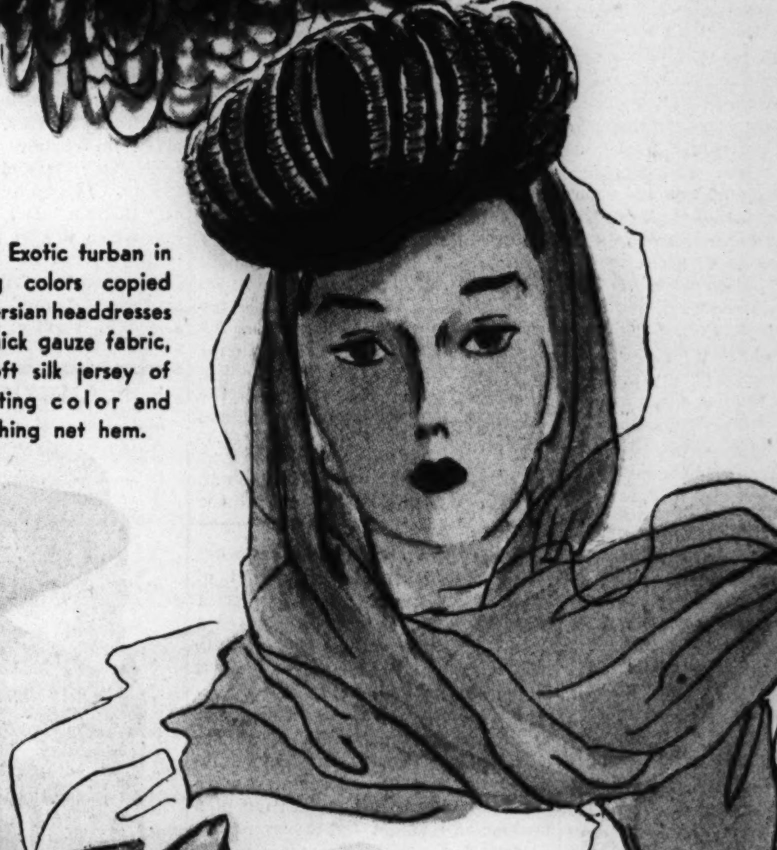
HAT MAKERS this season refused to follow any prescribed tradition. There are no fantastic conglomerations of fur, feathers, and ribbon, the conversation pieces no longer tax the imagination of the professional quipster, but all is not quiet along the fashion headlines by any wild guess. For while the creations are exciting, exhilarating, sensational, or what you will, there isn't a hat this time that will not work for the face under it, and that is the test of any hat.

And, thanks to some understanding genius, all hats rest or snuggle securely on the head, ready for face flattery in any wind, and most of them fit this way without benefit of hatpin, however small and amusing these same new hatpins manage to be. Hats without these pins fit down with a most comforting fit, a sensation that has been missing for years.

Men will rise and cheer with gusto over the return of brimmed and picture hats, also because of the super-duper flattery of feathers, ribbons, and veils, not used in the overwhelming manner of the gaudy '80s, but with the inimitable feminine flair of the present day, just enough of each to make a perfect picture. There are hats carefully and expressly designed for every sort of costume and for special occasions—dashing high-crowned, high-colored felts for tailored tweeds and country wear, afternoon hats clouded with mystery veils, brimmed hats that swoop up and slant down to the best advantage over a face and browline, and the many fascinating turbans that rival the blazing glories that are wrapped around the maharajas and Persian potentates, turbans that must, if they be successfully picturesque and not too heavy, be swathed, draped, and tied by fingers that have supreme artistry.

Wool yarn plays a tremendously important part in the fall and winter hat fashion parade. Hardly a casual hat of any kind but boasts some sort of wool accent, from short, fat fringe to the braided and crocheted affairs. Some of the most spectacular picture hats, wide of brim, have crocheted wool snoods.





Right: Exotic turban in glowing colors copied from Persian headdresses is of thick gauze fabric, with soft silk jersey of contrasting color and matching net hem.

Above: Oriental turban worked in soft, thick gauze of Chinese color, then rolled in wide, thick formation over forehead and crossed and double-crossed with glinting bands of metallic ribbon. Long gloves are to be worn over sleeves of a dress.

Right: High velvet hat with coarse mesh veil over hat and forehead. The fitted crown is of dull felt. With this hat are worn the exciting double necklaces of leopard fur with gold metal rings and a large muff handbag of the same leopard.

Left: Luxury duet of satin-smooth Persian lamb in deep armlets and high hat. Jet beading trims both hat and armlets, and there is a dog collar choker to match.

Drama Critic Suggests 'Theater' Needs to Be Rewritten

Adaption from Novel Called Too Bromidic

By Cecil Smith.

"Theater," in which Cornelia Otis Skinner is approaching the end of a limited engagement at the Harris theater, is a play whose manifest entertainment values have attracted a large audience. But ever since the opening four weeks ago I have been harassed by a perplexing problem: Why is it that the play, despite its external effectiveness, does not possess the innate truthfulness and the quality of penetrating character study which made Somerset Maugham's original novel so engrossing?

In general outline the characters of the play are still those of the novel upon which Guy Bolton based his dramatic transcription. While some of the situations and lines are either new or considerably altered, many others are drawn literally from the novel. And yet Julia Lambert and her associates are no longer as real, either in themselves or in their relationships with one another, as they seemed in the novel.

Mr. Maugham himself unwittingly provides a helpful clue toward the solution of the problem. In "The Summing Up," in which he looks back over his literary career and endeavors to evaluate it, an illuminating paragraph appears, which I quote in part:

"I have been more concerned with the obscure than with the famous. They are more often themselves. They have had no need to create a figure to protect themselves from the world or to impress it. Their idiosyncrasies have had more chance to develop in the limited circle of their activity, and since they never have been in the public eye it has never occurred to them that they have anything to conceal. . . . The ordinary is the writer's richer field. Its unexpectedness, its singularity, its infinite variety afford unending material. The great man is too often all of a piece; it is the little man that is a bundle of contradictory elements. He is inexhaustible. You never come to the end of the surprises he has in store for you. For my part I would much sooner spend a month on a desert island with a veterinary surgeon than with a prime minister."

All at once Mr. Bolton's fundamental misunderstanding of Mr. Maugham's artistic purpose becomes clear [if I am right in assuming that the present dramatic shape of the story is primarily Mr. Bolton's work]. Superficial alterations and additions of lines and situations, over which I once brooded, no longer seem important. For the central emphasis, the angle of vision which made the novel unique, has been abandoned.

The novel, you will remember, makes a primary issue of the love affair between Julia Lambert, a celebrated actress, and Tom Fennell, an obscure and poor accountant. Until her first meeting with Tom, Julia's life has been of the sort Mr. Maugham describes in "The Summing Up"; she has taken infinite pains to keep her life, public and private, "all of a piece." But once she begins to spend her time constantly in the company of a "little man," a "bundle of contradictory elements," her own defenses begin to crack, and we are able to see the real Julia underneath the protective armor which she has worn during all her years of celebrity.

The play does not thrust Julia into so revealing a crisis. Tom appears only on the fringe of her life; her little flirtation with him is calculated and transient, and therefore for dramatic purposes it lacks force. With Tom denied any place as an active factor in Julia's emotional life, the play becomes—by virtue of a bromidic rewriting of the character of Dolly de Vries—a highly conventional triangle, in which Julia, a famous actress, tries to win back Michael Gosselyn, a famous actor-manager, from Dolly, a famous and wealthy society woman.

From the beginning I have thought that "Theater" needs rewriting, in order to become the vehicle Cornelia Otis Skinner ought to have, or the play to which Mr. Maugham ought to attach his name. The first act, it is true, has already undergone some trimming since the première. But this is aside from the point. Even if the entire plot structure is altered and every line reworded, "Theater" can never become a really convincing portrait of Julia Lambert until the commonplace character of Tom Fennell is brought back into a position of focal importance, and employed again as the force which precipitates the true nature of Julia's inner life.

As things stand now, Miss Skinner is worth watching as she gives what is perforce a surface portrayal of Julia. She is working against a great obstacle, however—the obstacle of a part that the audience cannot quite believe, no matter how effectively it is played. As long as "Theater" remains merely a contrived comedy of a temperamental actress trying to salvage her equally temperamental husband, the play will seem no more than the resourceful application of a hackneyed formula. Let it become the drama of a successful actress whose defenses are broken by a "little man," and it can be a memorable contribution to the stage.

DANCE FAVORITES BACK

On Friday and Saturday evenings Chicago's favorite dancing couple, Veloz and Yolanda, will give programs in the Civic Opera house. Vicente Gomez, guitarist, and Jerry Shelton, accordion player, are among the assisting instrumentalists.

Notes of the Theater

On occasion Ralph Kettering of this city is moved to send this grateful department a genial, reminiscent letter about the theater. His most recent communication was inspired by the knowledge that Edward H. Robins was playing Whitfield, the New Orleans police captain, in "Louisiana Purchase," currently a smash hit at the Erlanger theater. Since the letter is of general interest, as much of it is reprinted here as there is room for.

"Seeing the name of Edward H. Robins in the cast of 'Louisiana Purchase,' the star-studded musical now in our midst, brings back to thousands of Chicagoans, as well as myself, the days of red plush, gilt cupids, and resident stock companies, for Eddie was just about the most popular stock leading man in town. As Edward B. Haas [his real name] he played 'Jim Bludsoe' one week, 'Hamlet' the next, and 'Big Hearted Jim' the following. His habitat was Van Buren and Leavitt streets, at the People's theater, and his task was to make love to beauteous Marie Nelson seven nights and four matinées each week. . . . It was just about this time that David Belasco was getting ready to star Frances Starr in his new play, 'The Easiest Way.' He saw Eddie, rescued him from those 11 performances a week, and hired him as leading man for Miss Starr. . . . The play made Eddie, but Mr. Belasco insisted that Haas would not adorn a Belasco program. So Eddie changed it to Robins. . . . Eddie has gone a long way since then. In England he is better known than in America. When 'So This Is London,' the comedy that spoofed the British, was produced in London Eddie was the star. His last London appearance was in 'The Night of January 16th,' I believe, because I remember running into him in Al Woods' office in New York, as he was about to sail. . . . How do I know so much about Eddie? Well, he got me my first job as a press agent and, as fellow members of the Tonawanda club, we almost married sisters."

[According to "Who's Who in the Theater" Robins was the maiden name of the actor's mother.]

The silken-smooth art of Veloz and Yolanda will grace the stage of the Civic Opera house for two nights this week, Friday and Saturday. These exceptional dancers, a marital as well as a professional pair, were once a fixture in Chicago's entertainment world, and their long engagement at the Empire room of the Palmer House was history making on a minor scale. After a year's retirement, during which Yolanda became a mother, the couple returned to dancing, this time offering their extraordinary abilities on the concert stage instead of in supper clubs and vaudeville. Their current program, called "Dansation," is a choice medley of old favorites and new creations and will be repeated each evening.

Four instrumentalists will be heard accompanying the dancers and as soloists: Harry and John Hynda, duo-pianists; Jerry Shelton, young accordion player who has been associated with Veloz and Yolanda for many years, and Vicente Gomez, Spanish guitarist. Those who sat thru an otherwise tedious picture, "Blood and Sand," will remember with pleasure the magnificently atmospheric playing of Señor Gomez in the film. Like another great contemporary Spanish guitarist, Andrés Segovia, his répertoire runs from the harpsichord school of composers down to present day Spanish composers.

A special matinée will be given on Thursday by "The Doctor's Dilemma" at the Grand Opera house for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. There will be no advance in prices and the entire box office receipts will go to the fund's charities. At present Katharine Cornell, star and producer of the Shaw drama, is vice president of the Actors' fund, the first woman to be elected an officer in the 60 years of the institution's existence.

Another extra matinée is slated by "Claudia," the engaging comedy at the Selwyn theater, for Armistice day, Tuesday, Nov. 11. This is being given in response to many requests from business and civic institutions locally. Incidentally, the popularity of "Claudia" is such that two new companies are in rehearsal prior to taking to the hinterlands in the ensuing months. They will be known as "Night" and "Day" companies and will service the southern and Pacific coast regions, respectively.

Murphy Heads Hit Show at Rhumba Casino

By Will Davidson.

The big electric sign still reads "Rhumba Casino," but the spectacular spa on State street has practically become "The House of Murphy."

It's all because of one of the most polished entertainers in America—Dean Murphy. Dean, as you know, is an impersonator de luxe. His mimicry of the President is classic, yet a host of other widely divergent characters come into as startlingly realistic life when Dean manipulates his vocal cords and his malleable facial muscles.

But this is not all. Dean has become an extremely smart master of ceremonies, cementing the mosaic pieces of the show together deftly with just the right amount of his own gracious personality. His material is good, except in those rare instances when he steps down to what he seems to feel is the night club level of humor.

There's a great show for Dean to work with. The best, in fact, in the club's history, and the equal or superior of any in town. Cute little Sunny Rice, of "Du Barry Was a Lady," fame, does her twirling taps with pretty precision and verve; the Tanner sisters swing thru a fast paced répertoire topped by a vibrant "Hawaiian War Chant" [they're not quite so strong on ballads, such as "Tonight We Love"]; the Pan-American dancers whirl thru some colorful if not always well rehearsed Latin routines, and Señor Wences demonstrates again that he is quite alone as an amazingly amusing ventriloquist. He is one who depends not only upon fast repartee for effect. His variable voice has the most astonishing way of coming from closed boxes, from a chair behind a table, from a telephone. He talks to himself in three distinct and recognizable voices without once mixing them. It's very funny and very refreshing.

Billy Carr has come up for fresh air, and the Hi Hat club is benefiting thereby. Taking over the Rush street club's emcee post after years of fame south of the loop, Billy pushes a show thru its paces with the old Jolson-Richman cheerleader technique, and he sells a tremolo tune with all stops out. The crowd loves it. With Billy are, first of all, Winnie Hoveler and her Dancing Darlings in a gay drill number that is exciting, and several of their other well liked routines. Ann O'Connor does an amusing burlesque of a strip tease; Betty Atkinson taps a popular turn; the Benton Sisters do some pretty fair swing singing; Dolly Bell proves to be a capable acrobatic dancer; and Harry Schilling does magic. Music is by Eddie Fens' band.

Top news of the new shows comes from the Palmer House. The Hartmans, ace comedy dance team, will head the show opening in the Empire room Nov. 13 in support of Griff Williams' "most danceable music in America." Other acts signed are Virginia Austin, puppeteer, Keith Hall, tap dancer, Jean Sebastian, harmonica player.

Dan Barone will reopen the old 100 club as "Barone's" Thursday, with a floor show featuring a dancing line called the Baronesses.

The Les Brown record club idea is clicking at the Blackhawk. You go over on Sunday afternoon and get a chance to draw a Brown recording, for free. You also get a vote on the number you want Les to record next.

The Blackhawk's show, built around The Smoothies, is a lot of fun. The trio's singing is as entertaining as ever, and they call in some of the Brown boys to abet them in their tomfoolery.

Spooks will go dancing Friday night at the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms, where Dick Jurgens and Lawrence Welk, respectively, will play hosts at Halloween parties. There'll be noisemakers Petrillo never signed up, and all the trappings of the fall festival.

Classical Recordings

The last of Brahms' major instrumental works—the concerto in A minor for violin, cello, and orchestra—has been superbly recorded for Victor by Jascha Heifetz, violinist; Emanuel Feuermann, cellist, and the Philadelphia orchestra under Eugene Ormandy's direction.

Written in 1887, two years after the fourth symphony, the double concerto is one of the most mature of Brahms' works and deserves to be known more widely than it is. It requires artists of the highest caliber, partly because of its great technical difficulties, but more because of the profundity of its musical character. Not that the work is obscure or repellent. Rather is it the type of music that, for all its surface beauty, yet needs the most painstaking study and the most consummate knowledge of style if its full meaning is to be unearthed.

By entrusting the performance to the men it has, Victor has succeeded in providing what may well be the definitive performance of this concerto.

Most of the new vocal recordings come on single disks. Currently released are the following: Two Negro spirituals, sung by John Charles Thomas; two scenes from Rocca's opera, "The Dybbuk," sung by Augusta Oltrabella, soprano, and Gino del Signore, tenor, with the La Scala orchestra; Duparc's "Chanson Triste" and Bachelet's "Chère Nuit," sung by Eleanor Steber, soprano; Bach's "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee," sung by Dorothy Maynor, soprano, with the Philadelphia orchestra under Eugene Ormandy's direction. On the reverse side of this last record the orchestra is heard alone in the chorale, "My Dearest Jesus," from Bach's "Passion According to St. Matthew." Both Bach pieces are orchestrated by Charles O'Connell.

Vaudeville

While the State Lake theater has temporarily foregone vaudeville, the Oriental theater has once again reverted to a stage and screen show policy. For its initial bill the Oriental presents a circus show with such "big-top" acts as Ray Goody, slack wire artist; Lowe, Hite and Stanley, a dancing trio composed of a midget, a giant and a normal sized man; Carl Emmy, dog trainer, and Freddy Stritt, circus ringmaster. On the screen is "The Pittsburgh Kid."

At the Chicago theater the stage presentation features Kitty Carlisle, singing star of radio, musical comedy and motion pictures; Sybil Bowan, impressionist; Harry Reso, comedian; Julian and Marjori, dance team recently seen at the Rainbow room in New York, and the theater's ballet. "Hold Back the Dawn" is the film.

Coming Week to Be a Busy One on Orchestral Front

Philadelphia's Orchestra Here Tuesday Night

By Edward Barry.

This is a busy week on the orchestral front. Tuesday evening the Philadelphia orchestra, Eugene Ormandy, conductor, opens this year's history and enjoyment of music series with a concert at the Civic Opera house. On the same day, but in the afternoon, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, begins its Tuesday subscription series in Orchestra hall. On Thursday night and Friday afternoon comes the first of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's soloists — the violinist, Carroll Glenn—and on Saturday night the orchestra plays the second popular concert of the season.

The Philadelphia orchestra is said to give more concerts to more listeners, and to travel more miles to do so, than any other similar American organization. It turns up here about once a year, it has a regular series in New York, and in the spring it is likely to be found at Ann Arbor taking part in the University of Michigan's May festival.

Eugene Ormandy, the energetic young conductor on whom the great bulk of the season's labors fall, came upon the American orchestral scene about 11 years ago when he conducted both the New York and the Philadelphia orchestras in summer concerts at Lewisohn stadium. Before that he had been a theater violinist and conductor in a New York house. He had been compelled to go into theater work in 1920, when he first came to America, because the impresario on whom he had depended for engagements—and who had urged the young Hungarian violinist to try his luck on these shores—was nowhere to be found.

Eugene Ormandy.

In 1931 Ormandy substituted for Arturo Toscanini at some concerts in Philadelphia that the older man was too ill to direct. His success led to an engagement with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, which organization later named him permanent conductor. He went to Philadelphia in 1936 to become co-conductor, with Leopold Stokowski, of that city's renowned orchestra. The duties of full conductor gradually devolved upon him as Stokowski began to give more and more of his time to other projects.

Next Tuesday's program of the Philadelphia orchestra follows:

Overture, D Minor..........Handel-Ormandy
[First Chicago performance.]
Symphony, D Major [Köchel 504]...Mozart
Three Pieces for Orchestra..........Harris
[First Chicago performance.]
Symphony No. 5, E Minor....Tschaikowsky

The Chicago Symphony orchestra's Tuesday subscription series was established to provide a less compact concert series for those who do not care to be committed to weekly attendance. It consists of two programs a month for six months. The répertoire used is somewhat lighter than at the Thursday-Friday concerts, but it is by no means of the popular variety. The Tuesday series has a list of guest artists almost as rich [for its length] as the Thursday-Friday.

Carroll Glenn. Bruno of Hollywood Photo.

The first program follows:

Suite No. 3, D Major..................Bach
Tone Poem, "Thus Spake Zarathustra"
..................Strauss
Symphony No. 4, F Minor....Tschaikowsky

Miss Glenn was engaged last spring after the list of soloists for the 1941-'42 season had been completed. Mr. Stock heard her play, and immediately added her to the roster. She is a South Carolina girl who climaxed a brilliant student career by winning the Naumberg, Town hall and National Federation of Music Clubs awards.

The Thursday-Friday program follows:

Symphony, C Major ["Jupiter"]....Mozart
Symphonic Dances..................Hindemith
Concerto for Violin, D Major.......Sibelius
Carroll Glenn.
Scherzo Capriccioso, opus 66........Dvorak

That the Chicago Symphony orchestra's popular concerts have reached a point where their programs are not readily distinguishable from the programs of many subscription concerts is indicated by next Saturday night's fare:

Overture, "Sakuntala"..........Goldmark
"On the Shores of Sorrento," from Symphonic Fantasy "Aus Italien"..Strauss Symphony, B Flat Major..........Chausson
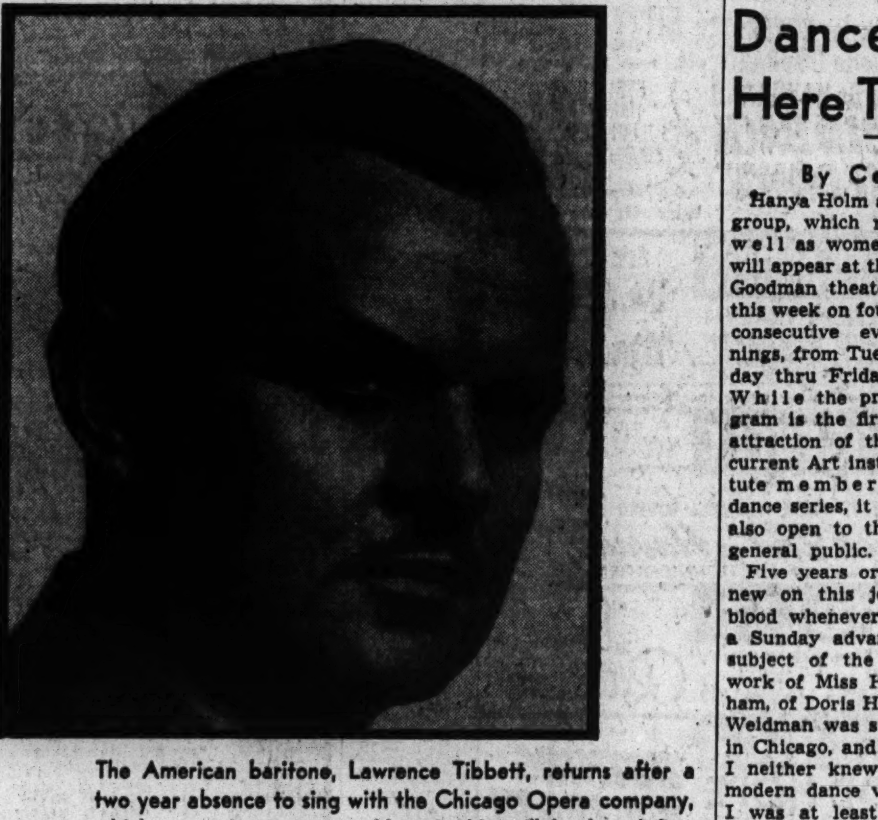
Variations on an Original Theme.....Elgar
Moto Perpetuo.......................Paganini
Polka and Fugue, from "Schwanda the Bagpiper"..................Weinberger

RETURNS IN OPERA ROLE



The American baritone, Lawrence Tibbett, returns after a two year absence to sing with the Chicago Opera company, which opens its season on Nov. 8. He will be heard first in "Otello" on Monday, Nov. 17.

Notes of Music and Musicians

As the first performer for the season on the Young American Artists series Helen Kettner, pianist, will give her debut recital in Curtiss hall on Tuesday evening. The major works which will test Miss Kettner's abilities on the program are the Bach-Busoni Chaconne in D minor, Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata in F minor, opus 57, three Chopin études, the Ravel Sonatine, and Saint-Saëns' Etude in the Form of a Waltz. Numbers by Bach, Liszt, Schumann, and Scriabin complete the listing.

Items about the Chicago Opera company:

Vivian Della Chiesa has been assigned the part of Desdemona in the company's presentation of "Otello" on Monday, Nov. 17. Carlo Peroni will conduct, and the cast will feature Giovanni Martinelli in the title rôle, Lawrence Tibbet as Iago, and Ada Paggia as Emilia. The following Wednesday night "Aida" will be the opera. It will be sung by Mobley Lushanya, Karin Branzell, Kurt Baum, John Charles Thomas, and Virgilio Lazzari under the direction of Emile Cooper.

Additions to the roster of artists name Dorothy Kirsten, young American soprano who sang with the company last year; Mark Love, well known Chicago bass, and Stefan Kozakevich, baritone of the San Carlo Opera company.

The first popular priced Board of Education opera performance on Friday nights will be "La Traviata," Nov. 14. A fine trio of singers fill the three principal rôles, Helen Jepson, Michael Bartlett, and John Charles Thomas. Peroni will conduct as he also will for "Carmen" on the first Monday night, Nov. 10. This series, it should be noted, is open to every one, not only the school children.

Many familiar names are to be found in the list of soloists with the Littlefield ballet, which will serve the opera company during its five week season. Aside from the director, Catherine Littlefield, opera goers will see Dorothie Littlefield, Norma Gentner, Virginia Rand, Dorothy Swain, Mary Woods, Josephine McCann, Carl Cleighton, Thomas Cannon, Conrad Linden, George Hecht, William Lane, Ray Koby, and Erik Giles.

Carlo Morelli replaces John Charles Thomas in the name part of "The Barber of Seville" for Saturday afternoon, Nov. 15.

Maria Parissi, soprano, and Andrea de Parry, baritone, will give another of their song and operatic concerts in Curtiss hall this evening. An extensive program promises arias from several of the classical operas of the 17th and 18th centuries and some from the more familiar works of the 19th. Songs composed by Mr. de Parry also are announced.

Albert Goldberg, state supervisor of the Illinois Music project, reveals that the Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra will open its sixth successive season on Monday evening, Nov. 17, at the Great Northern theater. Izler Solomon will conduct the inaugural concert. The same popular prices of past years will prevail, and the ensemble will continue its policy of featuring on its programs young local musicians as soloists, compositions new to Chicago, and guest conductors. The orchestra has already begun its sixth annual series of 12 concerts in the New Trier High school, Winnetka. On Nov. 4 it will play in Riverside, Ill., and on Nov. 5 in Springfield. On Feb. 17 next it is scheduled to open the University of Illinois' Star Course series.

The Russian Trio resumes its Tuesday morning series at the Arts club on Nov. 4. Additional dates are Dec. 2, Jan. 6, Feb. 3, March 3, and April 7.

Jane Sears, pianist; Robert Basso, violinist, and Julius W. Gabler, tenor, will be presented in a joint recital in Kimball hall on Tuesday by the Chicago Woman's Musical club. These three youthful artists won the club's scholarship contest last spring.

Maurice Cooper, tenor, and Mary Crowley, soprano, will be the featured soloists on the 21st annual music festival to be held this evening at 7:30 in the Metropolitan church, 4100 South Parkway, by the church choir under J. Wesley Jones' direction.

The free program of recorded music offered next Saturday at 1:30 p. m. in the assembly hall of the public library at Randolph and Michigan avenues will be as follows:

"Classical" Symphony..............Prokofieff
String Quartet....................Shostakovich
Excerpts from "Daphne"............Strauss
Concerto for Violin and Orchestra....
..................Beethoven

Paul Leyssac, assisted by Sanford Schlussel at the piano, will give dramatic characterizations with music by American composers before the American Opera society in the Arts club on Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

The first performance of Lulu Downing's Quintet will be a feature of the active members' concert of the Lake View Musical club at the home of Mrs. James G. McMillan, 445 Sheridan road, Winnetka, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. It will be performed by the Conrad string quintet with James Bradley Griffin as narrator and the composer at the piano. Maren Johansen Hattstaedt, soprano; Sydnie Smith Cooley, contralto, and Erna Mann, pianist, will also be heard.

A "Chamber Dance" series will be offered by Anne Rudolph and her Motion Choir on the four Tuesdays of November in Miss Rudolph's studios, 116 South Michigan avenue. The programs are labeled "From Palestrina, Bach, Handel to Beethoven," "We Dance! Chopin, Debussy, Stravinsky, Milhaud, etc.," "Anne Rudolph—Earthly and Heavenly Angels," and "American Frontier."

The Musical Arts piano series of the Adult Education council gets under way a week from Tuesday in Orchestra hall with a recital by Rudolf Serkin. His program is confined to three works, two of them monumental in stature: Bach's Toccata in E minor, Beethoven's "Hammerklavier" Sonata in B-flat major, opus 106, and Chopin's Twelve Etudes, opus 25.

Mr. Serkin's successor on the series will be Egon Petri, who will play an equally discriminating program on Dec. 2. It consists of a "Symphony," or four of the Twelve Etudes in minor keys, opus 39, by the nineteenth century French composer, Charles Alkan; Beethoven's Thirty-three Variations on a Waltz by Diabelli, opus 120, and Liszt's "Venezia e Napoli."

Hanya Holm's Dance Group Here This Week

By Cecil Smith.

Hanya Holm and her modern dance group, which now includes men as well as women, will appear at the Goodman theater this week on four consecutive evenings, from Tuesday thru Friday. While the program is the first attraction of the current Art institute members' dance series, it is also open to the general public.

Hanya Holm. [Samuels Photo.]

Five years or so ago, when I was new on this job, I used to sweat blood whenever I tried to turn out a Sunday advance article upon the subject of the modern dance. The work of Miss Holm, of Martha Graham, of Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman was still very little known in Chicago, and still less understood. I neither knew nor understood the modern dance very well myself, but I was at least convinced that the whole movement was vital and honest and courageous. Consequently I did what I could for the modern dancers, and by dint of a little cramming and wholesale thievery from John Martin's books I was able, in my own eyes at least, to appear exceedingly learned.

The process was not much fun for me in those days, tho, for I believed secretly that the modern dance was more to be admired than loved. The chief proponents of the art were then talking a great deal about "nonrepresentational" dancing, in the hope of persuading their audiences to look at dancing as something more than mere trivial story telling. This was the era in which Doris Humphrey thought that "New Dance" was an appropriate title, if not an alluring one, because it focussed attention upon the "'pure dance" she and her colleagues were intent upon creating.

In its beginning phases any new artistic style is likely to become preoccupied with the vocabulary used to describe it. And so for several years the whole modern dance movement endeavored to win the public to an understanding of its aims by using a grim, colorless, and sometimes revolting vocabulary. The dancing was good, and it got better and better; but the things its enthusiasts said about it were enough to frighten away nine-tenths of the potential audience. For this whole mistaken conception of public relations I confess I deserve part of the blame, and along with the dancers themselves I have now reformed.

Until three or four years ago the Chicago public enthusiastically refrained from seeing some of the best dancing to be discovered anywhere, simply because the whole thing sounded like a cult endeavor. In recent seasons, however, the dancers have decided to humanize themselves, and audiences are surprised to discover how much more attractive and enjoyable the dancing is than descriptions of it used to make it sound.

There are two especially important ways in which the modern dance has humanized itself lately—by discovering the sensory value of color, and by admitting the validity of sex, in its idealized manifestations, as subject matter. Instead of drab Mother Hubbards the girls now wear a variety of costumes of interesting design and wide color range. And into their hitherto closed ranks the girls of Martha Graham's and Hanya Holm's groups have now admitted the male figure. [Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman, of course, maintained a mixed group from the beginning.]

With Hanya Holm the addition of men is something very new indeed, and we are to see the mixed company for the first time this week. The advance announcements give no specific details about the changes in choreography brought about by this mellow and inviting attitude toward romance and chivalry, beyond the fact that some of the earlier works composed for girls alone have now been revised and amplified to include the men.

Now that all the chief modern dance groups have fully agreed that the theme of love—so basic to virtually every field of artistic creation—is an acceptable one, the glacial purity of their aesthetic canons also begins to thaw at other points. Altho the leading dancers still have a tendency to become furious when you say so, their compositions are becoming more and more theatrical, and more entertaining.

With constantly increasing technical skill, and with no threat whatever to artistic integrity, the modern choreographers are beginning to meet their audience half way—to dress their performances up nicely, and to choose themes that are not abstruse or preachy or politically biased.

And so this time I can really be spontaneous when I predict that Hanya Holm's return to the Goodman theater will be quite an event. She will present one new dance, "From This Earth." The music is by Roy Harris, and the work received its première at Colorado Springs last summer. It has not been staged in New York. From the repertory she has given here before, Miss Holm will bring back three genuinely valuable and stirring compositions, "Dance of Introduction," the dramatic "Tragic Exodus," and the amusingly satiric "Metropolitan Daily."

Current Music News

Tonight the Philharmonic string quartet gives the first of its series of three concerts in the Goodman theater under the sponsorship of the Lakeview Musical society. The members of the ensemble are John Welcher, first violin; Robert Quick, second violin; Walter Hancock, viola, and Dudley Powers, cello. Ernest Liegl, first flutist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will be the assisting artist on this occasion. The other two concerts are scheduled for Nov. 23 and Jan. 25. On the last one Rudolph Reuter, pianist, will perform with the group. Tonight's program:

Quartet for Strings in G Minor....Sowerby
Serenade for Flute, Violin and Viola..Reger
String Quartet in E-flat, Opus 127.Beethoven

With performances of "La Traviata" in Kimball hall on next Saturday and Sunday nights the American Opera company resumes its work for the season. On Saturday the cast will include Francis Moore Bader as Violetta, Arthur Wilkensen as Alfredo, and Gordon Hendricks as Germont. Sunday's cast lists Violet Mumsen, John Kay, and Martin Boughan in these three rôles. Both productions will be conducted by John Alten.

This afternoon at 4:30 the Chicago Mandolin orchestra, William Malenschein, conductor, will give a program in the auditorium of the Logan Square Masonic temple, 2453 North Kedzie boulevard.

Beginning a week from Friday the Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists will sponsor its fifth season of free, noontime organ recitals in Kimball hall. The concerts last from 12 to 12:50. Eldon Hasse opens the series on Nov. 7, and succeeding performers will be Wilbur Held, Nov. 14; Adrienne Moran, Nov. 21; Grace Symons, Nov. 28; Winston Johnson, Dec. 5; Mary Ruth Craven, Dec. 12, and Whitmer Byrne, Dec. 19. The new dean of the chapter is Barrett Spach, organist and choirmaster of the Fourth Presbyterian church. The subdean, Walter Flandorf, directs the recital series.

On Wednesday evening in Kimball hall Harold Townsend, tenor, will give a song recital. Altho he has made many concert tours, his major appearances have been with radio programs. For the past five years he has sung with the WLS Barn Dance feature and for the last two years has performed regularly on the Carnation Contented hour.

On Thursday the National Negro Opera society, organized by Mary Cardwell Dawson of Pittsburgh, Pa., will give its initial presentation in Pittsburgh. It will be Verdi's "Aida," for which 200 participants were chosen by auditions held in 10 states. Four of the leading rôles will be sung by Chicagoans: Aida by La Julia Rhea, Amonasro by William Franklin, Rhadames by Napoleon Reed, and Ramphis by Jackson Smith. Amneris will be sung by Nellie Dobson Plants of the Detroit Opera company, the king by Reginald Burres of Pittsburgh, and the messenger by Walter Burte Jackson, also of Pittsburgh. Frederick Vadja, assistant director of the Metropolitan Opera company and the only non-Negro participating in the production, will conduct. The National Negro Opera society is a nonprofit group organized "to gain recognition for the host of Negroes with outstanding musical talents who are comparatively unknown."

Two Chicagoans were cast in Mozart's "Cosi fan tuttie," the initial production of the New Opera Company of New York. Waldemar Schroeder, a former Chicagoland Music Festival winner, and Andzia Kuzak, young coloratura soprano, were awarded the rôles of Guglielmo and Despine. The opera was given eight performances with Fritz Busch conducting.

Six recitalists will be presented by Henry E. Voegeli in Orchestra hall during the season. The first will be Patricia Travers, the very young violinist, who plays next Sunday afternoon. Others are Zino Francescatti, violinist; George Chavchavadze, Vladimir Horowitz, Ellen Ballon and Alexander Brailowsky, pianists. Miss Travers, Mr. Chavchavadze, and Miss Ballon also will make appearances.

An important book from many standpoints—those of the dancer, photographer, and book designer—has come from the presses of Duell, Sloan & Pearce. It is called "Martha Graham" and is a magnificent photographic recapitulation of that great dancer's major works by Barbara Morgan. Articles by George Beiswanger and Miss Graham are included in the book.

Good Morning!

There's a "kiss of death" girl in this movie—soon to visit neighborhood theater screens—but she's no gangster's moll. . . . NO indeedy! According to the story she is strictly-crême-de-la-crême - upper - crust - top-strata goods who is often a sweetheart, but seldom a spouse. . . . Because——

Something untoward ALWAYS happens to men who love her. . . . They find themselves pursued by the "smiling ghost," a horrible "ha'nt" who stalks them relentlessly and brings them to grief if they persist in paying attention to lovely Lil. . . .

By way of outwitting this diabolical shade, the young woman's grandmother inserts an ad in the newspapers calling for a doughty youth possessed of certain qualifications to perform this, that, and t'other deed over a certain period of time, during which period he is to pose as the fiancé of Miss Barstow. . . . And so——

—this being a mystery, you go on alone from here, unguided save by your native astuteness and the movie. . . .

I can't say that "The Smiling Ghost" is any great shakes as a mystery comedy, but it's graced by splendid performers who play their not very credible rôles with as much zip as if they really amounted to much more than is the case. . . .

The picture boasts quite a few laughs and is not without suspense. I GUESSED CORRECTLY WHO—had the button. Will you, I wonder?

See you tomorrow.

"THE BIG SIX OF AMERICAN LITERATURE"
6 Volumes, Beautifully Bound, Handsomely Boxed

What a galaxy of the GREATEST writers in America today! SIX modern masters, including all three Americans who have ever won the Nobel Prize for Literature, and who in addition are Pulitzer Prize Winners, too. Today no other country in the world can present six authors to equal these. As an American you can place these volumes on your shelf with genuine pride. As a reader you will delight in reading these stories again and again. Each is a living masterpiece!

THE SNOWS OF KILIMANJARO
by Ernest Hemingway
The scene of this story is Africa, where an explorer lies desperately ill waiting for a plane to arrive with a serum that will save his life. Both he and his wife know it will never arrive in time, but their elaborate pretense is kept up till the end. Clifton Fadiman says, "I think that this is Hemingway's best story, far superior to The Killers, The Undefeated, and Fifty Grand."

THE LONG VOYAGE HOME
by Eugene O'Neill
This tense and magnificent drama of the sea is one of the plays that first established Eugene O'Neill's reputation as the greatest playwright in America today. With the facts only slightly altered to bring the story up to the present Battle of the Atlantic, The Long Voyage Home was made last year into one of the most memorable motion pictures of all time.

THE OLD DEMON
by Pearl Buck
It was The Good Earth, of course, that first established Pearl Buck as the greatest interpreter of Chinese life in American literature today. The Old Demon is a gripping story that exemplifies the whole philosophy of present-day China and brings you Pearl Buck at her superlative best. This volume also contains Guerilla Mother, an unforgettable picture of the relentless bravery and fortitude displayed by the Chinese in their defense against the cruelest of war odds.

TURNABOUT
by William Faulkner
Many readers who know Faulkner only as the author of novels like Sanctuary may have forgotten that he was an aviator in the first World War, and that, out of his experience, he wrote some of the finest fighting stories in our literature. Turnabout is the best of them all. A group of American flyers—and two young Englishmen from His Majesty's Navy—give you a breathless story of men of valor who can laugh through their fear, or disdain, of Death.

A LETTER TO THE QUEEN
by Sinclair Lewis
Sinclair Lewis' international reputation is based upon his long novels, but he has written a score or more of shorter works that rank with the best he has ever done. One of his own favorites is this story, A Letter to the Queen. Concentrated in these typically rich Lewis pages is the essence of everything that has established Mr. Lewis as one of the great American authors of our time.

THE RED PONY
by John Steinbeck
Originally published in an expensive limited edition, this remarkable work was immediately hailed by practically every important critic in America as one of the greatest short stories ever written. Sooner or later it will probably be read by ten times as many people as will read the same author's famous The Grapes of Wrath. As a picture of boyhood, and of a boy's blind love for an animal he could call his own, it will bring unashamed tears to your eyes and a sympathizing lift to your heart.

Including "NANA" Complete!

FREE!—this master volume for your permanent library—the most daring works of the one man in world literature who was brave enough to tell the truth, come what may!

His masterpiece, NANA—(complete in this volume)—is the story of the shameless harlot who rose from the gutters of Paris to rule the salons of society. NANA, when it first was published, shocked even sophisticated France. It scandalized the pious, shook the smug out of their complacency. It stands for all time as one of the most vivid, utterly frank novels ever written!

If you saw Paul Muni's magnificent motion picture portrayal of Emile Zola, you know what sheer originality to look forward to in this great collection of his finest works; not only NANA, complete and unexpurgated, but also 8 full-length novelettes translated direct from the original French. Includes also A Love Episode, Mysteries of Marseilles, The Miller's Daughter (one of the most exciting short stories ever written) and many others. All yours FREE!

ACTION IN DIAMONDS

You Can Start the Story Here . . .

ONLY one craft—the Tarpon Queen—remained at the quay of Everglades City, deep on the southwest curve of Florida's gulf coast. All the others were off for the day's fishing cruises. Had her young captain, Phil McNally, so chosen he could have been out with them, but early tomorrow he had a charter cruise, and he wanted the day to prepare for it.

The sound of a motor drew Phil's eyes to the filling station-garage near the landing. A large car had come to a halt in front of Gassy Roberts' place of business, and a young woman was talking with the proprietor. Pretty soon he picked up her bags and started toward McNally.

"You're Capt. McNally, aren't you?" she asked. "How soon could you take me to Whitewater Bay?"

"Sorry," he said rather lamely, "but I can't do it. I haven't time. Have to be back early tomorrow. If you could wait until then there'll be other boats."

"But I can't wait until tomorrow!" Then she realized what she had said. "That is—I'd so much rather get there today or tonight." She explained her worries about her father ("I'm Hallie Kent," she said), who was there on his yacht, the Sybilla. She mentioned Mr. Bayne.

"Mr. Bayne! You mean Mr. Welton Bayne?"

"Yes, he's a sort of business associate of my father."

"Well, that's different," smiled McNally. "He's the one I'm taking out tomorrow, and if I'm late because of you he won't mind."

The girl's eyes widened.

"O, but he might be furious. I—I'd rather not risk delaying him." She looked about her like a person pursued. "I'd be awfully obliged if you didn't mention the matter to him."

McNally was intrigued. Suddenly he turned to his crew—14-year-old William Wesley Wellington. "Suppose we could work it so we needn't tell Mr. Bayne we played hookey?"

Bill grinned. "I reckon we can if that ole moon'll jest stay out."

"Step aboard, Miss Kent," McNally said.

. . . .

Hours later Hallie came up from below, refreshed after a sleep. She gave no evidence of having overheard Bill's loquacious story of how he often had sold bait to her father—of how he had seen much drinking and gambling on the Sybilla—and of the time Mr. Kent had rather drunkenly boasted about a bushel basket full of diamonds.

But she had noticed Phil's law diploma from George Washington university. "Don't most law grads from there try to be G-men?" she smiled.

"Well, yes," said Phil, "but I didn't turn out to be one." It was a dodge, tho truthful. He was 218 on a list of applicants and had been sworn to discretion. He'd have to hide that diploma.

As the Tarpon Queen sped along Bill turned on the radio for the noon radio news report.

". . . and there was another diamond robbery yesterday in Miami," the voice was saying. "An officer was killed. No clews, either. Only thing the G-men and cops have to go on is a well dressed woman who came in to look at diamonds and left just before the robbers came."

McNally turned with sudden premonition; the girl had swung from beside him and now stood braced against the starboard stanchion, taut muscled, tense featured. She noticed his attention. Her smile seemed a physical effort to drive away fear.

"I'm sorry," she said. "It was that talk about diamonds. My father's in the diamond business, and I've had them served up to me conversationally all my life, morning, noon, and night. It does something to their glamor."

Now Go On with the Story

INSTALMENT II.

THE lazy afternoon edged on, while the filminess of distant points resolved itself into the greenery of mangrove or buttonwood. The mouths and deltas of great rivers were passed; even to the huge expanse of red water which denoted the outpouring from hundreds of square miles of the Everglades, as the main current of the powerful Shark came forth from its depths of sawgrassed wilderness.

It was here that Phil McNally shifted his landmarks and steered inward from the wider waters which he had traversed. Now, slowly, he moved closer, still closer to the black and white lines of the shore, while Bill climbed down from the top deck, and with a freckled hand pawing thru his tumbled, reddish hair, went aft beside the girl's chair.

"Things is goin' to get interestin' now, Miss Kent," he said. "We start goin' thru a lot of islands on the way to Whitewater Bay."

She evinced interest; Phil lowered the Tarpon Queen's speed to ease the boat over the sand flats.

"Mighty shallow here," said Bill. "T'ain't as shallow as it does get tho, if you try to get over the sandbars into the dead rivers."

"Dead rivers?"

"That's what we call 'em—just kind of sloughs. They're deep—after you git over the sandbars. Awful big tarpon hang out in there, they lay around in them big holes until the tide starts comin' in or goin' out, then they'll strike at most anything.

"Mr. Altine—he's the feller thet fishes with Mr. Bayne—he catches 'em on light tackle, just like he was bass fishin'. That's why he has that there special guide, I reckon. And we have to take a skiff along for 'em and an outboard motor. The Tarpon Queen can't get over some of them sandbars or oyster reefs. Might stove in her hull!"

As he said this, he leaned far out to study surrounding waters; McNally was gingerly edging the Queen over the sand flat, meanwhile skirting the ugly edges of countless oyster bars, rising to view with the greater ebb-flow of the outgoing tide.

Wherever one looked were fiddler crabs, swarming out of their myriad holes in the mudstone banks, or crawling by thousands into a sunspot, or rushing grotesquely in circles at the splash of waves from the Tarpon Queen's backwash. And above these, upon the bonelike deadfall and whitened, writhing driftwood, upon the mangrove trailers, extending even into the tops of the trees themselves, were swarming millions of tiny black spider crabs, moving ceaselessly.

Herons Wing Away at Boat's Approach

Everything, it seemed, fed upon them. Herons, disturbed from their feasting by the boat's approach, winged along the twisting waterways in splotches of gray blue and brilliant white. With whistling wings, great formations of curlew rose, to speed into the slight wind, rise and bank and circle, then, like airplane squadrons in V formation, drive hard to safety before again seeking the earth. Hallie Kent watched them, fascinated. Then, with a quick glance at the ceaseless life of the dripping mangrove shores, she said:

"So beautiful. And yet, so weird."

Bill grinned with appreciation.

"Huh!" he exclaimed. "This ain't nothin'. You ought to see it in the night time!"

"I'd rather sleep," the girl laughed. Phil turned, motioning to Bill to come forward. The boy scrambled to his feet.

"Comin' into the bay," he exclaimed. "Liable to see the Sybilla most any time now."

He hurried to Phil, while the girl came to her feet, standing nervously beside her chair, as she watched ahead. Her lips were momentarily pressed tightly, and her heart was thumping. Meanwhile her brain raced with a dozen alibis, excuses, pretexts, any one of which had seemed quite reasonable in the dawn of this morning when she had raced her car along the Tamiami Trail, but which now suddenly had become dull, illogical, easily punctuated by probing interrogation. Suddenly she tossed her head, as if throwing away everything which obsessed her. Then, resolutely, she too went forward by the starboard stanchion and stood there with her fair head thrown back to the wind.

"Please don't make any more deals with him, Dad."

The narrowness of the tide run thru which they raced became more and more constricted. Then suddenly the Tarpon Queen banked heavily, its wash driving high into the mangroved islands on either side; it swung around a short turn, backed hard against the weight of rolling tidewater there and spurted thru to what seemed a portion of the gulf itself.

Instead, it was the main expanse of Whitewater Bay, with a filmy fringe all about it where the faraway islands seemed to mesh, while in the distance loomed the Sybilla.

She was at anchor, on smooth water, like a white island. The mirage qualities of the atmosphere seemed to lift her until she rose high into the sky upon a field of glass. The girl turned excitedly to Phil at the wheel.

"She's so beautiful! Sybilla was my mother's name." Then, as if to forestall questioning: "I used to practically live aboard her. But in the last few years, since mother's been gone——"

She let the sentence end of its own weight. Phil said:

"It'll take us about 15 minutes to reach her."

She smiled and raised her hands to her head.

"Thanks; my hair must be a sight." She went into the cabin. Phil called Bill hastily beside him.

"Now listen," he commanded in a low voice. "If the old man's on deck when we get there, don't you make any references to ever having been on the boat or why. Let that come from him——"

"I know," said Bill with wide eyes. "You don't want her to know I've seen her pappy drunk, I betcha."

"She probably knows it. But it isn't our business to remind her of it."

There the subject was dropped. After a time, Hallie came out of the cabin, announcing that her bags were closed and ready to be brought on deck. The white expanse of the Sybilla grew steadily larger. Phil reached into the tangle of gear on the shelf before him and from under a newspaper produced a pair of binoculars.

"Want to take a look?" he asked. She did, scanning slowly and carefully. At last she lowered them:

"Evidently Dad isn't on deck. There's Capt. Dabney, and Joe, his son; they've seen us. The captain's got a pair of binoculars on us. And I can see Dr. Iwald——"

The Tarpon Queen swung wide as it neared the sleek Sybilla, Bill Wesley struggling to hang ropen bumpers over the side, against a too close landing. There was no such danger; with the muscular, scowling Joe Dabney fending her off, the Tarpon Queen at last idled beside the big ship's gangway. Capt. Dabney trotted down the ladder, peering hard toward the girl. From above, in a narrow voice, Dr. Iwald asked:

"That you, Hallie?"

"Yes, doctor! How are you? How's Dad?"

"Sleeping," said the doctor crisply. He was an illy-proportioned man, with sparse curly hair; his face came to a sharp point at his chin and too quickly for proper balance. He was thin and his hands were thinner, hanging in wilted fashion before him as he leaned against the rail. High shoulders gave him a concave appearance, and made his neck seem even more pipelike than it was. He made no move of welcome; he merely stared at the girl with his small, dirty-gray eyes as if she were an experiment. Hallie Kent fumbled at her bag in sudden memory that she had not paid for the charter, and, pawing out three $10 bills, handed them to Phil.

"Suppose we call it just a regular day," he objected. "Twenty-five dollars——"

"No, you'll be awfully late getting in——"

"Take the dough whenever you can get it, Matey," said Capt. Dabney. Phil looked up at him, standing on the gangway ladder, a sun-blacked man with huge arms and hands, and a round head, in which his eyes were white marbles with mahogany centers. A feeling of swift antagonism rose in the Tarpon Queen's owner. Swiftly he made change and pushed five dollars into the girl's still open bag.

"Thanks," came briefly. "I made the deal for a day—and that's the day price. Hand up the bags, Bill."

The girl hesitated, as tho she would argue the point. But suddenly she whirled. A voice had come from beyond a nearby open porthole:

"What the hell's going on out there? Everybody yelling, scrambling around, you'd think this was a stockyards. And who took my drink? I had it here a minute ago. Who took my drink?" The girl literally sprang up the gangway ladder. Now the face of Gordon Kent appeared at the porthole. Phil saw him as a once handsome man who still was moderately good looking—if one could forget the flabbiness of liquor aurated skin, the looseness beneath droop-lidded eyes, the white of hair at his temples, where normally there should have been gray. He shouted to Capt. Dabney: "What in ever-living brimstone is going on out there? Is this a convention?"

"You might call it that," answered the captain caustically. There was no hint of deference. "Somebody coming to see you."

"Who's coming to see me? I don't want to be seen. It's not any of that Miami gang, is it?"

"O, cool down," snapped Capt. Dabney. "It's nobody like that!"

"Huh?" he asked dully. "That's good. That's good."

"Maybe you think so," growled Dabney under his breath. Then Phil heard the door open and the girl cry out. Gordon Kent turned away from the porthole; the guide could see the girl's hands clasp about his neck. He heard her say:

"O, Dad, please don't scold me. Please don't! Please don't! I just couldn't stand it to stay there in Miami, waiting——" Evidently she then saw that the Tarpon Queen had not departed. She swung from her disgruntled father and whipped to the porthole. She extended an arm. "Good-by, Mr. McNally," she called. "Good-by, Bill, good-by!"

It was an invitation to leave, the more quickly the better, Phil decided as he threw the Tarpon Queen's engine into reverse to gain clearance. In that girl's gesture was the urgent request that he be off and away before there be a decision to put her aboard again for a return trip.

Bill came beside his captain.

"That's the way it always is aboard that boat. Funny, like they was hidin' things. 'Course they paid me good money, when I was sellin' 'em bait, but I never got much fun out of takin' it to 'em. I was always afraid I'd see a ghost or somethin'!"

Phil McNally received Bill Wellington's views with a decided amount of mental confirmation. He had seen strange craft during the months in which he had used the Tarpon Queen as a stop gap while he waited for the realization of a long nurtured ambition. He had seen strange people, surly, gruff, selfish; there had been few groups, however, which had struck him as so coldly queer as this crowd which he had just looked upon.

It seemed impossible that he had delivered a daughter into the arms of her father. Certainly there had been no welcome, not even an evidence of friendship; only the cold, resentful churlishness of men who hated to see a woman come aboard and made no effort to conceal the fact.

"I bet they're mad because she'll probably bust up their drinkin' an' all," said Bill, echoing McNally's thoughts.

"Probably so," Phil answered. "But I suppose it isn't any of our business, is it?"

"I reckon not," Bill agreed. "Gettin' back to town is tough, ain't it? In time to ice up an' everything for Mr. Bayne an' them."

Bayne and Party Arrive for Cruise

That took the rest of the afternoon and most of the night; with darkness they laid up until the moon rose. Then running wide in the gulf as long as possible, they cut in straight for the markers, edged along with the tide and managed to tie up in time for a few hours' sleep. At dawn they were busy again. Shortly after sunrise a heavily loaded, rented station wagon from Miami, with three men and a driver, came along the dock driveway and pulled up at the Tarpon Queen's berth. A voice called:

"Iced up, Phil? Ready to go?"

Phil leaned out from beneath the awning; he was swabbing down the after deck in the boy's absence.

"Just as soon as Bill gets back with the tow skiff. He's just across the river there. Wait a minute until I stow this mop and I'll give you a hand with that luggage."

The station wagon's doors flew open and three men got out. One of these was outstanding. Tall, wide-shouldered, he was dressed in sport slacks, the short sleeves revealing athletic arms. His chest was full and his waist narrow. Bill once had said that Welton Bayne always looked too all-fired dressed up to go on a fishing trip. McNally had mentally amended this to the fact that Welton Bayne was too dressed up.

That Bayne knew he was handsome and well dressed was prevalent in his every too casual action. His straight line features were trained in emotion and repose; not a hair was out of line in his country squire mustache. He had the kind of sucked in waist which Phil felt came more from activities before the mirror than from natural exercise.

His hair was black, and his eyes were a pale blue. He once had said he was 35 years old. But Bill had seen a New York driver's license which said he was 37. So Phil didn't know, and cared less.

Altine was handing grub and fishing tackle out of the car as Phil made the dock. He was a short, squat man as slovenly as Bayne was immaculate. His shirt was inevitably half out of his trousers, or buttoned

NEXT SUNDAY—"S. S. FRUSTRATION," BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

WAY of ESCAPE

By DORNFORD YATES

(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"THIS way, if you please, sir."

The senior partner of Corin, Whymper and Bell followed the servant along a magnificent hall and into a pleasant chamber whose open windows gave to a broad, flagged terrace, alight with sun.

"If you'll take a seat, sir, I'll tell his lordship you're here."

Perhaps a minute went by, while the lawyer regarded a very beautiful Titian, hung too high for his taste. Then a figure strolled from the terrace into the room.

"How d'you do, Mr. Corin. And what can I do for you?"

"How d'you do, Lord Avon. I'm very pleased to make your acquaintance. If I may say so, you have a most lovely home."

"It is nice, isn't it?" said Avon. "Of course, it's looking its best. A summer's day like this would give a tenement charm. Sit down on that sofa, won't you?"

The lawyer took a seat—and went straight to the point.

"I'm afraid," he said, "I'm bringing you rather bad news. It's about your friend, Maj. Coleton. He died of fever at Rome, some 10 days ago."

"I'm sorry for that," he said. "I'm nearly always sorry when some one I know is dead. But I can't pretend I'm shaken. I mean, I used to know him. If I remember, we met at a shady club. And we used to get tight together to drown our woes. But that was in the dark ages. I haven't set eyes on Coleton for 14 or 15 years."

"Did you know he had a daughter, Lord Avon?"

"I can't say I did. I have a hazy idea that he'd lost his wife."

"That's quite right. She died when the child was born. That child is now 17. And by his will you're her guardian and sole trustee."

"O, don't be silly," said Avon. "You've turned over two pages of something. I was a boon companion—not a maiden aunt."

"The fact remains," said the lawyer. "We didn't draw the will—he drew it himself. It happens to be quite in order; but I naturally assumed that he'd asked you . . . and you had consented to act."

"Not on your life. I tell you, I haven't seen him for 15 years. And our communion was patchy. We helped one another home; but the old school tie was never out of the drawer."

"Then you must renounce," he said. "When I saw the will I assumed that you were the very close friend—and, of course, that you had consented to what he proposed. As it is, there's no reason whatever why you should act."

Lawyer Offers Lord Avon Chance to Renounce Will

The lawyer folded his papers and put them away. Then he got to his feet.

"Always the way," he said, "when a client makes his own will. Either it's bad in law or else he makes some provision which he has no right to make. And when he's dead and gone the trouble begins. Will you send me a formal letter, just saying that you must renounce? You see, I must have it in writing, and then we can go to the court."

"I suppose you must," said his lordship. The lawyer stared. "I mean I've never said that I should renounce. I've every right to, of course, and I quite expect that I shall. But I'd like to think it over. One has a natural reluctance to let a dead man down. I mean, if he was alive I'd tell him to go to hell, but now it's too late—he can't pick any one else. The dead are so helpless. . . . This may be fellow feeling. You see, to a great extent I'm helpless myself."

There was a little silence. Then—

"I'm two-thirds blind. I lost my sight in the war—a gunshot wound on the eve of the Armistice. After four or five operations they got a bit of it back. But I can't look down—only up. If I want to see the time I've got to hold my wrist watch above my head."

"As you please, Lord Avon. But, as a lawyer, I'm bound to say this—you must be fair to yourself. If you like to act, well and good, but I heard you say just now that if my late client had asked you you would have at once refused; that being so, no shadow of obligation——"

Richard Alanol Shere, ninth earl of Avon and Lippe, had been one of those unfortunate youths who find the world at their feet. "Nol" had had everything—charm, good looks, an old title, riches, a grand physique. More. He did all things well. Before he was 21 he was an acting major and had been awarded a bar to his D. S. O. "Unto him that hath shall be given . . . !" And then the blow had fallen. A jealous fate intervened and the light of a brilliant life was suddenly dimmed.

He still had everything—charm, good looks, and the rest, but he had to be led about, because he was two-thirds blind.

After his first depression the man took his great misfortune extremely well. He rearranged his life and smiled in the face of fate. He spent the season in London, going about quietly and dancing three nights a week. He traveled in mountainous districts, because they offered him prospects which he could see. He passed much time at Lockley, his Hampshire home, getting to know every inch of the house and grounds; at the end of 18 months no one who saw him there would have dreamed that he could see nothing which was not above his head. Independence is sweet; the man was happiest there. But he spent the season in London, because he knew that the way of a recluse is not a good road to tread.

So for the next five years. And then a chance conversation, which he was not meant to hear, had turned a half time hermit into a monk.

Lady Glent had pronounced the incantation.

"My dear, he's the catch of the world. What more could the modern girl want? A man like that—who can't see the look in her eyes. . . . Talk about eating your cake and having it, too . . . ."

Nol Avon had sat very still. He had been on the edge of proposing to Angela Glent.

He gave up his London flat the following day—and never returned to town for nearly two years. When he did, his visits were short. He used his club, patronized shops that knew him, strolled alone in the parks. But he never spoke to a woman, because he could not see the look in her eyes.

And now the man was in the prime of life—with the mien of a serving soldier and a philosopher's heart.

"I'm afraid, Lord Avon, she's very, er, young for her age."

"That's a very nice fault."

The headmistress rose to her feet.

"The point," she said, "which I was seeking to make is that she will not be finished for fully two years. Her father realized this and was most anxious that she should remain at Glencouth. You see, we understand her. So if you should be thinking of Paris——"

"I wasn't thinking of Paris. And now may I see my ward?"

The headmistress rang the bell.

A girl with an elfin face slid into the room. Pale and thin, she looked no more than 15. An apprehension sat in her big brown eyes.

From his seat on the low divan the guardian surveyed his ward. But the girl never saw he was there. The big brown eyes were lost on the woman she feared.

"This is your guardian, Coleton. His name is Lord Avon."

Lord Avon put out his hand.

"Come and sit down, Julie." The girl took his hand and he drew her on to the seat. "Don't call me Lord Avon. My friends call me Nol."

The big eyes lighted.

"Like Oliver Goldsmith?"

"That's right. I've got a car outside, and I'm sure if we ask her nicely, Miss Netherly-Wainscoat will let us go for a drive."

The headmistress moistened her lips.

"This room is at your disposal. It's one of our rules, Lord Avon——"

"I must ask you to make an exception this afternoon." Avon got to his feet. "Julie, you'll have to lead me. I don't see as well as I might."

The two passed out of the room.

"Where to, my lord?" said the chauffeur.

"Round and about, Cromer. Don't bring us back under the hour."

These orders were varied before 30 minutes had passed.

"Back to that school, Cromer. I've changed my mind."

As the car swung into the drive—

"Straight to your room, Julie, and shove in a case the things you'll need for the night. Then come down again and get right into the car."

"You don't think she'll——"

"If she tries, she's for it. What's the good of being a guardian? You're sleeping at Lockley tonight—in the Hyacinth room."

"O, Nol, I can't believe it."

Two care-free years had gone by, and the menage-a-trois had been an immense success.

Miss Aldgate, Julie's companion, adored and adorned her post. The lady was discretion itself. Always on tap, she lived her own life at Lockley and never once did she come between guardian and ward.

The transformation of Julie was an accomplished fact. Avon himself hardly knew her for the pitiful child he had abducted two years before. Her latent beauty had fairly come into its own, and the girl was really lovely, figure and face. These would have been enough to lift her out of the ruck, but her eager, downright charm hit people over the heart. Natural as the day, she was much more than attractive; her presence was actually refreshing, and those who had known it once hoped very hard that they might know it again. But tho Nol Avon took care that his ward went out and about, the girl was never so happy as when the two were together and nobody else was there. One evening in the library, Avon had bade her sit at the top of a pulpit staircase—a movable work of art, from which could be reached the highest library shelves.

"I can see you there, you see . . . Take a cushion, of course, and lean back. If it's uncomfortable, we'll try and fix something else."

Julie, rising 20, still loved to take her seat on the pulpit stair. If ever Avon protested she shook her head.

"I like to feel you can see me."

It is no good blinking the fact that the man was in love with his ward. Himself, he declined to admit the delicate truth. "Natural affection," he called it, and sometimes "second childhood," and things like that. "The uncle idolizing a favorite niece." He fought to deceive himself and got a very long way. The fact remains that pity had swelled into affection, and affection had slid into love. More than twice her age, Avon loved Julie Coleton, body and soul. October was mad about May.

"I wasn't thinking of Paris. And now may I see my ward?"

Two care-free years and 10 days . . . Then Corin rang up one evening to beg that Lord Avon would receive him the following day.

"Of course," said Nol, and wondered what was afoot.

Avon said nothing to Julie, but told Joanna Aldgate to keep her clear of Lockley until it was time for lunch. That Avon scented trouble, there can be no doubt. When Corin came into the room he was seated upon a footstool, because he was anxious to watch the solicitor's face.

This was extremely grave, and the men shook hands in the silence which waits upon serious things.

"Yes?" said Avon, quietly.

"Maj. Coleton's alive," said Corin.

"Alive?" cried Avon.

"He's been in prison, Lord Avon. I'd rather not say what for."

"Good heavens," said Ávon, rising. "And now . . ."

"His two year sentence has pushed him over the edge. He doesn't care what he says and he drinks like a fish. And he wants his fortune back . . . and his daughter, too."

"How," said Avon, "how do you know all this?"

"He staggered into my office the day before yesterday. He jeered at my amazement and—well, shortly, this was his tale. Two years ago he committed a certain crime. Finding the police on his track and knowing very well that the game was up, he persuaded his faithful valet to take his clothes and his name and to pass as Maj. Coleton, until the storm should be past. The idea was to avoid publicity, because, you see, the police didn't know who he was. Very well. He was duly arrested and charged as William Boot, and, as William Boot, he was presently put away. But he had expected two months—instead of two years, and the servant died of fever the day before the master was brought to trial. Coleton was fairly hoist with his own petard.

"And now—well, he's gone to the devil. Two years in a Roman prison have seen to that. When I talked of scandal, he hooted. He's utterly callous, Lord Avon—cares neither for God nor man. But you can't get away from the fact that he is Maj. Coleton and that, as the solicitor who propounded his will, I shall have to apply to the court to have the probate revoked."

"And . . . Julie?" said Avon quietly.

"She's unmarried, under age, and her mother is dead. Her father has a right to demand that she goes to him. But you can resist that demand—by going to court."

"When the whole thing will come out?"

"I'm afraid so, Lord Avon. Police court reporters know when they're on a good thing."

"Money?" said Avon, after silence.

"Nothing doing," said Corin. "He says he wants his daughter—'to keep him company'."

Avon wiped the sweat from his face.

"Where is he now?" he asked.

"He's—out of the way," said Corin. He lowered his voice. "I ought to be struck off the roll, but I've won us a breathing space. One of my clerks was about to leave for Bordeaux—by sea from London Bridge—a four day trip. Well, he made the fellow tight and put him aboard in his stead. That was yesterday morning. Of course he'll come back, hot foot, but we've got the inside of a week to think what to do."

"How much does he know?"

"Of Julie? Next to nothing. I said that, until he was sober, I wouldn't discuss her at all. I wouldn't say what she was doing or where she was. But when he comes back, I shall have to. I don't want to act for the man, but I'm bound to see him righted, and, what is more to the point, he must not fall into the hands of a—less sympathetic firm."

"Ah," said Avon. "And then we should be for it. Publicity, blackmail an' the rest. And it may happen any day, Corin, when once the fellow gets back."

"If only she married," the solicitor said.

"As the layman to the lawyer," said Avon, "what if she were?"

"He'd have no standing," said Corin. "He could make a scene on her doorstep—no more than that."

"Supposing," Avon said, "supposing she was engaged? The man would have to be told, but 10 to 1 he'd want to go thru with the deal. Could he get a special license? Wouldn't she have to have her father's consent?"

Corin reflected, frowning.

"No," he said. "She could marry with your consent. At the moment, you are her guardian—you can't get away from that. And you will remain her guardian, till Coleton returns to the charge. Then I shall have to take action, and your guardianship will be suspended until the probate is revoked. And then it will cease. But she isn't engaged, is she?"

"Unhappily, no—tho I've reason to think she's turned several offers down. It would have been a way out of this ghastly stew."

"No doubt about that," said Corin. "Mark you, the child's in no peril. When the probate's revoked, your guardianship will cease. But if you then decline to let her go to her father, the man can only issue a summons. And once the court knows the truth, his summons will be dismissed."

"Once the court knows the truth," said Avon. "Which means that every one else will know it, too. Can't you see the headlines? DAUGHTER HUNTS WHILE FATHER DOES TIME . . . PEER PREFERRED TO PARENT . . . FIGHT FOR SOCIETY GIRL . . . My God, it'd break her. She'd be declassée."

Avon drew himself up.

"How long have we got?" he said.

"Four clear days," said the lawyer.

Ten hours had gone by. Dinner was over and Miss Aldgate had retired, and guardian and ward were walking upon the broad terrace arm within arm.

"The great thing about us," said Avon, "the greatest thing, I think, is that you and I have always told each other the truth. We know where we are with each other, as very few people do. Well, that makes it easier for me to say tonight what I'm going to say."

"What's happened, Nol?"

"All in good time, sweetheart." [illegible] make you my wife."

Again the girl stopped dead.

"Make—me—your—wife?" she breathed.

"Yes," said Avon. "Marry the child I abducted two years ago. It's ridiculous, I know, but it happens to be the truth. I, your elderly guardian, wanted to marry my ward."

Julie was trembling.

"It's all right, sweetheart. I knew the thing was absurd. I was far too old—and infirm. But, in fact, that was what I wanted."

"I'd—I'd like to sit down, Nol."

The man picked her up in his arms and turned to the house.

"Guide me," he said quietly.

A moment later, he set her down on a sofa and took his seat on the floor.

"Go on," said Julie, gently. "Tell me the rest."

Avon Tells Julie Her Father Is Still Alive

Avon took a deep breath.

"D'you remember your father?" he said.

"Very faintly," said Julie. "You see, I never saw him after I'd gone to Glencouth."

"He's come back, my darling. He wasn't dead—after all."

"Then—then you're not my guardian?" she whispered.

"For the moment I am. Get that. And in any event you'll stay here, unless you would rather go. He's very much changed. It's better you shouldn't see him. You see, he's gone over the edge."

"What exactly do you mean, Nol?"

"He's become impossible, darling. It's probably not his fault, but he drinks excessively and he doesn't care who knows it or what he does. He'll be quite all right financially: your fortune's not been touched, and he'll have it back. But you cannot go to him. And that is what he's going to insist that you do."

"He's going to insist . . . ?"

"He swears that he'll have you back. And so we shall have to fight him—fight him in court."

"O, Nol."

"We're bound to win, my darling. But—we cannot win unless we expose his sores. And when I say 'we,' I mean 'I.' You won't appear. The lawyers and I will do it. But we shall have to prove to the court that he is not a fit person to have his daughter in charge."

"I'd better go to him," she said. "I couldn't stay here in your house, when all that had come out. You can't have a ward whose father's a——a man like that."

"My blessed child," said Avon "d'you think I'd care?"

"I should," said Julie fiercely. "You've been . . . very sweet to me . . . and . . . I'll foul your nest."

Avon caught her fingers and held them tight.

"You're growing up," he said smiling.

"Don't laugh at me, Nol. I mean it."

"I know you do. And I love you for it, Julie. But listen—I haven't done yet."

"Go on," she said.

"There is a way out, Julie. For me, a way into heaven: for you, a way of escape."

Slowly her head came round and she met his eyes.

"But if it's going to be taken, it's go to be taken at once."

"Tonight?"

"No, no. The day after tomorrow. And if we take it, Julie, your father cannot ask for you back, and so his unfortunate record will not come out."

"Do you mean——"

"Wait, my sweet. I told you just now what I wanted, as opposed to what I had hoped, and how I had very rightly, dismissed the idea. But

[illegible] among the 100 or more commercial fishermen here ever had seen him on net boat, line boat, ice supply barge or sponger. Bill had heard he'd been a rum runner around here during prohibition and Phil guessed Bill had heard right. Bill had heard a lot about Slack, Phil knew. Some day, he decided he'd have the kid recite the Slack saga. Certainly he knew where to get fish, and in this McNally deferred to him.

Thus, when the food for a three days' cruise had been loaded, when gas and bait had been taken aboard, when the tow skiff, with an outboard motor stowed safely in its midriff, had been tied on behind, when ropes were cast off and Bill was riding the topside as they made their way out of the river, McNally turned to the tall fellow, standing midway between the swivel chairs where posed Bayne and slouched Altine, and asked:

"Well, where's it to this time?"

Slack shifted a cud of tobacco, and jammed his hands tighter into his narrow hip pockets.

"I been tellin' 'em we mought fin' tarpin in them dead slieuws offen the Little Shark—the one thet's t'other side th' Big Shark. Seen any there lately?"

"You mean by the Hurricane Island?" asked McNally. This was near the spot where he had been only the day before. Here and there, among this group, the islands rose in mounded areas for more than 25 feet above sea level. Slack continued:

"I fished in them dead rivers an' slieuws one year when I was after mullet around here; I see some powerful tarpin."

Bayne Says He Favors Open Water Fishing

"That's what I want, powerful tarpin," said Altine in a high voice.

They were passing out of the river now; high above, flying with machine precision, thousands of curlew were heading out to their daily forays in the deep Everglades. Welton Bayne leaned back in his swivel chair, watching languidly.

"Well, you can have all that dead river fishing that you and Slack want," he announced. "I'll take mine in open water. Anything in the big water around the mouth of the Little Shark, McNally?"

"O, yes." Phil shouted it above the noise of the engine. "Yes, plenty of big water stuff there. Shark, sawfish, tarpon, and the like; that's right at Whitewater Bay."

Bill cut in: "That's where the Sybilla is, down at Whitewater Bay."

Hurriedly Phil caught his eye to caution him. Bill concluded: "Thet sure is a nice yacht, the Sybilla."

Welton Bayne nodded.

"Of course, of course." Then: "Well, that's fortunate, isn't it? Two birds with one stone, eh?"

What all this meant, Bill could not guess. So he merely gawked with wall eyed wonderment and went about fixing a pot of coffee. McNally swung the Tarpon Queen to the right, out thru the clustered islands and into the Gulf of Mexico for faster, smoother running. Suddenly the fatigue of a long night left him; he was wide awake, nervously eager with the realization that they were heading back in Whitewater Bay. He wondered if he would see Hallie Kent again. He wondered, too, how she had gotten along in the face of a lack of welcome.

There was no answer to that conjecture—even Hallie Kent herself, rising late after a night of troubled sleep, could not define whether she was here as a beloved daughter or as a hated interloper.

She ate breakfast in her room, then went to the sun deck, passing a desultory morning with the moody Iwald. It was not until afternoon that there were sounds of life from below, the bark of her father's explosive voice, the lower tones of Joe Dabney, evidently bent on ministration.

"Sounds like your Dad's in a decent mood," said Iwald. He was monotonously playing solitaire, without the slightest evidence of interest or enjoyment. Then Joe Dabney came from [illegible] and said:

"Your father wants to see you. If I were you, I'd hurry."

The girl rose, outwardly thanking him and inwardly wishing that she could [illegible] his surly words down his throat and choke him.

It was inevitable that this girl, as she made her way to her father's cabin, should look upon her surroundings with introspection. The Sybilla, she remembered, was nearly 12 years old, one of the last of this type of luxury ship to be fitted out before the crash of 1929.

Walking along the narrow companionway, she thought of how great a part this vessel had played in her life. There were, for instance, its castle-in-Spain aspects, when first she had seen it as a schoolgirl, riding off Newport News, like a great white diamond against a sapphire background. Then there had been the cruises which she had taken with her mother and father, each one marking a closer approach to womanhood, with new viewpoints, new ideas and aspects.

The Sybilla had meant great happiness then and equally great sorrow. Puppy love had sprouted here on winter cruises, and died in the smoke and fog of Chicago. Here dreams had come into being, and here dreams had dissipated.

For, with each year, there had come about a more perceptible, more disheartening disintegration of her father. Finally the downhill grade had been reached, gathering speed, as crews were changed, seagoing discipline slackened, standards lowered, both for those who worked aboard this floating home and those who visited it.

She paused at the salon and looked about her. Time was when this place had been immaculate with the shipshapeness of well ordered discipline, and for a moment Hallie Kent saw it as she had seen it then.

It was only imagination, but it was a thing for which she was pitifully hungry. Despite what she now saw, her heart would not let her entirely cast away her younger memories of this room; with the pale sunlight riffling thru crisp curtains, and the brass chronometer atop the fireplace mantel gleaming as only a true marine clock can shine. She recalled the careless toss of a magazine upon a comfortable couch. Just that and nothing more; a testimonial to a lived in place, where not only those who serve but those who form the household are of the type who know order, and capability, who understand restraint and at the same time bow to gayety, who can laugh well, talk well, think well, and who can entertain without drunkenness or double entendre.

All that, however, had prevailed in the past, when her mother had lived and before Gordon Kent had turned definitely downhill. Sybilla Kent had been an extremely steadying influence. With memories fading and realities taking their place, Hallie Kent realized just how great a change her mother's passing had brought about. Certainly this room was no longer a place in which to treasure recollections of smoothly beautiful moonlit nights, of tropic shores viewed from these window portholes, of happy girlhood dancing in the arms of romanticized youth.

Hallie Wishes for Mother at Sight of Furniture

Had her mother lived, those smudgy, out of date curtains long ago would have been ripped from their rods to give way to draperies which did not veritably shout their date. And this cheaply grotesque modern furniture which, no matter how high its price, would remain garish despite anything any one did to it, would never have been here. As it was, however, the angular, oversized monstrosities suffered from the added atrocities of curved doilies on cubic surfaces, and lace net armpieces where there should have been slipcovers; provided the stuff had to be there at all.

"Joe Dabney won those lace dodads at a carnival!" thought Hallie, and again wished for her mother.

The Dabneys, father and son, would not have been here were Sybilla Kent alive. Neither, for that matter, would Dr. Iwald, with his long, clammy hands, his dirt-gray eyes and his constant watchfulness, as tho he were a warden of Gordon Kent's life, able to keep existence at a level merely by so ordering it. Even this salon was a symptom, with its sprawling furniture, purchased only this past season, but already looking, the finish marred by alcohol rings, the rugs burned by cigaret butts, the floors scarred and ill-kept by the careless crew of this undermanned craft.

Hallie Kent tossed her head as if seeking to free her imagination of what might have gone on here. Then she hurried on to the door of her father's room. His voice answered her knock; she went within.

Gordon Kent was sober this afternoon, and freshened by a shave, a massage and much hot toweling which Joe Dabney had just given him. Wrapped in a multihued terry cloth robe, he lay stretched on his bed, extending a hand to his daughter as she came within:

"Well, Hallie, come here and give your old Pops a real kiss."

She obeyed, hugging him tightly; the pressure of his own arms about her was vibrantly sincere. At last he loosed her, and half raising, pawed about on the floor for his sandals.

"Here they are, dad," the girl said.

"O, thanks." He blinked. "My damned eyes aren't what they used to be. Suppose it's too much gin? Still, they say if you don't feel it, it don't hurt you. Hardly ever take on more than a quart or so. O, yesterday I did—Iwald got me sore about something. That's what was wrong when you came aboard——"

She smiled faintly.

"But you took it out on me, dad."

"Well, I didn't mean to. Push that button and see if Mikko can't bring me a Tom Collins."

Hesitantly she started for the bell, then suddenly halted.

"I want to tell you something first. The reason I didn't stay in Miami and wait until you brought the Sybilla around there, like you wanted me to."

Gordon Kent grunted.

"All right," he said, "but there's no reason why I can't listen to you just as well with a Tom Collins——"

"Yes, there is. The reason that I didn't stay is that I ran into Welton Bayne."

"Bayne, eh?" He looked at her with vaporous eyes. "Well, I guess he's got a right to go to Miami if he wants to."

"I suppose so. And I've got a right to get out—if I want to."

Gordon Kent rose and began to pace:

"Did he bother you?"

"No. But I guessed that he was coming out here. And I wanted to get here first and tell you he was coming." She seized his arms impulsively. "Please don't make any more deals with him, dad."

The girl faced him tragically.

"Dad," she begged, "You're going to tell me I'm crazy—maybe I am. Maybe it's just imagination that makes me blame Welton Bayne for everything that's gone wrong for us."

"Gone wrong for us?" He stared. "Nothing's gone wrong. I'm on top of the pig. Doing a better business than any other manufacturing jeweler in the midwest."

"Oh, I'm not talking about money." She caught him tautly by the arms. "But where's all our happiness? Look what happened with mother; she'd never have gotten so sick if it hadn't been for all the quarrelling and bickering. That began when Welton Bayne came into the picture."

"That proves how wrong she was. I'd been buying diamonds from Bayne for four years before she ever met him. But she decided that a personal prejudice should influence business. Suppose she did dislike him? What difference did that make? I didn't like him either; never did. That's no reason I shouldn't buy his diamonds, if the quality and price were right. But mother wouldn't have it that way——"

"Did you know mother was always afraid of him?"

"Afraid of what?" He barked it. "What's wrong with him?"

"Maybe a man can't see it. But to a woman, Welton Bayne looks tricky. He acts tricky. And he is tricky. You know, mother was always worried, for fear he'd cheat you in some terrible way. And I've always been afraid." Suddenly she added: "And so have you, or you wouldn't be so nervous whenever you're about to make a big buy from him!"

He broke away from her, angrily.

"It's always a strain, buying diamonds, no matter who you're dealing with. They run into money."

"Just the same, you always drink a lot more when you've got a deal on with him. You know you do."

"I always do a little drinking when I've got a deal on with anybody—helps a fellow think."

"Then you have got a deal on with Welton." Suddenly she realized that she had brought him no news. "I might have known it. And I was to sit and wait in Miami like a good little girl until he'd made you a nice price, and then twisted you around his finger. Proved to you what a fine fellow he was, generous, and handsome——"

"Well, he is good looking, isn't he?"

She chose her words.

"Not good looking enough, dad, for me to be handed over to him as part payment for a diamond purchase!"

Gordon Kent stood for a moment in awkward silence. Then slowly he walked to Hallie, staring hard into her eyes.

"Good heavens, child, I never looked at it that way before. This fellow hasn't made passes at you, has he?"

She shrugged.

"O, he's always formal enough to call them marriage."

Girl Sees Tarpon Queen Heading for Sybilla

He turned away, fumbling along the wall for the push button. "That puts another angle on things," he said cryptically.

The girl looked out the porthole toward the placid bay. At last her eyes centered; she stood there staring until she was sure of what she saw. Far in the distance, a white dot revealed itself, riding high above the water, with foam green pluming from its prow, as the Tarpon Queen swung into the true expanse of Whitewater Bay and headed for the Sybilla.

"That's Welton Bayne now," she said.

Mikko, the Filipino steward, knocked at the door, in answer to the push button, bringing with him the desired Tom Collins. Gordon Kent pawed for it, drinking greedily. Then when the brown boy had de- [illegible] now, my darling, Fate has played into my hands. . . . If you will become my wife we'll be out of the wood. Once you're married, you're safe . . .

WAY OF ESCAPE

"Well, here is the epilogue.

"If you will do me this honor, I give you my word that nothing at all will be changed. We shall behave exactly as we have behaved, for the last two years. Miss Aldgate will stay with us, and except that you will have a new surname, every single thing will be exactly the same . . . exactly—in every way.

"The only thing is this—that if we are going to do it, we've got to be quick. We must have a special license, and the Reverend Joe must marry us here in the chapel in two days' time. An' then we'll all three go abroad—wherever you like. Two months on the continent, while your father is settling down. And then we'll come back and go on the same as before. That I swear to you, Julie. Our marriage will be a ripple—the jump of a fish. And then the ripple fades out, and the pleasant, lazy water slides on, with nothing to show that its surface has ever been touched."

Julie put a hand to her head.

"I'm rather dazed," she said slowly. "The whole thing seems like a dream. May I —think things over, Nol? I'm not as young as you think."

"Of course. You must sleep on a thing like this. But make up your mind before 10 o'clock. If I am to get that license, I'll have to shift."

"I'll let you know before then."

Three weeks had gone by.

On learning that his daughter was married, Major Coleton had abused all women in quite unprintable terms: this somewhat irrational storm was immediately followed by a tidal wave of self-pity, in which the impiety of children was sharply contrasted with the devotion of sires. Finding Corin unsympathetic, the man had got to his feet and commanded him with great dignity to render his bill of costs; he had then staggered out of the office and been turned from the doors of five other firms of solicitors the same afternoon.

Meanwhile, the Lake of Como, which Julie had never seen, was casting about her its immemorial charm. Finding a villa to let on the shore of the lake, Avon had taken the place for a couple of months. With a launch and a private quay, with a man and a maid from Lockley, and Cromer, to drive the car, with weather as fair as the prospects on every side, the menage a trois made bold to let the world slip and to "fleet the time as they did in the golden world."

An unbelievable moon was lighting the lovely scene, limning the harlequin magic the everlasting hills, lacing the lake with silver, turning the villa's loggia into a royal box. Julie was sitting on the parapet, swinging a slim, bare leg, and Avon was in a low chair, with his eyes on his lady's face. The salons were dark. Miss Aldgate had gone to bed.

"Once you said this," said Julie, "that the great thing about us was that we always told one another the truth."

"I remember it perfectly," said Avon.

"Well, now it's my turn," said Julie. "I've something to say."

"Go on, my dear," said Avon, crossing his legs.

"You know I wouldn't give you my answer until the next day?"

"I think that was very natural."

Nol Promises Julie to Hear Her Story

"That's only because you're Nol. A thousand girls out of a thousand would have flung their arms round your neck before you were half way thru."

"My sweet, I—"

"They would. O, and please sit still. I—I want you to hear me out before you get up."

"Very well," said Avon.

"Well, as I was saying, they would. They'd have thanked their God and flung their arms round your neck. But I couldn't do that, because I had to decide whether I had the right to accept your name. I knew you were doing it to save me, and tho I should be safe as your wife, a father-in-law like my father was such a very nice dowry to bring to a man like you.

"Well, I thought it over till two, and I finally made up my mind that it couldn't be done. But in the morning I—I weakened. You see, for more than a year I'd wanted [illegible] your wife. Please sit still — you promised . . ." Avon sank back. "Well, I knew it was out of the question—that I wasn't cast for that rôle. But that was my heart's desire. And now, here it was at my feet. And if I said 'no,' and you fought my father in court and it all came out, then it would be out of the question for good and all, for Lord Avon could never marry a woman whose name was mud.

"I think that's all—except that you promised that nothing at all should be changed, that 'every single thing' should be the same as before, that I'd have a different surname — no more than that. Well, you've kept your word, of course. You always do. But I never asked for that promise . . . and if you want me to be happy, you'll take it back."

Julie was in the man's arms, held close to his heart. So they stayed for perhaps a minute, not moving at all. Then Avon bent his head, and Julie's cool hands went up and guided his lips to hers.

The girl was whispering.

"You never said you loved me — that evening."

"I—I did my best to keep sentiment out of the bill."

"You felt my position?"

The man smiled into her eyes.

"You are growing up, Lady Avon."

"I am grown up, my darling. I've been grown up for ages. But in the eyes of their guardians, wards don't grow up. I can't tell you what I went thru—in love with a man who I knew was in [illegible]

The rest of the sentence was lost, for Avon had managed to find his mouth for himself.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

A wide range of juvenile ages is considered in today's pattern offerings. All are practical, but pretty, styles, easy to make and kind to the budget.

One design creates both a princess frock for that very little girl in your family, and also a romper suit for the youngest heir to the family name. Tiny sleeves are used in both models, and Peter Pan collars. The girl's frock is buttoned all the way down the front to make it easy for Cissy to dress herself when mother is busy. Functional buttoning simplifies dressing procedures for uninitiated Johnny. All the inexpensive cottons are the materials to use for these patterns, but you may use a more costly fabric for the princess dress if you want it for party occasions.

The jumper frock is one which schoolgirls will like for its tailored loveliness. The blouse has long, full sleeves, a rever neckline, and buttons down the front. The jumper is a neatly paneled affair with comfortable shoulder straps. Woolen, velveteen, corduroy, or crêpe may be used for the jumper skirt, while the blouse should be washable.

Style No. 2945 is designed for sizes 6 months and 1, 2, and 3. Size 2 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the dress; ¾ yard for rompers.

Style No. 3100 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 54 inch material for jumper; 1⅜ yards of 39 inch for blouse.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

This Trend Is Outstanding for Simplicity

By Claire Winslow.

It's a season of extremes in decoration.

You can make your home just as elegant or just as informal as you please. You can introduce all the subtle beauty of Chinese art objects, colors and fabrics into the furnishings of your living room, or the quiet, refined distinction of the Federal American period if you prefer that, or you can go Dutch and be just as country as a turnip.

One newly decorated series of rooms blows the horn for simplicity. The living-dining room and the kitchen have Pennsylvania Dutch touches. The living room has wide plank flooring, three walls papered to imitate pine paneling and the fourth painted a deep, vivid green. Against this is placed a large white cupboard which has been gayly decorated in reds and greens in quaint old Pennsylvania Dutch style. Painted peasant chairs are on either side and on the wall are old milk-glass plates with fruit decorations which have been made into pictures simply by framing them in shadow boxes.

The fireplace is faced in floral tiles and a cheerful hooked rug with huge red cabbage roses is spread on the floor before it. Chairs and couch are done in French petticoat percale in red and green, and lamp shades, too, are made of this material. A drop leaf table is used for dining. One window is filled with plants. Curtains, ruffled tie-backs, are of white cotton.

An amusing touch in the bedroom is an old organ which has been painted white and is placed against one wall. Low, open book cases range along another, and the beds are opposite, wearing spreads of red and white ticking. Bright red calico is tacked to the wall for a dado. Upper walls are white. And on the floor, also painted white, bright red roses have been stenciled. Ingenuity, originality have given this room its charm and prove once more that brains can make a little money go a long way.

This informal house has a riotous room for a small boy, a room with a bright red ceiling, a mural of monkeys in a gold cage on the wall above the bed, a blue and white bedspread that looks like a circus canopy, and curtains of two lengths—one long and blue, the other short and white. The furniture is sturdy, practical, and is painted to take hard knocks.

You can copy any room in this series, if you wish. Or you can acquire a single couch or chair, a lamp or table. All are in the medium price range. And as for bright ideas, the place blooms with them. Go and see for yourself.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey

There's no special rule about hat fashions this year, but two trends stand out for their smartness and popularity. One is the "down-in-back" draped hat, and the other is the face-framing variety. The pattern "yours truly" has concocted for today's presentation makes both types of hats and an envelope bag to keep them company.

With the headline of the hat resting just behind your pompadour or pouff, the crown is sleek and fitted, expanding into full, draped coverup for the back hair. Soft felts and other drapable fabrics are the selections to make, and the hat may be of fabric to match your woolen or velvet dress, or of some crisper material to contrast. If you like, put a clip high at the temple as the only adornment.

The face-framing beret has swashbuckling smartness, and is an especially good choice for your tailored wardrobe items. The bag should be lined with buckram to give it "body," and fastened with a slide fastener to keep all your valuables, and not-so-valuables, intact.

Style No. T-8742 is designed for one size, adaptable to any head measurement. Either hat version requires ⅝ yard of 35 inch fabric, ⅝ yard for the bag, too.

Child Expert's New Booklet Now Available

Gladys Huntington Bevans, whose daily and Sunday articles on child guidance have been valued by TRIBUNE readers for many years, has written a new booklet, which is a compilation of leaflets she has been sending to parents, upon request, in the past. "You and Your Young Child," an attractive, book form volume with a pale gray and Dubonnet cover, is a comprehensive reference answering the many perplexing and difficult problems mothers encounter during the early years of their children's lives.

The child is not a static human being, Mrs. Bevans cautions harassed parents. Small boys and girls are growing personalities, and this constant change accounts for the passing phases which may threaten to disrupt discipline and fray parental nerves. In her second chapter, the adviser suggests keeping these active personalities, your children, constructively occupied and, hence, happy and well balanced. Allowing children freedom of the house, too, makes for family harmony.

From her contacts with mothers thru many years in an advisory capacity, Mrs. Bevans considers adolescence the most "difficult" period, and a chapter of the booklet deals helpfully with this problem.

"It is only the child who is constantly denied and frustrated to suit some grown person's convenience who becomes unhappy and unmanageable," writes Mrs. Bevans. She recommends that mothers welcome signs of a little child's growth as an indication that he is normal.

"The Convalescent Child," "Amusing the Young Patient," "Understanding Your Child," "Obedience and the Child," "Living Harmoniously Together," "A Paean on Patience," "Preventing Stubbornness," "Don't Touch," "The 'No' Habit," "Temper Tantrums," "Advice on Nervousness," and "Encouraging Neatness" are subsequent chapter headings.

Readers may procure "You and Your Young Child" at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. If you wish to have the volume mailed, send 18 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred] with your name and address, in care of Mrs. Bevans.

Dutch Girl Transfer Motif

By Nancy Cabot.

The Dutch girl motif for days-of-the-week towels is fascinating needlework which adds a decorative touch to any kitchen. The hot iron transfer motifs measure approximately 5 by 5½ inches. The embroidery is done in outline stitch, while the days of the week are worked in cross-stitch. If the days of the week are omitted, these same little girls make effective wall pictures.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the Dutch girls, No. 722, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Follow These Tips in Washing of Slip Covers

A breezy fall day, a tub of bubbling suds, and a taut washline in a shady spot outdoors are the necessary properties for washing summer slip covers. After removing loose dust, soak covers for a half hour in cool, sudsy water. Remove from soaking water and wash in moderately warm suds, preferably in mechanical washer.

Never wash more than one pattern at the same time, even tho you are certain the colors are fast. Wring from washer into tub of soapy water and allow to soak while another piece is having its first wash. Wring into clear rinse water and repeat until all soap has been removed. When hanging up to dry, use two parallel lines and pin the pieces to both of them. It is best to defer the ironing until the slip covers are to be used again.

Universal day—A comfortable day to spend with the family and have close friends in for dinner.

November—Those in a 4 year this year have a 6 month next month. Since this whole year the emphasis has been on being practical and thrifty, the stress this month can be put on putting the family on a budget, trimming the diet down to healthful lines, putting the clothes of the family in order, and fulfilling all the little obligations that come under the heading of duty, whether duty to your job, your home, or your country. To those in the army this will be a month making stronger the sense of service. In the domestic scene the emphasis will be on service, too. You can't afford to shirk with these numbers.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Having raved and ranted these many years against overcalls that court enormous penalties without even the excuse of possibly leading to sound game contracts, it is only fitting that I should publish the following letter as just one more bit of evidence [if more is needed] for my side of the case.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Long have I preached the tenets of strong overcalls. Ardent have been my pleas to headstrong partners to apply caution in that phase of the game. All too often, violators of this rule fail to learn their proper lesson because of unexpected strength in their partner's hand or weakness of the opponents. The other evening, however, I obtained a sincere convert to the cause. The gentleman in question made what he termed 'not such a terrible overcall.' He probably will be more careful on the next occasion. The hands:

North, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A Q 10 9 4
♥ A 4 3
♦ Q J 8 7
♣ 10

WEST
♠ K J 8 6
♥ Q
♦ 10 9 2
♣ 8 7 6 5 2

EAST
♠ 3 2
♥ K 9 7 5 2
♦ 6 5 4
♣ A Q 4

SOUTH
♠ 7 5
♥ J 10 8 6
♦ A K 3
♣ K J 9 3

My partner opened with a spade and the victim of the story, East, overcalled with two hearts. My decision was not too easy. It looks as tho we must have a game somewhere and yet there should be a sizable penalty waiting us from vulnerable opponents. I had never played with this partner before, so decided on a double just to see what would happen. All passed.

"The seven of spades was opened and a singleton club returned which declarer fatally finessed to my king. I returned a club which was trumped and a diamond back gave my partner another ruff, dropping East's ace of clubs. North led another diamond and I returned a spade, dummy playing low. North then laid down his ace of spades, declarer ruffed low, and I overtrumped, returning a diamond. North took and played another spade and East, having nothing left but trumps, played low, and I again overtrumped. I then played the jack of hearts, North took with his lone ace and on the return of the off card, East had to trump with his king, setting up my ten, or ruff low and give me another 'over.'

"Two thousand point. were ample exchange for a mere three no trump or four spade game.

"Unquestionably East's bid was bad and it certainly was poetic justice to have had it slaughtered after the many times I've seen similar bids get just moderately 'touched up.'

"A. C., Chicago."

Bridge Problem.

SOUTH
♠ A 7

♣ A Q 3

There are no trumps and South leads. North and South are to win five tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the diamond, which West wins, East discarding a heart. If West returns the diamond, North discards the spade. If East discards another heart, South can discard from either black suit; but if East discards a club on the return of the diamond, South will discard the spade seven. If East discards a spade, South discards a club.

If West leads a heart, instead of the diamond, North wins and leads the spade, and East loses three clubs.

If West leads a high club, instead of a red suit, North plays low, South wins and leads the heart, so that North can make the play in spades to win both jack and ace of clubs later.

The false solution is to begin with the spade ace, as West can discard clubs and East can lead the king of hearts.

A 2,000 point penalty should speak for itself—loudly and emphatically enough to make further argument redundant. However, it may be that many readers will take the view that the catastrophe descending on East was due as much to "hard luck" as to his own guilt. I should like to explode any such idea. The tremendous danger East put himself into was not the only defect of his overcall. It is not illogical to take a chance when there is something substantial to be gained. In this case, however, East risked an enormous penalty for nothing! Let me prove this statement. Let's suppose that East's fantastic two heart overcall "found gold." Let's exchange the West and South hands. Now we have:

NORTH
♠ A Q 10 9 4
♥ A 4 3
♦ Q J 8 7
♣ 10

WEST
♠ 7 5
♥ J 10 8 6
♦ A K 3
♣ K J 9 3

EAST
♠ 3 2
♥ K 9 7 5 2
♦ 6 5 4
♣ A Q 4

SOUTH
♠ K J 8 6
♥ Q
♦ 10 9 2
♣ 8 7 6 5 2

Certainly in his most optimistic mood East cannot hope for a better dummy than we have now given him. Yet, and notwithstanding, what does his bid profit him? Nothing! The bidding now proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 hearts[!]	2 spades	4 hearts
4 spades

Since North's four spade bid can easily be fulfilled and since East-West will be penalized at least 500 points if they venture to five hearts, it is obvious that East originally put out his neck for no good purpose. He has "hit" his partner with beautiful support. Yet he still cannot really compete against the opponents with their superior spade suit and their nonvulnerability.

Readers will do well to consider all angles of overcalls before they make them.

Parents Find Child's Every Age Is "Difficult"

Best to Take Problems as They Arise

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

When mothers meet, the conversation inevitably veers to the subject of children, the adjustments that have to be made and the problems each mother must meet.

Such a discussion was in progress the other day at the home of a friend, and I listened with interest.

"Really, I don't know which is the most trying age to live thru," said one mother. "My two girls are at the in-between age, and they seem to have me on the go every minute.

"They seem absolutely irresponsible, never take anything seriously, just want to float thru each day. I'm quite sure neither of them would comb her hair or brush her teeth if I didn't constantly remind her."

"You think the in-between age is the difficult time! Just wait until your girls reach the adolescent years! You'll look back and realize you really didn't have any real problems at all," said another mother.

"My children are now all between 13 and 20 years of age, and something new and perplexing crops up every day. They think they know how to handle and do everything, and that their parents are old-fashioned."

"We had a poser for a while with our daughter [my two sons are now married and away from home] because she, at the age of 16, thought she should have everything in the way of clothes that her heart desired," put in another woman.

"We, like most people, I suppose, have a certain sum of money on which to live, and have to budget accordingly. Connie simply couldn't understand it, so I decided to let her have a given amount of money with which she was to buy everything she needed. I usually made some of her clothes, but she never seemed to think they were quite as good looking as those from the stores, after she'd reached the teen age.

"I didn't abandon her to her inexperience, but went with her and helped her plan. She was dismayed and sometimes very much upset at the cost of things, and actually congratulated me on my ability to make money go so far; asked me if I would mind making her a skirt, dress, slips or panties, if she purchased the materials, so that she could stretch the allowance to meet all contingencies, and that she'd be very satisfied with my handiwork."

Despite all our misgivings and our certainty that each phase of our children's lives is more difficult than the one just past, or the one to come, they usually turn out to be quite satisfactory young men and women. We simply have to take all the vicissitudes and problems as they appear.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some favorite household help; something that lightens labor and gets results? Is there some comfort or convenience you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

K. T. H., Evanston—Whenever a hot dish leaves a white mark on a table top I rub spot immediately with a cloth that I've wrapped around a solid lump of butter.

Ellen C., Chicago—I remove my bacon for cooking from refrigerator quite a while before I want to use it. I find slices are less likely to cling together and tear when I try to get them apart.

Anna Jones, Springfield, Ill.—When I remove contents of one purse into another I usually forget half the things I want most. Why wouldn't it be a good idea if all purses could have standard size zipper lining bag that could be zipped out of one purse and zipped into another? In this way the transferring of one's belongings would be greatly simplified.

Mrs. Graham C., Cedar Rapids, Ia.—We have found that family life moves more smoothly since we decided that each of our three children should have bathroom towels of different shades. Less disputes in the family circle!

Mrs. J. M., Chicago—If you have men in the family who are "fishermen," you can mend those yellow slickers with Scotch tape. And when they get sticky I relieve the trouble by rubbing slicker with everyday talcum powder.

Dora S., Chicago—Since I've a large family and have to do a lot of cleaning and pressing myself, I wonder why some one doesn't invent a cloth you can use for pressing which has been chemically treated so it picks up spots as you lay it over garment and press it.

Mrs. L. W., Chicago—I use spring clothes pins to keep the wax paper lining of my batter pans steady. Often when I used to pour batter into pan the paper would slip and slide under dough. Now clothes pins hold wax paper steady and my hands are free to do the pouring. I just clamp them on edge of pan, holding paper firm at same time.

Now—please—your idea!

Four out of five have it. . . . More specifically, we mean four out of five dresses in the new fall collections show a marked Chinese influence. Dynasty colors, loose flowing sleeves, kimono shoulders, long, straight molded bodices, oriental emblems and pins, all these tricks are used with charming effect.

The dress at the top of the sketch is one-piece, but with a straight peplum to give it a two-piece effect. Straight, loose sleeves, deep armholes, and Chinese masks for buttons carry the Chinese story. A contrasting color encircles the armhole. Brown with turquoise, gold with green, or blue with wine. Under $14.

A combination of rabbit's hair and wool is the medium used for the youthful design on the second figure.

It is a light, soft blue and a band of grosgrain, on which the design is painted, binds the placket and gives added flare to the full gathered skirt.

The two-piece black crêpe dress has a slim, long sleeved blouse embroidered all over with braid. On the left shoulder is worn an oriental pin of a woman's head carved from a jade colored stone mounted on gold.

The long, molded bodice of No. 4 has a tiny, perky flare at the hemline, where little 2 inch vents release the closeness of the fit. Here, again, accenting color calls attention to the shoulder area. Buttons dot the outside sleeve seam, and gold Chinese emblems decorate the chest. The dress may be found in black crêpe with red, green, or gold accents, or green with biege. Under $8.

Dolman sleeves and gathered fullness at the shoulderline provide a soft, graceful line. This fifth dress is black crêpe with a strip of lacquer red beaded with turquoise outlining the sloping shoulder and the waistline.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

There are tricks to applying powder that help in achieving the perfect makeup that doesn't look like a makeup. The shade must be neither too light nor too dark in contrast to the natural skin tone, and it must be applied generously, then brushed down carefully to give a smooth coat that blends with the texture of the skin.

One of the most expert of makeup men says that the one time a woman should violate the good rule of upward and outward movement in using beauty aids on her face is when she powders. Because even the most delicate of skins has an infinitesimal amount of down on it, the perfect way to smooth powder is with a light, downward stroke so that the coating isn't roughened even slightly by the fine hairs.

This man has a theory that women do a little wishful thinking when they choose their powder shade. We like to think that our skins are fairer than they actually are, and we're much more inclined to choose a shade that's too light rather than too dark, he says, which is one reason why so many of us look obviously, rather than unobtrusively, powdered when we're made up.

It's rather easy to give the skin the illusion of being lighter than it is by using a light shade of powder beneath one that matches the skin tone exactly. This first, lighter coat of powder should be less heavy in texture than the top coat, however.

Powder never should be rubbed into the skin. It should be patted on, generously, even smearily, allowed to "settle" for a moment, and then brushed down smoothly with a soft brush. This is the way it's done in the movie makeup labs, and no better system ever has been invented.

The powder should be brushed carefully around the eyes, the nose, and the mouth corners, and all these skin surfaces should receive their share of powder, some of which is brushed out later. The final effect is better. Then, after the final brushing, do the brows and lashes with a stiffer bristled brush to remove every flake of the powder so they won't look gray.

Powder won't polka dot if it's the right texture and if it's properly applied. It will remain on longer, too, and it will blend perfectly with the texture and color tone of the skin.

Read Antoinette Donnelly's article in the Graphic section of today's paper. She tells about flowers for football games.

Eleanor Nangle, "thru her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

To the rescue of those with doors and windows and drawers that stick come two materials. One of these is a crayon-like stick that surface-lubricates many articles of metal, wood, rubber, or plastic. Also a material of a jelly-like substance which you can apply with a brush to gliding edges of doors, cabinets, windows, and drawers. As it dries the lubricant is absorbed and a film seals the surface. Since moisture cannot penetrate the film, according to manufacturers' claim, wood hasn't the tendency to swell and doors and windows swing open and shut with the greatest of ease.

Now we see a plastic as one of the principal ingredients of a new floor tile on the market. This tile combines color pigment and asbestos fiber and can be laid over cement or wood and below grade. This tile is resilient and resistant to acids, grease, alkalies, and dents. It is available in more than 30 colors, and the tiles can be obtained in some 16 sizes.

You will find asbestos cement manufactured to stop all the air leaks around your ash door, fire door, and base of your furnace or boiler. These are the days to attend to these "costly" little leaks that can "cool off" your fire or let the heat escape.

Have you seen the brilliantly colored, sparkling glass that bends and can easily and quickly be applied to any smooth or hard surface? Handsome for a bathroom, and available in 30 colors, this new decorative material is growing in popularity and worth investigation if you want to do something different for your bathroom this fall.

Crocheted cotton bath mats done in a heavy, four ply cotton are an ideal choice for gift suggestions. They require little or no time to create, and the diamond pattern included in the mat affords an interesting design. This cotton is soft and easy to work with, and is available in about 25 colors, so that any possible color combination is available to match the bathroom or to contrast.

For instructions in crocheting the cotton bath mat, No. 887, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Did Samson Feast on a Lion With Stomach Acid Pains?

The Bible tells us how Samson feasted on a lion. It isn't likely that he could have done so if he suffered after-eating pains. Those who are distressed with acid stomach pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 25c box of Udga Tablets. They must help or money refunded. At drug stores everywhere.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The Stamps and Coins advertising column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

In a recent issue of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE there was a discussion of alternations in the makeup of the Standard Postage Stamp catalog which would enable the publishers to continue binding that work in one volume even tho it increases year by year. There is no way to avoid the fact that eventually this catalog must be issued in two volumes and later in three, if postage stamps continue to be the normal method of prepaying postage.

There are numerous arrangements which can be made in the text of the catalog to provide for logical division into volumes but in every case it should be borne in mind that the publisher is more interested in selling both volumes than in any arrangement which would permit collectors to satisfy their needs with one volume.

One suggestion which has been made by local collectors and which probably answers all the publishers' needs is that the catalog form remain as at present and that it be divided at the center with titles A to I [or J] in one volume and title J [of K] to Z in the other. This method of dividing the catalog would still make it necessary for the average collector to have both volumes.

The suggestion has been advanced that the stamps of the United States and Great Britain, including all of the colonies, dominions, and protectorates of both, be listed in the first volume and that the stamps of other countries be listed in the second volume. This would please a great many collectors for it is not unusual for collections in this country to be made up of those stamps to the exclusion of all others. There also are numerous collectors of the stamps of the United States and British North America who would be pleased to find their needs in a single volume.

Another suggestion is that the first volume include the stamps of the United States and possessions, and those of the remaining 20 member nations of the Pan American Union. This, it appears, might be a very happy solution of the problem for it follows along with the Good Neighbor plan which is making some headway for the first time in history. A modification of the Pan American volume would be a western hemisphere volume. However, there are not many collectors who limit their collections in this manner for that invalves collecting some British, French, and Dutch colonial stamps without collecting the mother country.

A plan which has not been seen in print would divide the catalog chronologically and place the stamps of the 19th century and those of the 20th centry in another. This catalog would find wide favor, it is believed, for it would fit right in with the International album, another publication of the same company. Most of the general collectors actually are general collectors of 19th or of 20th century stamps and not of both. A single volume of the catalog would suffice for either group.

Another suggestion which should be advanced involves a complete rearrangement of the catalog titles. In such a scheme the United States would be placed first and it would be followed by the United States possessions and protectorates. Then would follow in alphabetical order the major powers of the world each followed by its colonial possessions, and lastly the autonomous nations or states of Africa, Asia, America, Europe, and Oceanica. At first glance this appears to be a startling rearrangement, but actually it is the system followed by the same publisher in the series of high grade albums for specialists. Such a catalog could be broken up into a number of volumes and with a system of supplements it would be possible to publish new editions of each part perhaps only as often as every two or three years.

Suggestions from readers dealing with this problem will be welcomed.

Advice has been received from Steven Mills of Chicago that Hungary issued, on Sept. 21, a series of stamps to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of the statemen, Stephen Széchenyi. The stamps will be available for postage until July, 1942.

The 10 filler stamps is olive green and bears a portrait or Széchenyi and his family coat of arms.

The 16f is brown and shows Széchenyi as the founder of the avademy of science with its building in the background.

The 20f, purple, pictures a giant widening the Kazan pass on the lower Danube and symbolizes Széchenyi's great work in improving the navigation of this river.

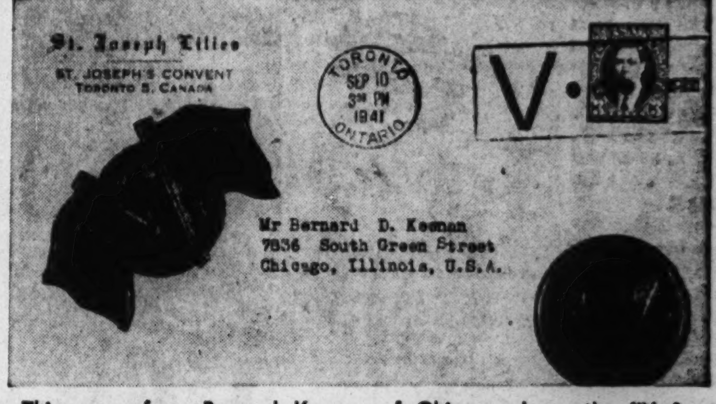
The 32f, red-orange, shows another great project made possible by Széchenyi—the suspension bridge at Budapest designed by Adam Clark, an English architect.

The final value of the set is a 40f blue stamp symbolizing Mercury and showing a view of a steamboat and a railroad locomotive.

North Shore Philatelic society announces that Capt. Jack Knight of United Air Lines will be guest speaker Nov. 10 at the Edgewater Beach hotel. A complete notice of the meeting will appear later.

The Postal Bulletin for Oct. 7 published a complete list, as of that date, of military posts and stations with postoffices. Collectors who are intending to obtain postmarks from all defense offices must operate in high speed for there are over 600 offices listed and this includes nothing from the navy.

John Alden, RCD 263, Bergenfield, N. J., announces that Pilgrim Cachets will sponsor cachets for Lincoln's Gettysburg address on Nov. 19, and for the ratification of the bill of rights by Virginia on Dec. 15. Send covers unsealed and unstuffed but addressed and with 3 cent stamps affixed and include 1 cent per cover for forwarding. Ask also for full information concerning the 53 state-territorial seals covers.



This cover from Bernard Keenan of Chicago shows the "V for Victory" slogan cancelation which is now is use in several Canadian postoffices. A victory emblem is affixed to the cover, that at the lower right shows a portrait, perhaps of Churchill, with a V for a choker collar, and portions of Canadian and American flags at either side.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

It sometimes is helpful to take time out to explain to our readers the work and routine of this department, since it helps to avoid misunderstandings, and saves time and effort for all involved.

As a rule we try to print appeals which are typical of general needs. If we request an overcoat, size 38, we generally have records of 20 or more calls for the same item, in order to use our space in a manner which will help the greatest number of persons. Surplus offers which come in, in response to a specific appeal, can then be referred to other needy cases. However, it is not always possible to follow this method of "killing several birds with one stone," particularly when we have calls for unusual items.

A reader who recently called to offer help became quite indignant with us. We had requested help for an elderly couple, and the response from our readers had been generous and prompt. When Mrs. X. called to offer her aid, and was informed that the individuals mentioned already had been supplied by other readers, she seemed greatly upset. "A funny thing," she fumed. "Every time I call some one else seems to have already given the necessary help. I think you make up those cases, and they're not real persons at all!"

• • •

Mrs. J. moved recently, and sent a postal card the day before her departure, requesting that some articles be picked up the following morning. That would be an impossibility, even if postal cards were not delayed in delivery. Her communication did not arrive until the morning she specified and, since we have no pickup service, and the majority of our clients are without telephones, it allowed no time for getting in touch with them. We must have at least 48 hours' notice and, whenever possible, we like to have the telephone number of the donor in order that a definite appointment may be made. This saves time and effort for all.

In offering items of any kind, please specify exactly what you wish to give, rather than write: "I have a bundle of clothing for some needy family." We try to place clothing with families requiring specific sizes, so that it will be wearable without alteration. In the case of children's apparel it is necessary that we have information as to the age and sex of the child it is intended to fit.

2 Mistakes Wives So Often Make

Because of inward shyness or ignorance, many married women make needless mistakes—risk health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use over-strong solutions of acids which can burn or scar delicate tissues. Today risks are needless. For science has given womankind Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. High Price of Milk Is a Blow to the Food Budget

Cooking Editor Devises Some Menu 'Dodges'

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The high cost of milk is the saddest blow of all to a pinched food budget. Milk should not be a luxury. It should be available to everybody, babies, children, and adults. Milk is especially important when there is only a little money to spend for food, because other elements of a nutritious diet are likely to be lacking.

Evaporated and dried milk are a partial solution for many families. They may be used freely in cooking, and even for drinking, altho, in the latter case, the flavor of fresh milk is much more pleasant.

Careful menu planning is another help. Often money can be saved on other food, leaving more for the milk bill, but diet adjusting needs to be done with intelligence so that the economy dinner remains in healthful balance.

The aim should be to provide each person with the following foods, then to fill in the rest of the diet with bread, butter, cereals, and whatever else is desired and inexpensive enough to be allowed.

ESSENTIALS OF ADEQUATE DIET.

1. Three or four cups of milk a day for a child, two for each adult, if possible. A part may be provided in cooked foods, but it is especially important for children to have, at the very minimum, a pint a day to drink.
2. Three or four eggs a week per person, one a day, if possible, at least for children. Meat or another protein food for the rest of the family every day.
3. Orange juice, tomato juice, grapefruit, or other citrus fruit every day, or almost every day, to provide vitamin C. Canned tomatoes are an inexpensive source of this vitamin.
4. At least one kind of fruit in addition to orange or tomato juice, for everybody in the family.
5. A mild green vegetable daily for young children, and at least two vegetables in addition to potatoes for the rest of the family.

It takes careful buying to provide all these elements in a low cost diet, no telephoning for groceries, for mother must go to market and really shop for bargains in food.

The following menus can stand a bit of paring here and there if it is necessary to eliminate any of the foods or to cut down on quantity to effect a saving, but such adjusting should be done judiciously.

A WEEK OF LOW COST MENUS.

SUNDAY.

BREAKFAST—Tomato juice, soft-cooked eggs, whole wheat toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

SUPPER—Toasted whole wheat and cheese sandwiches, cabbage salad with green pepper and pineapple, plain cupcakes, cocoa.

MONDAY.

BREAKFAST—Fresh or canned grapefruit juice, cornbread, bacon, milk for children, coffee for adults.

TUESDAY.

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, enriched farina, raisin bread toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

LUNCH—Creamed salmon on toast, chopped spinach with onion dressing, bananas, milk for children, tea for adults.

WEDNESDAY.

BREAKFAST—Tomato juice, oatmeal with prunes, soft cooked eggs, muffins, milk for children, coffee for adults.

LUNCH—Scalloped corn, salad of canned peas, celery, cubes of cheese, and pickle, whole wheat bread, fresh apples, milk for all.

DINNER — Braised pork chops, baked potatoes, creamed onions, enriched bread, steamed chocolate pudding, soft custard sauce, milk for children, tea or coffee for adults.

THURSDAY.

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, cornmeal waffles, brown sugar sirup, milk for children, coffee for adults.

LUNCH — Split pea soup, toast, stuffed celery, burnt sugar cake, milk for all.

DINNER—Braised beef liver, shoestring potatoes, mashed baked squash, red cabbage and green pepper salad, whole wheat bread, rice-raisin pudding, milk for children, coffee for adults.

FRIDAY.

BREAKFAST — Tomato juice, enriched farina, poached eggs, whole wheat toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

LUNCH — Baked potatoes, sweet-sour red cabbage, bran muffins, canned pears, milk.

DINNER—Oyster stew, crackers; string bean, celery, and pickle salad; apple crisp or apple bread pudding, milk for children, coffee for adults.

SATURDAY.

BREAKFAST — Prune juice, oatmeal with brown sugar and top milk, raisin coffee cake, milk for children, coffee for adults.

LUNCH—Cream of tomato soup, toast, carrot sticks, fresh fruit, milk for children, tea for adults.

DINNER—Braised boneless breast of lamb, baked sweet potatoes, mashed turnips, red cabbage salad, enriched bread, peach cobbler, milk for children, coffee for adults.

I've tried to allow for the use of leftover foods in the foregoing menus, but since each family's leftover problem is different, it probably will be necessary to make adjustments accordingly.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The tailored mood is beautifully done in these two patterns. One creates a two piece suit in which buttons play an important part. The other design makes a vestee dress of unusual charm.

The suit, in either woolen or crêpe, has a rever collarline, a nipped-in waist, large patch pockets, and a deftly plaited skirt. An unusual feature of this suit is the sleeve which, instead of being straight and simple, adopts fullness which is shirred into the snug cuffs.

The dress, with its plain shoulder yoke, has bodice softness derived from shirring which originates at the shoulderline. The sleeves, "easy" at the tops, are full, graceful, bell models. Around the natural waistline is a self-fabric belt or a contrasting girdle of your choice. Slim paneling distinguishes the skirt. Since white or pastel "touches" are important this season, today's frock has a vestee in the front, with buttons for trimming.

Style No. 3250 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 54 inch material.

Style No. 3388 is designed for size 16 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of contrasting.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Lady of the House

Along the Little Roads.

Perhaps the reason October is the favorite month of so many is that it brings the final fruition of spring's initiative and summer's striving. I never can quite realize that in town, so I am frequently seized with the desire to go a-gypsying along the little lanes and by-ways, where the green gold of the poplars still twinkles against dark pines and the oaks look as if they held flocks of brown thrashers for leaves. Where willow fringed pools mirror redwings gathering for the trek. Where I can see the fruit laden hawthorne and the red osier, redder for the generous autumn rains. Where milkweed pods have opened to the air and released their hoard of silken winged seeds like hovering white birds.

Perhaps I glimpse a late bluebird as the road climbs a little hill and then plunges down between flaming walls of sumac and wild grape and bittersweet. Here is a huge pile of wood stored 'gainst the winter's cold. An exuberant roadside spring sparkling under the level rays of the westering sun that gilds the plain white cross on the little church nestling in a sleepy hollow.

Artificial Honey.

Referring to my statement that there is no real substitute for honey [Sunday Tribune Sept. 14], Myrtle E. Jessee, Urbana, whose folks moved from Chicago to Hubbard Woods back in 1881, tells of artificial honey, made after a recipe in the family for 60 years, that is so smooth and flavory that the many friends who have eaten it "never doubted but that it was genuine 'bee honey' until they were told." While the recipe is not given in the letter, Mrs. Jessee says it is easily made of few ingredients, but quantities and method must be exact.

Rainy Days.

On rainy days the Makebelieves
Visit the attic under the eaves,
And I do, too, because you see,
That is where they visit me.

The fairies dance in our elm tree
That brushes the window close to me.
They dance on the leaves when the branches sway
In time to the songs we sing and play.

Once I played I must not peep;
I made a mistake and went to sleep.
The sun came back thru the big elm tree
And touched my eyes to waken me.

DEE WILDER.

Summer's Farewell.

The summer at her loom worked steadfastly,
And deftly fashioned with assiduous care
A robe of exquisite, rich harmony,
A lovely mantle royalty might wear.

She took the golden gleams of June's bright sun,
The amethyst of dawns, the tints of flowers,
The coral of sunsets, and one by one
Enchantingly she wove them thru long hours.

But now with just a semblance of regret
The drowsy summer mounts the hill's high crest,
And tho she smiles, her wistful eyes are wet;
Yet courteously welcomes her new guest.
Then she relinquishes with farewell call
And queenly grace her mantle to the fall.

Observation.

Streamlined, comfort clothes conscious,
The thoughtful care of keen designers,
Woman still has a painful flaw—
Into shoes not too tiny she will not wriggle.

BETTE DEAN.

The Candle.

Two months ago radio came to Wisconsin state prison. In The Candle, a monthly magazine written, edited, hand set, engraved, and printed by inmates, I find these paragraphs:

"We would hate like the devil to sound sticky, but get this. We watched an old-timer, who has grown gray and grizzled within these walls. He put on his earphones. Music, good music was on. His face was blank, blank with the control that only men who live—and die—in prison achieve.

"The casual observer would have seen nothing. But another prisoner, also growing old in prison, could see the hand slowly clench and relax. Another prisoner could notice the slight tremor of the lips; and then old-timer's face relaxed, lines of worry were smoothed away. For the first time in years he was able to approximate a few minutes of release from prison. Maureen O'Sullivan whispered a bit of Irish verse. Dorothy Lamour looked a lovely song, or sang a lovely look; that old-timer smiled."

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

Time was, when a benefit was the sign for women to don their most resplendent gowns and furs. Times have changed, however, for this year more than 50 per cent of the women who attended the Passavant hospital performance of the Ice Follies, and the British War Relief Victory Round-Up rodeo, chose simple street length gowns. Perhaps the decidedly informal atmosphere of the two benefits was responsible for the more informal dress. Perhaps it is due to the more serious feeling of the times. . . . Even the program vendors at the Passavant benefit were divided as to what type of costume to wear. Most of the debutantes wore evening or dinner dresses. Several of the post-debs and young matrons, however, chose short frocks. A pouf of bittersweet and black feathers arranged like flowers bobbed on Mrs. Edward Byron Smith's head. Her short black dress had bittersweet colored sleeves.

Mrs. Gerald Hollins.

Miss Anne Stuart is another who chose a short frock and a feather cap. Miss Stuart's gown was of aqua wool and her cap a cone of aqua and black feathers sewed so that they resembled zebra stripes. Mrs. Loyal S. Davis, who arranged the program, wore a simple black wool suit and a black felt sailor trimmed with pale blue. Its veil had a blue felt band around the bottom. Mrs. Davis wore three magnificent purple orchids. . . . Miss Judy Butler has the slim figure necessary to wear a peplum, this time one of plaited gold kid on a narrow black dinner dress . . . the dress with a startling narrow slit all the way down the back of the bodice. . . . Blonde Miss Mary Ryerson, who has a fragile beauty, in a pale blue, suede cloth, torso bodice over swishing black tafetta. . . . Miss Betty Meade in a black velvet jumper and full-sleeved white crêpe blouse. . . . Miss Adrienne Ely in baby blue brocade and a marten jacket. . . . Statuesque Miss Peggy Nicholson, a real sophisticate in black velvet and a silver fox jacket. . . . A blond wolf jacket to match Miss Louise Strawn's curls, the jacket worn over green-gold crêpe. . . . Miss Isabelle Johnson in a black wool suit with velvet collar and a gay red feather bird on her black felt pillbox. . . . Mrs. William B. Cudahy in brown crêpe with a brown sailor and a mink jacket. . . . Dark eyed Miss Sally Perry in a bright red jersey skirt and black velvet torso bodice. . . . Mrs. Howard F. Gillette Jr. in a short black dress, silver fox jacket, and bright red felt pillbox perched behind her pompadour. . . . Black and tangerine crêpe for Miss Marie Louise Hulburd. . . . Mrs. Gerald Hollins in another feather cap of pale blue with swirled fronds on each side.

Mrs. Wrigley Offield.

At the first rehearsal for the St. Luke's Fashion show, Miss Diana Hill in black with a red cap bearing red velvet flowers with green stems. . . . Mrs. Jere Patterson in a black wool dirndl and a mink hat tilted forward between the two swirls of her pompadour. . . . Tall and slim Mrs. Herbert De Young in a double breasted, RAF blue jacket dress and black felt bonnet. . . . Mrs. Louis Sudler in a brown and beige coat dress with matching hat. . . . Jet trimmed the collar and formed the pockets of Mrs. Wrigley Offield's black crêpe frock. . . . Miss Ruddy Hale in a man tailored, gray flannel suit. . . . Miss Dudley Winston in black wool bound in velvet. . . . Miss Frances Clow in a brown and beige, shadow plaid coat over a beige wool, tailored dress. . . . Formal gowns and expensive furs just don't fit in with an evening of wild west riding, calf roping, and cowboy yells. Fewer than 25 women wore formal attire to the recent British War Relief Victory Round-Up rodeo at the Stadium. . . . More appropriate was a costume of the type which Mrs. John W. Clarke chose. She wore a rust herringbone tweed suit with a beige cashmere sweater, a cluster of white orchids, and a large brown felt halo hat whose brim was edged in partridge feathers. . . . An oatmeal tweed swagger coat with fluffy blond lynx collar was Mrs. Herbert Butz' choice. Her hat was a pancake style of shirred red felt faced in black. Mrs. David Peck's was one of the few formal costumes. She wore black lace trimmed with fuchsia bows tacked on the bodice and at several places on the skirt. She topped the gown with a silver fox cape.

Mrs. Garfield King.

Not all the lovely gowns at the St. Luke's Fashion show at the Stevens hotel Tuesday were shown on the runway. Almost every woman in the audience had donned her most striking costume to wear to the benefit. . . . Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, whose job it was to see that all the mannequins made their appearances promptly, chose a simple black crêpe gown and a striking fuchsia velvet toque which just matched the quilted satin doors thru which the models entered. . . . Beflowered hats were very much the order of the day. Mrs. John Andrews King topped her costume with a hat which seemed no more than a bunch of bright pink flowers sewed to a tiny triangle and tilted forward over one eye. Mrs. A. Watson Armour's hat bore a cluster of fluffy pink, rust, and yellow flowers. The colors were blended so that they formed what looked like a giant dahlia. . . . Mrs. Garfield King and Mrs. Gordon Lang both chose feathered chapeaux. Mrs. King's was a tiny calot of green feathers with a pair of brown wings darting up from the front to match her brown crêpe dress. Mrs. Lang's is one of the most unusual feather hats in all Chicago. It clings precariously to one side of her head, and releases a swirl of red, yellow, and green curled pheasant feathers down one cheek. . . . Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, publicity chairman for the benefit, chose a simple black wool suit and white satin blouse in which to perform her duties of seeing that the women of the press were kept right up to the minute on the last details of the show. . . . Deep purple is very much more than a song title this year, and it was Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson's choice for a gown and hat to wear to the St. Luke's show. Mrs. Ryerson's gown was of purple wool and her hat a pompadour style of purple velvet. She threw a silver fox jacket over her shoulder.

Home Owners' Queries

Des Moines, Ia.—[To the Home Building Editor]—I have read somewhere that there is a way to "age" a fresh piece of wall paper that you want to use for patching. How is this done?—Mrs. T. G.

Answer: Simply lay the wall paper, face up, in the sun. Keep it there until it has faded just enough to match your wall paper.

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor]—What is a good way of cleaning a sand-finished plaster wall that has accumulated a few dust streaks over fireplace and around door? I tried a little soap and water on it but was afraid to go on.

Mrs. G. S.

Answer: Invest in a good wall-paper cleaner.

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor]—What will remove green mold stain from bathroom pipes? Paint doesn't seem to do the work of covering up the mold.—J. M.

Answer: Rub mold with household ammonia and rinse with clear water. After pipes are free from stain you can paint them.

Ideal Hand-Knitted Jacket

327

By Jean Macdonald.

Here is the ideal hand knitted jacket for wear over dresses. The neckline is not its only attractive feature, for the shoulder yoke and inverted plaits add to its effectiveness. The co-ed or career girl, as well as the inveterate traveler, may wear this comfortable and good looking garment, which requires little time to create.

For instructions in knitting the jacket, No. 327, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

Checking with fashion designing houses where models are sold beginning at three figures, and those pretty impressive, I learn that 24 carat women with big bank rolls, and taste besides, have without exception chosen quality costumes, steeped in understatement, for their winter wardrobes. And at the other end of the scale I find the same answer. Girls and women who have to be wary with the budget have, in a big way, snubbed the more garish and extravagant of the fall style offerings.

Thus, with the greatest designers and the women clicking in harmony of thought on the subject of style, it is safe for even a timid fashion forecaster to pin her hopes on a future fashion of quality and understatement.

When you feel FAINT

This Home-Mixed Syrup Relieves Coughs Quickly

Needs No Cooking. Saves Money.

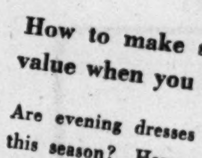
The surprise of your life is waiting for you, in your own kitchen, when it comes to the relief of coughs due to colds. In just a moment, you can mix a cough syrup that gives you about 4 times as much for your money, and is amazing for quick results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup, and you have a full pint of really wonderful cough medicine. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing. You'll say it's astounding.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Dollars well spent



How to make sure of getting full style and value when you shop for clothes.

Are evening dresses in tunic silhouettes greatly favored this season? Have you seen the smart new lace-trimmed velvet negligee? Are reefer coats in off-white one of the college girl fashions which older women are adopting? Will two-piece suits and dresses simulating them be a leading fashion for late Fall? Is the uneven hemline one of the fashion details which will be used frequently this season? The more fashion information you have, the better you can buy. That is why it is to your advantage to read the advertisements in the Chicago Tribune before you shop for apparel of any kind. Printing more women's apparel advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined, the Tribune can keep you informed of the interesting new developments in the world of fashion. Before you shop today, read the advertisements in the various sections of today's Tribune.

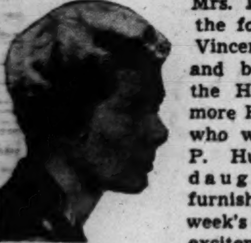
Arts Patron Is Angel to Mozart Opera

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Speaking of the theater's angels, as we were a few days ago, Mrs. Lytle Hull, the former Mrs. Vincent Astor, and before that the Helen Dinsmore Huntington who was Robert P. Huntington's daughter, has furnished this week's chief angel excitement. Mrs. Hull, long a patron of the arts and a special friend of singers and musicians, brought an entire new opera company to the 44th Street theater and established it there for a season of four weeks. After that she will help the American Ballet theater thru an additional fortnight.



Mrs. Lytle Hull.

Also, it is to be noted that Mrs. Hull has done handsomely by her company. Costumes and settings for Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte," which is the first bill, are rich and costly. The singers are mostly young Americans of proved talent, who have been rehearsing and, I suspect, variously supported by their patroness since last June. The orchestra is large and under the direction of Dr. Fritz Busch, a noted continental music authority who had previously conducted a Mozart festival in Glyndebourne, England, and the ensemble is made up of attractive young Americans praying for a chance to prove their quality.

The opening, of course, was highly social. Mrs. Hull's subscription committees have worked their way with great success and nearly everybody who is anybody in society has bought a few tickets. The music critics, too, were friendly, even when they were not diving off the deep end into ponds of superlatives.

The angel had her troubles, however. After the first few performances a rehearsal was called. With so large a company and with an orchestra of 50, all receiving union rates of pay, rehearsals are rather costly. When this one started it was constantly interrupted by a great hammering on the roof. Roofers were at work and working with the thoroness of blacksmiths. No company could hope to sing against them. Mrs. Hull investigated and asked the workmen kindly to desist for an hour or, perhaps, two hours. The men were very polite, but they were also union men and they worked when they were told. They would, however, hammer as softly as they could.

Rehearsals were resumed, but it was no use. Again Mrs. Hull asked for peace, agreeing this time to pay for the men's time. Again she was informed that they were union men, and therefore bound to do a certain job in a certain way and in a certain time. Finally a round-up of bosses was arranged, an anti-noise compromise agreed upon, and the rehearsal went on, at a cost of something like $1,000 an hour.

You would not normally associate strip teasing with word teasing, would you? No, certainly not. For that reason, when the publishers, Simon and Schuster, sent me a copy of a mystery story called "The G-String Murders," signed by Gypsy Rose Lee, I was naturally more than a little skeptical. In fact, in print I went so far as to suggest that, in this instance, the story having proved readable and having been written with professional skill, that probably the publishers wrote it and had Gypsy check it, instead of the other way around.

Gypsy Rose Lee.

I should have known better. At least I should have known better than to print the suspicion. But it turned out interestingly enough. Miss Lee, indulging a "lecture" tour thru the middle west, during which she is continuing her disrobing in all the best of the uncensored theaters and night clubs, came upon a clipping of the Mantlepiece. And right there in her dressing room in the Colonial theater at Dayton, she slipped the straps off her shoulders and her typewriter, and indicted a protest. Not a sizzling protest, but warm. Wrote Gypsy:

"For you to think that some one else wrote the book is almost more than I can bare [my past keeps rubbing off]. Every word, every syllable [Well! You don't have to know how to spell to write; that's why editors were born]; every period, comma, dash, and swear word is my own. Please excuse the bad typing. And I promise you that the second book, 'Mother Finds a Body,' will be better than G-String.... Best regards, Gypsy Rose Lee. Excuse the eyebrow pencil signature. I'm in the dressing room and I lost my purse with everything in it, pen included."

The Hovick girls, incidentally, have done pretty well by themselves the last few years. June Hovick, who became a havoc in place of a Hovick by a typographical error in a program, has blossomed sufficiently as a comedienne to attract Hollywood attention [whither she drove in a station wagon filled with animal pets and her small daughter a few weeks ago]. Rose Louise Hovick, who became Gypsy Rose Lee shortly after a shoulder strap accidentally broke while she was on the stage and revealed to her, thru the reaction of the audience, the possibilities of stripteasing as an art, already is on her way to fortune as a nationwide night club and musical comedy attraction.

The Players' club is having itself a time today. For the first time in ages, probably since Edwin Booth turned the clubhouse over to a selected group of the profession's leaders, the first pipe night of the season will include women as guests. Pipe nights heretofore have been strictly stag. This year, classifying the celebration as a salute to the season, which would mean the new theater season, the players have invited, among others, Ethel Barrymore, Gertrude Lawrence, Margaret Dale, Dorothy Stickney, Tallulah Bankhead, Flora Robson, Dorothy McGuire, Lucile Watson, and Frances Starr, as well as the outstanding leading men engaged in the new plays, to meet with them.

Heretofore women have been admitted to the sacred precincts of the club only once a year, at a ladies' day reception staged the first Sunday following Shakespeare's birth anniversary in April. Exceptions occasionally have been made when the club has revived a classic and there have been women in the cast. Following the closing night of such an engagement, the volunteer actresses usually are given a party at which the membership outdoes itself in courtesy and appreciation, even to the extent of letting the women visit the Booth room on the third floor.

Rodgers Turns Producer

For the first time Richard Rodgers, the song writer, will act as a producer, joining Dwight Deere Wiman in the presentation of "Hotel Splendide," for which he wrote the music and lyrics with Lorenz Hart. Donald Ogden Stewart fashioned the book from the short stories in the New Yorker magazine by Ludwig Bemelmans.

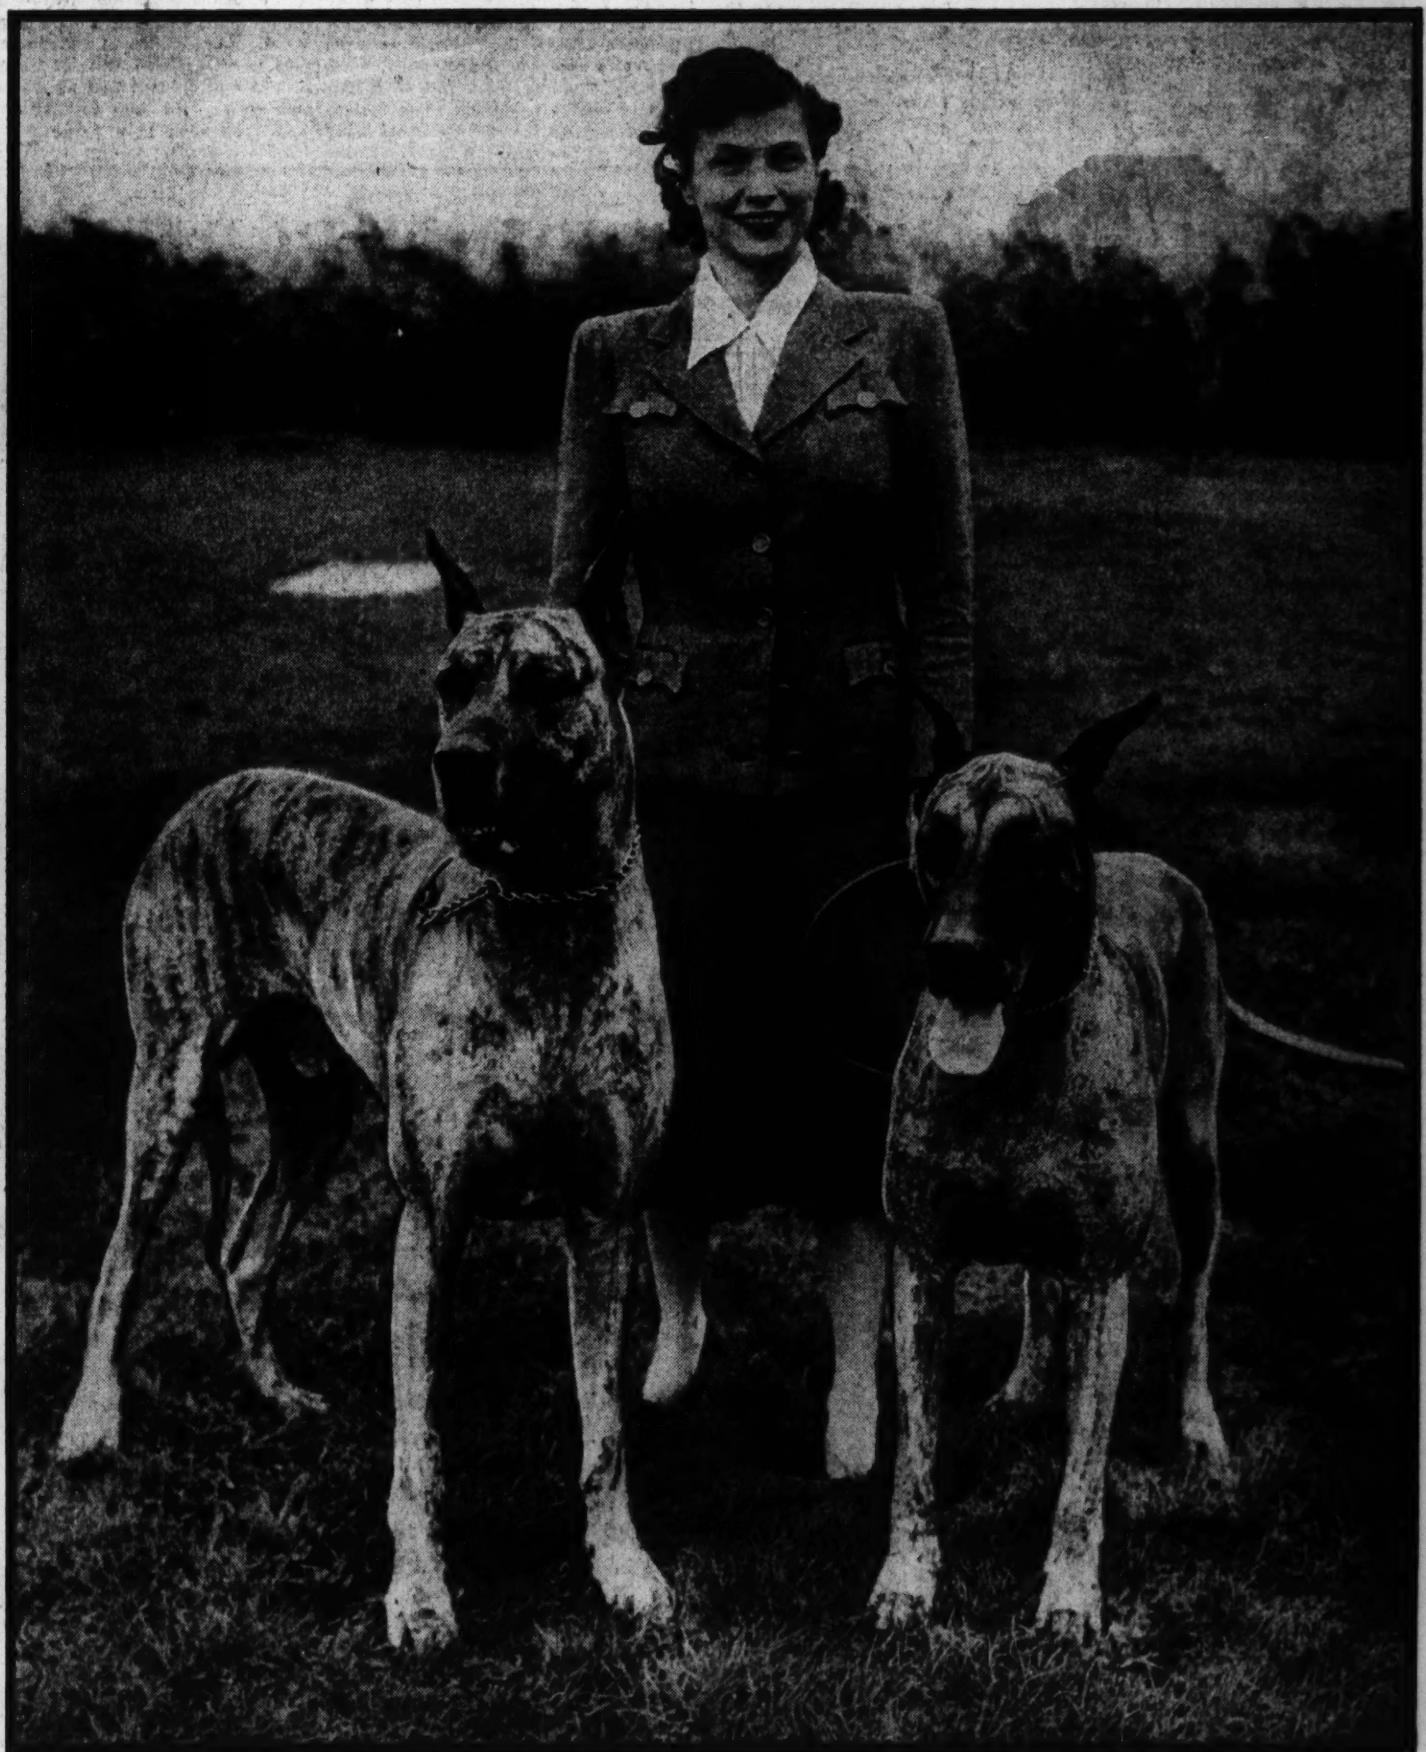
Left: Miss Cherry Sue Orr will be one of the "chorines" in the Service club revue, which will be a more intimate show than heretofore when it was given in the large Auditorium theater. The Civic theater is the locale this year.



Right: Mrs. Robert A. Cavenaugh with her two champion Great Danes. She will be busy next Saturday and Sunday for she is president of the Service club. On Sunday the Shore Land Kennel club, of which Mr. Cavenaugh is president, will give its annual dog show at the Onwentsia club.

Varied Events Keep Chicago Society Busy

By Cousin Eve.

Irons are in the fire, events are in the wind, and life flows on in our village. Nobody seems to be idle for a moment. Bricks laid today are the hope of our tomorrow, you know.

Some of us are even taking Spanish, and most have programs of industry as long as their arms that vary from bringing out daughters to making mincemeat for church bazaars, including all sorts of charitable work and Red Cross, too.

Apropos of Red Cross, rumor comes from Washington that the rush for enrollment in that organization is so great that there has to be an age limit of 50 summers. If this be true, no one over 50 can qualify as a Red Cross worker, and that would remove some of our top figures in this international service.

Two newsy letters came flying from Washington, one from "Buzzy," who had spent a very good hour with his old pal, David, and the duchess of Windsor, finding them both in fine fettle despite neglect in high places.

Another screed called to mind St. Chrysostom's Church Windows bazaar, right at home in Chicago, Nov. 13 and 14. This year's program is emblazoned with the church flag, white crossed with red and with nine white stars on a blue field, standing for the original American dioceses. The flag was adopted at the 1940 Episcopal convention and St. Chrysostom's had the earliest, presented, I believe, by Congressman Charles S. Dewey.

Mrs. George Ranney and Miss Margaret Conover are co-chairmen of the Christmas bazaar and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and Mrs. Ballard Moore are co-chairmen of the window advertisments. This annual event is highly social, including two turkey suppers, the second being a buffet affair contributed by Mrs. Alden Swift, and an evening performance. In the charming little Christmas window booths you find salesladies noted in the world of fashion.

It's fantastic the way people are rushing to meet the spring in the southern hemisphere. Grand Duchess Marie, who comes annually to Chicago at this season, farewells that she has given up being a stylist for the nonce and has sailed for Argentina. Marie, who is a beautiful and gifted survivor of the imperial Romanoffs of Russia, will spend some months in Buenos Aires and Chile writing. The grand duchess has become an expert photographer and writes well; too. Her news was that Dmitri, her brother, has completely recovered his health at Davos, Switzerland, and as a consequence she sails away light hearted. The two are children of the late Grand Duke Paul.

Others of my amicos going to Argentina are young Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Bingham Jr., who will join the embassy family of Norman Armour at Buenos Aires at the earliest possible moment. They escaped safely from Marseilles with their five husky little auburn-haired infants. Harry Bingham has a thick topknot of red hair. Rose Bingham is the niece and namesake of Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis and first met her husband when he was a second secretary at the London embassy. She is a delightful tall girl with huge brown eyes.

We dined with them in London a while ago. They had a little house in secluded Trevor square that had been a royal love nest and like its neighbors had a bright door and gay window boxes. Their first babies, twins, were the most petted infants in London and the pride of the American embassy. To me, sailing for Argentina with five little ones seems like a full time job.

Harry Bingham has six brothers, but his paternal grandmother picked him out to inherit her early American homestead near Hartford, Conn., with all its old furnishings. To this lovely place with its peaceful surroundings and blessed plenty the Binghams went on their arrival from France. And that reminds me that Mrs. Adelaide Spencer-Brown of Chicago, after many tribulations, has actually sailed from Lisbon and is due very shortly in New York. This amazing woman, who has passed the biblical span of life long since, has all the good looks and verve of women half her age.

She has lately been staying in Paris with her daughter, Comtesse Edouard de Gramedo, who has a small apartment on the left bank, Place des Invalides. The house, a quite large one, was the former town house, or "hotel," as the French say, of the Gramedo family made over into smaller suites, just what we in Chicago are doing to our overlarge apartments.

One day last week I went lunching downtown to listen to Henry J. Allen of Kansas, former governor, senator, and Red Cross executive, just home from two months in London. Mr. Allen was speaking in the interests of the Hoover committee to feed starving noncombatants in Europe, and for the first time we heard just what the ruin of London is.

Things looked quite natural in and around the shopping district and Hyde park, but in his walks around St. Paul's, the banking district in Threadneedle street, the docks, warehouses, slums, and the fascinating old historical, narrow streets and lanes of ancient London, there is the most utter destruction.

Mr. Allen is human as well as a spellbinder, and he couldn't resist taking a whack at the British and their change of face toward Americans in their desire to save themselves. Instead of freezing aloofness in the compartments of trains he found fellow passengers really looking at him with something akin to recognition, and once, in a restaurant, a man actually passed him the salt. The British are rapidly losing their acute class consciousness, he says, in this tremendous upheaval over national defense—at least it is evident among those staying in England and taking part.

Some time ago news was from Arthur Bradley Campbell that he gave up as totally lost the collection of his mother's magnificent jewels, laces, and furs left in a London bank for safekeeping. The late marchioness of Huntly's house in Grosvenor square was blown to bits and now the trappings in which this stately woman robed herself after marrying the premier marquess of Scotland, have vanished. She had fine and resplendent jewels, and her furs were especially gorgeous—chinchillas, sables, ermines—fit for a queen. Arthur Campbell was unable to get these valuables out of England after the outbreak of war and now they are gone to nothingness in the insensate waste and rubble of war.

Lovely little Marjorie Meuser, second of Arthur Campbell's two wards—who are also his cousins—has just taken her pilot's license in California. Arthur is among the crowd staying in the Beverly Hills sector with the two girls, and shows no signs of coming east. Isabel is a niece and namesake of Lady Huntly.

Mrs. Harley MacNair, one of Chicago's most distinguished women, presided over a small but interesting group of Friends of China last Thursday at the tea hour in the Arts club.

Seated with her at the speakers' tea table were Julean Arnold, former American commercial attaché in China; Robert Thorne, head of China relief in Chicago, and Russell Tyson, one of our most prominent Chinophiles. Mr. Arnold devoted himself at great length to a discussion of the soy bean. When finally we tottered away to an early dinner party entirely fed up, alas, on soy beans, we had the thought that soy beans must be overstimulating—so shattered was our equilibrium.

According to Mr. Arnold they make luscious milk from soy beans good for Chinese babies. Out of the residue, very nice doughnuts are constructed, and these when swallowed with cabbage water give you all the vitamins in the alphabet. The Germans have caught on to these doughnuts—which speaks well for them either as sustenance for prisoners or engines of war.

The speaker explained that we probably wouldn't find the milk and doughnuts so palatable as they have a peculiar tang which only the Chinese seem to like. Mr. Arnold also expressed the hope that ere long, owing to United States assistance, there would be a radio in every Chinese hovel and motor cars for nearly all the inhabitants. This apotheosis of the soy bean somehow didn't leave me glowing with optimism and I found quite depressing the picture of China flooded with radios.

Listening to this thesis on China were Mrs. Robert Gregory, whose entertaining memoirs are now in the book shops, Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Dempster, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Lyman Walker, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Miss Emily Larned, and Mrs. Lewis Taylor.

In the last week two of our great hospitals, Passavant and St. Luke's, have benefited by two highly spectacular shows. On Oct. 15 the women of the Passavant board took over the "Ice Follies of 1942" at the Arena and gave a social evening that was perfectly charming. It was the most painless benefit that I can remember. The whole audience was made up of flocks of great and small dinner parties, of youngsters addicted to skating, of friends of Passavant. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk was chairman of the event and the names of her assistants and cohorts filled pages of the elaborate program.

As to the skating, the actual performance was beautiful and dreamlike in its quality. It reminded one at times of the Christmas pantomime in London, or great reviews in Paris during the holiday season where the clowns are so clever and fascinating. The clowning in the "Ice Follies" was its highlight to me—among them the Daffy Draftees, Miss America by Bobby Widholm, Professors Frick and Frack and Henie Brock.

Exquisite were the dancing numbers, the swing waltz with the last couple waltzing in double time, the ballet dancing on skates, the amusing scene where girls drag their black velvet trains behind them on ice. Then one girl loses her train and has to run for it in scanties. There was much gayety between the clowns and the Gustavus Swifts' party sitting at ice level at the east end of the arena. Some one was always about to skate into their laps, missing the venture by a mere fraction.

During the intermission, Henry Isham, president of Passavant drew for the door prizes. They were drawn according to numbers on the programs—but owing to an odd chance, nobody in the huge audience came forward to claim any of the four items. The sum of $12,500 was raised by this soirée, which delighted everybody who saw it.

St. Luke's Fashion show will realize upwards of $30,000 this season. Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the woman's board, and Mrs. Walter Wolf, chairman of the exhibits, with their committees have concentrated for six months on its perfection.

Somehow the St. Luke's show is always a thrill. The crowd is exciting—the mise-en-scene was lovely this year, a black velvet fond and an effect of French window, with shutters of crimson quilted satin—and the mannequins stepping thru. There is a hidden orchestra, an announcer, and this year Kathryn Witwer came out at the end agleam and aglitter with red, white, and blue to sing our national anthem, in a tableau of St. Luke's nurses, sailors from Great Lakes, and fighting men loaned by Gen. Joseph Cummins for the occasion. One hopes this wasn't subtle war propaganda!

The special feature was historical. A great-great niece of Mrs. Abraham Lincoln swept down the runway in an elaborate peau de sole of black brocaded in lilac, a voluminous dress with a pelerine worn by Mrs. Lincoln in the White House, and quite lovely even today.

Some years the clothes are prettier, then again it's the girls. This year there was an excellent average. There were specially grand fur coats and some very startling hats that looked like porcupines ready to shoot. Lady Stamp was a stunning model in a green cap with a wave of silver fox over her blonde shoulder length bob. An admired beauty was Mrs. Frank McCabe with a rose wool turban and training draperies like a Persian woman's.

There was Eleanor McClurg floating in and out in crispest white tulle all a sparkle, and Jacqueline Cardelli in black dinner frock with an apron of paillettes carelessly dragging a sable coat. And Carlotta McGuire looking delightful in black lace spangled with all the colors in and out of the rainbow.

There were hobble skirts a plenty, and one of the best numbers was four slim young matrons dressed for the receiving line of a ball. They were Mrs. Howard Gillette Jr., Mrs. Chauncey Hutchins, Mrs. George A. Poole Jr., and Mrs. Nicholas Galitzine, and the exhibit was hand bouquets as designed for any great formal ball. The flowers used were camellias, gardenias, and small orchids. Large orchids are out of favor for the moment as being too flamboyant for the tenor of our days.

Mrs. Wrigley Offield and Frances Clow wore respectively pale rose satin and white chiffon ball dresses, and we had a preview of a dozen debutantes—Eunice Hale, Anne Daughaday, Nancy Bastien, Harriett Dawes, Jeanne Kimball, Barbara Warner, Barbara Hixon, Louise Strawn, who is a tall radiant blonde, also Betty Bennett, Lana Jelke, Shirley Hopkins, and Diana Hill. This last is a vivid brunet—who has what is popularly called "style."

There was an absence in this year's show of some of our more dashing matrons. One who was invited to be a model refused because of her hardhearted husband. He said that he knew ninety-nine good reasons why she shouldn't walk down that runway. So she didn't.

But all in all one left in just the same pleased and happy frame of mind as at all the forerunners.

The most picturesque of all our charities is the Frontier Nursing service that carries on in the Kentucky mountains. Sometimes Mary Breckinridge comes in the spring. This year she comes in the fall—tomorrow. At 3 o'clock she will be heard at the Casino club, speaking on the subject of her "Nurses on Horseback," and to hear her is one of the greatest treats that come our way.

Year after year girls of our society have served as couriers in this Frontier Nursing service, and loved the new experience of life.

Little did one dream that the Marvin Breckinridge that we used to hear over the radio from Berlin was a child of the Frontier service. Last spring she married Jefferson Patterson, second secretary of the American embassy in Germany, and settled into diplomatic life. Her husband hails from the Patterson family of Dayton, O., and when I knew him was second secretary in Oslo, Norway. Jeff Patterson has large private means and great taste as a collector of old porcelains, enamels, etc. Just at present he is taking over a new post in Lima, Peru, and his bride is on the way to join him high in the Andes.

Mrs. Donald R. McLennan is chairman of the Chicago committee, and a few of its members are Nancy Blaine, Mrs. David Dangler, Mrs. Dwight Green, Miss Hortense Harris, Mrs. Joseph Otis, Mrs. John T. Pirie, Mrs. Paul Magnuson Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Dempster.

WILL BE WED IN SPRING

Miss Ruth Alyce Jalonack, whose engagement to Howard Z. Lavin has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Louis Jalonack of Rogers Park. Mr. Lavin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Lavin of Stratford place. The wedding is being planned for early spring.

MARRIED

Mrs. John Labant Jr. was Miss Madeline Evensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Evensen of Highland Park, before her marriage this summer at the Bethany church, Highlank Park. The former Miss Evensen and her husband, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Labant of Chicago, were graduated from Northwestern university.

Seek Barring of Bi-Partisan Vote Dealings

By Betty Browning.

The Cook County League of Women Voters and the Woman's City club last week opened a drive to prevent bi-partisan deals depriving voters of a choice for state representatives in the 19 senatorial districts of Cook county.

Miss Mary Louise Ramsey.

Some 50 members of the two organizations signed pledge cards to interview senatorial committees of both major parties in each of the 19 districts, and to urge that four or more candidates be nominated in each district.

Miss Mary Louise Ramsey, who is directing the drive, said that the interviewing will begin at once, to anticipate possible deals. At a meeting Monday at league headquarters she gave each prospective interviewer a table showing the story of elections for the general assembly, district by district, since 1928. Harold F. Gosnell, associate professor of political science at the University of Chicago, explained the cumulative system of voting by which only the members of the house of representatives of Illinois are elected. In 12 of the 19 senatorial districts of Cook county, both in the 1938 and 1940 elections, he reported, only three candidates were nominated, giving the voters no choice whatever in the election.

By depriving voters of a choice of candidates, Miss Ramsey told the prospective interviewers, it has been possible for machine politics to keep absolute control over state representatives.

Quoting the Legislative Voters' league, Miss Ramsey called the majority representatives "better on the whole," and the minority representatives, named in bi-partisan deals, "so much merchandise." Miss Ramsey is a practising attorney with a long record of leadership in both the league and the Woman's City club.

The strategy of the interviewers, as outlined by Miss Ramsey, will be to concentrate particularly upon those districts where the voting in the last few years has been heavy enough to warrant naming one or more additional candidates, thereby providing the voters with a choice.

An argument to win supporters for the proposal in many districts, Miss Ramsey suggested, is that the majority party by the new plan usually would gain the seat now conceded by prearrangement to the minority party. Representatives elected from various factions of a majority party, she asserted, have tended to be more independent of machine control than the so-called minority members elected thru a bi-partisan deal.

Mr. Gosnell was asked: "If the parties control the candidates, how does it help to have two candidates instead of one?"

"Some candidates," he replied, "are more independent than others. That's particularly true if they owe their election to one of several factions in a party."

Betty Reece and Philip Reed Jr. Engaged to Wed

Of interest to Chicagoans, because the bridegroom-to-be lived here as a child, is an announcement being made today in Boston by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Augustus Reece of Chestnut Hill, a fashionable suburb of the Massachusetts city. Their daughter, Marie Elizabeth, is engaged to Philip Loring Reed Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Reed of Dedham, Mass., formerly of Chicago.

Miss Reece, always called Betty, attended the Beaver Country Day school and is a member of the Junior league and the Vincent club. Mr. Reed Jr., an ensign in the United States navy, prepared for Harvard at the Phillips Andover academy, and was graduated from college in 1940. He is now stationed in Panama, where the wedding is to take place in the middle of November.

Two Benefits on Saturday Club Calendar

The coming Saturday afternoon, the first in November, has been chosen as the date for two benefits, a bridge tea and style show of the Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial's style show and card party, both at the Stevens hotel.

Miss Mary H. Burris.

Providing a home to otherwise homeless mothers and children is the purpose of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial residence at 2412 Prairie avenue. Whenever possible, the mothers earn what they receive, but they pay only if they are working and are able to do so. This last summer the children were taken for the first time to Round Lake in Michigan, some 200 miles from Chicago, and the mothers joined them there for week-ends and vacations. Miss Mary H. Burris is general chairman of the benefit party Saturday.

The Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is planning to use the proceeds of its party Saturday to purchase a mobile blood plasma unit for the United States army, and to furnish a room in the new service clubhouse at Fort Sheridan. Halloween Holds Social Spotlight in Club Circles

An old-fashioned Halloween party, jollity, games and all, is in store for several organizations this week. The Organized Women Musicians are making theirs, tomorrow evening, a hard times party with appropriate costumes in order. The party will be held at the Federation of Musicians' hall, 175 West Washington boulevard.

Stunts, "funny ones, easy ones, hard ones, acrobatic ones, and beautiful ones," will follow the Halloween dinner Thursday evening at the Womans University club, 410 South Michigan avenue.

Advertised as a cure for sagging spirits is the Halloween party to be given by the Friends of Mexico, Friday evening at Hull House. Boxes of sandwiches will be auctioned off and shared by the buyer with the maker.

An old-fashioned square dance will be given by Delta Tau sorority Saturday evening at the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Overalls and gingham frocks are the costumes prescribed by Mrs. Patricia O'Connor, chairman in charge.

Hawaii League Plays Football in Bare Feet

By Alden Powell.

HONOLULU, T. H.

Two brands of football, scholastic and professional, plus the peculiar brand of "barefoot" football native to the islands, promise to attract thousands of visitors to Hawaii this winter.

Beginning in late October, the Hawaii Barefoot Football league, made up of hundreds of teams on sugar plantations and small communities thruout the five major islands, plays all winter for the championship in the fastest brand of football on earth. [At least, that's the way the late Knute Rockne classified it.]

This year's game on Christmas day will see the University of Denver and the University of Hawaii clash at Honolulu stadium. The Pineapple bowl game, between Hawaii's Rainbows and Denver's university, will be held on New Year's day.

• • •

Other events scheduled include the Armistice day celebration, with thousands of soldiers from Schofield barracks and Pearl harbor's contingent of sailors from the United States fleet, participating; Philippine Commonwealth day, Nov. 15, with pageants and parades, and scores of native feasts, or "luaus," to celebrate Hawaii's Thanksgiving day, Nov. 20.

An unusual event is the excursion from Honolulu to the Island of Hawaii Christmas week, for skiing atop 13,825 foot Mauna Kea volcano.

On the grounds of historic Iolani palace in Honolulu the Pageant of the Nativity and a reënactment of the landing of the first missionaries in Hawaii will be given on Christmas eve.

In both November and December many aquatic events are to be held at Waikiki beach. These include surfboard races, outrigger canoe races, and swimming meets.

• • •

There will be concerts, lectures, and art exhibits in November, December, and January at the Honolulu Academy of Arts. The Community theater begins its season in November and continues until spring.

Big game fishing on the Kona coast, which holds the world's record for the largest silver marlin—an 815 pounder caught last February—is always in open season. So is wild pig and wild goat hunting in the mountain regions, especially on the Island of Hawaii.

February will see the annual Malihini [Newcomers'] Golf tournament. There are 15 golf courses in Hawaii. Six of them are on the Island of Oahu, locale of Honolulu.

Institute Gets Gift of Rare English Books

By Edith Weigle.

A unique and magnificent gift to this or any other museum is the huge collection of rare and valuable books made recently to the Art institute by Mrs. James Ward Thorne. So numerous and rich in subject matter are the volumes that tho an expert has been at work cataloging them since July the task is nowhere near completion. It is planned to hold a special exhibition of this material sometime next spring.

The volumes encompass the social life of England of the late 18th and first half of the 19th centuries. So many topics are covered that it is difficult to enumerate them all. Some of the books are devoted to customs and manners, others to British sports, still others to the countries of the then expanding empire: Australia, India, etc. There are fascinating volumes on gardening, on costumes, on the colleges of England.

There is the delightful "Microcosm of London," published in the first decades of the 19th century by the famous publisher, Rudolph Ackermann. The set is made up of three volumes which originally were brought out in separate parts and which contain aquatint plates by Pugin and Thomas Rowlandson, working together. Pugin did the architectural sections of each picture, while Rowlandson did the figures. Here is an accurate record of the London of Jane Austin and Charles Dickens, with delightful views of all the famous buildings, theaters, parks, and churches.

Besides this particular "Microcosm" in the gift of Mrs. Thorne, the Art institute itself owns the "Pugin copy," a set with the original pencil sketches of Pugin and Rowlandson bound in with the plates.

Another of the valuable items in the gift is the original edition of the "Syntax" by Rowlandson. The Rev. Dr. Syntax was an imaginary character whose highly amusing adventures in the world of his day are recited in little poems by William Combe, each one being inspired by a Rowlandson water color. The book appeared first in 1812 and was so popular that fake Dr. Syntaxes soon appeared. Some of these, too, are included in the collection.

An entire book could be written on this magnificent collection of books and the artists who illustrated them and the men who printed them. They afford a panoramic view of the whole English scene and way of life of the 19th century. They reflect not only the great generosity of the donor, but her wide variety of interests, her wise discrimination and her lively intellect.

Friday saw the opening by the Print and Drawing club of the Art institute of an exhibit of a series of drawings by Carlos Merida of the native costumes of Mexico. The drawings are accompanied by their reproductions made by the silk screen process for a portfolio about to be published in Chicago by the Pocahontas press. To the best of our knowledge it is the first such depiction of Mexican dress to be made in this country, and it is a most colorful, artistic one.

Mr. Merida is, of course, a painter in his own right, so the drawings are works of art as well as valuable bits of the historical record of costume in Mexico. Most of the pictures show both masculine and feminine attire, and some are of groups which include children. All are delightfully colorful and decorative.

The show is to be seen in the print galleries of the museum and will continue till the last of the year.

A new study room recently has been opened in Gallery 14 of the department of prints and drawings at the Art institute. It is designed to give a special service to the public. Here any one interested in seeing some of the 50,000 to 60,000 prints in the collection of the museum may do so at his leisure. A number of tables and chairs have been provided and the staff is available each day except Sunday to furnish visitors with information and to help them in studying at first hand the drawings and prints.

Thursday saw the opening in Pittsburgh of the exhibition called "Directions in American Painting" at the Carnegie institute. More than 5,000 canvases were submitted by American painters for this show. Three hundred were chosen by the jury. Following are Chicago artists whose works are hung there: Raymond Breinin, Copeland C. Burg, Charles W. Dahlgreen, Herman Dyer, Leon Garland, A. Raymond Katz, Sam Ostrowsky, Judith Pesmen, Charlotte Rothstein, Felix Ruvolo, Kenneth Shopen, Mitchell Siporin, Donald S. Vogel, Ralph Von Lehmden, and N. Ziroli.

Many of these artists have shown here at the Art institute and several of them have won prizes.

Since Oct. 15 a collection of water colors by the Evanston painter, Henry A. Thiede, have been on view at The Garners Studio in picturesque Grand Detour, near Dixon, Ill. Most of the papers are landscapes of the middle west locale. Closing date, Oct. 30.

Sisterhood Federation Will Convene in Springfield

Annual reports will be incorporated into a playlet at the 18th annual convention of the Illinois State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods Wednesday and Thursday at the Abraham Lincoln hotel in Springfield, Ill. Rabbi Julius Gordon of St. Louis, Mo., will address the banquet session on Wednesday evening. A tea at the governor's mansion Thursday will close the meeting. Mrs. Wilford M. Newman of Highland Park heads the federation.

From the interesting series of "Costumes of Mexico," by Carlos Merida, a newly opened show in the print galleries of the Art institute, is this gay fore and aft view of a Mexican Indian's dress.

Travel Trend South, Hotel Men Report

The North American influence in Latin American hotels, a steady increase in tourist travel southward, and a large scale program of hotel building and expansion of tourist facilities in Central and South America give indications of the start of a new era in travel between the Americas.

• • •

These trends were revealed recently when 17 key hotel executives from as many Central and South American countries visited Chicago in the course of a nation-wide tour sponsored by the American Hotel association. The delegates came from Mexico City, where they formed the Inter-American Hotel association of 22 nations, including Canada and the United States.

• • •

"There has been a reawakening of interest in Latin American travel; in the last year there has been a decided increase in travel southward," said Crawford Noble, executive director of the new association.

Nearly all the executives reported a travel upswing in their respective countries.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experience are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

A YEAR-ROUND CLIMATE.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—To the Travel Editor: The Tribune series of travel articles on Guatemala had interested us greatly, but we had to see that country for ourselves. So we went last summer.

In the midst of Chicago's heat we doubted that we would find it really cool in the Guatemalan highlands. We were pleasantly surprised. Everything was delightful.

We were told that, even tho the summer season was nearly perfect for tourists, winter was even better there, and that even larger numbers of tourists would be on hand next January, February, and March. IDA C. GIACHINI.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Downers Grove, Ill., Oct. 14.—To the Travel Editor: I would like to know how much it would cost me to have a few words of gratitude put in your column.

I am a shut-in. A few weeks ago some one, unknown to me, sent my name to your paper, and the response was a shower of cards and letters. I still don't know who did me this favor. Please permit me to thank him or her, and all the readers who were so kind to me.

EVELYN STERKA.

Gays, Ill., Oct. 16.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank all the kind persons who cheered up my aunt, Mrs. Mary Janes of Mattoon, Ill., with letters and greetings. She was deeply appreciative.

MRS. LEO FOSBENDER.

Pontiac, Ill., Oct. 19.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank all the Chicago Tribune readers who kindly sent me greetings. I wish I could thank each one personally, but find it physically impossible to do so. MRS. E. W. PETERS.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other Tribune readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Mrs. Florence Kinsman, 600 Peck street, Muskegon Heights, Mich. [Mrs. Kinsman is in a wheel chair and has been ill for a long time.]

Mildred Lundberg, Municipal sanitarium, Rockford, Ill. [Miss Lundberg is a tubercular patient.]

Picture Library.

A lending library of pictures has been arranged by the New York State College of Home Economics. Cornell students may rent pictures for their college rooms for the entire year, or the picture may be returned each month and a new one chosen.

Parkway Opening Up Scenic Vistas

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Traversing portions of the state heretofore inaccessible by motor, the Blue Ridge parkway opens new vistas of scenic beauty to visitors to North Carolina.

From the Virginia line to the base of Mount Mitchell, highest peak east of the Mississippi, the parkway is now open with the exception of a short link between Deep Gap and Blowing Rock, which may be traveled via Yonalassee trail.

Construction is proceeding on the scenic route which eventually will connect two national parks—the Great Smoky Mountains and the Shenandoah. Already 65 miles have been completed in North Carolina, and the 40 mile link between Linville and Mount Mitchell is open to traffic. Scheduled for opening in the summer of 1942 is a 13 mile section that will complete the parkway into Asheville.

Childhood Education.

The Association of Childhood Education, Chicago area, will hold a study group meeting Saturday at 185 North Wabash avenue. Mrs. Grace W. Sligh is general chairman in charge of the all-day meeting.

Short cut

TO THE APARTMENT YOU WANT

It isn't worth while to climb up and down stairs looking at places which could not possibly suit you, when there is a much easier way to find the apartment you want.

Without stirring from your easy chair you can review a list of the choicest apartments available in Chicago and suburbs, classified for your convenience by locations in the city and suburbs and by numbers of rooms. These are the ones presented in the Tribune want ad section which prints more than twice as much apartments to rent want advertising as all other Chicago newspapers combined.

The easiest way to plan your inspection trip is to make a list of addresses of buildings which give promise of offering what you want. Then set forth on your tour, going directly to the buildings which you know in advance are worth while inspecting. Review the Apartments to Rent columns now.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

'All Out for Democracy' Is Forum Theme

"All Out for Democracy" is the theme of a forum to be sponsored jointly by the Cook County League of Women Voters and the Association for Family Living, Wednesday at the Congress hotel. The conference, according to Mrs. Raleigh W. Stone, league president, "is to be a discussion of where we have fallen down in our job of education for citizenship."

At the morning session, adjustments necessary to meet the demands of an evolving democracy will be discussed by Louis Wirth, professor of sociology, University of Chicago; Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer, Chicago Association of Commerce; and Martin Wagner, field examiner for the National Labor Relations board.

Charles E. Merriam, distinguished service professor emeritus of political science at the University of Chicago, will speak at luncheon on "Your Job on the Home Front."

The Cook county league Friday afternoon will open a series of study classes on "Defense and the Consumer," scheduled for the hour following the series on "The ABC's of Local Government," now presented each Friday afternoon. Miss Nelle Nordstrom, until recently of the Office of Priority Administration and Civilian Supply, will conduct the consumer series.

The Woman's City club is inviting league members to hear Thomas L. Owens of the Chicago Bar association and representatives of the Democratic and Republican central committees discuss the coming judicial election Friday afternoon at the clubrooms.

• • •

"Essential Values for National Defense" will be discussed at a meeting of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations, tomorrow afternoon at 116 South Michigan avenue. Dr. W. W. Bauer, director of the bureau of health education, American Medical association, will discuss "Nutrition for Defense"; Leonard P. Aries, director of the department of education, Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, "Morale: Basis for Defense"; and Mrs. Walter T. Fisher, treasurer of the National League of Women Voters, "Winning the Battle of Production." Mrs. Max Biesenthal is president of the conference.

Mrs. Max Biesenthal.

"The Rôle of the Red Cross in National Defense" will be the theme of an all-day meeting Friday at the Chicago Woman's Aid headquarters. Three films showing the defense activities of the Red Cross, its war relief activities in England, and the work of a Red Cross nurse, will be shown in the morning.

Roger Holden, manager of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, will address a noon luncheon on "Red Cross War Relief and National Defense." At 2 o'clock Mrs. Grace B. Pettengill, director of volunteer production, will discuss this field, and club members will model garments made by the Red Cross. The Chicago Woman's Aid sponsors Braille, home nursing and first aid classes, and a surgical dressings unit for the Red Cross.

"Emergency! Detour?" will be the topic of a regional conference of YWCA business girls of Illinois and Wisconsin, Saturday and Sunday in Chicago. Miss Laura Ault, business and professional secretary of the Chicago YWCA, and staff director of the conference, has planned the program to deal with the meaning of the defense emergency to business girls. A banquet Saturday evening at the McCormick Memorial residence, and discussion groups on various aspects of the conference theme Sunday morning at the Loop Center YWCA, are scheduled. Miss Ruth Kinney of Aurora is conference chairman.

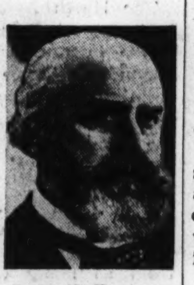
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Oct. 29, 1893.

Dear Julia: Ours is a city of gloom today, as you will realize, for you doubtless have read in your New York papers of the assassination of Mayor Carter H. Harrison. What a terrible blot on the good name of Chicago! It was a peculiarly dreadful murder, the mayor having come from a short rest to speak to the caller, who shot him as they stood talking! The house in which he met death always had such gay and happy associations. It stands at the corner of fashionable Ashland and Jackson boulevards, and is surrounded by a pretty yard, a square, old-fashioned place with a cupola, a house surrounded in my mind with an aura of hospitality. Now, all its associations will be sad.



Carter H. Harrison.

Of course, the murderer, Patrick Eugene Prendergast, was insane. His story, when he gave himself up to the police, was that he had helped Mayor Harrison in the spring elections and had been promised the office of corporation counsel. Not receiving this appointment, he bought a revolver and proceeded to avenge his fancied wrong. He had tried to see Gov. Altgeld, too, and doubtless the governor would have been a victim if he had been in his office at the time.

Mayor Harrison was at the height of his career, a most extraordinary one. He was one of the most popular men in Chicago. Thru the important period of the World's Fair, he had represented the city with distinction, entertaining in his beautiful home the prominent visitors to the exposition, including the infanta of Spain and the duke of Veragua. Moreover, he was about to be married to a beautiful young woman, Miss Annie Howard of Louisiana. What more could heart wish?

Will feels very sad about the mayor's tragic end. Tho they were on opposite sides of the political fence, they were warm friends and often dined together at some of their clubs. Will said of him today that few men had such marked individuality. He calls him a born leader, one whose grasp of the helm of the city's government was masterful.

Those who heard his speech, only a few hours before his death, welcoming the mayors of other cities to the fair, on All Cities day, say it was one of his happiest efforts, felicitously phrased, and well delivered. Little did they think that in a few hours he would be lying in his own home, cold in death, and such a cruel death!

Perhaps you remember reading some of his letters written from abroad, which, in book form, are called "A Race with the Sun." He was a keen observer and wrote in an interesting fashion.

He had been twice married, his first wife having been Miss Sophy Preston, who came of a distinguished southern family. She died in 1876, and in 1882 he married Miss Marguerite Stearns, who died in 1886.

The body is to lie in state at the city hall and then the last service will be held in the Harrison home, with only the family there. Dr. Morrison, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, in which the Harrison family had a pew, is to read the solemn service.

Oct. 31.

The flags on the World's Fair buildings came down tonight, never to be raised again. The fair is over. That vision of delight is no more. The Liberty bell is to start at once on its journey back to Philadelphia.

I feel a little pensive as I realize that it is a symbol of the impermanence of all that is beautiful. Farewell, White City, farewell!

Your loving friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

The Oldest Woman's Club.

In this column recently the Fortnightly of Chicago was referred to as the oldest woman's club in the country. One of our faithful readers, Mrs. A. F. Silliman of West McHenry, Ill., challenges this. She writes of one in McHenry county: "Organized in 1855, it had its inception in the movement known as the Mount Vernon society, which accomplished the purchasing and dedication of Washington's home as a shrine for the people of our land. A group of farmers' wives living in Seneca township worked for this cause and when the goal was attained, they were loath to drop the happy social contacts they had enjoyed and so they organized themselves into the Seneca Ladies' Literary society, with semimonthly meetings in homes and a literary program at every meeting. During the Civil war this society acted as a relief organization, and again during the World war much service was rendered to our soldiers. I, myself, have been a member for 58 years," concludes Mrs. Silliman.

Four Score and Ten.

Two honored friends of this column have celebrated their natal days this month. On Oct. 9, Albert Cotsworth, writer on musical subjects, became 90 years old and received his friends at the Union League club. . . . On Oct. 25, Mrs. Emanuel Mandel of Highland Park, fairy godmother of all good causes, arrived at the age of 93. We may quote Wordsworth to both:

"A happy youth and their old age
Is beautiful and free."

CHICAGO DAY AGAIN.

More Chicago day tickets, and from Winifred Britt of Chicago a dainty white silk handkerchief embroidered in lavender, a souvenir of the fair. . . . Sam B. Woods, Griffith, Ind., thinks Martha's description of the Exposition of '93 as "heavenly" was correct. . . . Winfield Scott, Okee, Wis., a Columbian guard, remembers how many fainting women he had to carry to ambulances.
